Little better than two months ago a committee of Thorsby citizens was organized for the purpose of giving a Welcome reception for the returned Heroes of Chilton County. This committee wishes to thank first of all our Returned Soldiers, Sailors and Marines for accepting our invitation. We also wish to thank all the citizens of Thorsby and Vicinity for their generous assistance, without which, it would have been imposible to achieve wonderful success we had.

Following program was rendered:

Parade at 10:30 headed by the blue and the gray of 61 and the Thorsby Band, following the band came the Chilton County Representatives of the Navy, then the Thorsby Public School and the students of the Thorsby Institute and finally the the Returned Soldiers.

Parade started at the public school grounds and proceeded through the business portion of the town finally entering the Institute campus through a beautiful Welcome Arch, erected by Mr. G. Berlin, chairman of the decoration committee.

The parade was commanded by Capt. Hutchinson, former army recruiting officer of Birmingham (now a citizen of Thorsby). At the conclusion of the parade the following program was rendered:

Music ..... Thorsby Band
Devotional exercises, Rev. Davenport
Welcome address, Mayor Bosworth
Vocal Solo ..... Mr. Wm. Rogers
The Address of the Day, delivered by Rev. J. M. Graham.
Vocal Solo ..... Miss Agnes Leary

At the conclusion of the program a bountiful dinner was served the boys by the ladies. The afternoon was taken up by music, and various amusements including two ball games, both of which were won by the Thorsby nine.

As chairman of the general committee, I desire to thank all the members of the committee, most especially Mrs. Martha Goddard, chairman of the refreshment committee, Mrs. Robert Johnson, chairman of the finance committee, and Mrs. G. Berlin, chairman of the decoration committee, for their earnest work and splendid success. It can well be voted a triumphant success every one pleased with the arrangement, that being all the compensation that we as members of the committee could desire. Our boys are worthy of everything that we can do for them.

On May 23, the committee had what they thought a final meeting to settle bills and finish up their affairs in general. But on report of our splendid treasurer the committee found that there was some money left over. Realizing that this was public money and should be spent for a public purpose, a motion prevailed that the committee stand intact and consider themselves a flag committee and will not disorganize until we have a respectable flag for the Town of Thorsby. Your committee will be heard from later.

REPUBLICANS AT WORK ON RAILROAD PROGRAM

Senator Cummins has Nearly Completed Bill Covering the Situation.

Washington, May 24.—"I believe that every effort should be made and will be made to dispose of the railroad question." said Senator Cummins of Iowa, who will be the new chairman of the Senate interstate commerce committee and who has just returned to Washington. "Much work has been done on the bill which I propose to introduce. I hope to complete it in a short time and to present it at the beginning of the session.

"The conditions in regard to the railroads are growing worse continually. They are worse than the public generally realizes or than anyone realizes who has not given the subject close attention. At the rate the roads are running behind, the deficit this year will be far greater than it was last. Then it was $226,000,000. The railroad administration I have no doubt, will makke another increase in the rates. You will recall that I predicted months ago rates would be raised still higher."

While fully realizing that the problem of dealing with the great transportation system of America is a vast one, Senator Cummins feels confident that it can be solved and that it will be solved by this congress. He sees a strong tendency toward an agreement of thought on certain basic principles and because of this tendency he is hopeful that before many more months have elapsed the country may be in a fair way to be lifted out of the slough of despond into which it has been sunk by the men responsible for the present condition of things.

Y. W. C. A. Provides Home For Actresses at Camp Dix, N. J.

Actresses who play in the Liberty Theater at Camp Dix, N. J., find a touch of home in the Players' House which the housing committee of the Young Women's Christian Association, of which Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is chairman, operates for them. Because of the distance from any town where they might stay, it was necessary to provide some sort of living accommodations for the actresses. The Y. W. C. A. built the house, supplying it with all conveniences such as sewing machines, washtubs and ironing boards. Camp Upton, L. I., has a similar house.

LETTERS BETWEEN JUDGE L.H. REYNOLDS AND STATE PRISON INSPECTOR, GLENN ANDREWS

Editor Union-Banner:

If you have space in your paper I wish you would publish the correspondence between Dr. Andrews, State Prison Inspector, and myself.

The Commissioners Court of this county is making a desperate struggle to finance the county; they are doing what they think is best for the tax payers, and yet they are being severely criticised. Some of it is honest criticism and some is for other purposes.

We have advertised some vacant lots which belong to the county, to be sold on June 3, 1919, and will pass on the sale of some lots previously sold on the same date. Some do not seem to think that the lots which were sold on March 3 brought their worth. If there is anyone that will give more and will come before the Commissioners Court Tuesday, June 3, and make a better offer I am sure the court will be glad to re-advertise the lots and offer the lots for sale again.

We shall be glad to have the assistance of any citizen in trying to get our county out of the awful financial condition it is in. Those that know so well how to finance the county ought to come before the Commissioners Court and give them the benefit of their information, for we need assistance and we are anxious to do the best we can for the county.

L. H. REYNOLDS.

Andrews' Letter to Judge Reynolds.

Dear Sir: March 7, 1919.

Section 31 of an act of the Legislature of 1911, page 356, sets out that it shall be unlawful to confine prisoners in any jail, prison, etc., unless a deputy, watchman or guard, whose duty it shall be to watch the prison or jail at night for the prevention of escapes and fire, and to aid in case of sickness among the prisoners, is provided. Section 30 of this act sets out that the expense incident to the construction, maintenance, sanitation, healthfulness and hygiene of each county jail, prison etc., shall be paid out of the funds of the county in which such institution is located, if the institution be a county institution. A ruling of the Attorney General of date July 25, 1916, places the expense for the employment of the said deputy, watchman or guard upon the court of county commissioners in which the institution is located. See ruling, Biennial report of the Attorney General of Alabama, 1914-1916, pages 382-383. Section 31 of this Act makes it mandatory that the deputy, watchman of guard be supplied at each county jail where prisoners are confined and from the recent ruling of the Attorney General the responsibility for the payment of such deputy watchman or guard is clearly placed upon the court of county commissioners.

You will please at once see that the provisions above referred to are carried out and that a suitable guard is placed on duty at night at your county jail.

I am inclosing for your information herewith a copy of a letter sent to the sheriff of your county.

Kindly acknowledge receipt of this letter.

GLENN ANDREWS,
State Prison Inspector.

Reynolds' Letter to Dr. Andrews.

Dear Sir: May 8, 1919.

In reply to your letter of March 7, 1919, will state that I have been trying to assist the sheriff in getting a guard for our jail at night, but so far I have been unable to hire one.

Chilton County has no funds at the present to pay a guard with. We have contracted for all the money which we have on hand and have borrowed all we can on our next year's taxes to re-build our court house; and then the law has forced on us at this time, the compulsory dipping of cattle, which will take ten or fifteen thousand dollars, and we have no money to carry out this law.

Our jail is a two-story stone building; the prisoners are all kept up stairs, when we have any. Sometimes we have one or two, and sometimes we haven't any at all. The sheriff lives right at the jail. I do not think a prisoner has broken jail here in the last eight or ten years and it seems useless to me for us to be forced to keep a night guard, especially after considering the financial condition of our county. However, I shall do my best to carry out your orders if you insist on us employing a night watchman.

The Commissioners Court of this county has to save every dollar that they possibly can, and then it seems that our county will go into bankruptcy in spite of everything we can do. I hoped the present legislature would do something to relieve the poor counties of the distressed financial condition which many are in, but it looks like the law-makers think all county officials are desperators with not sense enough to look after the poor and unfortunate prisoners.

This county is in debt beyond the constitutional limit and is not able to take advantage of the State nor Federal appropriations for the roads. The entire income of the county for public roads is about $13,000.00, and out of this we have to pay $10,000 interest; our general tax is about $25,000 and the Legislature provides by statute for about $20,000 of this; so you may see what the commissioners of this county have to work with.

Please write me by return mail what you would have me do in this matter and as I have stated above, I will endeavor to carry out your wishes.

Yours truly,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

Dr. Andrews' Reply.

Montgomery, Ala., May 9, 1919.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Probate Judge, Chilton County, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

Replying to your letter of the 8th. inst., I will say that the law requires that a deputy, watchman or guard be kept on duty at night at all jails in the state where persons are confined. Of course, you will understand that I have no authority to set aside or abridge this provision in any respect. When there are no prisoners confined, of course, it would be useless to have such watchman.

It is my purpose to suggest an amendment to the law in regard to such watchman at the adjourned session of the Legislature whereby some discretion can be used in the appointment of this guard. However, under the law as it now stands, of course, it is necessary to provide the watchman.

Yours truly,
GLENN ANDREWS,
State Prison Inspector.

The different departments of the national administration are still wasteful, yet the people—the common people—are continuously urged to be saving.

FILIPINOS WANT TO EAT THEIR CAKE AND KEEP IT

Ask for Independence of U. S., but Want U. S. to Guarantee to Protect Them.

Washington, May 25.—[illegible] of prominent Filipinos [illegible] the Philippines be set free [illegible] independence [illegible] committees who [illegible] guides. Whether the [illegible] administration is going to urge [illegible] diate independence for the Philippines has not yet been developed [illegible] members of the House insular [illegible] who have gone into the subject deeply with the visiting Filipinos [illegible] Are they satisfied with a guarantee from the League of Nations? They want the United States to guarantee their independence so that no other power will venture to seize them.

While many of the Southern members of congress, as well as some others, would gladly cast the Islands completely loose from the United States, there will be decided opposition both in the House and Senate to independence with a guaranty of it, on the ground it might involve this nation in grave disputes of war. And congress will ponder a long time before it says the Philippines shall be turned adrift, to shift for themselves, a weak nation, and the possible prey of other powers.

LANSING SNUBBED BY WILSON AT PEACE PARLEYS

Not Treated as Premiers of Other Nations are Treated At Conference.

SECRETARY IS HUMILIATED

Forced to Play "Office Boy" to Col House and Flunkey to President.

Washington, May 26.—The latest cabinet gossip going the rounds in Washington concerns Secretary of State Lansing.

Secretary Lansing, according to gentlemen who are in position to know the facts, is not pleased over the situation in which he finds himself in the Peace Conference. Stories coming from Paris that the Secretary may resign are not mere imaginings. They are a reflection of talk which can be heard in the inner circles of the American personnel at the peace conference.

It will be recalled that William J. Bryan is chief of the State Department, resigned from his office after he had found out that in fact he was a figurehead. When Secretary Lansing went to Paris, according to his friends, he went with the expectation that he would play a large part in the proceedings and that it would redound to his credit. As was entirely natural, Mr. Lansing thought it not improbable that as the Secretary of State of the United States he would fill a conspicious place in the public eye and would come back to America with the well-earned plaudits of his countrymen. In the daily chronicles of the doings at Paris, the Secretary quite naturally anticipated that the name of Robert Lansing would recur frequently and that it would rank alongside the names of the premiers of Great Britain and France and Italy.

To say that this has come to pass is merely setting forth in the mildest way possible the truth. President Wilson has practically monopolized the spotlight as the American representative. Next to him, the only one the President has permitted to come in public notice has been Col. House. Seldom has Secretary Lansing been mentioned. Even in the matter of giving out the news, Col. House has taken a higher place than has Secretary Lansing.

Then, too, the views Secretary Lansing has had as to certain phases of making terms have been thrust aside. The Secretary of State is thus put in a most difficult position. Whether he shall choose to remain in it or to extract himself from it by resignation remains to be seen. That he is for from happy may be inferred, but it does not rest on inference alone.

ANOTHER CABINET CRISIS IS BREWING IN WILSON CIRCLE

ADMINISTRATION EMBARASSED

Washington, May 24.—The smoulder[ing] controversy over steel and iron prices between Secretary of Commerce Redfield and the industrial board on the one hand, and Director General Hines of the railroad administration, on the other, has flared up again.

Efforts of Mr. Redfield and the industrial board to force the director general to agree to steel prices as fixed by them andence between government [illegible] and steel men some weeks ago have failed. Mr. Hines has just announced that the railroad administration will ask at once for competitive bids for 200,000 tons of steel rails.

This means complete disregard of Secretary Redfield and the industrial board. Not only that but Mr. Hines has issued a statement throwing sticks at the industrial board, which is under Mr. Redfield. And Mr. Redfield in a statement indicates he has not retreated but is standing to his gun. Of interest too, is the fact the navy is buying steel without reference to Mr. Redfield's organization. The days of the industrial board are, of course, numbered.

The White House has left Secretary Redfield to fight out his own troubles and tribulations. This implies that the president refuses to back up Mr. Redfield and trusts the judgment of Mr. Hines.

Admittedly, Secretary Redfield is thus left in a highly embarassing situation. Gossip that he will quit the cabinet or be forced out is rife. What is more, his situation is in some respects akin to that of Postmaster General Burleson in that certain elements close to the administration would like to pry him loose. It is said the president would like to replace Mr. Redfield with a functionary more useful to the party purposes of 1920. But all hints, intimations and the like to Mr. Redfield that a long vacation would be good for him after his arduous war work have been in vain. On the principle of self-determination, how can a cabinet official be rudely kicked out. Also, cabinet upheavels do not look well on the eve of a presidential campaign.

Thus much for the personal and political phases of the embroglio. But there are other important angles of it which more deeply concern the public. While the rumpus rages between Messrs Redfield and Hines, steel and iron prices remain unsettled and what this means to the building world, the manufacturers, the farmers and all other consumers of material need only be mentioned.

Without regard to where the prices of steel and iron ought to go, the fact remains that Secretary Redfield and the industrial board, asleep to the fact that the war is over, set out to fix prices for the public—not simply for the government but for the public. That fact stands out and cannot be overlooked. They had no authority from congress that remotely contemplated any such proceeding and congress will not grant them any such authority. The whole business, as many in congress have already said, is a sample of the disposition of government officials to reach out and assume authority which they do not have. Moreover, what about the observance by officials of the anti-trust laws? If congress gets to asking questions on this score, the embarassments of Mr. Redfield will still further be accentuated.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

Reese has got things so hot down at his tent meeting that some of the elders and deacons even have to get out on the wood pile where they can get fresh air along with it.

One man very aptly remarked in our office Tuesday that Reese preached more gospel truth in his one sermon Monday night than has been preached in Clanton for the past twelve months.

What we want to say is that when all the hill side preachers in this great land of ours get on Rome's trail good and hot it will soon "make the cows tell in their milk."

Thomas J. Calvert, Republican, will represent Walker County in the lower body of the State Legislature when that body convenes in July, taking the place of Dr. O. Mansco, who died recently. Calvert defeated his Democratic opponent by over 500 votes.

Now and then we run across a preacher who is awake to the evils of the Romaan Catholic menace in this country, and it is gratifying to find them arousing themselves. The ministry like all other human agencies, has its faults and its shortcomings, but it is not our purpose to set those things out here.

Chilton County is soon to have two large motor trucks to use in its public road work. The trucks have been given to the county by the Federal Government. Judge Reynolds went to Birmingham Tuesday to complete the arrangements for getting the trucks. This will give us a distinct advantage in road building and maintenance.

We said a few weeks ago that there would be opposition in congress to the Federal Measure proposed in the interest of better public schools in the United States. Our prediction has come true. And the opposition has arisen from officials of the administration, that is, members of Mr. Wilson's cabinet. Look for the "fine Italian hand" of Romanism in this opposition. It is there.

Say, you folks who allow your ten-year-old boy or girl drive your flivver up and down the public highways! Did you know there is a law of this state against a child under sixteen years of age driving an automobile on the public highways? Read what Sheriff Gore has got to say on the subject this week in The Union-Banner. Better wise yourself up a bit before you get pinched.

We are gratified at the unstinted praise rendered by Dr. Maye of the Clanton Methodist Church to the newspapers for their services in the Methodist Centenary drive just finished so successfully. Dr. May said: "I believe the power of the press in our favor has been one of the greatest and most vital forces in bringing the splendid success that we have attained thouughout the country." We believe this is right and thank Dr. Maye for his expression.

People everywhere are complaining about the high cost of living. You hear them kicking in the North; you hear them grumbling in the South. And why shouldn't they complain? The cost of living is not only high but seems to be going higher. Meantime great quantities of food stuffs are being shipped out of the United States to Europe. The majority of people in this country are concerned about our own economic affairs more than they are about the League of Nations. They are concerned about the high cost of living, about railroad fares and freight rates, telephone and telegraph rates, wages employment and in short, about the things that come right home to everybody.

Miss Josephine Miller, National Woman Suffrage organizer, was in Clanton Tuesday representing Mrs. Solon Jacobs of Birmingham. Miss Miller expressed confidence that the bill to submit the suffrage amendment to the national constitution would pass in congress in a short while. If it does, it is the plan of suffrage workers to fight for ratification of the amendment in the next session of the Alabama Legislature in July. Alabama advocates of equal suffrage are enthusiastic in their efforts to make Alabama the first state to ratify the amendment through its legislature.

Credit for the first aeroplane flight across the Atlantic ocean goes to the United States Navy Seaplane NC-4, under command of Lieut. Albert Cushing Read. The flight has been completed from Rockaway Beach, Long Island to Lisbon, Portugal. The British flyer Hawker made a desperate effort to grab the honor from the United States but failure overtook him in mid-ocean. Naval officials are justly proud of Lieut. Read's accomplishment.

What would you think of one of the Sovereign States of this American Union, a southern state if you please, having a Roman Catholic Knight of Columbus occupy the office of State Superintendent of Education? Don't you think such a thing as that ought to open your eyes? All right, get them open right quick. Such a thing is an actual fact. We will tell you the whole story in the near future. It is going to be a revelation of an awful truth that will take the breath out of somebody.

A. Mitchell Palmer, the newely appointed attorney-General of the U. S. has figured it out that the success of this Country in the war is due to the achievements of the Democratic party in the four years immediatily prior to the war. He of course had to give the credit to his partisan fellows-in-sin of the Democratic camp. But you notice he did not dare say it was to the credit of the war administration. It was those of the pre-ceding administration that won the war, according to Palmer.

Of all the predicaments a fellow has ever been in there is none this quill-pusher has ever experienced that is quite equal to being cornered by one of these feminine suffragettes and lectured for an hour with that endless argument the women have cut and dried about why they ought to vote and the great things that are going to come to the world when the hobble skirt is put on the election poll. Did you ever have an attack of it? Well, if you ain't you can't fully sympathize with your friend Wyatt on this Tuesday afternoon.

We are disappointed to see a report of the Alabama Great Council of Red Men apeparing in the daily papers without mentioning the name of W. J. Armstrong of Clanton as one of the attendants. Armstrong is at the head of the list as a fraternal leader in this state, and especially does he stand high with the Red Men. He is a past Great Sachem of the order in Alabama, and we know it would not be just to him and to the order to say anything about the Great Council and not mention his presence as a member of the body. No branch of fraternal workers anywhere have got anybody they can trot out ahead of our own most estimable W. J., and they all know it as well as we do.

The laws of the state of Alabama which forbid children under sixteen driving autos on the public highways should go further and prohibit any woman from driving cars. The writer happens to know of an incident of recent occurrence which came to the nearest verge of resulting in a disastrous accident, all because a good lady of Clanton was driving a car in a most reckless and if you please, foolish manner. This lady is otherwise a very sensible and level-headed woman, but she should not drive automobiles if she cannot have any better judgment than she exhibited on this recent occasion. These reckless women automobile drivers are usually those who are the loudest in the demand of the right for women to vote.

Anyone who cares to examine into the history of the matter and into precedents will find that the power of the Senate to amend a treaty while ratifying it is not only unquestioned but that it has been frequently exercised. The Senate in 1890 ratified the African Slave Trade Convention and made certain reservations which it set forth. It did likewise in 1906 when it ratified the Algeceras Convention. The treaties went into effect and the United States was bound by them up to the points where it made reservations. In one case the other nations formally assented, and in the other assented by implication to the reservations. Nothing could be more absurd than to suppose that if the United States made reservations to protect its own sovereignty, as the senate has the full right to do, the peace treaty as a whole would be jeopardized.

Twenty-five Years Ago

Alex Shelton, negro, was sentenced by Judge N. D. Denson, to be hanged on June 29th, 1894, for the murder of James Harris, which took place April 3, 1893.

The Grand Jury returned an indictment for murder against Dr. Matthews. His case continued and the defendant placed under a bond of $2,000.00. Messrs Sampey and Merritt are his securities.

We wish it were possible that every preacher in Chilton County could come and hear every sermon of the Reese-Rowland Revival in Clanton. But we suppose our country preachers feel like they must be at home between the plow handles trying to make them some bread to feed themselves and their families. And this brings to our minds the awful shamefulness that rests upon our churches for not providing for their preachers. Pastors of our churches should be so cared for by their people that they would not have to depend upon their muscular toil for bread. Then they could attend such important schools as this revival would be for them. The benefit that our preachers would get out of such a school would be untold.

All right now, you town gossips. You can get busy with your forked tongues. The teachers for the next session of the public school have been elected and it is your time to begin to spread your venemous condemnation of the school officials because they did not do it just exactly to suit you. We are sure you have some kick to make. This teacher you would say should not have stayed here because she has such a tacky way of fixing her hair; and that one should have been turned off because she has such a sour look on her face; another one should have been fired out of town because she boarded with a Methodist family last year or went to the Baptist Sunday School. And, of course, your friend up in the next town should have been elected because she wears her false teeth so gracefully and so strategically conceal her old maid attainments of years. These are about the arguments you will hear somebody advance if you cut your phone in on their private line.

We hopefully look for the work of the new congress to include investigations into the manner in which the departments of the government have conducted themselves and especially into the affairs of the war department. There is indeniable evidences all over the country of a wide-spread public feeling that there has been a reckless reign of waste and incapacity on the part of many of the officials of this department. The pressure for investigation of this department is very great and it must be satisfied by the necessary investigation by proper authorities. For in a general way the main purpose of the present congress is to build for the country a great structure of legislation of an advanced and effective character. In doing this it cannot escape the task of probing into the affairs of various departments and setting forth the truth as to the charges of waste and bad management, and even worse things, which proceed from every direction. The people want to know the truth about these things and congress should give them the information they seek.

If we go back a few years we can find where President Wilson foretold his present efforts at domineering the other departments of the government. This will show wherein the President assumes to demand that the senate shall endorse the League of Nations without the crossing of a "t" or the dotting of an "i." We refer to certain expressions from the book of Mr. Wilson on Congressional Government relating to the president's power to force the Senate to do his will, as follows:

"His only power of compelling compliance on the part of the Senate lies in his initiative in negotiation, which affords him a chance to get the country into just such scrapes, so pledged in the view of the world to certain courses of action that the Senate hesitates to bring about the appearance of disgrace that would follow its refusal to ratify the treaty promises or to support the indignant threats of the Secretary of State."

In these days of many returning soldiers it is interesting to get their viewpoints on a number of things. The fact is especially noticeable [illegible] The great majority of them say that the armistice was signed [illegible] the German [illegible] what [illegible] the American [illegible] While the President [illegible] were to fulfill [illegible] "ideals" as he called them. The Germans claim that the fourteen points are to be [illegible] The Allies [illegible] in favor of [illegible] Clemenceau [illegible] rather opposed making them [illegible] In his Boston speech President Wilson said that the American soldiers [illegible] ideals [illegible] points. He said [illegible] the inspiration of those ideals. Were the American soldiers fighting for the fourteen points? Or were they fighting [illegible] the lines and [illegible] damage? The [illegible] of the German delegates at the peace conference throws some light on the question.

To President Wilson should be assigned the task of answering the flood of German notes which are pouring into the peace conference. He has an unexcelled reputation as a note writer.

As to whether Mr. Wilson will be a candidate for a third term we are beginning to wonder whether he will get home in time.

We have not yet heard whether or not the Pope has transmitted his appeal for mitigation of the peace terms to one of the most important delegates at the peace conference.

Rev. J. D. Deason of Route 3, Maplesville, was in town Monday.

J. L. Johnson, J. C. Harris and Dr. J. P. Crumpton and 25 boys and girls went to Lock 12 on a picnic last Friday.

W. J. Billingsley and wife of Thorsby were in Clanton visiting Monday.

E. L. Jones, Rev. E. A. Norris and Rev. E. B. Prickett, of Verbena, attended the Ministers and Deacons Meeting in Clanton last Monday.

Joe Mullins accidentally shot himself Monday afternoon, but fortunately it proved only a flesh wound in the leg.

Dr. Earle Gowan wishes his friends to know that he has returned from New Orleans, La., where he has been recently taking a special course in dentistry, dealing especially with the subject of conductive antisthesia. It is not our job to tell you what this is. You may have it know what in the world is the matter with you. See Dr. Gowan and he will fix you up with the latest methods of modern dentistry.

He was sitting in the front end of the boat and John Robinson was paddling the old canoe up to a willow overhanging the water from the bank. The trot-line was to be tied to the willow. By one of those curious movements peculiar to a boat, the front end dashed under the willow and out he went—head first. The last thing John saw of him was his heels. Now, if you want to know fuller details about it, we refer you to that veteran fisherman, Si Hayes. He can tell you how deep the water was, how far it was to the bank, and who the man was in the front of the boat.

Rev. W. P. Lowery of Thorsby was in Clanton the first of this week attending the Preachers and Deacons meeting Monday, and also the Reese-Rowland Revival.

Rev. E. B. Prickett of Verbena visited the Union-Banner last Monday. The editor felt gratified to have Mr. Prickett give us his hand in endorsement of our fight against the evils of Romanism in our country. The influence of the preachers in this great fight is a great force, one to be desired by those who are in the midst of such a great battle. We want the preachers with us.

Dr. B. A. Taylor and wife have rented the Wade residence and recently removed their family there. Dr. Taylor is in charge of the cattle dipping in the county.

"Nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash; these three; but the greatest of these is nitrogen." That is the way a prosperous farmer of Central Alabama expresses his opinion of the value of nitrogen as a fertilizer. While nitrogen is not always the most needed fertilizing element, yet the need of nitrogen in Alabama soils is almost universal. This fact is confirmed by the results of experiments conducted in various sections of Alabama, under the State's Local Experiment Law. The need for nitrogen emphasizes the fact that care in the use of the nitrate of soda recently purchased by farmers from the Government will result in large profits.

It has been found from results of Local Experiments, referred to above, that 100 pounds of nitrate of soda applied to cotton soon after the first squares appear was as effective and profitable as 200 pounds of cottonseed meal applied before planting. It was also found that as a fertilizer for corn a pound of nitrogen in nitrate of soda is worth somewhat more than a pound of nitrogen in cottonseed meal.

These profits, however, are realized only when care is taken to apply the nitrate at the right time. It is quite soluble, and is available for plants immediately after it dissolves in the soil moisture. For this reason it is best not to apply nitrate of soda at planting time, except in rather small amounts when it is desired to hasten early growth. However, there is a tendency in some sections to apply nitrate too late. When in doubt about the best time to apply, it is usually safer to select the earlier date. Cotton should receive nitrate when the plants are about six inches high; corn when about two or three feet high; fall sown oats in February or early March; spring sown oats a little later.

From 80 to 100 pounds of nitrate of soda to the acre should be the usual rate of application. It may be scattered broadcast over the surface of the ground, preferably just before cultivation on cultivated crops. It is highly important that the fertilizer be applied uniformly. When scattering nitrate over oats be careful to note that the leaves are dry, so that no particles will stick to them.

82 Years Old and As Good As a Youngster.

"Seven or eight years ago I was a very sick man. Doctors said catarrh trouble of the stomach and bowels, affecting the liver and heart. For more than a year I wanted to die, but could not. Upon the advice of a friend I tried Mayrs Wonderful Remedy, and although 82 years old I now feel as good as a youngster." It is simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

UNION GROVE

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me to say just a few words in regard to health and conditions of this community.

Health is very good, and our Sunday School is progressing nicely. Rev. J. Wiley Davis delivered a very interesting sermon at this place this afternoon.

Union Grove and Thorsby crossed bats at Union Grove Saturday p.m., and the scores went in favor of Union Grove, 9 to 8. Robinson did the twirling for Union with Martin receiving

There will be an all-day singing at this place next Sunday. Books to be used will be Harp and Harmony. Everybody is given the special invitation to come and bring well filled baskets.

PRESIDENT FORCED TO DECIDE

Can No Longer Dodge Labor's Demand That Burleson Must Go.

Washington, May 24.—Unanimous endorsement has been given by organized labor in the District of Columbia through the Central Labor Union to the resolutions recently adopted by the Cleveland Federation of Labor which criticizes P.M. General Burleson for his attitude toward labor. The resolutions call on President Wilson to silence Mr. Burleson or remove him from office.

For a number of years, postal clerks have made complaints about the attitude of Postmaster General toward the employees of the Post office Deparment. These have been systematically disregarded by the administration.

The question now is whether, with the campaign of 1920 drawing nearer, complaints of labor will be given attention.

Everyone Should Contribute.

The state drive for the state soldiers' memorial which will begin June 27th in Alabama will be for popular subscriptions and the Alabama Memorial Commission has announced that one dollar from a person who can afford no more will be as much appreciated as one hundred dollars from the person who can give that amount.

"It is desired that every person in the state have a part in the erection of this state memorial," reads an announcement of the Commission. "It is desired to have it truly representative of the feelings of appreciation of all persons who make up this commonwealth. It is the desire of the commission to impress upon those who can afford substantial donations that they should make them in order that funds may be provided for those who cannot make contributions. In other words, we hope the state fund will be six dollars for every soldier, sailor and marine who entered the service from Alabama."

Memorials in 17 States.

Seventeen American states are following the lead of Alabama in the construction of buildings as memorials to their soldiers, sailors and marines. Information received by the Alabama Memorial Commission shows that the following states have already made plans for memorial buildings: Alabama, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Caroline, North Dakota, Nevada, New Jersey, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee. Those contemplating the construction of buildings are: Michigan, Minnesota, New Mexico, Rhode Island Utah.

The ladies of Clanton had a rousing suffrage meeting on Tuesday afternoon in conference with Miss Josephine Miller, the national suffrage organizer, who was in Clanton representing Mrs. Solon Jacobs of Birmingham. The Clanton ladies seem to have gained much enthusiasm in the meeting.

MEMORIAL TO ALL STATE'S SOLDIERS

DRIVE FOR $500,000 WILL BEGIN JUNE 27TH AND CONTINUE UNTIL JULY 4TH—ALABAMA WILL HONOR BOYS.

COMMISSION ISSUES APPEAL

Records Show 80,000 Alabamians Answered Call—More Than 2,000 Sleep in France.

The Alabama Memorial Commission, through W. S. Stallings, state campaign director, has called upon all citizens of Alabama to join in the state drive for five hundred thousand dollars with which to erect a state memorial to Alabama's soldiers, sailors and marines. The drive will begin June 27th and will continue until July 4th, when it will end with celebrations in all counties Independence Day.

Workers have been named in all counties and are now perfecting the organizations and Director Stallings' appeal to all citizens to join in the campaign follows:

"Eighty thousand men of Alabama entered the nation's service. Thousands have returned after doing their duty. Tens of thousands will soon return, but more than two thousand will never return. Their bodies lie buried under the sod of France, a perpetual reminder that Alabama answered the call of civilization

"We honor those who went and returned. We revere the memory of those who gave everything, the most precious of God's blessings, life itself, that other people might not be placed in bondage by persons of alien lands. The time has come when Alabama must show the world what value it places on the services of those who did not return, on the work of those who did return and on those who did not go but were ready to go.

Must Not Fail Now.

"Citizens of Alabama have been called upon officially by the Legislature to subscribe a fund of five hundred thousand dollars with which to erect the 'Alabama Memorial,' commemorating the deeds of Alabama's representatives in the war. A great statewide drive will be made beginning June 27th and continuing until July 4th. Failure has not been in the vocabulary of Alabama since the war began. It has never failed. It will not fail in this movement which is the only big thing we have attempted to do to show the soldiers who returned, the relatives of those who will not return and the world at large that we value the services of our representatives in the war.

"Quotas have been assigned to all counties on a basis as near scientific as could be found. Each county is asked to contribute for its own and no others. The basis is six dollars for each soldier, sailor and marine who entered the war from each county. The government worked out a plan whereby the burdens imposed on the various counties by the selective service law were as near equal as possible. This same plan was used by the Alabama Memorial Commission.

PLEASANT HILL

There will be an an day sevice at at this place Pleasant Hill, better known as the Blow Grave Yard, on the third Sunday in June 1919. The most of the day will be spent in singing. The late books will be used. There will be a short memorial service in the morning and the rest of the day will be spent in song service. We very cordially invite all Singers and lovers of music to be with us on that day to take part in the Master's service. And to spend the day very profitably in the advancement of His Kingdom.

CONVINCNG EVIDENCE FOR THE SICK

Offer Services Free of Charge.

Word has just been received that the Associated Doctors, specialists, licensed by the State of Alabama, and who have met with such phenominal success throughout the entire Southeast, will be in Clanton on Saturday, June 7th,

This will indeed be good news to those who find it convenient to visit the central laboratories in Birmingham, located at Suite 511-12 Lyric Theatre Building, where the organization has its southern headquarters. These regular, reputable physicians believe that the combined skill of several trained specialists in chronic disease cases can accomplish more than one doctor alone — in other words, in unity there is strength.

The offer to treat all who call on then on this visit absolutely free, is their original method of getting their system of treatment before the public quicker, and no one, rich or poor, white or colored, should neglect to take advantage of their very liberal offer—ABSOLUTELY FREE—(medicine excepted. No cutting, no knife.

It makes no difference how many doctors you have consulted or how many patent medicines you have taken, you cannot afford to miss this opportunity of ascertaining your exact condition, and be honestly advised. No one should require further evidence of the skill of these specialists than the following:

TESTIMONY:

Square Cheatham, Boiling, Ala., writes: I had rhumatism for over two years, and walked with a stick. After taking the first dose of your medicine I threw away my stick. Your remedy has done the work, and I am now a well man, thanks to the Associated Doctors."

Ira Craig, Greenville, Ala., writes: "I am doing very well. My foot is healing, although I am compelled to walk on it."

J. L. Redding, Saginaw, Ala., writes "I am free from rhumatic pain since commencing your treatment."

Thomas Marshall, Chapman, Ala., writes: "I can truthfully say I am a new man. I feel I don't need the full eight weeks you prescribed."

Mrs. Margaret W. Rogers, Georgiana, Ala., writes: "I have been using your remedies prescribed near three weeks, and am feeling much better."

We hold certificates by examination and other necessary requirements to practice medicine and surgery in 17 states of the Union. We have demonstrated our skill to specialists in New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis, Nashville, Atlanta and other medical centers this side of the Atlantic. Those who secure our service are assured of the skill that our many years of experience and special qualifications afford.

We treat with every assurance of success, Catarrh, Asthma and Bronchial Trouble, by the new vaccine method; rhumatism, uric acid, gall stones, blood diseases, skin diseases, nervous diseases, throat trouble, liver, tomach and bowel trouble, bed wetting, tumors, kidney and bladder diseases, piles, fistula and all special nervous and chronic diseases of men and women, without loss of time or inconvenience to patients—and

TACHERS RE-ELECTED FOR CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL

The School board makes the pleasing announcement that all the teachers on the faculty of the Clanton Grammar School for the past year have been re-elected for the next session, and it is practically assured that they will return.

The list includes Prof. J. L. Johnson, Principal, Miss Edna Tate of Summerfield, Miss Icelo Williams of Duncanville, Miss Bessie Thomas of Clanton, and Miss Mary Timmerman of Pratville.

The Union-Banner voices the sentiment of our entire Citizenship in saying that we are glad to have this corps of teachers with us again for another session. No better Principal than Prof. Johnson could be secured anywhere. And the interest and cooperation of his splended assistants in the success of their work and the welfare of the pupils assures us that we have been greatly blessed to have them return to us again next year.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

We wish to express our appreciation in the highest terms to the newspapers of our city for their valuable assistance and free space open at the desposal of our Church in the great Centenary drive.

We are happy to announce to the public and with our heart-felt gratitude to all who rendered their services, their prayers, their love, and their money in bringing the church to this most glorious victory. Clanton went over the top by subscribing our quota in full to the amount of $7,000.00.

I thank you for all your assistance.

On account of the services in progress at the tent, there will not be any services at the Methodist Church in Clanton next Sunday morning nor evening, June 1st.

Why Suffer?

Mrs. J. A. Cox, of Alderson, W. Va., writes: "My daughter . . . suffered terribly. She could not turn in bed . . . the doctors gave her up, and we brought her home to die. She had suffered so much at . . . time. Having heard of Cardui, we got it for her."

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"In a few days, she began to improve," Mrs. Cox continues, "and had no trouble at . . . Cardui cured her, and we sing its praises everywhere." We receive many thousands of similar letters every year, telling of the good Cardui has done for women who suffer from complaints so common to their sex. It should do you good, too. Try Cardui. E-77

PLEASANT GROVE, SHOULTS

On the Fourth Sunday in May, Pleasant Grove Baptist Church at Shoults, held a special service, and ordained Brethren Moore, Oden and Latham to the office of deacons of the church. We are confident that with these men as the business managers of our church, Pleasant Grove will move forward.

Rev. F. W. C. Bice is our pastor. The church invited Rev. Connell and Rev. S. M. Adams to assist in the ordination of these brethren as deacons. Bro. Adams preached the ordination sermon. His subject was "The deacon, his Office and his qualifications." To say that Bro. Adams preached a strong sermon is putting it very mildly; for everyone who knows him at all knows that he is gifted in preaching and especially well fortified on matters of Baptist doctrine.

Mrs. G. D. Broadhead went down to Montgomery last Saturday to meet her husband as he was returning from the army.

Arkie Mahan went to Montgomery last Friday.

Newton Aldridge has accepted a position with the Western Union Telegraph Co., at Decatur. He left Clanton for that place Wednesday.

Ex-County Treasurer J. Bice, is living happy these days. All his five sons have returned from France. Mr. Bice is proud of his contribution of manpower in the war, and is also lucky that all his sons came back safe and unhurt.

MR. JOHN M. LUSK OF GADSDEN, ALABAMA WRITES A LETTER

States that he shows marked improvement since taking the new remedy, Dreco. Suffered from Gastritis, Constipation and Nervous.

"This is the first remedy I have ever found that has done me any good," states Mr. John M. Lusk, the well known citizen of Gadsden, Ala., in a signed statement given for publication in this paper.

"I admit that when I began taking Dreco, I had no confidence in it, for I had already tried so many of them, but the improvement is so marked that I am convinced of its merits.

"I used to suffer from gas in my stomach and bowels after eating. I would be all bloated up and very uncomfortable. My bowels were habitually constipated; I was bilious and had to be taking medicine constantly. My appetite was poor and I become extremely nervous so that I could not sleep much.

"I am 68 years old and have lived in Gadsden for the past 30 years, and many of the people have known of my sufferings. I am glad to state that Dreco has made me feel like a different person, and I consider it the greatest medicine I ever saw, and recommend it to every one suffering as I did."

Dreco is a pure liquid combination of juices of many roots, herbs, barks and berries, which act on the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and it cleanses the blood. It increases the appetite, soothes the nerves, induces sound sleep and builds up the entire system. Pleasant to take and is good for men, women and children.

Dreco is now sold by all progressive druggists throughout the country and is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

LEGAL SALE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

In accordance with an order of the Commissioners Court, held on May 3, 1919, I will proceed to sell to the highest and best bidder, for cash, Lots Nos. 9, 10, 15, and 16, in Block No. 11, the above lots being near the Chilton County Jail; sale to be held June 3, 1919, at 12 o'clock, M., at the lots.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved.

Judge of Probate.

INCREASE PROFITS BY PREVENTING YOUR LOSS

If you go into your cotton fields in the midst of the growing season and find that from 10 to 50 per cent of your cotton is killed by the cotton wilt disease or ruined by the boll rot disease, it is then too late to obtain good disease resistant and disease free seed to plant. When you visit your field about the time the first cultivation is needed and find that in most places you have secured only about two-thirds of a stand, then you will think how easy it would have been to select good seed for planting.

There are three general means by which the crop yields of the farm can be increased. First, by increasing the crop acreage; second, by using more green and artificial manures judiciously; third, by preventing the usual loss of a large percentage of the crops from diseases and the use of bad seed for planting.

It is easily seen that the third named means of increasing the crop yield of the farm is the most inexpensive and can be attained to at the very beginning with very little extra trouble by planting good sound seed, a perfect stand is insured, other conditions being favorable. When a perfect stand of crops is secured, then the soil, fertilizer and labor are cooperating most effectively. Those farmers who selected their planting seed from the fields of his season's crop have an advantage over those who did not. When selecting seeds from the field, you select not sound seed but seed from high yielding plants which have the power of transmitting that yield to the offspring. However, if you have neglected your planting seed from the field and cannot buy them from those who are making a specialty of growing high grade seeds, it would be well to pick sound seed for planting, and it is also wise to make a germination test before planting.

All through the growing season, after a perfect stand has been secured, the crops are constantly harassed by various diseases and insect pests. By planting seeds of disease resistant varieties and disease free seed, the loss from these diseases can be prevented. Rotation of crops will eliminate the losses from all insects to a large extent. First of all, get started right with the right kind of planting seed and that matter will not give you any trouble should any bad luck occur.

FOURTH SUNDAY IN MAY SINGING AT SALEM CHURCH

House was called to order by Bro. T. L. Robinson at 10:00 o'clock, fast time, by singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," and Rev. E. A. Norris led a public prayer.

T. L. Robinson was elected permanent chairman for the Salem Fourth Sunday Singing, and the chair appointed to arrange program for the day the following: W. M. Devaughn, D. S. Robinson, R. Robinson.

Directors for Forenoon.

Lee Robinson,
C. H. Robinson,
L. T. Grant,
Jessie Jones,

Recess, 15 minutes.

R. T. Grant,
W. M. Devaughn,
R. Robinson,

A delicious and bountiful dinner was served, and the singing was resumed at 1:30 o'clock,

A quartet was rendered by W. M. Devaughn, Lee Robinson, J. R. Robinson, L. T. Grant.

Afternoon Directors.

Ocie Devaughn,
Lee Robinson,
W. E. Milstead,
W. J. Little,
J. A. W. Mims,

Lee Robinson,
T. L. Robinson,

Closing song, "God Be With You Till we meet again," and dismissed by Bro. E. L. Jones, until the Fourth Sunday in May, 1920.

Everybody seemed to enjoy themselves in the song service and we had a large crowd and good behavior so far as I know.

A good and inspiring talk was made by Bro. N. J. Calloway.

J. W. CLECKLER, Secy.

MICKIE SAYS

THE BEST WAY TO GROW CANTULOPES

Every one should grow a few hills of cantaloupes in his home garden, as there is no vegetable as delicious as a well ripened cantaloupe. Many people have ceased growing cantaloupes because of the worms that infest the fruits. You should not stop growing them on this account but, instead, get in the crop early, using the earliest maturing varieties and selecting the best soils so as to mature the crop before the appearance of the pests.

To grow an early crop a well drained, rich, sandy loam soil sloping to the south and southeast should be used. The ground should be thoroughly prepared by breaking up and pulverizing. Lay off the rows, five feet each way; place in the hills about three or four good shovels full of lot manure. Prepare a hill by digging the soil and manure together, forming a hill. Plant ten or a dozen seed in each hill as early as possible. In Southern Alabama March 20th. In Central Alabama about April 1st, and in North Alabama, April 10th. If danger of frost is over before this time, one might risk a few seed.

It is a splendid practice to plant a few seed in each hill each week until danger of frost is over. If the first planting is killed the later planted seed will surely stand. If the first planting is not killed, the later plantings may be thinned out, leaving a stand of two or three plants to each hill. Plants should be carefully cultivated, keeping all weeds down so that the vines will not have to be disturbed after they begin to run on the ground.

For early varieties I prefer the Extra Early Hackensack, the Emerald Gem and the Jenny Lind. The Rocky Ford is an excellent variety, though a later one.

There are not many insects to trouble cantaloupes. One of the worst pests is the cantaloupe worm which bores a hole in the young fruits, making them unfit for food and often causing them to rot before ripening. A careful examination should be made to note if any damage is being done by these insects and in case an infested fruit is found it should be destroyed.

There is no successful way of combating the worm as many sprays have been tried. If one sprays he will have to do it every day. The only sure way of growing cantaloupes is to do as suggested above, plant early so as to have them matured before the appearance of the worm.

Another good practice in growing cantaloupes is to practice rotation, never growing cantaloupes on the same soil year after year. If this cannot be done one should burn all the foliage, vines and old fruits after the main crop has matured. I followed the above and have been very successful in growing cantaloupes for the past three years.

WE SOLD SEVERAL OF THEM LAST SEASON, AND FARMERS REPORT SATISFACTORY RESULTS. HAVING SEEN MANY TESTIMONIALS FROM FARMERS IN DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE COTTON GROWING SECTION, WE ARE CONVINCED THAT IF THE MACHINE IS USED WHEN THE COTTON IS ABOUT SIX INCHES HIGH AND CONTINUE ITS USE ABOUT EVERY TEN DAYS UNTIL THE PLANT IS TOO LARGE TO PASS THROUGH THE MACHINE, YOU WILL MAKE AT LEAST THREE-FOURTHS OF A FULL YIELD OF COTTON, AT A COST OF $10.00 FOR THE MACHINE.

THE WINTER MONTHS ARE JUST PASSED AND THE PRESENT WEATHER CONDITIONS ARE FAVORABLE TO PRODUCE MILLIONS OF WEEVILS; SO ALL FARMERS SHOULD BEGIN EARLY DESTRUCTION OF THE WEEVIL. LESS THAN FIFTY POUNDS OF COTTON WILL PAY FOR THE MACHINE, WHICH IF USED AS DIRECTED WILL INSURE YOU A FAIR CROP.

"THE HEART OF THE WORLD"

Washington, May 26.—The Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today, gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

President Wilson, in a recent Paris speech, done in English, is reported to have said: "The heart of the world is under very plain jackets. The heart of the world is at very simple firesides. The heart of the world is in very simple circumstances; and unless you know the pressure of life of the humbler classes, you know nothing of life whatever."

The heart of Mr. Wilson is under a frock-coat, and his brain is under a high silk hat. The heart of Mr. Wilson, for the past six months at least, has been at the firesides of royalty and in the beds of princes of the blood. The heart of Mr. Wilson has pulsed with joy at gold plate dinners and in enjoying a homage greater than that of kaisers. The "simple circumstances" of his first trip to France were followed by the presentation of a bill to congress of $5,000,000 to defray the expenses, and what the second trip will cost it not yet known, but the $1,000,000 said to have been expended in renovating the Hotel Crillon—the Paris White House—will be an item.

Mr. Wilson's boyhood days, so it is stated in his official biography, were spent in the South, "where he prepared for college with private tutors." He entered Davidson College at 18 years of age, and from 1874 to 1902, with the exception of two years unsuccessful practice of law in Atlanta, Ga., he idealized in the sequestered environs of exclusive universities—Princeton, Virginia, Johns Hopkins, Byrn Mawr, Wesleyan, and back to Princeton. In 1885 he married the daughter "of a distinguished family of Savannah, Ga.," who died in 1914. In 1915 he married a wealthy resident of Washington, who claims the more or less blue blood of Pocahontas. His chief recreation is golf; his chief diversion, note-writing. When did Mr. Wilson ever come into direct contact with "the heart of the world?"

Yet, he has been often classed by his flatterers with Honest Abe., the Illinois rail-splitter. The classification is inaccurate. Lincoln sprang from the loins of the people. While engaged in the hewing of wood and the drawing of water he educated himself. His language was couched in terms which every man understood, yet it was majestic in its flow. His whole life was an example of modesty and unostentation. Lincoln knew the heart of the people because Lincoln was of the core of that heart.

FEAR BICKERING WITH HUN IS PROVING A MISTAKE

Long Delay in Formulating Peace Has Made Enemy Arrogant.

WILL INDEMNITIES BE PAID?

Washington, June 4.—Will the long delays in formulating the peace treaty with Germany prove a costly fatal blunder? This question is being asked frankly by economists here, who want Germany to pay the price for her crimes not merely in terms written down on paper, but in actualities; not merely in phrases but in money and otherwise. Growing apprehension is felt here among men competent to judge that the persistency of the American envoys to Paris in not negotiating peace with the utmost speed and engaging in extended discussion over the proposed international league may result in a distinct loss for the allies and play into Germany's hands.

The point is raised that in the six months which have elapsed since the armistice was signed there has been a spiritual and moral collapse among the Germans and other peoples to whom the world must look to pay the penalty for the devastaion of whole sections.

One scientist declares that, during the quibbling at Paris, there has been a degeneration in the Central Powers until they are now 50 per cent below normal working capacity. Had there been a speedy peace, separate from the covenant of nations, Germany would have been forced to take up at once the work of doing whatever might be within her power to right the wrongs she had committed. During the deliberations over the international agreement for the future, the German has believed, and is now being encouraged to believe that eventual split among the allies would result in lighter peace terms. Had there been a peace at once, the same terms that now await signature could have exacted and Germany could have been on the way to repay the devastated countries their share of the indemnities, as this authority sees it.

FUTURE UP TO REPUBLICANS

If they Measure up to Job Nothing Can Defeat Them in 1920.

Washington, June 1.—"The country wants efficiency at Washington."

"The tide of sentiment everywhere is setting hard against the administration."

"The country looks to the new Congress to enact needed legislation to put things on their feet. The Republicans have a great responsibility but nothing can stop them in 1920 of they 'make good.'"

These are sample expressions one can hear in many quarters about Washington today. They come from newspaper men who have been in various sections, from returning members of Congress and others.

REPUBLICANS TO EXPEDITE WORK ON BUDGET BILL

Will Not Waste Time Investigating Different Systems of Budgets.

COUNTRY INSISTS ON ECONOMY

Washington, June 1.—Signs are becoming more marked daily that a budget system bill will be passed in the extra session of Congress. The House Republican Steering Committee and Senate leaders have talked matters over and have determined to expedite budget legislation. This means that the appropriations committees will consider the different plans and will act favorably on the best proposition and the most practicable one.

There has been much talk about an investigation by a commission in order to arrive at a good workable budget system. While this plan has merit, it tends to delay enactment of a much needed law. For this reason, with the country pressing for inauguration of methods of economy, the feeling is steadily growing that a law ought to me worked out as quickly as feasible. Senator Kenyon, who has been one of the most active exponents of the idea of a budget system, said today he had concluded not to press his resolution for an investigation into the budget system, with a report on the best method of forming one. "The demand for immediate action os great,' said Sen. Kenyon. "The time for investigation is past and the time for action has arrived."

Many practical difficulties are presented in the path of the enactment of a workable budget system. Such a system means, of course, a systematic, co-ordinated scheme for dealing with all appropriations and expenditures for the government. It is easy to talk about the need for a budget system but not easy to perfect one. It would be idle to think of Congress giving up its power over the purse strings. Everybody who knows that it is not so much Congress as the department officials that are continuously pressing for more money. How to leave Congress its power and yet prevent logrolling for appropriations is not an easy task.

ECONOMY TO BE WATCHWORD

Washington, June 2.—"Economy will be the policy in making up the appropriation bills which come before the House appropriations committee," said Representative Good, new chairman of that committee.

"No department or agency of the government will be starved or deprived of money which it needs. But at the same time, officials will be required to do something more than merely make demands for appropriations. It will be up to them, when they present an estimate, to show that the money is needed and why it is needed. That, at least, is my view of the matter and I believe it will be the view of the majority of the committee."

AMERICA CAN'T BE POLICE FOR THE REST OF WORLD

Congressman Kahn Returns From Europe Opposed to Plan of Internationalism.

WANTS THE TREATY PRINTED

Washington, June 4.—"Nor has the time come nor should it ever come when we ought to act as the world's policeman."

This is the view expressed by Representative Julius Kahn of California, chairman of the house military committee, who is just back from France and the front. Mr.Kahn says he is less of an internationalist than ever, that dislike of Americans is growing in Europe, that American Soldiers above all else want to return, and he agrees with Senator Hiram Johnson that the full text of the treaty should be published.

Mr. Kahn said:

"During the two months that I spent on the continet of Europe I visited the battle areas of France where American troops participated. I cannot repeat too often that our soldiers were not mere men—they were supermen. No one can go to Cantigny, where we started our fighting with our own units, and Chateau Thierry, Vierzy, Bergy le Sac, Belleau Woods, Vaux, Mezy, Jaulgonne, Fere-en-Tardenons, Fismes and the other points in the Soissons-Chateau Thierry salient without admiring the the undaunted spirit of our men.

"There is no denying the fact that at the time we really entered the war the french and the English were in a very serious condition. They had been doing a great deal of hard fighting, and I would not in any way detract from their achievements during the four years when they held the dash and the courage and the freshness of our men swept the enemy backward as no other force was able to do.

The American soldiers are excedingly anxious to return home. They feel that they have porformed their work well.

"I have frequently stated that we do not understand the intrigues, the chicanery, the jealousies, the hatreds, the ethnological and racial difference that exist in Europe. We do not understand these peoples and they do not understand us. It is a matter of common knowledge that the dislike for Americans has been constanly growing in Europe since the signing of the armistice. And the American soldiers do not hesitate to say that they are not enamored of Europeans.

"Under the treaty of peace we are asking for nothing nor do we recieve any indemnities of any kind. They go to the European countries. Under the circumstances I do not see why American soldiers should be kept in the occupied area to serve as colection agents for the countries of Europe. Nor, in my opinion, has the time come nor should it ever come when we ought to act as the world's policeman.

"I believe with Senator Johnson that the peace treaty ought to be published in full in order that our citizens may thoroughly study it and understand it before the Senate finally acts upon it."

T. J. WYATT

On last Friday the spirit of T. J. Wyatt, age 82, withdrew from its aged and tattered earthly dwelling place, and departed into that heavenly realm that lies beyond the dark and chilly waters of the River of Death. His death was not a surprise. It was the natural conclusion of that temporal allowance that God has given man on earth. He had lived his three score and ten years and twelve more in addition. His life had long since passed the flowering stage, and into ripened fruit, and for years had been standing as golden grain awaiting the coming of the white-winged angels that should bear his spirit onward to dwell with loved ones who preceded him on the journey. He leaves sons and daughters who mourn the departure of the kind and loving father who has been a comfort to them so long. But he has not gone into a strange land. Where his spirit abides today he dwells with other friends and loved ones from whom he has been separated for years.

The remains were laid to rest in Providence church cemetery Saturday afternoon, Rev. W. W. Robinson conducted the funeral. The deceased had spent his long life as a citizen of Chilton county, being one of the old landmarks of the early days.

CHAMP CLARK AMBITIOUS FOR THE 1920 NOMINATION

ADMINISTRATION IS ALARMED

Washington, June 3.—It is well known among the friends of Former Speaker Champ Clark that he aspires to the nomination for the presidency on the democratic ticket in 1920. Up until shortly before the recent House democratic caucus, administration democrats in the House were working to dislodge the former Speaker. They wanted to prevent his selection as minority leader. The real purpose of this plan, of which Sanders of Louisiana was the nominal originator, was put into the leadership a man amenable to the wishes of the White House and at the same time to get rid of Mr. Clark as a presidential possibility.

Mr. Clark never had the cordial support of the administration because on different occasions he declined to support the administration policies. However, his friends felt that this was not the only reason for the movement to keep him out of the leadership. They believed it was down at bottom an attempt to thrust him out of the list of 1920 possibilities. The opposition to Mr. Clark in the House after working hard for some weeks, found itself undeniable to count a majority of the democratic strength. Mr. Clark, after a short vacation following March 4, took station in Washington and gave personal attention to the fight.

In view of the certainty which appearad just prior to the caucus that Mr. Clark would win, his enemies abandoned the effort to defeat him, not caring to expose their weakness and his strength. The result was he was chosen the minority leader by acclamation in the caucus.

The fact that it was found Mr. Clark could not be beaten was not the only reason the fight on him was abandoned. Widespread stories of disaffection with the administration brought to Washington by newspaper men and others who have lately toured the country, such as former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, have caused democratic party alarm. Administration forces perceived that to go ahead with a losing war on Mr. Clark would simply make matters worse for them and the President, and might lose his control of his own party and the power to select his successor, in event he decides not to run himself.

THE BUSINESS FARMER'S CALENDAR: FIVE THINGS TO DO THIS WEEK AND NEXT WEEK

1. Rush cultivation, killing grass and weeds and making a dust mulch to save moisture during dry weather that may come.

2. Make side applications of nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia to cotton and corn rather early — to cotton before the first blooms appear and corn when from two to four feet high.

3. Keep setting sweet potatoes, making sure of an ample acreage for home use and a liberal surplus for the hogs.

4. Leave the cotton close together when chopping. On most lands, a hoe's width will usually give the biggest yields.

5. Make plans to plant the stubble lands as soon as possible. Food and feed are too scarce and high-priced to let any land lie idle.

MOUNT PISGAH

Farmers are getting quite nervous over the fact that it rains so much. Prospects for a hay crop is good.

Mr. R. E. Davidson of Birmingham visited his parents of this community last Sunday, and the family engaged in an ice-cream social.

This writer is with you, Mr. Editor, in the fight you are putting forth against the world-wide and enormous powers of Romanism, which as we see it, is trying to come over us unawares. This brings to our mind the following:

Shall we sleep or shall we wake;
Or shall we now the medicine take?
Shall we fight or shall we run,
And let our freedom all be gone?

There is but one way to hit this evil as hard as it should be hit and that is to hit it so hard as to knock it entirely out of the box.

Revs. Gibson and Lembreck will preach at Mt. Pisgah on next Second Sunday. We hope to have a large crowd and good services both before and after noon.

If this escapes the waste-basket, I may come again.

PRESIDENT WILL BE ASKED TO STEM PUBLIC OPINION

Administration Leaders Plan to Commence Speaking Campaign At Once.

DEMOCRATS MUCH ALARMED

Washington, May 1.—Alarmed over the gathering storm, over the growing feeling against the existing regime, administration leaders including some of the Cabinet, are now planning a great speech-making drive in differentp arts of the country. In the main, the west is to get attention.

To meet this feeling, the projected trip of the President through the country is being considered by the leaders. They want the President soon after his return from foreign parts to make a swing through many states, not only to help along the covenant for a League of Nations but also to check the rising tides of sentiment which they begin to perceive are threating to swamp their party.

Former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illionois, by his plain talking is partly responsible for the alarm of administration forces. Newspaper versions of dissatisfaction have contributed to the alarm.

A brief wire from Boston, too, has added to the gloom. It Says:

"President Wilson was urged to return from Paris and devote his attention to reducing the cost of living in this country in a cablegram sent to him to-day by Francis J. Finneran, president of the Democratic Club, of Massachusetts, and twenty-six Democratic members of the legislature. The message said:

"The citizens of the United States want you home to help reduce the high cost of living, which we consider far more important than the league of nations.'

ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF WASTE

Millions Sunk in Buildings in Washington to be Total Loss.

Washington, June 3.—Food for thought is contained in stories current in Washington newspapers telling of efforts being made to have the government's temporary buildings erected in the parks in the District of Columbia during the war period torn down. The Washington trade and industrial interests are asking that the buildings be torn down. They are called unsightly and an eyesore to the beautiful parks of the District.

It is now apparent that enormous sums of public money have been sunk in these buildings which might have been saved had the structures been made more durable in character and located in quarters where there would have been no objection to them remaining for years. Officials who are responsible for what has come to pass were warned in advance that they were pursuing a policy which would cost the public heavily without adequate return.

BIG PROGRAM OF WORK IS PLANNED BY REPUBLICANS

Constructive Legislation Mapped Out to Benefit Entire Country.

ECONOMY TO BE EMPHASIZED

List of Measures scheduled for action During Special Session of Congress.

Washington, May 3.—Adjusting differences over the question of enlarging the steering committee House republicans have adopted a resolution to give early attention to a comprehensive program of legislative work. The steering committee, now five, will be enlarged to meet the wishes of many members, especially western members. This enlargement is expected in the next month.

The legislative program looks to economy, to restoration of normal and prosperous conditions to the promotion alike of interests of industry, labor, agriculture and business, and to investigation in the public interest of the vast war expenditures and the conduct of various departments through the war period. Waste is to be probed. Appropriation bills are to be rushed.

These things are put forward for early action: return of telephone, telegraph and cable line; the suffrage amendment; railway legislation; a military policy and return at earliest possible time of overseas soldiers; shipping; public legislation; a budget system; tariff, reduction in taxes, simplification of tax laws and repeal of obnoxious features of tax laws; revision of immigration laws and deportation of undesirable aliens.

"Only a Starter."

This is by no means a complete program for the Congress for the next two years. It merely sets forth what will be given first attention in the extra session. To pass these measures, will require time and hard work but Leader Mondell and others hope to see them expedited. If they can be put through, or largely so, in the extra session, it will be a rare legislative achievement. But even if some go over to the winter session, there is every present indication, as the new congress meets, that much of the program will be disposed of this summer and next fall.

It is generally recognized in the new congress that forward-looking labor legislation should be enacted and the House labor committee is expected when organized to give intelligent attention to the questions which are before it.

Was it A Purposeful Misrepresentation, Or an Honest Error?

A few days ago the Birmingham News, in accord with its policy to play up the great things that are being done by the Knights of Columbus, carried an announcement of an instance where these night-hawk, back-alley conspirators against our government and free institutions, had held a large meeting in Birmingham and initiated a big class into the order. The write-up stated that an expert degree class from the State of Mississippi was present to administer the ceremony, wherein those initiated, of course, took that dirty, low-down, vile and treasonable oath, and swore their allegiance to its tenets by their signatures written in their own blood. Among these visitors, who were present The News stated the name of J. H. Culkin of Vicksburg, State Superintendent of Education of Mississippi. It was this statement that led us to mention the matter last week of a Souhern Sate having a Knight of Columbus for its Superintendent of Education.

We at once took the matter up with a friend, a prominent business man and citizen of our sister state, to ascertain if the statement of The News were true. This friend favors us with the following answer:

"In reply to your inquiry in regard to J. H. Culkin being Superintendent of Education of this State, I am glad to say it was untrue. Mr. W. F. Bond is our Superintendent of Education, and I know nothing at all of J. H. Culkin."

Now, what is the matter? Was the article in The News deliberately falsifying in order to carry an impression to the outside world that this important position was held by a Roman Catholic? Was it a purposeful misrepresentation or an honest error? It would be far more creditable to the State of Mississippi or any other state, to say that it had no Superinendent of Education at all than to spread the news that such an office was held by a Catholic. It would be grave enough to make such a statement truthfully; but how much more serious and discreditable when it is not true! The people of Mississippi ought to demand damages of The News for degrading the fair name of that great State by the assertion that the State Superintendent of Education is a Catholic Knight of Columbus.

The Big Men Must Show Where They Stand.

By the universal determination of a very considerable number of thinking citiens throughout this country, the time has come when the leaders of our government, the men who aspire to the high places, must be pronounced in their attitude toward certain alien forces in American institutions. People have determined that they must know how aspirants to political preferment regard the menace of Roman Catholic influence, the liquor evil and other kindred devices that are both unsound morally and evidently un-American .

In compliance with this demand of American patriots, we are pleased to note a certain paragraph in the official announcement of Hon. L. B. Musgrove, for the United States Senate from Alabama, in regard to Church and State, as follows:

"As active and aggressive as the liquor interests ever were, is that element of society which would bring about in this country a union of church and state. With the enlightened countries of Europe turning from this sort of thing, efforts to establish it in the United Staes will be redoubled. The danger is none the less real because the campaign is being carried on by subtle and indirect methods, well calculated to deceive the unobservant. Every influence of this character must be met and sternly suppressed. The perpetuation of our free institutions depends, in a large measure, upon the alertness of our representatives, and only those who are conscious of the menace and whose Americanism is unquestioned, should be placed on guard."

In spite of politics, it is going to be necessary in the future for every candidate to come clean on this Roman Catholic idea of mixing up the church with the government, the schools and everything else. We do not endorse Mr. Musgrove's other ideas of politics, but on this one, we give the right hand of American fellowship. And we might add that we regard this plank the most far-reaching and important one in his platform.

We want to see the person who has been attending the Reese-Rowland tent meeting and has not got his skinning. Our opinion is that "there ain't no sich animul."

If President Wilson would add one more to his fourteen points, which would provide for him staying at Washington and attending to the business he was hired for, it would please the people of the United States very much.

We have heard it rumored that there was a dance in Clanton last Saturday night. We have been unable to obtain an account of it. If we can we will publish a full account of it next week. It would be interesting to know who was there and participated.

Here is a thought we want to leave with you. The people of Clanton should right now see to it that the City Public School building is made adequate and complete by the construction of the second story of the building. Think about this. We will have some more to say about this right away.

General Coxey is on deck again. He foresees another period of unemplolyment like that of the Cleveland administration and the first two years of the Wilson administration. Twenty-five years ago it will be remembered that General Coxey rode up to the Capitol at the head of a large army of hoboes. He has prepared a bill to go before Congress, that, he believes, will solve the whole problem like magic.

The letter of Rev. E. B. Prickett, in this week's paper, is a source of pleasure and comfort to the Editor of The Union-Banner. We wish we could get the open and unqualified endorsement of every preacher in the county in the fight against the evils of Romanism. It is the duty of the preachers, and they owe it to their people to keep them informed about this great impending evil.

Some of the Democrats in Congress are fair and square enough to admit the waste and extravagance of the administration during the war. For instance, Representative Welty of Ohio, a Democrat, seeing the Republicans all around him, preparing to get after Democratic extravagance and waste, in war expenditures, has decided to join them and has therefore introduced a resolution for a sweeping investigation of irregular and unlawfull expenditures during the war.

It looks now that the market for cotton is working to higher levels. Under present conditions it looks like mills could well afford to pay more for cotton than they are paying. Manufacturers look for goods to go higher this fall. Prices would do better if it were not for those who keep on trying to sell faster than the immediate demand can absorb. By waiting till the demand wants the stuff we can get what it is worth. We know that when a man does not need an article he will not pay what he would for it if he did really need it. The same is true of cotton.

It is amazing to see people get weak in the back when the pressure of duty begins to bear down upon them. As an instance of this we note the attitude of some whom we know to have been enlisted in the fight against Romanism, but as the fire gets hotter and the contest begins to draw closer, we see them begin to fudge and back off. We would remind our weak brethren that the focus will be reached before very long. The supreme test will be upon us. Ask some of the boys who went to the front in France what happens to the fellow whose feet won't stand the racket. Remember their answer when you turn to flee from the guns of Rome and leave the other fellow with the fight to make.

"I do not pretend to be a prophet. But though not a prophet, I see a very dark cloud on our horizon. And that dar kcloud is coming from Rome. It is filled with tears and blood. It will rise and increase, till its flanks will be torn by a flash of lightning followed by a fearful peal of thunder. Then a cyclone such as the world has never seen will pass over this country, spreading ruin and desolation from North to South. After it is all over, there will be long days of peace and prosperity, for Popery, with its Jesuits and merciless inquisitions, will have been forever swept away from our country. Neither I nor you, but our children, will see those things."—Abraham Lincoln.

"If ever the liberties of this country are destroyed, it will be by the Roman Catholic priests." — LAFAYETTE.

WAR-RISK BUREAU MAY SHOW GROSS MIS-MANAGEMENT

Resignation of Director Lindsey and Staff May Expose Scandal.

EFFICIENT MEN FORCED OUT

Col. Lindsey Popular with Men in Ranks Because He Put System In Insurance Bureau.

Washington, June 1.—"This resolution promises to develop one of the most colossal messes of mismanagement in the whole history of our government."

This is the characterization placed by a veteran member of Congress upon the resolution of Representative Britten, of Illinois, for a thorough investigation of the War Risk Bureau of the Treasury Department, following the resignation of its director, Col. Henry D. Lindsey, after an exchange of bitter notes with Secretary of the Treasury Glass.

While many within the bureau say they have known for some time that there was discord between the Secretary and the director, the sudden resignation of Colonel Lindsey came as a surprise second only to the quitting of the cabinet by Secretary Bryan, Garrison and McAdoo. Not only does the director leave but he carries with him several assistants who are conceded to be among most expert persons in the country in their respective work.

There is a distinctive political angle to the resignation of Colonel Lindsey. Democrat all his life, a strong supperter of the administration, decorated by General Pershing for efficiency at the headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces and wielding wide influence in political matters in Texas, Colonel Lindsey was looked upon as one of the strong men of Washington officialdom. But he had a settled idea as to how ends should be accomplished and when he found interference he would break all his plans he stepped aside after administering his severe rebuke to the head of the Treasury.

Popular with Men in Ranks.

A story is being told that shows unmistakably how strong Colonel Lindsey stands with the hundreds of thousands of soldiers. At the recent conclave in St. Louis which resulted in the organization of the American Legion there was an active propaganda to have an enlisted man elected as leader. Not only did this have the strongest sort of support among the men in the ranks, but was encouraged by the officers who felt that such a choice would be the best possible indication of the Democracy of the association that includes in its membership the hundreds of thousands of men who went to the defense of the nation. When Lieut. Colonel Roosevelt declared emphatically and repeatedly that under no consideration would he accept the place, the delegates commenced to center on a man from the ranks.

When it became known, however, that the new head of the War Risk Insurance Bureau was present the news evoked such enthusiasm that Colonel Lindsey was nominated and later elected unanimously.

This was taken as a vote of confidence in the administration of the bureau. No section of the War Department bears a more intimate relationship with the millions of families of young Americans than does the war risk bureau. Nearly every soldier who has his insurance has had some communication with the bureau and so utter was the failure of the whole organization for months that it acted as a direct discouragement to those who held and had hoped to hold, policies. The usual conduct of business affairs was so foreign to the handling of the division of the Treasury that a clean over finally came and Colonel Lindsey was named as director.

Brought Order out of Chaos.

From chaos, order commenced to appear; sensible answers came to sensible queries, a full explanation of the scheme of the insurance was given broadcast for the guidance of the soldier and his family. Policies were beginning to be paid after lapses of months and, after being driven almost to desparation by treatment in the past, the soldier commenced to discover that the war risk bureau was really a functioning unit of the government.

To Col. Lindsey and his assistants in the reorganization went the credit and the first opportunity of the men of the army to show their feeling was at St. Louis when they named him as their leader. Then came his sudden retirement.

Whether Col. Lindsey will follow his resignation by withdrawing from the Democratic party is a matter his guidance was most needed. Congress is set finding just why this man should be allowed to go when his services were showing results and his guidance wa mot needed.

FLOYD CORRESPONDENCE

Editor Union-Banner:

I have been reading with interest your editorial views of Romanism. I will say that they are not your views alone, but is the genuine undeniable truth. I am glad to know that we have a man at the head of our county paper who has the nerve and the backbone to step out into the public press and condemn the evils of the Roman Catholics. Though I do not see very much pointed endorsement from the people and especially from the preachers; I think it is time we are lining up and putting on the armor of God, that we may withstand the fiery darts of the wicked one, to stand against spiritual wickedness in high places. So, let all protestants join in this great fight and defend the principles that our forefathers bled and died for and that Christ designated we should have. When I stand on the beautiful plains of Religious Liberty and breathe the pure air of freedom, it makes my heart rejoice. But when I cast my eyes down, as it were, on the fragments of Catholicism—the dragon as he reaches out his claws to pull us down under the clutches of Rome, and not us alone but our children alone but the unborn generations to come; as I think of this it makes my heart ache. Sometimes I feel like joining with the Psalmist when he said: "Oh, that I had the wings of a dove and could fly away and be at rest."

There will be an all-day singing at Floyd the Fourth Sunday in this month. Everybody is invited to come and bring well filled baskets. The books to be used is the Crowns of Love.

Respectfully,
E. B. PRICKETT.

THE COMMON AVERAGE

No stronger evidence of the important fact that the Ford Motor car has become a veritable part of the life of the people, could be asked for than is given in the registration records of the various states which comprise our country.

For instance, in the month of January there were 11,450 cars of all makes registered in the State of Montana of which 5,790 were Ford Cars. This means one Ford Car for every other car, of every make and 130 over. This proportion is very evenly maintained in the other forty-seven states. There are more than 6,000,000 motor cars in operation in the United States, more than one-half of which are Fords.

Truly, Henry Ford has been a great factor of benefit to humanity as he has brought the most economical solution to the great problems of transportation, and by the fruits of his genius has linked town and country, community to community, and made the whole country a common meeting place for all the people.

FIVE BICE BROTHERS ARE BACK HOME FROM FRANCE

One of the unique facts about the war is that the five sons of Treasurer J. Bice, all went through the war in Europe and not one of them got a single wound, and are today back at home with their father, duly happy with him over the splendid luck they had. The following are the names of the boys: Sgt. Clarence E., a member of a band in the 82nd Division; Grover A., 83rd Division; Sgt. Stoughton M., a member of the Regimental Band, 167th Inf., Rainbow Division; Chester A., and Jay, of the Dixie Division. All the boys are honorably discharged from the service now. They were in Clanton Tuesday afternoon with their father greeting their many friends. They made a visit to the Union-Banner office, and we were glad to see them. While in town they had a picture made, and we hope to present it to our readers in the near future thru The Banner.

REPEAL ICE CREAM SODA TAX

Washington, May 28.—Repeal of the ten per cent tax on ice cream and other soft concoctions is provided in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Longworth of Ohio, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, and in the Senate by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, a member of the Finance Committee, and it is likely that the Republican majority in both bodies will see that the tax is removed before the summer is over.

"This tax," said Longworth, "imposes an unnecessary and obnoxious burden upon the people in their enjoyment of a harmless drink. The majority in congress will easily find other means of getting sufficient revenue, especially by protection on imports, besides taking the extra penny or two from the young people of the country. And this, of course, also has reference to all of that section of the present law which has to do with taxation on ice-cream and other sweet preparations. In addition to this imposition upon the public, the tax is bad because it is proving very difficult and unsatisfactory in its administration. It is pretty generally believed by the treasury experts that it costs more to collect it than it yields to the government."

WE SOLD SEVERAL OF THEM LAST SEASON, AND FARMERS REPORT SATISFACTORY RESULTS. HAVING SEEN MANY TESTIMONIALS FROM FARMERS IN DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE COTTON GROWING SECTION, WE ARE CONVINCED THAT IF THE MACHINE IS USED WHEN THE COTTON IS ABOUT SIX INCHES HIGH AND CONTINUE ITS USE ABOUT EVERY TEN DAYS UNTIL THE PLANT IS TOO LARGE TO PASS THROUGH THE MACHINE, YOU WILL MAKE AT LEAST THREE-FOURTHS OF A FULL YIELD OF COTTON, AT A COST OF $10.00 FOR THE MACHINE.

THE WINTER MONTHS ARE JUST PASSED AND THE PRESENT WEATHER CONDITIONS ARE FAVORABLE TO PRODUCE MILLIONS OF WEEVILS; SO ALL FARMERS SHOULD BEGIN EARLY DESTRUCTION OF THE WEEVIL. LESS THAN FIFTY POUNDS OF COTTON WILL PAY FOR THE MACHINE, WHICH IF USED AS DIRECTED WILL INSURE YOU A FAIR CROP.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

CONVINCNG EVIDENCE FOR THE SICK

Offer Services Free of Charge.

Word has just been received that the Associated Doctors, specialists, licensed by the State of Alabama, and who have met with such phenominal success throughout the entire Southeast, will be in Clanton on Saturday, June 7th,

This will indeed be good news to those who find it convenient to visit the central laboratories in Birmingham, located at Suite 511-12 Lyric Theatre Building, where the organization has its southern headquarters. These regular, reputable physicians believe that the combined skill of several trained specialists in chronic disease cases can accomplish more than one doctor alone — in other words, in unity there is strength.

The offer to treat all who call on then on this visit absolutely free, is their original method of getting their system of treatment before the public quicker, and no one, rich or poor, white or colored, should neglect to take advantage of their very liberal offer—ABSOLUTELY FREE (medicine excepted. No cutting, no knife.

It makes no difference how many doctors you have consulted or how many patent medicines you have taken, you cannot afford to miss this opportunity of ascertaining your exact condition, and be honestly advised. No one should require further evidence of the skill of these specialists than the following:

TESTIMONY:

Square Cheatham, Bolling, Ala., writes: I had rhumatism for over two years, and walked with a stick. After taking the first dose of your medicine I threw away my stick. Your remedy has done the work, and I am now a well man, thanks to the Associated Doctors."

Ira Craig, Greenville, Ala., writes: "I am doing very well. My foot is healing, although I am compelled to walk on it."

J. L. Redding, Saginaw, Ala., writes "I am free from rhumatic pain since commencing your treatment."

Thomas Marshall, Chapman, Ala., writes: "I can truthfully say I am a new man. I feel I don't need the full eight weeks you prescribed. "

Mrs. Margaret W. Rogers, Georgiana, Ala., writes: " I have been using your remedies prescribed near three weeks, and am feeling much better."

We hold certificates by examination and other necessary requirements to practice medicine and surgery in 17 states of the Union. We have demonstrated our skill to specialists in New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis, Nashville, Atlanta and other medical centers this side of the Atlantic. Those who secure our service are assured of the skill that our many years of experience and special qualifications afford.

We treat with every assurance of success, Catarrh, Asthma and Bronchial Trouble, by the new vaccine method; rhumatism, uric acid, gall stones, blood diseases, skin diseases, nervous diseases, throat trouble, liver, tomach and bowel trouble, bed wetting, tumors, kidney and bladder diseases, piles, fistula and all special nervous and chronic diseases of men and women, without loss of time or inconvenience to patients—and

WITHOUT KNIFE.

Married women should be accomponied by their husbands and children by their parents.

Remember the hotel, day and date, —one day only.

CHILTON COUNTY GROWS FINE WATER MELONS

Mr. J. R. Short of Pletcher, Ala., carried a car-load of melons to Birmingham, about August 20th, 1918, and was said to be the best car of melons sold on the Birmingham market last season. The car contained 1,000 melons, weighed 30,000 pounds and averaged 30 pounds each. They were of the Watson variety and of fine quality. Mr. Short sold the car to R. K. Thompson for $300.00, net. Mr. Johnson pays the railroad company $30.00 freight, and 90 cents war tax. Mr. Short Stated that he grew the 1,000 melons on 2½ acres of land. We hope Mr. Short will grow some more fine melons this year.

This record made by Mr. Short shows what can be done with water melons right here at home, in Chillton County. Why not try it yourself.

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch went to Dothan last week, where Mrs. Upchurch underwent an operation for the removal of tonsils.

WEST CHILTON

Rain, mud and slush. Gardens fine. Wheat crops very poor; oats good.

Mr. Lon Brown has moved his family to his mill north-east of Randolph.

On the 3rd Sunday in June there will be an all-day singing at Waldrup School House. Prof. M. V. Lawley is expected, also Messrs Martin, Jackson and others. The old books will be used; bring dinner.

Messrs Goodritch, Richardson and others of Birmingham, colporters for religious books were canvassing here last week.

Mr. Brown has purchased a motor truck for hauling lumber, H. S. Watkins of Thorsby, driver.

Your correspondent attended the singing last Sunday at Union Grove. The day was inclement but a large crowd was present, the music was directed by the President, Mr. Conway; and Messrs Gaither, Martin, Jones, Jackson, and son. The good people provided a rich and bountiful dinner; they entertained their visitors quite royally. A collection was secured to help build the music hall in Birmingham. The noted among the visitors were W. H. Shaw of Birmingham, our popular Ex-Sheriff, H. A. Harris and his highly esteemed Chief Deputy, W. H. Gillespie, and T. J. Jackson of South Georgia.

They say Uncle Joe Smith, Sr. looks mighty spry when he dons the uniform of the boys from overseas; he is a Confederate veteran and carries the empty sleeve.

Mr. Sam Dawson of Pate's Chapel was a recent visitor here.

Prof. M. C. Crumpton of Childersburg sent his father a nice lot of fresh fish recently. L. G. Posey has presented his daughter, Miss Alice, with a nice Parlor Organ.

We have not consulted our weather man, Mr. Bearden, as to when the rain will quit.

CARROLL - MITCHELL

On last Monday afternoon, at the Baptist Parsonage in Clanton, Mr. Elzie Carroll was united in sacred matrimony to Miss Nancy Mitchell, Rev. J. F. Gable officiating.

Mr. Carroll is the son of N. G. Carroll of South Clanton, and has just recently returned from France. The groom is the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Mitchell.

OAK GROVE

There will be an all day singing here on the Fourth of July, in the late books—Crowns of Love. There will also be a big picnic and basket dinner.

Everybody come with song books and full baskets. All singers are especially invited. Cold drinks and ice cream will be sold for the benefit of the school. Don't miss it but be present. J.B. NORTHCUTT.

SINGING AT MAPLE SPRINGS

There will be an all-day singing at Maple Springs the Third Sunday in June. Everybody is invited to come and bring books and dinner. "Crowns of Love" books will be used.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.— Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days ...I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go...I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle...I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. E 78

Atmosphere at Washington is Entirely Different From That Which Has Marked Natian's Capitol Since March, 1913---Legislative Branch of Government Resumes its Normal Functions.

Washington, May 30.—"This congress is taking the business before it seriously. I have been impressed in talking with members that they feel a sense of responsibility and are determined to try to do the things the country needs to have done and that it wants to see done. You can fee it in the air. It is a very different situation from that of last session."

This was the statement today of Representative Royal C. Johnson of South Dakota, in commenting on the outlook for important legislative action in the extra session of the new Congress. It is closely akin to other comment which one may hear at both ends of the Capitol in discussion of Congressional prospects.

One need not look far, in fact, to discern that there is a radical difference in the conditions which obtain at the capitol now and those which prevailed last winter. The initiative for the passage of needed laws can now be found at the Capitoll. For some sessions back, as everybody knows, it has not been at the capitol but at the White House. The legislative program in the years between 1913 and 1919 has been made up in the executive departments and at the White House.

The House and Senate membership of the Democratic side broadly speaking, and with certain exceptions, took the orders of the White House. Many an important measure was drafted, not at the Capitol but at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue. If at times, vital changes in proposed laws were forced, it was as a rule, against administration protest and by the votes of the membership lest amenable to the executive.

In the session last winter, with the president in Europe and his attention diverted from domestic questions, the Democratic membership of the House and Senate lost interest in things and drifted about hopelessly. Needed legislation for the reconstruction period received no proper notice. The situation then was such that certain important appropriation bills were not even brought up expect in a perfunctory way in the Senate appropriations committee.

A Real Congress in its Own Name.

Now, there is a chance which seems to presage that Congress is in process of restoration to a body that actually initiates and enacts laws. The House and Senate begin to look like real legislative agencies. They present symptoms of being able to function on their own account and naturally; to proceed in the fashion that is contemplated in the Constitution which provides for a Congress to enact laws a judiciary to interpret laws and an executive to enforce the laws.

For the obvious reason that the administration is Democratic and the Congress is Republican, the new congress is not going to take orders from the executive. The legislative program has been shaped in House and Senate is the program of the Republican membership. It was made up before the message of the president was delivered and it is far more comprehensive than the recommendations in the message. The House program, for instance, incudes the passage of a law for a budget system, something much in the public mind just now. It was not even referred to by the president.

Whether one thinks the congress ought to be the congress in fact or believes it ought to take orders from the chief executive, he cannot deny there is a very real change in things. If he does not make for healthier and more independent conditions, for better and more carefully wrought out legislation, it will, to say the least, be a great disappointment to those who still adhere to the faith that the founders of the republic knew what they were about when they sought to make a sharp separation of the powers of the legislative and executive branches.

There are those, of course, who insist that the president ought to be the head and front of the government in the making of laws and their execution. Some are of the faith of the new Senator from Georgia, William J. Harris, who, according to the story much told of him, when he was running for the senatorship told his constituents that if elected he would go to the White House every morning to find what the president wanted. Mr. Harris has not yet begun to keep his morning vigils in the White House dooryard but presumably will when Mr. Wilson returns from Europe.

Even Democrats Grew Resentfull.

Seriously, however, it must be said in fairness that for many months back there has been growing among many Democrats of the Senate and House a depening feeling of resentment of and opposition to dictation of legislative procedure by the presidential office. Not many were independent enough openly to revolt. But there is no doubt whatever that a large percentage of the Democratic members are glad to be relieved from a situation that has become intolerable except to that element that lacked the force or brains of leadership within itself and had to look to another source for guidance.

Possibly, too, the president feels relieved that he no longer has an obsequious congress on his hands. At least, some of his spokesmen say he will no longer attempt to drive congress and will allow the leladers of that body to take the reins. In any event, there can be little doubt that the new order of things will make for the development of more brains, courage and independence in the House and Senate, and will mean that proposed laws will be given much more real and painstaking consideration. Nothing could be imagined more inimical to the best interests of the American people than a "rubber stamp" congress, willing to pass a bill on orders from outside the capitol, without crossing a "t" or dotting an "i."

To eb a Congress of Deeds.

The new congress is faced by exceptional difficulties. The reconstruction period call for much legislation which must be new in the biggest and broadest sense. It must be abreast of the quickend thoubht of the times, not simply new in the sense of being different from what has preceded it. None but a fool would deny that the path of the House and Senate is going to be a hard one to traverse. It would be difficult enough at best and it will be made more difficult by all of the many partisan obstacles which will be thrown in it. Nevertheless, there is reason to believe that by the time the extra session is over, or even well under way, it will be made plain that this is going to be a congress of real achievement. The quick action of the House on the resolution for a woman suffrage amendment is one sign of it. The preparations being made for the passage of the railroad measure in the extra session are another sign. The activity of big committees in the House, such as appropriations, is another. Within a week or two, beyond a doubt, there will be such a grinding of the wheels of legislation, in the committees of the House and Senate, and on the floor of both houses, as has not been heard about the Capitol for years.

CONTINUOUS CONGRESS UNTIL LATE IN 1920 IS PREDICTIONS

Washington, May 30.—The impression prevails here that the present session of congress will last all summer and fall and reach up to the opening of the regular sesion in December.

Senator Callder, of New York, predicted congress would sit continuously up to the sumemr of 1920. He pointed out that problems of enormous magnitude had to be solved, including those relating to railroads, merchant marine, military policy, immigration, tariff, revenues and other matters.

Rev. J. O. Williams, who has been a Chaplain in the U. S. Army in France during the war, was in Clanton Wednesday. Before entering the service Rev. Williams was pastor of the First Baptist Church at Sylacauga. He is a Clanton man of whom we are proud.

OF INTEREST TO OUR FARM READERS

From the U. S. Experiment Station at Auburn.

The club boys and farmers of Alabama are rapidly improving the quality of the hogs in the state and also the methods of feeding, but that is not all that is needed. Better care should be given to keep them as free as possible from lice, mange and worms.

If constantly infested by lice, hogs will be restless and cannot make the best use of their food. Lice do not add to the appearance of the hog for there is no market for lice even on the soft basis. They are a pest and a nuisance and should be fought at every turn.

Nearly any oil preparation will destroy lice and so will any coal tar dip, such as Kelly, if the manufacturer's directions are followed. Crude oil applied with a brush or spray or in a vat or wallow will also destroy them. Treating the hogs will do little good unless the houses are also cleaned.

There are two types of mange that bother hogs. Both are caused by parasites somewhat similar to mites that work into the skin. Red mange is very difficult to cure, but does not spread rapidly in the herd. If an animal can not be cured, it should be fattened and killed and the skin removed and burned. Scabby or black mange spreads more rapidly, but is not so difficult to cure.

Sulphur stirred into crude oil or a mixture of sulphur, kerosene and lard applied with a brush is a good mange remedy. It should be applied every 8 or 10 days until the trouble disappears. Lime-sulphur dip is also very effective. To make the dip, boil one pound unslaked lime and three pounds sulphur for two hours in two and one-half gallons of water. Strain and add warm water to make 12½ gallons. Houses and pens must also be cleaned.

A man or a club boy who enjoys the company of red bugs or "chiggers" should make no effort to keep his hogs free from lice and mange.

Intestinal worms are doing even more damage to the swine industry of the state than lice and mange.

There are several kinds of these worms, but lack of space forbids their discussion separately. Hogs get one kind by eating grub worms from pastures that have been grazed a long time by hogs. Others are gotten by eating in dusty pens in which hogs have been kept for several weeks and by drinking muddy, stagnant water or wallowing in stagnant pools or mud holes.

Plowing up grass pastures occasionally, keeping the hogs out of dusty pens and away from filthy mud holes and stagnant pools and keeping them growing every day will usually prevent serious trouble from intestinal worms.

If medical treatment is needed, the best remedies will be found in Farmers' Bulletin 874, which can be had by writing to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Many other valuable pointers on the management of hogs will be found in that bulletin.

I had several requests the other day for a good rule to follow in the top-working of pecans. My reply was as follows:

"I would not advise the top-working of an individual tree or of a grove no matter if the trees were seedlings, if the individual tree or the grove was producing a fair income on the amount of land covered. I would top-work any tree no matter whether it be a seedling or a standard tree that was failing to produce a profit because of poor bearing ability, disease or inferior quality of nuts. In deciding whether or not a tree is profitable, one must take into consideration the past treatment the tree has received. If it stood in poor land probably the addition of fertilizer or cultivation might give it that vigor that is necessary for profitable crop production. Certain varieties of trees are so susceptible to scab that they never mature a supply of salable or usable nuts. Such trees, whether individual seedling varieties or a standard variety, such as Delmas, when planted in lowlands, should be top-worked to disease resistant varieties such as Stuart or Schley. If a tree shows poor vitality it should not be top-worked at all. If a tree is entirely too large, that is, with a trunk a foot or more in diameter, it is doubtful whether top-working will prove financially successful.

We have a well authenticated record in Alabama of the production of 800 pounds of cured nuts from one acre of trees during their ninth growing season. At the price received this meant a gross income of $400 on a single acre. This was the fourth or fifth crop produced by this particular lot of trees and the ground had been used for other purposes almost every year from the time of planting until the above crop was made. It is extremely doubtful if one could ever secure a larger crop of nuts from a top-worked tree nine years after top-working than was secured from this grove nine years after planting.

Therefore, one should weigh carefully the advisability of spending money on old trees or whether the same time, money and effort should be spent on developing a new grove planted from known, disease-resistant, standard varieties."

Farmers' Bulletin No. 700, which can be secured from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., discusses at length the top-working of pecan trees. The work can be done by anyone who uses care and good judgment.

Immediately after the armistice was signed it was believed that the navy would be ordered to place at the disposal of the party sufficient battleships and other craft speedily to ferry across the representatives necessary to end the war, get the American army home and leave in Europe only enough secretaries and envoys to aid the permanent diplomatic crops in handling the after-war developments.

But more than half a year after hostilities, America's contingent is still in Paris. The ordinary taxpayer must meet all expenses from the improvements to the George Washington down to the last penny for entertainment during these heroic six months. Members of congress are inclined to be liberal in the handling of the business end of the expedition but they want an accounting.

It has dawedn upon the members who are back in their offices that the expense of this contingent is no small matter when an effort must be made to cut down general appropriations that the expenses of this delegation and its retinue is no small matter. The president's entourage foramally and informally, runs into the hundreds. With one very large and expensive hotel in Paris given up almost exclusively to the housing of the commission, there is an endless chain of attaches spread over the city, while emissaries have been sent into different countries of Europe to collect data.

Many rumors have been current as to the cost of the mission, including the fitting out and use of the palatiol ocean liner, George Washingon. It is common report that it will run into the millions, Congress is not disposed to be parsimonious but at the same time, there is demand for the vouchers and for information as to the authority for the outlay.

MEXICO AGAIN THREATENS

Nations of Europe Look to United States to Make Neighbors Behave.

Washington, May 30.—Members of the foreign relations committee of the Senate are showing lively interest in Mexican developments on the eve of the reconvening of congress.

Recently Villa has been unusually active in northern Mexico, committing depredations on native annd foreign property. Now comes the official announcement by the Italian government of the affront to Rear Admiral Count Max Lovatelli, of the royal Italian nevy, who was ylaced under arrest in Mexico while on an inspection trip of oil lands, and when his identity was known to the authorities. While on the tour the secretary to the Count was attacked near Tampico and robbed of valuables and clothing. Admiral Lovatelli was ordered to apepar before a Mexican tribunal but this he refused to do.

The activity of Villa, together with the humiliation of the Italian afficer, particularly at the time when the Fiume discussion is serious, tends to force the Mexican problelm into the position where it may become one of the big questions before the congress which already is burdened with titanic tasks in trying to get the country to its normal basis.

While it is pretty generally overlooked, it is a factt hat during the whole of the European war, thousands of American troops have been held on the border to defent against invasion of the Mexican bands and, as one officer recently expressed it, the soldiers in Texas are about as anxious to get relief as the men who are being held on the Rhine.

NO OPERATION FOR THIS GIRL

Mother Sayst hat Dreco kept her out of the Hospital... Had Pains in her Stomach all time.

"My daughter had such pains and misery in her stomach and bowels we thought she would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but since taking two boles of Dreco, she is feeling well again, and never gives a hught to an operation any more," stated Mrs. John Bohn of 540 Summerville Road, Phoenix City, Ala.

"She was very nervous and weal and not able to sit up part of the time. Constipation troubles her a great deal and she frequenly had headaches; gas in her stomach, pains in her back and limbs and indigestion. Dreco did her so much good that I have begun taking it myself, and already I can tell the difference in my feelingsh. No doubt this is a great medicine and everyone should know about it."

The good old time root and herb medicines are the best any one can take. Nothing strong or harmful in them, but they act quick and sure.

Dreco is made from the juices of many different herbal plants which act on the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and the blood. It increases the appetite; induces sound sleep; quiets the nerves, and builds up the system in general. It is pleasant to ake and good for every member of the family.

Dreco is now sold by all good druggists throughout the country and is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

SOBER SECOND THOUGHT TRIUMPHANT.

Washington, June 7.—The Republican Publicity Association, through its president, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

On the night of March 4th, a few hours before the President was to leave on his return trip to Paris, our ex-President stood on the same platform with Mr. Wilson and addressed a New York audience in advocacy of the covenant of the league of nations. Nothing was said at that meeting about the need for any revision of that document; in fact the whole tenor of the speeches by both the president and Mr. Taft was that the covenant should and must be adopted without change. In carrying out that thought the president even indulged in threats that he would so weave the covenant into the treaty that the Senate would have no recourse but to adopt it.

"But soon there was published to the world the round robin that 39 Republican senators had signed just before the adjournment of the congress. That declaration so clearly spelled defeat for the league that its friends hastened to qualify their endorsement of it by suggesting that certain amendments might well be made. Three days after he had walked on t o the New York stage arm in arm with the president, Mr. Taft published a statement which amounted to an apology for his uncompromizing attitude in support of the league, and hastened to assure the country that amendments to the covenant were not only advisable but absolutely necessary.

"It should be borne in mind," Mr. Taft hastened to explain, "that the present covenant is merely a report from a committee of the conference. * * Undoubtedly, the covenant needs revision. It is not systematically arranged, its meaning has to be dug out and the language is ponderous and in diplomatic patois." As to boycotts and furnishings of an international military force Mr. Taft said "This part of the covenant might be clarified." "The covenant should also be made more definite," he continued, "as to when its obligations may be terminated. It should be made more definite by a larger reservation of the Monroe Doctrine. There are other ambiguous prases."

"The belated objections of Mr. Taft were well taken, and if the country were in any real danger of having the league foisted upon it the changes he suggested should be incorporated in it. But the ex-President's comments are quoted to show the vacillation that characterizes the utterances of all the league advocates. They are for a league at any price, run to the support of the scheme that seems to have the ascendency at the moment, with best promise of success.

No recourse is had to argument by Mr. Taft and others who conduct themselves in that way. Like the street vendor of a patent medicine who invites purchases on the strength of his mere statement that the concoction will cure, Mr. Taft asks the country to accept the league on his unsupported, and, in fact, disproved, assertion that it will bring universal peace. The marvel is that the league ever received the support that it once had; but that is accounted for largely by the former high standing of the men who were behind it. Mr. Taft, for instance, did not hesitate to lend the prestige of his position as our only ex-president to the league propaganda, and that possibly was sufficient, in the entire absence of supporting argument to win to the cause those who are not in the habit of relying on independent thought and drawing their own conclusions.

But the bubble has burst. Taken at first by surprise in the sudden and overwhelming propaganda campaign that flooded the country, the inherent Yankee trait of independence of thought and action has emerged triumphant, marking the complete defeat of those who would induce us to surrender our birthright of liberty for the pottage of assisting in the permanent policing of Europe, Asia, and the world.

Mr. Wilser Cured of Indigestion.

"Some time in 1909 when I had an attack of indigestion and everything loked gloomy to me, I received a free sample of Chamberlain's Tablets through mail. I gave them a trial and they were such a help to me that I bought a package,a nd I can truly say that I have not had a similar attack since." writes Wm. B. Wisler, Douglasville, Pa.

ONE PHASE OF WAR WASTE

War Material Sold Back to Manufacturers at Fraction of Cost.

Washington, June 7.—"An instance of how money is wasted," said Representative W. R. Green of the House Ways and Means Committee, "is shown by the Housing Bureau which calmly announces that it does not expect to get any more dormitories here than is sufficient to pay the employees who are looking after the buildings.

"The aircraft situation also needs more investigating. Congress ought to know why a certain airplane company can buy back from the government planes that cost many thousand dollars for a few hundred dollars without anyone else having a chance to bid and why buildings are being wrecked at one camp and new ones being erected at another close by. These are only instances of a long line of extravagance which has prevailed and which never will be stopped until full publicity is given."

DEMOCRATIC HEADS PLAY POLITICS WITH THE LEAGUE

Chairman Cummings' Statement does not Square with President's Words.

POLICY NOT WELL RECEIVED

Washington, June 6.—Before his last departure for France in a speech, President Wilson said: "No party has a right to appreciate this issue:"

He was alluding to the proposed league of nations. Just how to reconcile this with the action of the Democratic National Committee at Chicago in calling on the Senate to ratify the league of nations and the peace treaty and with the statement of the chairman of the committee, Homer S. Cummings, that the Democrats will welcome the league of nations question as a political issue in the campaign next year, is causing a good many people to find themselves puzzled.

They are unable to make the high language of the President square with the language of Mr. Cummings, who as is well known, makes no move without getting the White House O.K.

Adding also to the interest in the matter are continued intimations going out from the inner circles of the administration and echoed and reechoed by its spokesmen that the President will run for a third term if the league of nations plan is not ratified by the Senate.

However, those who have been following the developments with respect to the league of nations most closely are not particularly mystified.

It is well known that that large element of the Democrats in congress and in the Democratic organization which is completely under the thumb of the administration and does always what it is told to do has long been seeking to make the disposition of international affairs in this critical time the football of politics. That the more independent Democrats in Congress and through the country are unwilling to do this is also well understood.

The fact that when the Democratic national committee met here some time ago it decided to set out on a plan to enlist as many Republicans in the support of the league, getting them to head clubs in favor of it, and otherwise be active for it, and that the suggestion for doing this came from the highest administration sources has been little dwelt on here but is well known. Now, with the Democratic National Committee avowing what amounts to its purpose to make the league a party issue, it does not need a diagram to perceive that the scheme has been to use many well-intentioned men and women who supposed they had no party motives as cat's paws for the Democratic political machinery.

The pronouncement of Mr. Cummings looking to making a Democratic party issue our of the league however, has not been well received by a number of the Democratic senators who subscribe to that doctrine which Senator Lodge has repeatedly set forth: "Politics stops at the water's edge." Some of the strongest and ablest of the Democratic senators hold that the effort of the National Committee to play politics with the league is not wise and that it will redound to the disadvantage of the Democratic party. In fact, certain of the Democratic leaders in congress raise the question whether Mr. Cummings has not made as big a blunder as the remarkable letter of the president to the country before the last election urging the voters to elect a Democraic Congress in order to sustain his policies. Mr. Cummings, it should be added, has always been credited with having a great share in that amazing piece of political finesse which proved a boomerang.

BAKER AND COX WAIT ON WILSON'S DECISION TO RUN

Both Ohioans Ready to Step to the Front as Candidates for the Presidency.

COX HAS THE INSIDE TRACK

Persistent Rumors of a Third Term Make Gumshoe Work of Prospects Difficult.

Washington, June 7.—Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, who aspires to the presidency and whose friends have been setting out to run him for that high office on the strength of his war record, is revealing a political capacity quite equal to his military capacity.

Arriving on the scarred political battlefields of Ohio late, Mr. Baker finds that Governor James M. Cox has passed that way before him.

It is said, among the wise men of politics, that Governor Cox, not relying entirely on moral force to gather support, has been busy seeing his Democratic brethren in recent months and getting promises of votes. The result is that the governor has the inside track in the matter of prospect for delegates. If the primaries were to be held there tomorrow, Governor Cox, it is said, would win the delegation. Of course, such a thing would put Mr. Baker out of the running.

Senator Pomerene of Ohio is another aspirant for the Democratic nomination. The Senator, however, is not expected to jump into the race with Governor Cox and Mr. Baker both active candidates.

Of course, neither of the Ohio aspirants will attempt to run if President Wilson seeks another nomination,as his intimates are now broadly hinting that he will. They are in the painful situation of not knowing what the President is going to do but the persistent stories coming out in administration newspapers that the President may find it necessary to run in order to force the United States to take up with the covenant for a league of nations has made things very uncomfortable for them.

One solution of it may be that the President will run again and Governor Cox or Mr. Baker be put on the ticket as canidate for vice president. This, it is true, would necessitate the turning down of vice President Marshall of Indiana, for the vice Presidency. How ever, it is well understood in Wahington that Mr. Marshall has never had the confidence or likeing of the White House because of the fact he has shown a disposition to have independent viws of thing and voice these views without getting any body's O. K. for them.

NOTICE

I have been instructed by the Mayor of Clanton to visit all hog pens and closets in the City and make a report to him of the conditions. The City Health officer will go with me. We will begin this work June 16, 1919.

J. P. GORE,
Chief of Police.

J. Bice of Lomax was in Clanton Tuesday. He left the picture of his five soldier sons at the Union-Banner office. The picture will appear in the paper next week.

WHY HE IS DETAINED

A remarkably striking cartoon entitled "Why He is Detained," by McCay, appeared in the New York American, Wm. Randolph Hearst's leading newspaper, on the editorial page, in the issue of Wednesday, June 4th.

The picture represents President Wilson seated at a table with King George, who is filling the President's glass out of a bottle labeled, "Royal Condescension," and asking, "Do you like it? to which the President is quoted in answering, "It's great; I can't get enough of it." Standing between them with her hand on another bottle is a maiden labeled "The French Republic," who holds aloof other bottles labeled, "French Flattery," "European Attention," etc. Tugging at the President's sleeve but unable to divert his attention from the feast, is a child labeled "American Interests," who is appealing to him with, "Father, dear Father, come home with me now."

It is a most significant depiction of the President's protracted sojourn abroad, and is rendered all the more remarkably by the fact that it is exploited in a newspaper that uniformly supports the Democratic ticket in a national campaign.

PERVERSIONS OF TRUTH

One outstanding feature impresses the mind of every man who read the President's Memorial Address—the frequent misstatement of fact—in which respect it differs little from his numerous other addresses during the past four years. From opening ing declaration that "these men who lie here are men of unique breed," his remarks were replete with false assumptions or erroneous assertions, all contrived to bolster up the falling fortunes of his league of nations scheme.

The men who died in France were not unique. They were of no different breed from that of men who fought to the last gasp behind the battered doors of the Alamo, nor different from the breed of men who fought at San Juan Hill, or in the pestilential swamps of the Phillipines.

And it is a false assumption that they went to France to fight for humanity. If that had been their impelling purpose they would have gone in 1915 to rebuke the rape of Belgium, to stay the devastation of France, to avenge the murdered innocents aboard the Lusitania. Self-deception avails us naught. We entered this war after receiving every insult one nation can heap upon another. We entered it after Belgium, France, England and Russia stood for nearly three years between us and the ruthless hordes of the hellish Huns. We entered the conflict only when it became apparent that Prussian militarism was about to win and that we must help or fight the enemy later and alone.

Wilson knows this. The record proves it. The declaration of war corroborates it. But the fact does not detract in the least from the heroism, the courage, the skill and the sacrifice of the men who rallied to the colors and redeemed American honor from the disgrace in which it had been dragged by a pacifist administration. The man who fought at Chateau-Thierry in the summer of 1918 would have fought as valiently in the summer of 1915, following the sinking of the Lusitania, if they had been given the training, the arms and the opportunity. If America did not perform her part in the war as promptly and effectively as she should, no word of criticism can be directed against the rank and file of the warriors who later won the admiration of the world and th e gratiutde of all succeeding generations by their various deeds.

It is perversion of the truth to say that those men were consciously or unconsciously fighting for a league of nations. It is perversion of the truth to say that they were fighting to prevent future wars, except so far as defeat of the wrong-doer in that war may discourage international outlawry for all future time. They were fighting to end this war and end it on the side of right. What steps should be taken to prevent future wars is a question to which they have given no thought that has found expression. No man can honestly claim to express the thought or the feeling of the American Expeditionary Forces upon the league of nations, or any other scheme for future world adjustment.

Thus much and this only has been demonstrated by the record of Americans in this conflict—America produces a breed of men who put the honor of their country and the peace and safety of their homes above even life itself, and when a foreign foe assails our rights, they stand ready to wage defensive or offensive war, let the cost be what it may. If a league of nations held out reasonable hope of lessening war without sacrificing liberty, doubtless they would espouse its cause. But there is no likelihood that they will choose the humiliating and menacing terms of the league covenant, with its unknown entangling alliances and sacrifice of American independence.

TWO NEGROES CUT EACH OTHER BRUTALLY.

About noon last Saturday Wade's Ice plant was turned into a butcher shop when two negroes, George Headley and Frank Ressau drew their knives and locked up into a personal carving match. The result of the encounter was one of the nastiest sce- Ressau was working they entered into Clanton.

Frank's throat was cut badly and his body shows several other ugly stabs and slashes. As he went up the street to a doctor's office spots of blood from the cut on his throat spotted the side-walk all along his path. George's hand was cut badly and his body was cut and stabbed in many places.

The trouble between the negroes seems to be that George has taken Frank's wife away from him. They have been in some fights about the matter before. Heacley came from Birmingham Saturday morning and when he went to the ice plant where Ressan was working they entered into their bloody combat without any preliminary ceremony.

Sheriff Gore and Marshall Gore were both gone to dinner when the fight took place but they were soon on the scene, and as soon as the doctors had patched up the mutilated negroes they were both put in jail. They are getting along very nicely, and it is not expected that the wounds will result fatally.

Two negroes in a dispute concerning a job at the Vida Lumber Mill at Lomax, engaged in a one-sided shooting scrape on Monday afternoon. The principals in the affair were Jim Holman and Oscar Deramus. Holman was not hurt; but he shot Deramus in the arm with a forty-four pistol.

Deputy Sheriff Culp went to the scene of the shooting and took charge of Holman and placed him in jail.

We are not committed to the idea that all politics and political parties are counterfeit and have come to naught in their service of the interests of our country. True enough there are instances in the past wherein it can be cited that both the old parties have been guilty of sin of one sort and another. We would not attempt to even absolve all parties from digression and wash their parments white as snow.

Then, too, it is true that the reconstruction period following the unsettled conditions visited upon us by the war just ended has created vast new tasks that fall within the province of political parties for solution. The people of the country have by their ballot given the task of meeting these new conditions to the Republican party. We believe that they would have awarded the contract to the Democrats if they had believed that they (the Democrats) would do the job the best. The country had seen the management of affairs by the Democrats during the war, and simply were not so impressed with their stewardship to trust them further in the more important task of reconstruction.

Now, the Republicans have been awarded the job and the people will hold them to a strict accountability for the way in which they use their power. The landslide which turned the majority in the House to the Republicans and at the same time wrested control of the Senate from Mr. Wilson's party was nothing more nor less than the conviction of the citizens of the country that the Republican party was versatile enough to properly cope with the requirements of the new conditions. The people have made it plain that the Republican party should have the undoing of much of the "rubber-stamp" stuff that the Democrats have been doing as war measures.

Republicans are confident that the party will be true to its trust and measure up to its responsibility. They are confident that their representatives will do everything in their power to make possible a period of wise amity and cooperation between the two co-ordinate branches of the government engaged in settling the serious questions which are to present themselves for solution. They feel sure that the conduct of their representatives will be free from partisanship which was so sectional arbitrary and autocratic on the part of the Democratic party in Congress during the period of the war. The Representatives and Senators composing the Congress are capable and fully intent to be exactly and completely what they are very properly supposed to be—the legislative body of our government, and not dependent upon the vacillating and dreaming idealistic mind of the White House for a policy.

The Republican party chastened, re-united and harmonious, has been returned to power in this country. It has been charged with a great trust. It has been given a golden opportunity by a confident and trusting people. It now behooves the party leaders and the various agencies and representatives of the party to demonstrate conclusively that the trust reposed in them is not misplaced and that the wisdom of their section on the part of the people is established beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

People Want to Know About Wilson's Visit to the Pope.

Hugh Roberts, the Age-Herald correspondent at Washington, says the Alabama delegation at Washington has been flooded with letters from people in Alabama, desiring to know if President Wilson did receive a forty-thousand dollar present from the Pope when he visited Rome a few months ago.

It seems from the Age-Herald that these Congressmen are having considerable difficulty in answering all these inquiries. There is no use for them to lose their nerves about this little ripple that is arising on their heretofore peaceful incumbency at the capitol. This is just a small matter to that which is coming. And the people are not going to fool about a quibbling answer very long. They want the straight honest goods about this secret stuff going on between Rome and Washington.

People down here in Alabama are waking up right along. They have a right to demand an answer to their questions about Wilson going to Rome. We did not elect Wilson to stay in Europe and hold secret confabs with Pope Benedict in the "holy room" at the vatican. Such stuff on the part of our American executive is not right and the people have a right to protest. The little small-bore politician or Congressman who feels so horny as to try bucking against the people in this matter is going to get his stinger pulled out right quick.

Many of the anti-Woman Suffragists in the Democratic party are scared out of their boots by the idea that the adoption of this new idea will put the Democratic party out of business in the future. We say if it will do that, let her come forthwith and immediatery. Anything that will stay the hand of this modern Democratic politics will be a blessing to America.

Rome Has Captured us; Now What Will She Do With Us?

We suppose that the Catholics figure that they have now got this country in their power completely; and they are going to have a great meeting of the high authorities of the Church in Washington right away to decide what to do with it. The Birmingham News, that great paper which is always anxious and particular to publish things for the exploitation of Roman doings, tells about that great meeting in its Friday issue. The dispatch from Washington published in the News says as follows:

"The general purpose of the conference as stated by Cardinal Gibbons, will be to organize committees to study and work for the welfare of the Church and country, particularly along social and educational lines. It will discuss social and educational problems involved in legislation under consideration by Congress and will formulate a uniform Catholic policy."

American, free-born, liberty-loving citizens, we remind you again of the fact that Rome has declared war on American institutions and has declared that America shall be made Catholic. Rome, the mother of Harlots, the enemy of truth, science and progress, the personified spirit of the devil, the Pope of Roman Heirarchy has given his orders that America shall be made Catholic. He has declared that we, the advocates of free speech, free press, free schools, the open Bible, must be subjugated to his dictates and governed by his minions.

Think of it. The above is the program which these minions of Benedict are to meet and work out in our national capital. By their shrewd and delusive schemes they have been seeking the end of their infamous plan for the last few years. We know that they have succeeded well. We can see evidences of their success that rise as veritable mountains before our dazed vision, and rolling forth in its course, crushes the life out of the waning and limp form of American ideals.

The death grip has been placed on us friends. The great octapus of the Tiber has us in the power of his awful tentacles. Now he and his minions are to council together and discuss what shall be done to us.

Oh, that Americans could awake today and realize that we face the awful condition of the mouse in the paw of the lion. We realie that we are to be devoured and wonder what the method shall be.

We think it would be better for the United States if the League of Nations covenant were lost in the political wilderness, along with its chief exponent, Woodrow Wilson.

President Wilson is holding a gun in the breast of the Senate and demanding as the price of peace that there shall be on the part of the Senate, immediate, unquestioning acceptance of his personally contrived scheme of world reorganiation. But the gun is not loaded and the Senate knows it is not.

Our county commissioners did not make this dipping law; neither did they waste all the county's money building highways that were not built. Then what is the use of cussing them? The fact that the money was wasted by Deason's administration, and that the dipping law was forced on us by our Democratic ping law was forced on us by our Democraic neighbors in the legislature, and the burning of the court-house by some low-down scoundrel who ought to be in hell, has made a very hard road for our commissioners to travel in financing the county. Why don't you help them instead of "cuss' them then?

Musgrove seems to be profoundly American and anti-Catholic on the one hand, for he says he stands for separation of church and state in he administration of the affairs of our government. But then on the other hand, in the same breath he blories in the fact that he stands squarely behind Wilson in the League of Nations proposition. We do not see how one can possess the purest Americanism and advocate the height of abstract internationalism that is so vaguely and loosely defined in Wilson's League of Nations project. We are glad to see our Representatives at Washington standing for Americanism at Washington. And we also want to see them declare that same Americanism in Europe or any other place in the world.

It is a funny thing that people are ever ready to censure and seldom willing to help. A man came into our office the other day and said he was looking for somebody to help him "cuss" the Commissioners Court because they had not paid him for dipping cows. We assured him that he could very easily find the fellow he was looking for. The country is full of folks who are raising all manner of sand about this that and the other thing which they imagine the county commissioners ought to do. Why don't they get the right idea that our officers are not tyrants and despots, but honest men doing the best they can for us, and lend a helping hand rather than "cuss" them, as the fellow expressed it?

We are especially anxious to see some of the Alabama dailies get into that part of the platforms of Musgrove and Rainey which says those men are in favor of keping the Catholics out of politics. These dailies in Alabama are afraid to say anything against the plans and purposes of the Catholic politicians, even if they were inclined to be against them. But to make bad matters worse, some of the daily papers, we are convinced, are not at all inclined to take up the cudgel for Americanism against Romanism for the simple fact that they are acually in sympathy and secretly allied with the latter. Anyway, they have got to meet the question and we are anxious to see what kind of an out they make of it. We can see them now sounding about picking out what they hope to be an easy place to fall.

The next term of the Circuit Court of Chilton County will convene on July 21st. This will be the jury term and the grand jury will sit to consider alleged violations of the laws.

Records of the court officials of the county indicate that the coming session of the court will be the busiest one for some time. There is a large docket waiting, in addition to what the grand jury may return.

There are some three or four murder cases to be tried, among them the case of Perry Glass who is to be retried again for the killing of Jim Campbell.

Work of finishing up the new courthouse is being pushed with all haste. And Contractor Dobson entertains plans that will have the new building ready for the July court. The windows and inside finishing work is now being completed very hastily.

A SODA WATER YARN

We have heard all sorts of soda fountain yarns come down the line ever since the time when Jim Parrish, then a one-gallus overall youth, came into Upchurch's and told Calvin Wilson to give him a "general mixtry." But Emmett Blankenship, the soda jerker of recent pluto prominence, tells about the best one we have heard in recent days. It goes like this:

An old man with those goat whiskers and iron-rimmed specks entered the drug store a while back, approached the soda fount, and stooping over the counter, inquired "What have you got cold to drink here?"

Emmett very politely (though we imagine with a smile in the corner of his eye) informed the old fellow that he could give him anything from pluto on down the line to just plain red soda water—except corn licker.

"Well," said the old man, "I been hearin' 'em talk about this set-up drink; 'spose you give me one of 'em."

HIS WIFE WAS AN INVALID FOR YEARS, HE SAYS.

Almost at times.

Now declares that the new root and herb remedy Dreco has given relief.

"My wife has prastically been an invalid for thirty years," are the words of that well known and highly respected citizen Mr. W. J. Feyason of 635 Locust Street, Gadsden, Ala.

"she kept going down hill all the time, loosing strength and she became weak, pale and very nervous and excitable. She lost her appetite and what food she did eat didn't seem to nurish her nor give any srength. It often fermented and caused her stomach to fill up with gas. Her bowels were very constipated and she was forced to take some kind of medicine most every night for them. Her breath became foul and she hardly known what a good nights rest was like. Dizzy speels often struck her and she would almost go blind from them.

"I've spent lots of money buying medicine for her and fordoctor bills but nothing ever gave more temporary relief. I've always put a lot of faith in the old time root and herb medicine, so when I read about Dreco, I went right away and got her a bottle. It seemed to go right to the bottom of her troubles and now she is like a different person,both in looks and feelings. Her color has returned, eyes cleared up, and I've never seen any one gain strenght so fast. she gets around now like she used to when a young woman. her appetite is huge and whats more, the food agrees with her, never has gas and hasn't had a dizzy spell since she started on Dreco. We shurely recommend Dreco."

All good druggist now sell Dreco and it is highly recommended in Clanton, by Upchurch Drug Co.

THE BAPTIST TENT MEETING

Clanton had a rather unique religious experience during the sixteen days from May 22 to June 6. A revival in a tent.

The pastor had engaged the services of a Home Mission Board Evangelist, Rev. T. O. Reese, and that of his song leader and helper, Mr. P. S. Rowland, several months ago. These men make their headquarters at Marbury, not far from Clanton. As the date for the meeting approached the question of accommodating the congregations arose. It was taken for granted that the Baptist meeting house would not do, so while at the Baptist Convention in Atlanta, the pastor secured the use of a tent for two weeks which had just been purchased by the Birmingham Association for missionary purposes. From the first the tent was filled to its sitting capacity at every service. On several occasions the capacity was retracted by the daily rains, but all who could be seated came in spite of the weather, or possibly because of it, since but little outdoor work could be done during the entire time.

Mr. Rowland's consecrated character shone through all his song leadership, his solos, and his prayers. His work with the children in what he called his "Junior Class" was especially noticeable and received the amused and admiring attention of all. His song book, though small, was very popular and the congregations responded heartily to his leadership in song.

The preaching of Rev. Reese was something out of the ordinary even for Baptist Evangelists. He will not conduct what is usually known as a "union meeting," a combination of different denominations supporting it on equal terms. His work is purely and entirely for the Baptists. He holds that if his meeting is in the interest of a "union" of denominatinos, his mouth will be closed from preaching certain Biblical doctrines and facts of church history which are fundamental with the Baptists. For nearly a week his sermons searched the souls of professing Christians and church members, calling for the signs which distinguish the Christian from the rest of the world, and encouraging the backslidden to take a fresh hold upon the mercy of God. Then he turned the guns of Mt. Sinai upon the world in general and showed men the folly of rejecting Christ. During his entire series of 30 sermons he was intensely Biblical, often pouring forth a series of quotations upon the point he wished to stress. Toward the close he delivered several sermon-lectures, developing certain Biblical doctrines and facts of church history which astonished some of his hearers for, they had never heard such things before. But they were no new "isms"—they were simply the old Bible truths and historical facts for which enlightened Baptists have always contended. The "unionism" of modern times has forbidden the preaching even by Baptists of the great Bible truths for which they stand, hence, when Mr. Reese brought them forth they were new to many. Probably never were these truths more completely carried in so able a manner in a similar length of time. Messrs Reese and Rowland have gone to the Clayton Street Baptist Church in Montgomery for a two-weeks meeting, after which they will be at Calera.

Twenty-seven converts were received for Baptism by the church, and eighteen by letter and restoration. It is expected that several yet will come.

L. B. MUSGROVE FORMALLY ENTERS SENATORIAL RACE

VIEWS UPON LIVE ISSUES SET FORTH IN RINGING STATEMENT

Strong in Support of League of Nations—Prohibition, Suffrage, Labor, Education and Americanism Subjects Discussed

Carrying out his intention, expressed some time ago, L. B. Musgrove, of Jasper, has filed with the Secretary of State the official notice of his candidacy for the United States Senate, to succeed Oscar W. Underwood. In his announcement Mr. Musgrove discussed the leading issues of the day, speaking frankly and fearlessly, and in such a way that no one can fail to understand his position. The announcement is as follows:

To the people of Alabama.

In conformity with my preliminary statement, issued before my departure for the Peace Conference, I now announce my candidacy to represent the State of Alabama in the United States Senate, subject to the action of the Democratic primary next spring.

My decision to enter this race was reached after the most mature deliberation.

The problems facing our country today are freighted with vast possibilities for good or evil. The demand for their solution is urgent, and they must be solved. If they are solved aright, it must be at the hands of those who are in sympathy with the needs, the hopes and the ideals of the great mass of American citizens.

Believing that the people of Alabama are entitled to know the views of those who seek to represent them, I deem it proper to state my position as to the questions that I now regard as paramount in the coming campaign.

PROHIBITION

I believe in Prohibition, State, National and World-wide, and favor the enactment of such laws as may be necessary to carry the 18th Amendment to the Federal Constitution into full and complete effect and prevent any evasion of it.

I am opposed to the repeal of the war time prohibition law. The starving millions of the world are now just as much in need of food that America must furnish, as they were when the law was enacted and it is the duty of our government to protect our food stuffs against waste in the manufacture of beer. Furthermore I am opposed to granting special favors to the brewing interests of the country as against the whiskey interests. Having been companions in evil let them be buried together.

Americans should not forget that the revelations growing out of the Congressional investigations developed the fact that the brewers of the country were the chief supporters through the German-American Alliance, of the Pro-German propaganda that cost the lives of many thousands of splendid American boys.

The Temperance forces must remain on the firing lines until the enemies of Prohibition has demobilized, and their weapons of warfare destroyed.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

The effort of President Wilson and the other peace delegates to organize all civilized nations into a League for the settlement of international controversies without resort to arms, is the greatest act of statesmanship in history. The United States should be the first nation to ratify the covenant of the League of Nations. It is certain that it must be eventually adopted. When this is done I will esteem it a great privilege, if in the Senate, to give all the aid in my power to the furtherance of the aims of the League of Nations and the establishment of friendly relations with all the people of the earth.

I have no patience with those who hesitate or quibble over technical terms of the covenant and who pretend apprehension lest America surrender her national prerogatives.

Without a League of Nations we must enter upon a program of unlimited military and naval preparedness with the resultant tax burdens therefrom, and in time see history repeated by war as tragic if not more horrible than the one just closed.

A Senator cannot represent the people of Alabama by merely voting for a League of Nations, when he can no longer dodge or remain silent. He should help, not hinder our greatest President and his colleagues in guaranteeing to mankind peace instead of war.

OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

Too much cannot be done for the noble men who answered our country's call and prevented the cruel Hun from destroying civilization. These splendid boys have added rich laurels to this commonwealth. We owe them a debt that can never be paid, a debt that this government should recognize in a substantial way as long as these soldiers and sailors or their dependent ones survive.

I am in full accord with every movement that has been or may be inaugurated for the purpose of dealing justly and generously with all who placed themselves on freedom's altar that democracy might live. Furthermore I am in hearty accord with the movement set on foot by our returned soldiers and sailors to eliminate all favoritism in the army and navy and maintain a system of appointment and advancement by merit alone.

CHURCH AND STATE

As active and aggressive as the liquor interests ever were is that element of society which would bring about in this country a union of church and state. With the enlightened countries of Europe turning from this sort of thing, efforts to establish it in the United States will be redoubled. The danger is none the less real because the campaign is being carried on by subtle and indirect methods, well calculated to deceive the unobservant. Every influence of this character must be met and sternly suppressed. The perpetuation of our free institutions depends in a large measure upon the alertness of our representatives and only those who are conscious of the menace and whose Americanism is unquestioned, should be placed on guard.

EDUCATION

Equality of opportunity is a fundamental principle of a Democracy. Equality of opportunity in other respects is impossible without equality of educational opportunity. The task of giving equality of educational opportunity to all children of all the people is too big to be adequately performed by any part of the people, therefore the State and Federal Governments must co-operate in building up a strong, intelligent, patriotic, liberty-loving citizenship. We must realize now that Democracy's greatest safeguard is the public school; because people are poor or engaged in humble occupation is no reason why their children should be shut out from the privileges of economic independence and further usefulness. We can modify our system and enhance its worth in terms of tangible value and broaden the minds of the average youth so that he can enjoy every opportunity that is open to the fortunate. The standard and measurement of his education in school must be determined by his increased earning capacity and the school should be so organized that in its process, his powers will be developed in a way that he can see the concrete results in the processes of his training. This end can be happily attained by the development of a system of vocational education.

The foundations of our republic are based upon universal intelligence. Therefore the guardians of the republic must see to it that not only its children, but its adults as well are made efficient, intelligent and patriotic through the agencies of our public school system.

The children of a nation are its greatest asset, and in their training the nation finds its greatest opportunity. We can no longer delude ourselves with respect to the adequacy of an education which ends with the completion of a course of study that has only a limited relation with the common every day life.

For our people to have more of the good things of this life the only practical way to acquire them is to be able to produce them. There can be no way for those of low productive capacity in some mysterious fashion to go out and get a bounty to make good their deficit in production. One should produce what one enjoys.

I insist that our present popular educational system does not always link up promptly and well with production. The principle of vocational education offers at least one solution to our vexed educational problem. To every citizen may be given an equal opportunity to learn how to produce to his best capacity that which fits him for the greatest service to himself and his country.

I am firmly convinced that the state and nation must work hand in hand in bringing the youth of our country into the birthright that was vouchsafed to them by the founders of this republic.

In the increasing effort of our government to lend a helping hand looking to the advancement of a system of vocational education I shall, as in the past, give my best efforts toward the development of this system of education, which stands today in the forefront of our national needs.

SUFFRAGE.

I have long maintained that political discrimination because of sex is unjust. The suffrage amendment now pending before the Senate should be promptly passed. I hope Alabama will be the first state to ratify it.

LABOR AND CAPITAL

Our business prosperity and national welfare depends upon a sympathetic and correct understanding between capital and labor. All liberal minded men now realize that in order to obtain this much desired relationship, labor should be recognized, not as a commodity but as an essential, living, vital force. Greater consideration must be granted labor and more safeguards must be thrown around the working man and working woman, so that they shall have full opportunity to earn a sufficient recompense for themselves and their families, with ample privileges for education, recreation and proper living.

Just returns cannot be obtained by capital without the assistance of labor, and labor cannot get its legitimate dues without capital being employed.

The time has passed to question the right of labor to organize and act, collectively for its own protection and advancement.

THE FARMER

My natural sympathies are with that great food producing class, the farmers, who are today not merely the mainstay of life in America but are important factors in the sustenance and comfort of the whole world. I shall, if elected, endeavor to secure for the farmers, that full measure of consideration and justice that their noble calling and devotion to country has at all times entitled them to receive.

It will be my purpose to co-operate fully with the government in the farm extension work now being fostered by it.

Should other pertinent questions arise I shall not hesitate to state my views thereon. If elected I will ever remember I am a representative of all the people of Alabama and to the best of my ability protect and advance their interest.

CHILTON COUNTY POST OF AMERICAN LEGION TO BE FORMED IN CLANTON JUNE 28

Meeting will be Held at the Court House June 28th... All Soldiers, Sailors and Marines are Requested to Come.

Get into the American Legion.

Become a charter member of the post to be organized at the Courthouse on Saturday, June 28th. Assist in perpetuating the service you rendered during the great world war.

This is the message sent by the men who have received the charter and are authorized to organize the American Legion in the state of Alabama. It is sent to every white soldier, sailor and marine who served at any time during the period between the declaration of war and the signing of the armistice.

Delegates will be elected at the meeting to be held in the various county seats throughout the state and a convention of these representatives of the different posts will be held at Birmingham on July 16-17.

Immediately upon forming their county posts, the ceterans should communicate with Col. Bibb Graves, State Chairman and organizer, at Room 71, Vandiver Bldg., Montgomery, Ala., giving the names of those enrolled, their addresses, previous service and the name selected for the post.

The American Legion is the great plan by which all who served the United States during the war with Germany will unite for the preservation of Simon pure Americanism and to see that due credits are given for the sacrifice made or offered to our country. In its organization it is democratic and non-partisan. The private soldier or the "gob" will stand upon the same footing as the highest officer, within the organization and in its councils.

LeRoy Jacobs of Birmingham is the State Secretary and will furnish further information and enrollment blanks to those who may make the request. No person has been designated to effect the organization in the different counties, and no prospective leaders in the movement have been selected. The entire formation of The American Legion, its scope and its future, remain with the men who are to form its membership.

PEACE PRACTICABLE WITH THE LEAGUE IS REJECTED

Washington, June 8.—The friends of the League of Nations take the position that the defeat of the league covenant, or any amendment to it or other parts of the treaty, would constitute a new treaty, requiring the signatures of all the nations that subscribed to the original document. They claim a dead-lock would prevail meanwhile, and peace would be impossible until the assent of the thirty-two states to the new treaty could be obtained. Senator Hitchcock, former chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, states his contention as follows:

"Such amended treaty is a new treaty, whether it strikes out the league of nations provision or whether it amends the league of nations provision. It could not possibly go into effect until all of the nations party to the treaty accepted the amendment. If one refused to accept it that would produce a deadlock and make peace impossible. For all to accept any Senate amendments, even if it were possible, would require a long period of time and that would greatly delay the advent of peace."

Of course, so far as the treaty itself is concerned, the allied nations are free to make such terms of peace with Germany as each may see fit, unless they are bound by undertakings among themselves not to conclude a separate peace. The United States, for instance, can conclude peace with Germany on any basis she may adopt, quite regardless of the actions of the allies or any one of them. The treaty is only between ourselves and the Germans.

The inclusion of the league covenant in the treaty presents a complication that involves all of the allied belligerents. If that covenant is amended it is probably true, as Mr. Hitchcock asserts, that before it would have any binding force the changes would have to receive the endorsement of the other parties to the undertaking. Amendment of the covenant, therefore, might be attended with prolonged delays in the final consummation of peace. But no such difficulties are in the way of the defeat of the undertaking.

The league of nations is the pet personal hobby of Mr. Wilson, and is so regarded by the delegates of the other powers in Paris. They care little for it, and will be quick to requdiate it once it has been rejected by the United States Senate. It is said by those in touch with the situation in Paris that the defeat of the league by the Senate is anticipated by the other nations, and that their course of action in that event is already mapped out. With the peace treaty relieved of the encumbrance of the league it will be a simple matter to achieve peace; in fact, there is not the slightest doubt that the league's defeat would bring peace to the world months before it would come were the covenant to be amended.

The essentials of the treaty itself have already been determined upon. In his desperate attempt to tie the league and treaty together, Mr. Wilson referred some of the details of the treaty to the league's council for determination. But it would be a simple matter to provide another instrumentality for such determination; in fact, it is probable that the changes that the league's defeat would necessitate in the treaty are now reposing in the files of the peace conference, ready for insertion the moment the Senate has decreed the death of the covenant. Each allied nation, including the United States, could make those alterations at once, and present the practically identical treaties to Germany for signature, each supported in its demands by all the others. The process is a perfectly simple one, and the reconvening of the peace congress is not required at all.

Republican Congress Gets Down to Business In Spirit Which Promises Good to Country

Handicapped by Delay in Calling Extra Session, Senate and House are now Disposing of Tremendous Volume of Work Connected with Appropriation Billls—Striking Record Made in Passage of Woman Suffrage Resolution.

Washington, June 16.—Congress is going at the business of the extra session with a rush which has no precedent in recent years.

Although handicapped by the fact that the session did not open until May 19th, there is reason to believe that House and Senate will be able to accomplish the huge task of getting the appropriation bills passed by the first of July, the date when the new fiscal year begins.

House leaders have decided to give the right of way between now and June 15 to appropriation bills. It is expected that the remaining four great money bills will be crowded through by that date. They include the request of the railroad administration for $1,200,000,000; the army appropriation bill which will run well up to $1,000,000,000; the naval appropriation bill which will exceed a half billion; and the sundry civil bill which is expected to approximate $250,000,000, though efforts will be made to reduce it.

Working Together.

Working in conjunction with the Senate leaders, the decision of the House leaders was to dispose of these vast appropriation measures with this extraordinary speed in order to give the Senate time to deal with them, send them to conference, and pass them finally before July 1.

Already the House has passed the Indian bill, the District of Columbia appropriation bill, the third deficiency bill, the agricultural bill and the urgent deficiency bill, to provide for funds urgently needed by the War Risk Insurance Bureau and the Pension Office. The committees on appropriations and military and naval affairs have been busy in the meantime getting other measures in readiness for House censideration. Senate committees dealing with appropriations have been at work shaping up the bills sent to the Senate from the House and as fast as the committees can complete their part of the program the bills are to be put through the Sneate.

Important Reductions.

In order to carry out the program, the House will for some days pass supply bills at the rate of $300,000,000 a day. The Senate will provide for expenditures in the closing days of June even more rapidly. It is recognized by House members and senators that more time ought to be given to the close and critical examination of the great money bills on the floor but in the present condition of things it is imperrative the measures be passed with the least practicable delay. Hence there is less careful pruning of the bills than will be possible in the regular session. At that, the committees are finding it possible to make important reductions from the levels of the bills as they stood last session. By the time the appropriation bills are finally disposed of, leaders say they will show a material reduction in the aggregate, from the total of the bills as framed by the preceding congress.

If the new congress manages to dispose of all the appropriation bills in the short time allowed it for that purpose, it will have demonstrated its capacity for work in a way that can not be disputed. However, both the houses have found time already for many important matters.

Woman Suffrage.

Most noteworthy of these is the passage of the resolution for the proposed woman suffrage amendment to the Constitution. This passed the House on the third day of the session, went to the Senate, was reported and sent to the calendar, and in the face of determined opposition, was finally passed June 4. The suffrage measure passed the senate just forty-one hours after its introduction in that body. In that long and trying time, the women who fought for suffrage experienced so many disappointments that those who led the cause on this occasion could hardly realize the struggle, so far as the federal government is concerned, was over.

Impartial Investigation.

Of first-class importance, too, is the passage by the House of the Graham resolution for an investigation by a special committee of fifteen into the expenditures of the War Department. This investigation, which will be a comprehensive one, will soon be actually under way. It is intended to be an impartial and fearless inquiry into the facts concerning the expenditure of upwards of $16,000,000,000. The resolution for the inquiry was passed in the face of much opposition from minority members, who did not, however, show their hands on the final vote. Investigations of other departments will be made by other committees for the purpose of finding out the facts about their expenditures. The War Risk Insurance Bureau will be probed.

The Senate has devoted considerable time to the discussion of international questions, including the treaty of peace and the covenant for the league of nations. The remarkable disclosure that copies of the peace treaty, which has been denied the Senate, are in the hands of New York financial houses, has, of course, aroused a tremendous sensation.

Committee Activity.

What has been done on the floor of both houses, however, represents only a part of the work thus far accomplished. In the leading committees of the two houses there has been a steady activity. The results of it will be apparent as the session develops.

For instance, both the House and Senate interstate commerce committees have been crowding along various bills before them in an effort to reach the railroad question proper, involving the fixing of a permanent policy for the railroads. The bill for the restoration of the telephones and telegraphs to their owners, reported from the Senate Interstate commerce committee several days ago, and a bilk on the same subject in the House interstate commerce committee, will soon be disposed of.

The broad question of what to do with the railroads is already being taken up by the two committees in a preliminary way. The Senate interstate commerce committee has reported the Cummins bill to restore the powers of the interstate commerce commission and is considering the Poindexter bill to give vitality to the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce law.

Other Important Matters.

Other subjects taken up the committee either in House or Senate or both include shipping, revenue questions, land settlement, prohibition law enforcement, labor matters, independence of the Philippines and a long list more. The Senate education and labor committee, aside from reporting a bill for vocational training for those injured in industry, has begun hearing on the housing question.

The military and naval committees at both ends of the Capitol, apart from much work this month on appropriations, are taking up many other subjects under their jurisdiction.

The mere recitation of these things done on the floor and in committee answers the question whether the new congress is going to do things. It is already doing them.

Man-Talk to Men

By J. R. HAMILTON
Former Advertising Manager of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia

Since the beginning of organized society everything without a name has ended with a question mark. The very reason why marriage itself has been able to maintain so much sentiment amongst civilized races is that it gave to our children a name.

There is no virtue in a name itself, except that it throws the light of investigation upon whatever the name stands for.

Now the object of this article is simply to get you to remember the names of the articles you buy or at least the names of the people you buy them from. Because that is the only way of increasing good business methods in this city.

In this last twenty years business men have discovered a new method of establishing a name. They do it through advertising.

Now again there is no special virtue in advertising except that it does two things. First, it sells goods cheaper, because it sells more of them. And, second, it shortens the time that it formerly took to establish a name. There are just as honest business men who do not advertise as there are who do. That is not the point. The point is that they are not as good business men and that you do not have any way of telling whether they are honest or not.

Now there are a great many advertisers in this paper today and every day who have established for themselves, or for their products, a good name. There is a lifetime of hard effort attached to the signature of many of these ads, so you cannot possibly do better than to read this advertising for whatever you wish to buy.

When a man or a product has an established name, you know where to go, if the quality does not live up to the guaranty.

So turn to the advertising in this paper today; read it, buy from it, and you will know that if at any time the thing you buy isn't right, the man with a name will make it right.

INVESTIGATION INTO WAR COSTS IS NOW ASSURED

Republicans adopt Graham Resolution Authorizing special Committee

WIDE SCOPE TO INQUIRY

Majority Party Believes that People Should Know Where Money Went

Washington, June 17.—A sweeping investigation of the vast expenditures for the war is assured.

The house, following a number of brief but forceful speeches from prominent members of the majority, adopted the Graham resolution for an investigation by a special committee of fifteen into the expenditures of the War Department.

The investigation will be made by the original committee on expenditures in the War Department enlarged to fifteen. Representative Graham of Illionis, one of the younger members of the house and able and vigorous individual, a lawyer by profession, will head the committee. The plans of the committee will be formulated as speedily as practicable.

Minority Silent

Apprehending the consequences of opposition, the minority members did not vote against the resolution.

That the inquiry will take a wide scope is fully anticipated. While it relates primarily to know the public money in vast sums was expended, this of course, involeves practically an inquiry into the conduct of the war.

As far as posible, duplications of inquiry as between House and Senate will be avoided. Plans for investigating the Bureau of war Risk Insurance are being matured. As was indicated by Leader Mondell before the House rules committee, in cases where the Senate is going deep into a particular subject, the House will steer clear of it.

People Are To Know

"The determination of the Republicans in Congress to make thorough inquiry into the manner in which the public's money was expended during the war simply means that the time has come when Congress and the people are to know at last, what has become of the vast 'lump sum' appropations which were asked for so insistently by the Democratic Administration, and which were provided so liberally uncomplainingly by Republicans and Democrats alike.

"During the progress of the war," said Representative Graham of Illinois, "the head of the various departments came befre Cngress and requested billions of dollars be appropriated—not, as in ordinary time, for definate and limited purposes, but in lump sums—leaving entirely to their discretion and personal efficiency the manner in wich it was to be expended. The country was at war, and we gave them practically everything they demand, and in the exact manner in which it had been requested. But that did not mean that the public should never know what became of these great appropriations. The war is over and the time has come for this covenient phrase—'lump sum appropriations'—to be dissected and the public informed as to weather we have been wise or foolish to make appropriations in this manner."

The Rebublican leader in the House, Representative Mondell, speaking before the RulesCommittee in favor of the Graham resolution, pointed out that the creation of this special committee would not now be necessary if the standing committee of the House possessing exactly similar powers had properly performedt heir duties during the period that the Democrats had control of Congress.

"The investigation into war expenditures proposed by Mr. Graham," said Mr. Mondell, "is no different from what should have been done each session by the regular committees on expenditures in the various departments.

Efficient Investigations.

"The country will not be compelled to witness useless and duplicate investigations by the Republicans. Our entire program for investigation has been methodically arranged. There will not be independent investigations of the same subject by both the House and Senate. If the Senate wants to make the investigation into the colossal expenditures for aircraft production, and ordinance, we will give our attention to the other divisions of the subject, or vice versa. In this way we will save time and money, and keep the public informed withouth overwhelming it with overlapping inquiries seeking the same end."

PR[illegible]IS A RECORD OF [illegible]CHIEVEMENT FOR THE REPUBLICAN CONGRESS

MANY BILLS ARE CONSIDERED

Washington, June 15.—"'Harmony' is the watchword of the Republican majority in Congress," said Representative Madden, of Illinois, today, "and nothing will be permitted to prevent the legislative branch of the government from speedily solving the great questions upon which the public demands early action."

Mr. Madden, a few days ago, reviewed the work which had then been accomplished by the House of Representatives, and now he points to the additional legislative acts which further substantiate his claim that the Republicans will establish a record of accomplishments during the present session. The list of legislation adopted by the House has now been increased by the passage of the agricultural appropriation bill,t he Graham measure for an investigation of the expenditure of $16,000,000,000 by the War Department, and the military appropriation bill is ready for immediate consideration. Following this, the House will take up the naval appropriation bill, the railroad deficiency bill, and the proposed legislation providing for the repeal of the obnoxious consumption taxes which have made icec ream sodas and soft drinks a luxury.

"The House will have completed all essential legislation for the operation of the governmental machinery by June 15," Mr. Madden concluded, "and we will have made a genuine record of accomplishment."

The State Democratic Executive Committee, in true rubber-stamp fashion, has adopted a series of resolutions endorsing the leadership of President Wilson, and the League of Nations. The resolution solicits the members of Congress to give the League their support not silently but openly, not apologetically but proudly, not only as Democrats but as Americans.

If Tumulty tries to crush anti-Catholic expression through the office of Postmaster General that may prove as big a white elephant on his hands as the wires were for Burleson. Truth crushed to earth is bound to rise. One truth about the rottenness of Romanism has been crushed to earth; but it is bound to rise. And it will rise by the determination of American citizens in spite of Tumulty, Burleson & Co.

Representative Julius Kahn, of California, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee of the House paused long enough in his official duties to advocate the statement that the victory of he Republican party in the next presidential election will be an overwhelming one. He sees this indication due to the fact that the present Republican congress is so systematically and thoroughly performing the many duties that confront that body. The Republicans are sustaining their previous records for speedy and needed legislation, which will build up confidence among the people of the country, thereby gaining their support for the party in the next campaign.

Instead of taking a mandatory for some petty European power, the United States will be doing very well if, under the Monroe Doctrine, she can re-establish order in troubled Mexico. For six or seven years past that country has been trouble-torn and mussed up—life and property unsafe and no semblance of order anywhere. Business of all kinds has gone to ruin and the people have become thoroughly demoralized. It is our burden duty to clear this situation up and there's no doubt in the world that sooner or later we shall be obliged to do so. There will come a time when the powers of Europe will insist either that we do it ourselves or that we allow them to do it; an alternative that we cannot consider. The big problem ahead of this country is the Mexican problem, and our attention belongs here rather than in interfering in the affairs in Europe.—Fort Wayne News.

Forcing Them to the Front.

The activities of the Catholic Church in the policies and government of our country for the past few years has been sorely intressing to hosts of real honest to goodness American patriots who saw the inconsistence and the un-Americanism of things as they were being perpetrated upon the country through the autocratic and designing plans of Rome. Such unjust methods as characterized certain activities of our war department agencies during the war fired the spark of Americanism and manhood in the thousands of hearts all over the United States. It was but natural for this system of one-sided and discriminating management to call forth active and agressive protest at the proper time. We are pleased to note that it is already taking on real form in the announcements that some political candidates are making.

Hon. L. B. Musgrove of Jasper, candidate for the Senate to succeed Underwood, dares to say openly and pearlessly that he favors separation of church and state, as good as to say that he is in sympathy with the demands of Americans that Rome shall keep her fingers out of our politics and our government.

L. B. Rainey, candidate for congress from the Seventh District, to succeed the late John L. Burnett, gives his people assurance in his published announcement that he will stand for the preservation of civil and religious liberty, safeguarding for all time to come complete separation of church and state.

These things show that the people are indignant over the way things have been going on at Washington for the past few years; and that they demand a change. And candidates who would go to Washington to represent these people must be right on the question of keeping Romanism out of our government. We are truly glad to see Musgrove and Rainey dare to pronounce themselves.

Tom Watson in his splendid writings exposing and condemning the utterly repulsive systems of Roman Catholicism, gives nine reasons why the system of Popery is a menace to the world. We reproduce them below and suggest that those who are aroused from their slumber as to the menace of Romanism, study these eight reasons and familiarize yourselves with them. By so doing, you will be enabled to better understand the contest that is being waged against this deadly monster.

First— it arrogates to an Italian Bishop the paramount sovereignty, both temporal and spiritual, of the whole world.

Second—It virtually usurps the place of God, in that it arrogates to itself the power to open hell to the sinner and heaven to the saint.

Third—It blasphemously pretends to sacrifice Christ, again and again, on tens of thousands of altars, in tens of thousands of different places, at the same time.

Fourth—Its bachelor priesthood, its enclosed covenants, and its confessional are irresistable agencies of inevitable vice and crime—because against nature.

Fifth—Its fundamental laws are antagonistic to liberty and progress, are reactionary, oppressive and degrading.

Sixth—Its system of education stifles inquiry and enthrones authority, thus stopping the development of the mind.

Seventh—It is essentially a feminine relligion, worshiping a woman as mother of God and queen of the heavens. Mary worship is a survival of Greek and Roman mythology.

Eighth—It seeks to reduce men to abject submission to the priestly caste in order that these bachelors may Govern a man and his wife and his children in all the movements of their lives—teaching that the priest is necessary to a legal marriage, a legitimate birth and a Christian burial.

Ninth—It calls upon superstition to uphold its mastery instead of relying upon Reason.

Veterans of Great World War to Organize the American Legion.

The American Legion is the name that has been adopted for the organization of the American veterans of the great world war. All who served honorably whether in the army, navy or marines, between the date of the declaration of war against Germany and the date of the armistice, are eligible.

This will in no doubt be the greatest association of Americans ever organized. It will be to our whole country what the United Confederate Veterans Organization has been to the South and what the Grand Army of the Republic has been to the North.

We believe that the Legion will be the most potential force for genuine Americanism and real democracy that our country has ever before known. It is to be absolutely democratic—Colonels and Corporals, Captains and Privates all on the same level.

In the same organization of the various local posts no particular individuals are to be designated to take the lead. There is to be no "hand picking" or "playing favorites," but an eligible for membership in the Legion are asked to meet in the court house in Clanton at noon on the Fourth Saturday in June and select their own officers and delegates to the State Conference to be held in Birmingham on July 16th and 17th.

We hope this announcement may reach the ear of every returne dsoldier, sailor or marine in Chilton County and that they will give a ready response by meeting at the court house as above set out and laying the foundation of our local Legion.

Chilton County had over seven hundred men in the service during the great war. A majority of them have returned and should be interested in this organization.

Now, that it is all over "over there" we can again turn our attention to our pet nuisance at home, Mexico. We now notice the fact that the Catholics and cut - throat bandits down there are still at large and we may now see the completion of Villa's capture which was interrupted by the war in Europe. On last Sunday American troops crossed the Mexican border to stop Villa's rebels from firing further shots into our city of El Paso.

In every move that is made in our national administration you can see the play is moving in the direction of the curtailment of freedom of speech and freedom of press. It is now asserted in Washington that if Burleson is forced out of the Cabinet of President Wilson, as Postmaster General, it is probable that his successor will be none other than his eminence, the popular Jesuit, Knight of Columbus, Roman Catholic, Joseph Patrick Tumulty. Throughout the country there is arising a powerful tide of thought and sentiment against the infernal doings of the Catholics, and this thought and expression is going out over the country in the medium of certain newspapers and periodicals. We imagine the Jesuits would hope to see a curb put on such papers through the instrumentality of Tumulty as Postmaster General.

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION AND BARBECUE IN CLANTON IS SURE TO BE ONE MOST SUCCESSFUL OCCASION

Chilton County's Returned Soldiers to be Shown Time of Their Lives. A Big Barbecue and Basket Dinner. Airplane Demonstrations and Baseball Games. Everybody Coming.

Everybody may as well get their triggers set for the big Fourth of July Soldiers Memorial celebration for Chilton County Soldiers, to be staged at Clanton on that day. Plans are beginning to take on real form and splendid success is coming to the efforts being made in the matter.

Arrangements are already under way for the financing of the barbecue, and nearly five hundred dollars has already been subscribed. This indicates that the feeding of the multitudes who will be here is to be accomplished in grand stylle. For in addition to the barbecue, it is planned and expected that everybody bring a well-filled basket of cakes, pies, vegetables and the like. And Mayor Stanfield, like the good Methodist he is, especially requests that you do not fail to put in the fried chicken.

Let everybody remember that this occasion is to be Chilton County's tribute of honor to our returned soldiers and sailors, and everybody is expected and urged to co-operate and assist in making the affair one of which we can all be justly proud. Every beat in the County willl have a systematic plan of co-operation presented to them by committees which are to have in charge and each person will know exactly where to fall in the line to do his part. In the meantime just put up the old rooster and begin to make him fat. Fix up a nice cool comfortable suit for the kids to wear and lay it away. Have everything ready and in its place and on the morning of the Fourth turn the cow and the calf together and come down to Clanton to have a big old time yourself and also to help the other fellow have a big time too.

The program of amusements will be fixed up according to Hoyle. We already have the assurance that the airplanes will be here from Montgomery to pull off the latest aeriel stunts for the pleasure of the immense crowds.

A Chilton County baseball team is being whipped into shape and our boys are going to mix it with a team from Montgomery in a big doubleheader.

Now don't go get up a little side show some place and waste a perfectly good Fourth of July on a little ice-cream and lemon-ade when you have such a good chance to mix up with a big time like the one that is to be here in Clanton. Everybody is looking for everybody else that day in Clanton. Don't be out of pocket. Come on down here and let's have the fun together.

THE CLANTON INFIRMARY

I wish to say to the public that the hospital which is to be opened within a short time in my building will be opened under the name of "The Clanton Infirmary." I notice in a recent issue of one of our papers it is referred to as a hospital to be run by Dr. Marcus and myself. We shall both be interested in it, but we hope to have the interest and co-operation of every physician in the county, and we are going into this undertaking with the idea that in the near future all the most active and ethical doctors will join us and together with us the leading citizens of our town and our county, form a stock company and build a commodious hospital at some suitable place on the outskirts of your town, which will be self-supporting and fill a long felt want.

When occasion demands, we expect to have, in addition to our local doctors, as good surgeons as our larger surgical centers can furnish to visit us. Our nursing force will be selected with the view of getting the very best obtainable both in schooling and experience.

TWENTY DROWNED WHEN GASOLINE BOAT TURNS OVER

Tuscaloosa, June 19—Twenty persons, mostly women and children, were drowned in the Warrior River near this city about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when a gasoline launch turned over in mid-stream. The total number of passengers on the boat was 63 consisting of a pleasure party who were out for a Sunday afternoon ride.

The river is about a quarter of a mile wide and about 18 feet deep at the point where the tragedy occurred.

What Shall we do With the Kaiser?

MASONS AND ODD-FELLOWS TO GIVE BARBECUE AT JEMISON

Wednesday, June 25th is to be Jemison's big day. The Masons and Odd Fellows combined are going to pull the stunts for the occasion. There is to be a big barbecue to which will be added the preparations of the ladies in the form of cakes, pies and other delicicies that usually are included in the frugal baskets for such occasions.

A public installation of Masonic officers will be staged at some time during the morning exercises.

The forenoon will be consumed by the program of the Masonic lodge consisting of public speaking, installation, etc. After dinner the rapid-fire oratory of the I.O.O.F. Camp will be let loose on the crowd and some good stuff is promised.

Don't forget the day—Wednesday, June 25th. Fix up the kids and come along for a good old time. Jemison boasts that she is big enough to hold the crowd and fat enough to feed them.

SINGING AT NEW HARMONY

The No. 3 Singing Convention will convene at New Harmony Church, near Lomax, Ala., in Chilton County, on June 22, 1919. Everybody is invited to attend with well filled baskets. Will meet at 9:00, a.m.. Sacred Harp and Christian Harmony will be used.

CAMPAIGN FOR RAISING FUND FOR MEMORIAL MONUMENT

To the People of Chilton County:

Alabama's Legislature has officially sanctioned the raising of a fund for the erection of a state memorial to Alabama's soldiers, sailors, marines and other war workers and placed the work in hnds of the Alabama Memorial Commission. The commission has decided that five hundred thousand dollars should be raised by popular subscription and that a state drive be made for this amount from June 27 to July 4.

Each person in this county knows the wonderful record made by Alabama men overseas and knows that this state of all states in the union must erect a memorial which will portray the valor of our men and the immortal name they have given to Alabam. This is time when we must honor Alabama men who honored their State and in doing it we must forget politics and personal wishes. I is desired that the drive be a popular one and that evesy person in the State own a small part in the memorial.

I have been honored with the appointment of county director of this drive by the memorial commission and I want to make a public appeal to all citizens to keep this matter before them and to lend active and financial assistance in the greatest measure possible.

Beat or school district directors will be selected for this county and they will need assistance. Canvassers must be provided before the beginning of the drive in order that there may be no delays. We must act quickly as we have but little time. How many citizens of this county may I count on to assist in the drive? Those who will give of their time should communicate with me or the beat director at once.

Let me repeat that this is a drive in which the State will attempt to show those living of its appreciation of their services and to honor the memory of those who gave up all. If yur contribution to this fund should be one hundred dollars, give this amount. If it should be one dollar give one dollar. Let your conscience and your love for Alabama's soldiers, sailors and marines dictate the amount of your contribution.

Chilton County's quota of the state fund is $4,626. This movement here has the hearty endorsement of all the county officials, and the hope is that we can get one man in each school district or Beat to take charge of the work in their respective communities.

I have information that many other counties have assured state headquarters that they will exceed their quotas. What report may we make from this county?

G. C. WALKER.
County Campaign Director.

CONGRESS CLEARS WAY FOR INQUIRY INTO OUR WAR COST

Resolution introduced in House Calls for Special Investigating Body.

WAR DEPARTMENT UNDER FIRE

Especial Attention will be Given to Conduct of War Risk Insurance.

Washington, June 6.—Decks are being cleared for the proposed investigations into war costs, into conduct of the war, into the doings of the different departments while the war was on and related matters.

Indications continue that the bulk of this work will fall on House committees. In a general way, Senate and House leaders will make an effort to avoid needless duplications in inquiries. Considerations of time and money make this advisable.

The resolution which has been presented in the House by Representative Graham of Illinois, calling for the appointment by Speaker Gillet for a special committee of fifteen members to investigate fully "all contracts and expenditures made by the War Department or under its directions during the present war" is a clear index that important inquiries are ahead.

Representative Graham said today he hoped to get this passed shortly under special rule and that once it was passed he planned to expedite the inquiry. It is well understood that the committee on expenditures in the war Department of which Mr. Graham is the chairman will be enlarged by the addition of enough members to make up the fifteen. Now there are six on this standing committee, four republicans and two democrats.

The plan is to appoint strong men to the committee and then to divide the work of probing among several sub-committee. This will hasten it greatly.

Representative Graham said the War Risk Insurance Bureau would be investigated but the exact plan for this is yet to be formulated.

A number of members of congress wanter the War Risk Insurance Bureau investigated at once by a separate specil committee. They say the need for quick inquiry is great.

Representative Dowell said to-day that in view of the vast chorus of complaints concerning this bureau there should be a prompt investigation and that a special committee should be at once named.

"The public interest demands that this bureau be investigated and investigated at once," said Mr. Dowell.

Representative Graham, who will engineer the war expenditures probe, is one of the younger members of the House, a keen, able, tireless lawyer.

The different committees on expenditures in the departments in the House will, for the first time in years have plenty to do.

THE AMERICAN POTENTATE

There are man in this world, there are men right here in this town and in every other town—who would be insulted at being set down as thieves but to whom such a name would in reality be a most polite appellation—a very gracious compliment.

They are the class commonly known as "dead beats."

They are meaner than the common thief just in the proportion as the confidential clerk who robs his employer is meaner than his less cowardly brother in crime who breaks into the man's house and robs him.

And yet, what a difference the law makes in the two.

A fellow goes into the store and pompously calls up a clerk or proprietor (and the editor) and orders whatever he wants and tells them to charge it and take it down to the house. He represents that he is able and willing to pay his bills and will do so at stated periods when he knows that he is a liar and a sneak. He lives beyond his means, and picks upon certain individuals to support himself and family without any recompense whatever.

And if the merchant mentioned; after going to all the expense to wait on this fellow, bookkeeping, deliver the goods, etc., to say nothing of the goods themselves, wants his pay as promised, what does the law say of it. Simply that if a man has property available he can be made to pay, but if he is sharp enough to keep his income collected up he is responsible to nobody and nothing on earth. He may assess any man whom he can deceive for the support of his wife or his children or himself, feed them with food and dress them in clothes belonging to somebody else. Such is the province of the only American potentate who need account to no one — the "dead beat." — Spartanburg Journal.

SILOS PAY ALABAMA DAIRYMEN BIG PROFITS

By J. P. Quinerly, Dairy Specialist

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

No dairyman can afford to be without a silo, according to reports from men using them in all parts of Alabama. The silo supplies succulent roughage in cheap abundance throughout the winter and at other seasons when pastures are short. When dairy cows are fed silage they produce as though they were on pasture and keep in the same healthy, thrifty condition characteristic of grazing animals.

"I consider a farm dairy without silage as without feed. I can carry as many cows on one acre of silage as on four acres of pasture. I consider my silo (wood hoop) the best investment on my farm.

"D. B. JACKS.
"New Market, Madison Co., Ala."

"After feeding silage three winters, I feel that I would not attempt to keep cattle without a silo. The first cost of a silo is nothing compared with the subsequent saving of other rough feed. . . . . I am planning to build another concrete silo this fall. With the help of my present silo I am making my 211 acres carry 105 head of Jerseys—something impossible, otherwise. Like you, I want to see a silo on every farm where cattle are kept in Alabama.

"L. C. YOUNG.
"Montgomery, Ala."

"We consider our concrete silo just as good an investment as was our dipping vat, and that was the best investment we ever made. . . . . Cows prefer corn to sorghum silage, but we believe more dollars' worth of silage can be made on an acre of sorghum than corn, although it is not quite as nutritious, pound per pound.

"M. W. HALL & SONS.
"Midway, Bullock Co., Ala."

"We have had a silo three years and it has paid for itself more than once in the economy of feed saved. . . . . I regard a ton of silage worth as much for a dairy herd in the winter as a ton of hay, costing twice as much, or more. I would not be without a silo were I to continue in the dairy business, as I expect to do.

"W. C. HARRISON.
"Gallion, Ala."

"A silo for a dairy is very valuable —more than that, it is the one essential for the economical production of milk. I have been using my wood-hoop silo for three years and now would not be without it and try to run a dairy.

"S. J. SKINNER.
"Troy, Pike Co., Ala."

The home-made wood-hoop silo is easily and cheaply built and is recommended in most cases unless concrete is preferred. Concrete silos are more expensive, but last longer than other types of silos.

In most cases Texas Seeded Ribbon cane should be used to fill silos because it gives much more tonnage than corn. On land that will yield 40 to 50 or more bushels of corn per acre, corn is preferable.

If you are milking cows and haven't a silo, talk the matter over with your county agent or write the Extension Service. We believe you need one, and are in position to intelligently advise you about silos and silage.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

A FALSE ASSUMPTION

"If America has a part therein," frequently declares Mr. Taft, "the league of nations will be established and peace through justice will have become possible for all nations, great and small." The continued repetition of that argument by the ex-President and other friends of the league is nothing short of diabolic. It seeks to align for the league all persons who prefer peace to war, and to create the impression that those who refuse to adhere to it wish to see the world steeped in blood for all time. Statements such as those are an insult to everyone who hears them—to the intelligence of the league supporters, and to the humanity and decency of those who have the patriotism to oppose it.

Neither Mr. Taft, President Wilson nor any of the other individuals who are loudest in praise of the league, dare point to a single critic of the covenant and accuse him of entertaining a preference for war over peace. Such an accusation would be the grossese libel, and entitle the libellee to substantial damages. Yet the whole propaganda for the league of nations is based specifically or inferentially on that very charge. All those desirous of peace are urged to get behind the covenant as the means fora attaining their ends, and its opponents are characterized as desciples of Mars, preferring rule by the sword rather than government by justice. It is a pity there is not a means furnished in our legal code to put a summary stop to such misleading tactics, but the country is becoming alive to the deception that is being practiced upon it by men of former high reputation, and they will soon be consumed in the fire of the popular opinion that they hoped to mould at their own will.

MESDAMES CHANDLER AND CALLEN ELECTED OFFICERS

At the recent session of the fifth annual convention of the Fifth District Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs, on Wednesday evening of last week, at the Exchange Hotel, Montgomery, Mrs. H. F. Chandler and Mrs. W. T. Callen, both of Clanton, were elected to the positions of chairman and secretary-treasurer respectively of the Fifth District, their term of office to begin next January, when they will succeed Mrs. J. H. Crenshaw and Mrs. L. D. Garner of Montgomery.

Clanton was selected as the meeting place for the next annual session. Clanton is to be proud of this fact, and we heartily welcome the Federation into our fair city.

ADMINISTRATION AT FAULT AS TO THE FIXING OF PRICES

Southern Members Should Go to the Department of Justice, Says Greene.

MAKES ANSWER TO HEFLIN

Present Administration Has Made No Attempt to Keep Down Price Juggling.

Washington, June 7.—If the Southern members have complaints tomake about the cotton price situation, they should go to the Department of Justice, in the opinion of Representative Green of Iowa.

Representative Heflin of Alabama, who spoke in the house about cotton and talkd of a conspiracy to beat down the priceof that staple, was advised by Mr. Gren that he ought to present the matter to the White House when the President got back homeand likewise to theDepartment of Justice. Mr. Greene indicated, however the Department of Justice was not exerting itself very hard to deal with price jugglers.

"Now, so far as cotton is concerned," Mr. Green said, "it is true that it enters into a great variety of articles, and I understood the gentleman from Alabama mentioned the fact that it went into the soldier's uniform. Well, I am very sorry it did under this administration. Too much of it, indeed, went into the soldier's uniform. And the gentleman referred also to the time we burned corn in the Western States. I think he said something about burning wheat, but I do not think we got as far as that.

"But this burning of corn, the gentleman will remember, was at a time when another Democratic administration was controlling the destinies of this country. And that is the only time I ever knew that any corn was burned in this country. I do not think there is any danger we will ever get so far as to burn cotton, although, if the gentleman's constituency is suffering, they are suffering not through any fault or direction the of Members upon this side, to whom he seemed to direct his remarks, but solely because the administration is not doing its duty. If there has been some conspiracy in New York elsewhere to beat down the price of cotton, the Department of Justice ought to take hold of the matter. The administration ought to handle those who are guilty of such conduct. But for some reason, as we all well know, there has been no particular disturbance either of those who attempt to force up pricesduring this administration or those who attempt to lower them. And there we stand. So I hope, if the gentleman has any complaint to make about the sitution, with reference to cotton, he will present it down at the White House when the party who usually resides there gets back home, instead of presenting it to the Members upon this side."

MEMORIAL MOVE BEGINS JUNE 27

"ALABAMA HONORS HER HEROES" IS ADOPTED AS SLOGAN.

JUNE 22 MEMORIAL SUNDAY

Several Counties Voluntarily Indicate That Quotas Should Be Increased —Rogers Gives $1,000.

Alabama Honors Her Heroes.

This is the slogan adopted by the Alabama Memorial Commission for Memorial Week, June 27 to July 4, inclusive, when every person within the State and Alabamians in other parts of the world will be given the opportunity to contribute according to their means to the erection of a Memorial Building at the Capitol, Montgomery, which shall stand forever as a testimonial of the patriotic serv'ce of Alabama men and women.

The Alabama Memorial Commission, pointing the way for many similar bodies that have since been formed in other states, will make of the building that is to be erected on Capitol Hill a perpetual reminder and a record, not only of the men who served and those that fell in the World War, but of the men and women of the state who have done distinguished service in other wars and in the walks of peace.

Alabama Honors Her Heroes; and she will do equal honor to all of those whose record has been or may be preserved, or whose likeness may be obtained for the memorial halls and chambers that are to be in very truth, Alabama's Hall of Fame.

Memorial Sunday, June 22.

Memorial Sunday will be observed in Alabama on June 22, when every minister of the gospel in the state will be requested to cal' to the memory of their respective congregations the heroism of those Alabamians who have made sacrifices for their state and country, the worthy lessons that may be drawn from such service and sacrifice, the duty of all people to study and to learn of the records of the heroic past and their obligation as citizens to perpetuate the glorious history of the state and its sons and its daughters.

Letters are going forward from the office of W. S. Stallings, state campaign director, at Birmingham, to all of the ministers whose names appear on the several lists furnished those headquarters. Ministers who by any chance do not receive the written request are asked to proceed upon the notice given them through this and other newspapers, that Patriotic Service to God and Country may be the theme in every church in Alabama where Divine services may be held on Sunday, June 22.

Number in Service Quota Basis.

Upon receiving notice of their quotas in the Memorial Campaign whereby Alabama proposes to Honor Her Heroes, a number of the county directors have indicated to the state director that their counties will increase or go beyond their quotas, based upon the number of men from the respective counties who served in the land and sea forces of the United States during the world war, at $6.00 for each man in such service. The quotas are: Autauga, $4,074; Baldwin, $4,284; Barbour, $5,196; Bibb, $5,148; Blount, $3,648; Bullock, $3,738; Butler, $6,114; Calhoun, $11,136; Chambers, $7,146; Cherokee, $3,924; Chilton, $4,626; Choctaw, $4,224; Clarke, $6,492; Clay, $4,566 Cleburne, $2,460; Coffee, $5,724; Colbert, $6,132; Conecuh, $6,234; Coosa, $2,892; Covington, $8,700; Crenshaw, $5,040; Cullman, $6,138; Dale, $4,182; Dallas, $7,308; DeKalb, $6,192; Elmore, $5,796; Escambia, $6,186; Etowah, $11,382; Fayette, $3,624; Franklin, $4,410; Geneva, $5,778; Greene, $1,878; Hale, $3,786; Henry, $4,266; Houston, $8,398; Jackson, $7,680; Jefferson County and Birmingham, $87,678; Lamar, $4,026; Lauderdale, $6,618; Lawrence $3,972; Lee, $6,636; Limestone, $7,884; Lowndes, $3,876; Macon, $3,666; Madison, $11,514; Marengo $6,114; Marion, $4,698; Marshall, $7,176; Mobile County and City, $23,280; Monroe, $5,190; Montgomery County and City, $16,200, but this amount voluntarily increased to $50,000; Morgan, $8,124; Perry, $3,390; Pickens, $5,016; Pike, $6,024; Randolph, $4,794; Russell, $3,786; Shelby, $5,088; St. Clair, $5,208; Sumter, $3,564; Talladega, $7,398; Tallapoosa, $6,828; Tuscaloosa, $9,618; Walker, $10,578; Washington, $3,276; Wilcox, $5,226; Winston, $2,190; Total, $487,150 and with Montgomery county's voluntary increase, $520,950.

Memorial Campaign Brevities.

Judge Henry D. Clayton, addressing a United States Grand Jury at Dothan last week, concluded with an eloquent plea that Alabama Honor Her Heroes. He argues that the state could have put up such a Memorial Building as is proposed, and taxed the people to pay for it, but preferred that every man, woman and child in the state have a voluntary part in its erection. "Where your treasure is, there also is your heart," quoted the wise Judge.

Senator John A. Rogers, of Sumter county, has made a contribution of $1,000 to the Alabama Memorial building, conditioned upon the raising of $500,000 in the campaign which will conclude with Memorial Week, June 27 to July 4. While this is the first individual pledge that has reached the commission, many school children in all parts of the state have pledged small amounts to the memorial fund.

The private soldiers and non-commissioned officers who won distinction in the World War will receive the same—perhaps greater—attention in the Alabama Memorial building as is accorded officers of high rank. Portraits, photographs, records of achievement, statutes and busts, tablets of bronze and of stone will make the citations received, honors bestowed and deeds recorded a matter of permanent history, as a lesson and an example to this and succeeding generations.

Mrs. Irene Rasberry is visiting in Birmingham this week.

THE LEAGUE A PARTY ISSUE

Washington, June 8.—The Republican Publicity Association, through its president, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

While it is no part of the Republican Publicity Association to write party platforms, that coming solely within the jurisdiction of the National Convention, it is, nevertheless, the opinion of the Association that the League of Nations covenant as a part of the peace treaty has already been made a party issue. Issues are sometimes drawn during the inferim between conventions and those issues become as clear as though defined by platform declarations. The League of Nations covenant has been made a party issue by the action of the president, the Democratic members of the Senate, the Democratic National Committee, and the Democratic press. It is an issue which the Republicans could not avoid if they would, and should avoid if they possibly could. Perpetuation of American independence is too grave and vital a matter to permit of compromise or evasion.

The Democratic party has thrown down the gauntlet. The chairman of its national committee, in sounding the keynote of the presidential campaign of 1920, characterizes the league covenant as "the greatest document of human liberty ever prepared," and the other party leaders declare that they welcome the opportunity to make the league the issue in the coming fight of the executive branch of the government. The course that affairs have taken at Paris, the debates in the Senate, and the public utterances of Democrats from the lecture platform and in the press have clearly indicated their intention of attempting to make partisan capital out of the league. In spite of the fact that Mr. Wilson declared in his New York speech that "This is not a party issue," every discerning person has known from the first that the league covenant would be the biggest plank in the Democratic platform next year. Now we have it from the committee that will frame that platform and conduct the campaign upon it.

Republicans should accept the challenge. The Democrats may set forth the league covenant as "the greatest document of human liberty ever prepared," but the Republicans will denounce it as the "greatest document for destruction of American liberty ever prepared," and with that slogan will not hesitate to submit the case to the voters. From the first, the leaders of the Republican party have carefully avoided injecting partisan politics into the debates on the league. Emphasizing their support of unadulterated Americanism, which has been the dominant note in every principle enunciated by that party since its organization, they have based their criticisms of the league on sound logic, and have apepaled to the patriotic intelligence of every American, regardless of political affiliation, to rally to the defense of his country. With the Republicans in the van of the fight, and the defeat of the league assured because of their majority against it, the question automatically becomes a party matter, and the credit for having dealt the death blow to the menace will be conceded to the Republicans. But now that the Democratic committee has come out into the open in a partisan fight for the league the Republicans can handle the question without gloves.

And they could wish for no better issue on which to make their appeal. The tide against the league that is setting so strongly all over the country presages victory for the Republicans almost without a contest. Of course the league may become a fact, even if it is repudiated by the United States Senate, but all indications from Paris are that without the signature of United States the league will be dropped by the other powers. But even if the league will be established without the inclusion of America, and the first meeting held in Washington next October, as the president has indicated it will be, the Republicans have nothing to fear. There is every reason to believe that such a meeting would be but a repetition on a smaller scale of the bickerings that have been the order of the day at Paris. But with the convention on our own soil, with a corps of alert American newspaper men in attendance, insuring an accurate report of the proceedings, the country would be so nauseated by the transactions that what little support still clung to the league idea would fall away.

Appeals to American patriotism have never failed in the past, and will not fail now or next year. Precisely as the true Americans of the Senate stand together in their denunciation of the surrender of American rights and sovereignty and the abdication by congress of the powers conferred on the people's representatives by the Constitution, so will the great mass of true-blue Americans throughout the country combine in an overwhelming defeat of the men and the party who have been responsible for endangering their liberties of a century. The Republican party awaits with confidence the outcome of a national campaign based upon the league covenant.

WORDS OF APPRECIATION FROM MR. W. M. POOLE

Editor of the Union-Banner:

Please allow me a few lines in your paper to give my greatest thanks to the people of Clanton and surrounding community. I wish to thank the people very much for the help they contributed to me in the loss of my mule. It was highly appreciated. I want to further say that I sure appreciate the work of Mr. Jim Thomas and Mr. Andrew Easterling, who took it upon themselves to go out among the good people and solicit this help.

May God bless them all and let them prosper in all their undertakings shall be my prayer for them all forever.

Respectfully,
W. M. POOLE.

Michelin and Goodyear Tires and Tubes

Tuesday morning Mr. Monroe Wyatt brought in to us a Michelin Casing purchased from us on October 4, 1918, and which he stated had run at the least calculation 15,000 miles. We put a card on the tire stating this fact and placed it in front of our garage. A few hours later we noticed written on the card "This is a Lie." We don't wonder that it is inconceivable to certain people that such is the case—still "facts is facts." We say that "Michelin Tires and Tubes are the Cheapest Mileage."

AFTER EFFECTS OF MEASLES MADE HIS STOMACH VERYBAD

He would bloat up after meals, full of sour gas, was constipated liver was sluggish, and was very nervous.

RELIEF IN TWO BOTTLES.

Dreco, the root and herb remedy, gave very quick relief, and now he is well of his troubles.

"I had a spell of measles which sure put my stomach on the bum," and it looked like I was never going to get straight again," writes Mr. Clarence Robinson of Spring Hill, Ala., a suburb of Mobile.

"My nerves were on edge all the time and I could get no sleep my bowels were badly constipated and I had to take medicine constantly for that trouble. I had a dull, aching pain in my back, over my kidneys; my liver was lazy, and I frequently had billous attacks and headaches. My stomach seemed unabled to digest my food, and it lay heavy and fermented, causeing foul gases to fill me up."

"I was in this condition when I began taking Dreco, the new medicine, which was being so widely prased and it has done even more for me than I was told it would do. My strength has returned; Isleep sound, the constipation is all gone, as also the pains in my back, and my liver is active angin. I now eat big, hearty meals, and nothing ever disagrees with me. Dreco is different from any medicine I ever took, and I tell you it is fine too."

It is highly important for the bowels to keep active; that the kidneys do not become deranged, that the liver supplies the proper secretions to the stomach, so that digestion may de perfect.

Dreco, the natural herb medicine acts on thesevital orgas, toing them up so that they perform their duties as Nature intends they should.

Dreco is now sold by all modern druggists throughout the country and is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

MARCUS - KELLEMS

A wedding of much interest to Clanton and Chilton County was solemnized at the First Christian Church of Birmingham Saturday, June 7th, at eight-thirty o'clock, when Claud E. Marcus and Miss Vivien Kellems were united in marriage.

The wedding was the outcome of a romance which begun two months ago when Mr. Marcus and Miss Kellems met at a conference of Campaign managers in Birmingham during the recent Salvation Army Campaign, both. Mr. Marcus and Miss Kellens being Campaign Managers in North Alabama.

Mr. Marcus will be remembered in Clanton as the son of Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Marcus of this city, while Miss Kellems is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Kellems of Eugene, Ore.

After a brief honeymoon at gulf resorts, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus will make their home in Birmingham, where Mr. Marcus holds a responsible position with Organization Service Company, Inc.

Mrs. Irene Rasberry and little daughter, Eloise, are visiting relatives in Birmingham this week.

THE MAPLE SPRINGS SINGING

Please publish the following program of the singing at Maple Springs which was held last Sunday, June 15.

The congregation was called to order with song by Bro. O. L. Devaughn after which Rev. E. A. Norris envoked the blessings of God on the day's service. Organization immediately followed by electing Rev. E.A. Norris chairman and J. Z. Mims, secretary. The chairman appointed a committee on arrangement consisting of W. M. Devaughn, A. A. Bierd and A. P. Vinson.

O. L. Devaughn, L. T. Grant, W. M. Devaughn and A A. Bierd directed the singing for 15 minutes each, then J. C. Jones, Alfonzo Cleckler, A. C. Neeley and R. L. Grant directed 3 songs each.

Rev. E. A. Norris gave a 15 minutes lecture on music after which a recess of one hour and 30 minutes, during which time if there were any one who failed to satisfy his appetite, surely it was his fault.

Directors for the p.m. were S. M. Yates, W. G. Culp, Monroe Smith and Amie Boswell, 3 songs each.

Then there was a short talk by N. J. Calloway, after which Mr. Jasper Robinson, Stanley Jones and Mack Boswell directed fifteen minutes each.

After singing "Jesus Savior Pilot Me," directed by W. M. Devaughn, the congregation was dismissed by Rev. W. H. Wilson.

The organists for the day were Ralph Grant, Amie Boswell, A.A. Bierd, Mrs. Grace Wood and Miss Toy Littlejohn. J. Z. MIMS.

BOY SCOUTS ORGANIZING

The Boy Scout Movement is spreading over Chilton County.

Last Friday night Scout Master W. O. Rich and W. J. Armstrong, accompanied by 15 of the Clanton boy scouts went to Thorsby and met an enthusiastic assembly of Thorsby citizens at the Masonic Halll. After several rousing speeches by Thorsby citizens the matter of organizing the Thorsby Troop was taken up. Ten members were enrolled, and the work started off under very promising conditions.

Saturday afternoon Rich and Armstrong went to Jemison and organized a troop with thirteen members. Howard Roper is Scout Master.

The spreading of the scout movement over the county is developing a friendly rivalry among the boys of the different troops. Thorsby and Jemison already declare that they will not stand for Clanton being ahead of them in the scout movement. And Clanton will lnot allow these places to go ahead in the work. So you may expect something doing in the scout work now.

FARMING TOUR

County Farm Demonstrator W.H. Conway is preparing something that will be very valuable and interesting to those who care to participate in it. The scheme is something like this. To get up a party of about a dozen farmers of Chilton County and make a tour of the southern part of the State on a trip of inspection of dairy and stock farms. In this our farmers could be introduced to the practical side of this progressive and money-making mode of farm operation that is being so successfully carried on by many farmers in the southern counties of the state. Mr. Conway now has the planning of the tour under advisement with the state farm speciallists at Auburn. If you want to take your flivver and go along just see Mr. J. N. Dennis or the Editor of the Union-Banner, and express your desire and you will be notified of the details of the trip in due time. It is going to be well worth your time and might result in much good to you. Think about it.

SAMARIA NEWS

On last Saturday night the death angel visited the home of Mr. Will Hix of Prattville and took away his loving wife. Her remains were laid to rest in the Marbury Cemetery.

The singing at Maple Springs was sure fine, and there was a large attendance and plenty of dinner.

Kin Vinson returned home Sunday from service with the army in France.

MARS HILL

Health is very good at present. Everybody is busy hoeing this week.

Mrs. C. W. Langston is back from an extended visit to Brompton and Birmingham. She reports a nice time.

Prof. Anderson of Billingsley is teaching a music school here, which is progresing nicely.

We have preaching at this place every First Sunday.

Mr. T. C. Cofer and wife spent Sunday with Miss Lillie Langston.

Buddie Ervin came home from France last week. He's looking fine.

There will be an all-day singing nere the Fifth Sunday in this month; books to be used are "Crowns of Love. Everybody invited to come and bring some one with you.

The Union-Banner was delighted with a visit of Mr. Tom C. Gandy of Route 3 last Saturday. Mr. Gandy is one of our wide-awake citizens who reads carefully and studies the signs of the times carefully. He has his eyes open to some of the things that vitally concern people today. He was loud in his praise of The Union-Banner and we feel strengthened by the aid of such men.

Thos. J. Dorminey of Stumps Hills, County Commissioner of this county, was a visitor at the Union-Banner office Monday. He was here at the Commissioners Court in regard to some special business relative to the county' finances.

VEIL OF SECRECY WILL BE LIFTED AS TO MEXICO.

Resolution prepared Which Provides For Inquiry Into Situation

ADMINISTRATION IS SECRETIVE

American Public Mystified by Long Continued Turbulence and Lack of Policy

Washington, June 17, —With Angeles and Villa active in northern Mexico and constantly recuring reports of turmoil and turbulence in that country, of which American lives and property are the victims, there is growing demand for real light on Mexican conditions. The same policy of secrecy which is complained of with respect to the negotiations at Paris, has been pursued by the administration with respect to the internal conditions in Mexico and Mexican affairs generally.

Will Learn Facts

The viel of mystery which has surrounded the Mexican, policy of the United States for the past six years is last to be removed and the public, for the first time, will be permitted to acsertain the fact; to learn why conditions in Mexico continue sod eplorable and the relations between Mexico and the United States are so unsatisfactory.

Exhaustive Inquiry

Representative Gould of New York has prepared a resolution, which will undoubtedly be adopted, providin for a joint committee of the Senate and House which will be empowered to make the most exhaustive inquiry into the countless phases of the Mexican Situation which have bewildered the public mind for the past few years. Here are a few of the questions which this special committee be directed to invesgitate:

1. The relations of the Government of the United States with the Republic of Mexico from the year 1910 until the date of the report.

2. The conditions are incidents leading up to, concerned in, or responsible for such relations.

3. The economic, Political and physical treatment accorded American and other foregin citizens in Mexico and elsewhere, as to their lives and properties in the Rebublic of Mexico subsequent to 1910.

4. The extent to which the gorernment of the United States has obligated itself for the collection or liquidation of private claims against the government or people of Mexico.

5. The policy and activity of the government in presenting and pressing claims of American citizens for loss of life and property by violence, confiscation, or legislation in seeming violation of international law.

6. The individual and factional responsibility for robbery, maltreatment and murder of Amercal-citizens in Mexico and on continguous American territory.

NO WORD OF AMERICANISM

Washington, June 17.—The Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement, from its Washington headquarters:

As a compendium of arrant hypocrisy, of slurring imputations upon the motives that actuated the heroes sleeping in the soil of France, and of almost blasphemous reference to the spirits of those brave boys, whom he put in the attitude or repudiating the liberties born under the Declaration of Independence, the Memorial Day address of the President stands supreme. Masquerading as a tribute to our soldier dead, the speech was nothing but another page of propaganda for his league of nations, reeking with denunciation for those who have the temerity to oppose it, and calling down maledictions upon the nation that dares to asesrt its independence and refuse to subordinate itself to an association of foreign states.

"No one with a heart in his breast" began Mr. Wilson, "no American, no lover of humanity, can stand in the presence of these graves without the most profound emotion." But what followed conclusively showed that the "emotion" that actuated the President had nothing of patriotism in it, but was merely concern for the welfare of his precious league. In the very next sentence he struck into his oft-repeated line of argument that our armies fought for nothing particularly American; that our men gave their lives, rather, for the cause of humanity in general; and, in fact, died that the league of nations might come into being.

"Never before," continued the President, "have men crossed the seas to a foreign land to fight for a cause of humanity which they did not pretend was particularly their own. * * * These men did not come acress the sea merely to defeat Germany." How different is this attempted perversion of the motives animating our soldiers from statement to congress just before the declaration of war: "I advise that the congress declares the recent course of the Imperial German Government to be in fact nothing less than war against the government and people of the United States." Evidently it was a clear-cut issue between Germany and the United States, and it was to uphold our contentions in that cause that our soldiers gave their lives.

But not content with traducing our own boys, Mr. Wilson had the effrontery to tell his French audience that the soldiers of France had no particular concern about the invasion and destruction of their country. "They (our soldiers) are at home," he says, "sleeping with the spirits of those who thought the same thoughts and entertained the same aspirations." His statement taken by itself is everlastingly true, but, coming after his interpretation of the aspirations of the American boys, it is a horrid travesty upon the French heroes who laid down their lives in the defense of their remaining homes.

After correcting the popular impression as to why America and France fought, and having assured the world that those two countries, at least, struggled only to give life to his league, Mr. Wilson paid his respects to the nation that refuses to conduct itself according to the standards for which he says the Yanks and poilus laid down their lives.

"The nation," he threatened, "that shall now fling out of this common concord of counsel would betray the human race." Directed evidently at his own native land, the President made no allusion to our national independence that would be betrayed were we to consent to subjugate ourselves to the will of the rest of the world. Throughout this remarkable address, delivered over the graves of the men who died for their country, there is not a single word of patriotism, no reference whatever to Americanism, nothing of national pride of liberty and independence—the dominating notes throughout the United States on Memorial Day. Truly we have in the White House a remarkable man.

HAS TAFT LOST HIS STABILIZER

"Time was," says the statesman, "when Mr. Taft was haled as one of the greatest jurists of the nation, and at the conclusion of his terms in the White House was prominently mentioned for appointment to the Supreme Bench. He was credited with having a mind capable of reaching unerringly the truth, no matter how encumbered with language it might be; a knowledge of the Constitution that enabled him to apply its acid test to every proposition, and clearly expose any attempt to undermine our fundamental law; and a patriotic love of country second to none. In spite of his overwhelming defeat for reelection no one doubted the quality of his Americanism or questioned in his ability or the analytical powers of his intellect.

But Mr. Taft's mental gyrations since the covenant of the league of nations became the leading issue before the country has caused his countrymen to stand aghast, and his own friends to marvel at the change in the man. The astonishing statements that have come from his pen and that have been uttered by Mr. Taft in his almost daily speeches, have proved conclusively that his mental processes have undergone a change that is truly sad when one contemplates the upstanding American whom the Republicans sent to the White House to succeed the lamented Roosevelt.

In his capacity as President of the Leagne of Nations, Mr. Taft appears to have thrown facts and logic to the winds, and in the throes of his hysterical passion to engraft some sort of an international league upon his country resorts to any statement that he thinks will bring support to his cause. Confident assertion, apologetic recommendation of amendments, renewed declaration of the virtue of the league, have followed one another in succession of the virtue of the league, have followed one another in succession as the draft of the league covenant was born, died, and emerged once more to menace our national happiness. It would be an insult to American intelligence to dignify Mr. Taft'sutterances as argument .

"Mr. Taft's lucubrations on the Monroe Doctrine are sufficient indication of the hopelessness of his case. On January 17th, discussing the first draft of the league he said: Instead of imparilling it, it would strengthen the Monroe Doctrine, because in case of it's violation the obligations of the league would require all the great powers to unite in the maintenance of it."

"On March 7th, he directly reversed himself, and said, in effect, that not only would the doctrine not be strengthened but would be imperilled. Here are his words. 'It (the covenant) should be made more difinite by a larger reservation of the Monroe Doctrine.'

"When the new draft of the covenant was published Mr.Taft assured his audiences that 'The Monroe Doctrine is specifically recognized in the terms of the League by a provision that nothing in the league shall affect it.' Of course everybody who has read the covenant knows there is no such provision in it, and that it recognizes the validity not of the Doctrine but of engagements and understandingsthat may resemble it.

"The evidence of Mr. Taft's failure to reason logically furnished in his references to the Monroe Doctrine might be multiplied by quotations from almost every statement that he puts forth regarding the league. But let us draw the veil. one of the saddest outcomes of the war has been the reduction of our only ex-President to such a level."

Mr. W. W. Fox has the right idea about our Fourth of July Celebration for our soldiers in Clanton. He says that it must be made the very best possible, and that Clanton cannot afford to be satisfied with any halfway business about this occsion. Mr. Fox rightly contends that Chilton is the County of our soldier boys who went to war and Clanton is their town; it is up to us to show them on the Fourth that we mean what we say. Get the Fox spirit of the first and best for Clanton in everything and our town will be the better by our having such opinion of ourselves. We will make the Fourth in Clanton on long to be remembered by the people of the County.

PREDICTS SUCCESS OF REPUBLICANS IN 1920

JERSEY SENATOR SAYS CONGRESS WILL LIVE UP TO ITS PROMISES MADE TO PEOPLE.

For Generations Republican Party Provided Prosperity for the People and Peace to the Nation, at Same Time Compelling Respect and Admiration of Foreign Nations.

Washingon, June 24.—The new Republican Senator rom New Jersey, former Governor Walter E. Edge, believes that Republican success in 1920 is easily within reach if the legislatife branch of the Government keeps faith with the public, and he further believes that effective efforts are being made to live up to the promises which have been made He said to-day:

"Apparently, the only political element that can beat the Republicans in 1920 is the Republican party itself, and I do not yet see any tendency toward a brainstorm which might move it to self-destruction. On the contrary—probably, never has it been more sane and level-headed than in these 'piping times of peace,' or times of piping peace. Indeed it mas this traditional and hereditary sanity in the party which moved the people of the land to entrust to it the tremendous task of readjustment legislation and the solution of the political, economic and humanitarian problems which confront Uncle Sam after his successful fight with Prussia.

Will Ease the Burden.

"The Republican party last fall, and its leaders in Congress immediately after the election, promised the people to do certain things—to ease the burden of supertaxataion, to simplify and to make practical and practicable the national policies of taxation, to rescue the telephone and ttelegraph systems from imminent ruin under government, or rather, Administration mismanagement; to restore the railroads to their owners under adequate but not undue supervision by the people, who are the Government, and these tasks it has already undertaken in a business-like manner. President Wilson indeed, thought so highly of the Republican policies that he recommended several of them in his recent message from the capital of France to the American Congress, but the general outline of the work already had been framed, even before this message was ever penned. There are many other numbers on the Republican program, and I believe that in 1920 the people will accord it an encore that will keep it on the stage for years to come.

"The loss of Colonel Roosevelt to the party, as to the Nation, was serious and deplorable, but Colonel Roosevelt himself would be the first to say that it was not irreparable. First, carefully hiding my own light under a bushel, I would say that the brains of the nation are conspicuous in the Republican party, and also it seems to have about all the backbone For generations the Republican party provided prosperity for the people, and peace for the nation, at the same time compelling the respect and admiration of other countries; it still is the same party, with the same character of membership. As the older generations have passed the rising generations have taken their places keeping fully abreast with the progress of the world, and of the national thought and sentiment and changing conditiions.

"One cannot well, in a few words, cite the great questions of the day, nor discuss the best methods for the solution of them; suffice to say the Republican party is not blind to a single oneo f these questions, on any line whatsoever, and that it will handle them successively in a manner which will redound to the welfare of the people, and convince them that they were fully justified in entrusting the conduct of their government—the people's government, mind you; not any individual's or clique's or section's or political party's—to the Republicans."

JUDGE REYNOLDS ASKS PEOPLE TO HELP MAKE THE FOURTH A SUCCESS

We want to have an old time barbecue the Fourth; we want everybody to come and enjoy the day. Let's all show our soldier boys that we appreciate what they have done. When the horrors of war were at their height, when the world stood aghast, and the defenders of civilization were almost over-whelmed our boys plunged into the hottest of the fight and snathched victory from the jaws of the Huns.

We hope that every boy who entered the service together with his fatheir, mother, brother and sisters will be here. I am sure the committee from each beat will do their duty in raising funds to help to pay for the barbecue, so there will be enough for all.

Good speakers will be here to entertain the crowd and we want our own boys to have something to say as it will be their day, and let's make it the greatest day of rejoicing old Chilton has ever had. Let's lay aside our work and business and all unite in making our boys feel like they are welcome back home.

I want to appeal to the committees which have been appointed in the different beats, to meet at the Courthouse Saturday, June 28th at 10 o'clock, A.M., and I urge that they bring a good report with them from the respective beast, as this iss not a "Clanton affair," but for the county, and the whole county must help bear the expense in order to make the occasion the success which we want it to be.

L. H. REYNOLDS, Chm.

REPUBLICAN SENATOR MAKES PUBLIC SUPRESSED DOCUMENT

Washington, June 23.—Believing that if there are to be "open covenants openly arrived at" it is best to begin arriving, Senator Borah of Idaho has put into the record in the Senate a copy of the peace treaty

Senator Borah obtained his copy, he said, from Frazier Hunt, a Chicago Tribune newspaper man. The Senate voted 47 to 27 in favor of the publication of the treaty.

Meantime, as if to make more absurd the efforts of the administration to suppress the treaty, the Chicago Tribune printed it before it was put into the Senate record.

Moreover, a Paris newspaper, according to cables, has printed it. The treaty is distributed in Germany.

The Senate foreign relations committee has begun investigation to find out how the treaty got into the hands of Wall Sareet interests. The president cabled Senator Hitchcock it was "highly undesirable" to communicate the text of the dcoument and urged investigation of the "leak."

MICKIE SAYS

GET READY NOW TO COME TO THE SOLDIERS CELEBRATION AND BARBECUE AT CLANTON ON THE FOURTH OF JULY

Arrangements Being Made for Biggest Celebration in History of Chilton County in Honor of our Soldiers in the Recent World War.

BARBECUE, BASEBALL, AIRPLANES, MUSIC, SPEAKING.

The plans for the Chilton County Soldiers Memorial Celebration and Barbecue at Clanton July the Fourth are well under way, and everything points to a grand sucess of the occasion. The air is fulll olf talk about the big day and word comes from every corner of the county that the people will be here to join in the celebration.

The committees in charge are at work with full force this week and by next Saturday it is expected that everything will be lined up in good shape.

The permanent organization has been perfected with the following committees:

Central Committee, L. H. Reynolds Chairman, W. M. Wyatt, Secretary, and W. B. Corley Treasurer; Committee on location of grounds, N.A. Kicker Chairman, M. D. Foshee, Grady Reynolds; Committee on purchase and barbecue, J. C. Jones Chairman, P. T. Hinkle, Durwood Broadhead, W. W. Fox and J. B. Downs; Commiittee to arrange Table. Joe Gore Chairman.

The following Beat Committees have been selected to solicit contributions from people in their respective Beats to help pay the expenses of the barbecue:

Beat 1, C. B. Cox, J. Mat Mahan; Beat 2, Tom Hand, T. C. Cofer, B. E. Collum; Beat 3, R. J. Williams, D. O. Manning; Beat 4, J. D. Collins, W. I. Mullins; Beat 5, R.L. Duffey, H.B. Oliver, E. A.: Norris; Beat 6, R. N. Wilkins, R. F. Atkinson; Beat 7, J. B. Hicks; Ralph Calloway, C. N. Parnell; Beat 8, W. C. Dyer, T. G. Milling; Beat 9, A. P. Oslin, A. F. Childress, R. L. Carter; Beat 10, A. P. Vinson, Tom Allen, Tom Rockett; Beat 11, R. E. Jones, Lee Smith; Beat 12, T. J. Dorminey, S. J. Dupriest; Beat 13, W. G. Conway, J. B. Moore, W. D. Nix; Beat 14, T. J. Hubbard, W. D. Nix; Beat 15, W. D. Burnett, W. H. Hayes, W. J. Murse; Beat 16, J. M. Parrish, Sr., Lee Robinson.

The committees in discussing the matter have reached the conclusion that it would be the most satisfactory generally to have just a barbecue and not rely on basket dinners. We believe the people over the county had rather pay a small amount of money and have a good barbecue than to tax the women folks with the duty of prepring basket dinner and bringing it. So the committees in charge urge that people donate what they feel like paying to the committees in the Beats and come on the Fourth and be fed by the barbecue. By co-operating in this way the barbecue can be made ample without the baskets.

Clanton has already put up $500 to help pay the expenses of the barbecue and will come with some more. It will take over a thousand dollars in all. About $50 from each Beat will make sufficient to put the thing over in the best of style. As it is a county affair the people are urged to chip in and help. All the people will want to be here on the Fourth to partake of the good things and we are sure that every community in the county will be willing to pay its part and then come here on the 4th and enjoy the barbecue. It will be much easier for the people to pay a small amount than to prepare a basket. The ladies would rather come here and enjoy the day at a barbecue than to be bothered about cooking their own dinner.

As this occasion is gotten up primarily to honor our returned soldiers, it is especially urged that every one of Chilton County's soldiers be here. Chilton County is going to open her hearts to you boys on that great National Independence Day. Put on your khaki and come to Clanton and enjoy yourselves. It is your day and we want you to feel free to enjoy it to the fullest extent.

PREDICTS GREAT REPUBLICAN VOTE FROM MISSOURI STATE

Soldiers and their Families Will Side-Step Democratic Party, Says Chairman.

Washington, June 24.—"The Soldier boys and the soldier boy's family are going to put the State of Missouri in the Republican column in the presidential election of 1920," said W. L. Cole, chairman of the Republican state committee of Missouri, today: "Missouri would have gone Republican in 1916 except for the slogan 'He kept us out of War.' We are in better condition than ever just now, after electing five Republicans to the lower house of Congress, and a Republican to the United States Senate. In three other congressional districts Democrats were elected by the barest majority, and if the presidential election were to be held today we would carry the state by a tremendous majority."

Miss Dorothy Butler of Thorsby, accompanied by her father, Dr. E.W. Butler, was in Clanton Wednesday. They visited The Union-Banner to have a look at our plant and see the Linotype machine do some of its amusing stunts.

MOVE TO OUST OFFICIAL SAID TO HAVE A STRONG BACKING

Believed that Resolutions would be Offered by A.F. of L. Calling Upon President to Remove P. M. General from His Office

CONGRESS MAY INVESTIGATE

Washington, June 23.—Although Postmaster General Burleson is understood to be laboring under the notion he has his opponents "down," there is reason to believe he has some bad hours ahead.

It is the understanding here that resolutions will be offered at the forthcoming annual convention of the American Federation of Labor calling on the president to remove Postmaster General Burleson. The resolution will have strong backing from postoffice employees, telegraph employees and telephone employees. Further than merely asking removal the resolutions will suggest that if Mr. Burleson is not removed by the president, then the House ought to look into the affairs of the Postoffice department with a view to finding out whether impeachment proceedings are warranted.

The belief here is that the A.F. of L. will pass resolutions demanding removal. It is known the sentiment in the organization is strong for the ousting of the postmaster general. The passage of the resolutions would be embarassing for the president and there is talk that some of those close to the administration will try to head them off.

That Mr. Burleson is eventually to be made the "goat" and mustered out with permission to proceed down toward San Marcos, Texas, for a long sojourn is fully expected here. He has done many things the administration wanted him to do but the men who are closest now to the president and the handling of Democraic politics feel that his usefulness is ended and he is a heavy millstone on the neck of the party.

If Mr. Burleson were from a doubtful state, he would have more chance of remaining in office. As it is, the Democratic National Committee leaders figure Texas as theirs anyhow. Storm warnings from Paris, put out through administration organs, indicate Col. House has abandoned Mr. Burleson. Those who run may read what is coming.

In case postmaster general Burleson is forced out of the Cabinet, in accordance with the wishes of powerful elements in the Democratic natinoal committee, several possibilities are mentioned to succeed him. Former Senator James Hamilton Lewis is one of them.

Secretary to the President Joseph P. Tumulty is much mentioned in gossip which is current at the capitol.

SHOULTS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space in your paper to say that all interested will meet at the top of Big Hill near Gus Wallace, July 7th, 1919, for the purpose of working in Bird's Creek Road to Maplesville. Everyone that works on road that day will be allowed to vote on the "ugly man," who shall act as overseer that day. The overseer shall set up to a cold drink all that work on that road that day. When we get to Maplesville there will be old-time games such as marble playing, leap frog, foot races by Mack Oden and C. T. Walker, also foot race by C. N. Parnell and George Bearden. Have some fun and work the road the same day. Will tell who the "ugly man" is later on.

WASTE MUST STOP IF BUSINESS DEVELOPS

REPUBLICAN LEADER DECLARE THAT WASTE IN GOVERNMENT MUST BE HALTED QUICKLY.

Present Reckless Disregard of Costs Absorbs Capital Which Would Go Into Enterprises Calling for Increased Employment of Labor.

Circuit Clerk, 1 Jan 16

Washington, June 24—Banking and financial houses of prominence in their comments on trade and business conditions through the country speak of the relatively light business in relation to construction and development. It is pointed out by financial authorities that at last one imporant reason is the high taxes and government loans take up accruing new capital, or much of it, which, otherwise would be available for new enterprises.

Now, while it is quite impossible for right-thinking Americans to refuse to go ahead energetically regardless of drawbacks, members of Congress who are keeping in close study of financial and business conditions through the country point out that it is to interest of the general public that money be put into new enterprises freely and that here is a strong reason why there should be economy in administration of the government and cessation of that waste which has become a habit in many of the government department and bureaus. They point out further in this connection that every time a government official engages in either waste or that government extravagance which is first cousin to waste, or in expenditures which might be to advantage put off to another more normal date, to that extent taxes are swelled and the sale of more government bonds or certificates made neditures make for higher taxes and sorbed which would otherwise go into new enterprises, calling for more employment of men and women.

This is a view of the matter which unfortunately, a great many people have not paused to take. In other words, while they realize in a general way that needless government expendtures make for higher taxes and more burdens on the average man and woman, they do not always realize that in the wake of such waste there follows a chain of economic efforts which are to say the least, not for the best interests of the public, either for the worker, the employer, the consumer or any considerable element of the people generally.

Congress Must Act.

It has long been clear to the ablest men in the appropriations committees of congress that economy in government expenditures cannot be secured in only one way, by congress compelling the departments and bureaus to economize. Neither from the White House nor any of the officials in the executive branch of the government is there insistency on economy. It is to be noted there is a marked difference between insistence on economy and perfunctory expressions that economy is desirable.

One of the real reasons why there is so much practical difficulty in evolving a budget system is that every man in congress who has studied appropriations deeply knows that the tendency of the administration officials is away from economy instead of toward it.

Too Many Employees.

"I know perfectly well that an enormous number of unnecessary government employees are being kept on the rolls in and out of Washington," said Senator Smoot of the Senate appropriations committee today. "I also know that we cannot depend on the departments to make reductions either in salary rolls or other expenditures. There is just one way to enforce economy and that is for congress to compel it. The initiative must come from Congress. It won't come from any other quarter of the government."

Notwithstanding the Democratic press has a great deal to say about factional differences in the Republican ranks, somehow or other these differences never amount to much in these days of ever brightening hopes for the Republican party.

Citizens of Shoults community have instituted a novel scheme in road working for July 7th. We expect from the outline of the plans furnished us this week by Mr. C. T. Walker that there will be plenty of fun along with the work, which is quite all right, as all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. Other parts of the county might well adopt this plan.

The devout profiteers of this country are praying that the League of Nations may become a reality. For in it he sees certain visions of another war in the future, and he knows that under the league this country must be a party to the conflict of the future, no matter in what corner of the earth they are. With another war coming and America involved, these profiteers will reap another harvest of golden shekels.

Next week The Union-Banner will publish a special Fourth of July edition in connection with a booster number for the Soldiers Celebration and Barbecue. By that time the program for the celebration will be completed and we will publish it in full, giving all the details that are to be included in the day's activities. Get ready now to come on that day. It will be the biggest Fourth we have ever had in these diggins.

The committee on purchase and barbecue for the Fourth has already bought a big herd of nice fat goats which will be devoured on that day. Barbecued lamb is about the best thing we ever tackled in that line. There will be a nice juicy piece of meat and a slice of bread for every person in Clanton on the Fourth. If you are not coming to get yours, you might let the editor of The Banner know about it and we will see that it is eaten by somebody.

The Union-Banner desires to commend the action of several communities in the county that have canceled local programs for the Fourth in deference to the Soldiers' Day at Clanton. The barbecue and celebration at Clanton is intended to be a county affair and it is right that all the communities should come here and help in the occasion. Every locality has soldiers who have returned from the war and those soldiers should be honored by their home communities partaking of and helping out in the county celebration here.

Will the Democrats hang their hopes of victory on Wilson radicalism, socialism and internationalism next year? Remember while you are thinking on the possibility of such a thing, that the Democratic National Committee in its recent meeting at Chicago, declared that it regarded President Wilson as another Lincoln and approved unqualifiedly of everything he has done since he went to Paris. This declaration may show the bent of mind of the Democratic leaders.

Last Friday in the Senate Mr. Sherman of Illinois delivered a very masterful speech on the subject: "The Ecclesiastical Power in the League of Nations." He showed by facts of history in connection with the Roman Catholic Church that there is a deliberate purpose on the part of the Pope to manipulate the League of Nations so that it will give the Catholic Church powers to control the affairs of State throughout the world.

Many Senators will scoff at the idea presented by Senator Sherman. They will decry any effort to consider the powers of the vatican under the League of Nations. When in fact that phase of the subject—the purposes of Rome—should be the main consideration in the whole matter. The detriment of the ideals of Americanism that will come through the Pope's power in the League is one of the gravest objections that can be raised against the schemes. Yet some traitorous Catholics in our Senate will rise up in holy horror and declare that religious considerations must not enter the discussion of the League. A man who will not fight the power of Rome in the League should be kicked out of Congress without any ceremony at all.

That the League is a Democratic issue is now generally conceded, but not a few are wondering that Taft, Wickerman and Burton can mean by running around over the country speaking for the covenant, if they are still Republicans. The next thing will be, "What is a Republican? and the answer will be an opponent of the League of Nations.

The Alabama Press Association is in session this wek at Andalusia. We look for Editor Hill of the Ensley Enterprise to present a resolution to the Association endorsing President Wilson for a third term and supporting the League of Nations. If he does his fellows in crime of the other Democratic papers will open their mouths and swallow it down as per directions on the bottle.

Wilson has ben accustomed to feeding the Democrats of Congress and the nation out of a spoon for the past few years. He has been going out as the mother macking bird and gathering in the fresh juicy worms and grass hoppers and upon his return to the official nest at Washington he found Congressmen and Senators and Cabinet officers and bureau chiefs with their slender necks stretched forth and their gullible mouths wide open to receive whatever was brought them to swallow. None ever questioned what was brought for them to eat. Mr. Wilson is now off on the biggest wild goose chase he ever engaged in. He will return soon, and instead of bringing a nice juicy worm to feed his young ones with, this time it is going to be a big red spider; and woe unto the little bird in the Senate who pokes out his neck and swallows the thing without asking or knowing what it is.

We ask you to read the following illuminating paragraph copied from The Ensley Enterprise, and if you can, pity the poor deluded numbskull who wrote it:

"President Wilson, animated by a fair reason, requested that the uncompleted Peace Treaty should not be given to the public; the Republicans, disregarding his request and had it published. This goes to show what contempible means this disreputable party will do to carry their point against President Wilson, the greatest man in the world today. The League of Nations is no political question, but is for the good of mankind, and President Wilson is doing all in his power to save the world from wars. Give the Republican party enough rope and they will hang themselves. You can take the brains of Borah, Lodge and others of their like, and put them together and President Wilson has more brains than all of them. These disgruntled Republicans can pull their hair out with rage, but President Wilson will treat them with silent contempt, and will come out victorious. They will always fail when they try to put President Wilson in a hole, because he is right in all his dealings."

A man who is fool enough to believe such junk as this and try to make other folks believe it has not got any more brain than a wild African who has never been captured.

It is always an interesting period at the capitol when a party which has been in control for a number of years is reduced to the status of the minority, and, as a result, is compelled to turn over to the victors all the legislative machinery, and pomp and dignity, and not a few creature comforts in which they have revelled for so long. It is only natural, perhaps, that they should have come to look upon most of these accoutremnts of power as their inalienable property, and so it is not surprising that the enforced separation is sometimes a very painful process.

Almost anyone would know that something had gone awry with the Democratic party in Congress merely by looking in upon the House of Representatives and seeing the venerable and beloved Champ Clark, late Speaker of that body, sitting quietly on one of the long benches on the Democratic side instead of occupying the big and comfortable chair on the Speaker's dias which he filled for so many years. Other signs of Democratic disaster may also be seen by looking into the ornate cammittee rooms which heretofore have been presided over almost exclusively by gentlemen from the South, but now are tenanted by the lately victorious Republicans. It is the surrender of these spacious committee rooms perhaps, that brings the greatest pang to the vanquished party, for it means that they must now retire to considerably smaller quarters in the rather austere office building of the House of Representatives.

It is doubtless a trying period for certain Democrats, who enjoy the power and the comforts that flow from party control in Congress, but to others it represents a welcome shifting of burdens that have become increasingly heavy during the last few sessions and they sit back in their new modest surroundings with a soothing philosophy to the effect that all is not gold that glitters.

THE SINGING AT FLOYD

Following is the program which was rendered at the all day singing at Floyd last Sunday, June 22:

The congregation was called to order with song by Bro. A. A. Bierd, after which Bro. Lamar Jones envoked the blessings of God on the day's service. Organization was immediately effected by electing Rev. E. B. Prickett chairman. The chair then appointed a committee on arrangement consisting of A.A. Beaird, A.L. Robinson, Prof. Zed Mims.

Directors for the forenoon were J. M. Williams, A. L. Robinson, J. M. Taylor, Amie Boswell, A.A. Beaird, R. T. Grant, three songs each. Recess 15 minutes. W. M. Devaughn, L. T. Grant, E. F. Taylor, Lee Robinson, three songs each. Rev. B. F. Dykes gave some good thoughts on the Word of God at 11 o'clock, which we were glad to hear. A delicious and bountiful dinner was served.

The singing was resumed at 1:30 o'clock; directors for the afternoon were, J. W. Cagle, Ocie Devaughn, Jessie Jones, R. C. Taylor, Ervin Hollan, Ralph Grant, three songs each.

Recess fifteen minutes. A quartet was rendered by W. M. Devaughn, R. T. Grant, A. A. Beaird and Jim Robinson. W. M. Boswell, A. C. Neeley, W. J. Little, three songs each.

Organists for the day were A. A. Beaird, Ralph Grant, Lee Robinson, Amie Boswell, Mrs. Perley Hughes, Miss Dora Jones, Miss Amie Hand, Mrs. Bell Cagle, Miss Beatrice Little.

After singing "Jesus Savior Pilot me," directed by A.A. Beaird, the congregation was dismissed by Rev. E. B. Prickett.

Everybody seemed to enjoy themselves in the song service and we had a large crowd and good behavior so far as I know.

J. M. Taylor, Secretary.

STRONG SENTIMENT FOR RATIFICATION

FEDERAL AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION GRANTING EQUAL SUFFRAGE RECEIVING MUCH ATTENTION OVER STATE.

ALABAMA MAY BE THE FIRST SOUTHERN STATE TO RATIFY

State Legislature to Pass on Federal Suffrage Amendment.

When the Alabama Legislature meets on July 8th, it will be its duty, under the Constitution of the United States, to take action on the nineteenth amendment to the National Constitution, which was passed by Congress June 4th, and which is thereafter presented to each State Legislature as it meets.

This amendment, called the "Suffrage Amendment," reads as follows:

Section 1. "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

Sec. 2. "The Congress shall have power by appropriate legislation, to enforce the provisions of said act."

The amendment will become law as soon as it is ratified by the legislatures of 36 States. Six have already ratified—Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, Michigan, New York and Kansas. The three latter, having called special sessions of the Legislature in order to do so. No State has as yet rejected the amendment, and the National American Woman Suffrage Association is sure of more than the necessary 36 ratifications as soon as opportunity is given the Legislatures.

First Southern State to Ratify.

Alabama is expected to have the glory of being the first Southern State to ratify. Nothing in the Suffrage Amendment will interfere with the existing voting qualifications (except that of sex) in this State. The voting qualifications in Alabama at present are as follows: The voter must be a male; he must be 21 years of age or over; he must have resided in the State, county and precinct a stipulated length of time he must register, and in order to register, he must pay a poll tax, and must either be able to read or write, or he (or his wife) must be paying taxes on $300.00 in real or personal estate. If the Suffrage Amendment is ratifiod, not one of the above qualifications of a voter will be changed, except the first—the word "male" will be stricken out.

It will easily be seen that the race question cannot become an issue in this matter, because of the fact that the same qualifications which now insure the control of the male negro vote will apply with equal force to the female negro vote when the amendment goes into operation. Opinions from several prominent constitutional lawyers of this State to the above effect have been made public.

Sentiment throughout the State is very strong in favor of ratification. The general feeling is that Alabama women are as deserving of the franchise and are as able to exercise it judicially as are the women of other States, and the opportunity offered by the Suffrage Amendment to right a great wrong on a nation-wide scale is warmly welcomed by the hosts of liberal minded citizens of the State.

Prominent Citizens Urge Ratification.

Champions of ratification are not lacking upon the prominent men in public life in Alabama. State Suffrage Headquarters is in receipt of many endorsements of ratification from leaders of thought in all sections Two ex-Governors of the State, Honorable Emmet O'Neal and Honorable B. B. Comer of Birmingham, have expressed themselves as unqualifiedly in favor of ratification. Other urgent supporters are John H. Wallace, Jr., of Montgomery, State Fish and Game Commissioner, Brooks Lawrence of Fairhope, Honorable James Weatherly, prominent Birmingham constitutional lawyer; H. P. Burruss and John R. Hornady, of the City Commission of Birmingham; Robinson Brown and Honorable W. B. Oliver, of Tuscaloosa; W. D. Nesbitt, of Birmingham, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee; A. G. Patterson, of Albany, and John D. McNeel, of Birmingham, members of the committee; Fred Thompson, editor of the Mobile Register; Rev. W. B. Crumpton, president of the Anti-Saloon League, of Montgomery; Jack Cranford and L. B. Musgrove, of Jasper; Judge S. D. Weakley, of Birmingham; Thomas E. Huey, Dr. G. B. Vines, N. R. Baker, R. G. Hewitt and T. G. York, of Jefferson County, and numerous others.

Women of State Eager for Ratification.

From every section in the State demands are coming from women for the ratification of the Suffrage Amendment. In a recent statement, Mrs. John D. McNeel, State Chairman of the Suffrage Ratification Committee, says:

"As the question of Woman Suffrage is one of the most vital now occupying the attention of the civilized world, it is safe to assume that all intelligent people are interested in the discussion of it. We are convinced that a careful study of the question of the amendment will prove that ratification would leave our election laws intact, with the single exception of the word 'male'; that all other qualifications for suffrage would remain as at present, and would apply to women in every respect as they do to men, including, of course, the educational, property and poll tax qualifications. The Nineteenth Amendment gives the Federal Government no power over State election laws, provided there is no discrimination because of sex."

MT. NEBO SINGING SOCIETY

The Mt. Nebo Singing Society held its regular meeting at Mt. Nebo church last Sunday with a large class and a few visitors, all of which we were proud to see.

The singing was opened by song and prayer by the chairman, Mr. S.A. Henley who directed a short lesson while the committee arranged a program.

We had an interesting solo rendered by Miss Everee Williams and a duet by Mrs. Eula Culp, Misses Ada and Mae Williams and Mrs. Ollie Williams.

The directors for the afternoon were Messrs William Cox, Eugene Williams, Olen Culp, Calvin Parrish, Sam Culp, Vonnie Culp, Iven Popwell and Blanco Durbin.

We had a short talk by Mr. Rufus Popwell which was very interesting to all the hearers.

The program was closed with a song and prayer by the chairman.

The society will meet again next Second Sunday. We cordially invite all singers and lovers of music to come and be with us.

WAR HEROES WILL GET RECOGNITION

MEMORIAL ROLL OF HONOR TO BE PERPETUATED

CAMPAIGN BEGINS JUNE 27

Every Person in the State Will Be Given Opportunity to Help Erect Building.

Three patriotic Alabamians have joined the $100,000 club for the memorial at the capitol to the soldiers, sailors, marines and others of this state who contributed to the winning of the war. Fred J. Cramton, of Montgomery, has joined with Senator John A. Rogers, of Sumter, and L. B. Musgrove, of Walker, in an offer to give $1,000 to the fund, provided a total of 100 persons will make contributions of the same amount in the campaign June 27 to July 4. In announcing his offer, Mr. Cramton, who is a lumber manufacturer and dealer on a large scale, thus summarized his views on the campaign:

No Slackers in Alabama.

"I was too old myself to join the ranks of the active fighters, but I am proud to have had a part in every war activity at home, and having a part, I know just how enthusiastically and splendidly our men and women at home labored that the boys at the front might be cheerful and might make good.

"I believe that Alabama had fewer slackers, indeed if any, than any other section of the country.

Preserve the Records.

"Now that the war is over, and we are in the thick of reconstruction, while our hearts are full of gratitude, I hold that it is both a privilege and duty to take care of the record which has been made. In no way can it be done save through some adequate memorial agency. The legislature has created a commission. The commission has decreed that a splendid memorial building shall have a fitting site on Capitol Hill. In that building the imperishable records of our sons and daughters are to be preserved."

American Legion to Help.

The American Legion, which will be composed of soldiers, sailors, marines and yeomanettes, will be organized in every county within the State on Saturday, June 28, the day after the Alabama Memorial Campaign begins, and both Colonel Bibb Graves, of Montgomery, the State Chairman of the League, and LeRoy Jacobs, of Birmingham, State Secretary, are urging that the first act of the posts to be formed at the various county seats shall be to join the other citizens of their respective counties in a monster celebration of the Glorious Fourth, which has a new and tenderer significance for all Americans. The members and eligibles of the Legion also have been urged to assist in every possible way in the campaign for funds with which to build an appropriate and lasting memorial to those who served in and during the war; to perpetuate in marble or bronze the names of those who were killed or wounded and those who performed deeds of unusual heroism.

Memorial Honor Roll.

State headquarters is giving careful instructions to all county campaign managers and their assistants to see that the name of every contributor is made a matter of record, together with the amount given. This information will be collected, inscribed, bound and preserved within the Memorial Building, so that every city, precinct and county can see in the years to come just what their own people did to make the construction of this building and the perpetuation of the State's war efforts the great success that it is certain to be. The part that Alabama labor played in the winning of the war will, it is stated, receive the monumental attention the subject deserves in the allotment of space and treatment within the building. Woman's part in the war will form one of the most important chapters in the structure, which will be, in itself, a history.

Fourteen States have followed Alabama's lead in planning memorial buildings to honor their respective heroes in the world war. The campaign in Mississippi begins on June 27, and ends July 4, which is the same time as the Alabama campaign will be waged. The sum asked for in Mississippi is $500,000 which is the minimum amount sought in Alabama. This State has the advantage that the legislature appropriated $50,000 as the State's contribution to the building, and created a commission to take up the subject and carry it through, with a limited appropriation for campaign printing and expenes. The Mississippi legislature is expected to take similar action when it meets in January, 1920. Already there has arisen a keen rivalry between the States as to which shall first reach the minimum goal of $500,000 and which shall go farthest beyond that goal. "Make it a Million!" is the campaign cry in Alabama.

American Legion Will Help.

The Alabama Legislature will be asked by The American Legion to so amend the election laws that men who were absent from the State in the naval or military service shall not be deprived of a vote in the elections of 1920 by reason of their failure to pay poll taxes in their absence. It is not probable that the men who voted unanimously for the Alabama Memorial Bill, of which Speaker Henry Merritt is the author, will fail or refuse to find a way to give these men the opportunity they desire to express themselves in State primaries and general elections.

State Treasurer R. L. Bradley, at the State Capitol, Montgomery, is treasurer for the Alabama Memorial Campaign for the state at large, and Alabamians residing beyond the borders of the State who wish to make contributions to the Memorial Fund, may send their checks to the State Treasurer.

CULP SCHOOL HOUSE

As the health of this community is very good and the boys and girls are about done with their work in the fields, we shall begin our school on Monday, July 7, if not providentially hendered. Let me ask that we have as large an enrollment as possible on the first day and the very best of attendance throughout the school. If there ever was a time when boys and girls needed to give their attention to education it is now. I am sorry to say that I don't believe there has ever been a time since the beginning of our public school system when the education of the children in the rural districts was so greatly neglected as it is today. We have some real progressive rural schools, and we are all proud of them, but they are few in comparrison with the ones of the Oldern type. If we take a view at the majority of our rural schools we will see that they are practically the same as they were a half century ago. A little old one-roomed house, ugly in appearance, heated with an unprotected stove in the middle of the room, poorly ventilated, lighted with opposite rows of shadeless windows and seated with old shaky benches. The equipment is just about as poor an excuse as can be had. With these conditions still prevailing we cannot answer the present day demands for education.

In the pioneer days the education received was meagre enough but it served its day. The life to be met then demanded a rouyh muscular endurance to be developed in the struggle for a scant livelihood from the untamed forests rather than to be spent in schools. The pioneer attended school where the "3K" were taught, plowed with a wooden plow, cut his grain with a scythe threshed it with frails and used ox carts principally for conveyance; but nevertheless these hard people survived, and in the meantime laid firmly the foundation of our great nation.

Since the pioneer days marvelous progress has been made in the whole industrial world. As you see the farmer using his improved implements, the chauffeur driving his car and the aviator flying in his aeroplane, you can't help but think of the wonderful changes and progress there has been made along these lines. Suppose you think seriously for a moment then look up the road toward "efficiency" and see what you can of the rural school teacher and his gang. Do you see any thing of them up that way? No; you'll have to get a microscope and look away right in the opposite direction to see anything of them at all. If space would permit, I would enumerate several facts about the development and requirements of some of our industries, but as it forbids, I will only show you some in the field of agriculture—the field where probably the greatest development has been made.

For a person to become a successful farmer he must know the different kinds of soil, know how to rotate his crops, how to cultivate, harvest and market them. He should have a fair knowledge of stock rasing, machinery and business matters.

What are our schools doing to educate your boys along these lines? Are you satisfied with what is being done? God pity the man who is. We must have schools that will answer the present day demands for education. Schools that will keep step with with the advancements in all our industries; and educate the boys of today for the farms of to day. They have a right to as good education as the city boy. They why not change up a little and give it to him. Until we do adjust things so they will get what is needed, we will continue to see them drop out by the wayside. Today our schools lose the greater per cent of its personnel by the time they reach the age of 10. This is astonishing to think about, but nevertheless it is true.

I shall say in conclusion that the old one-roomed school cannot fulfill the needs of the 20th century boy or girl, and we have no more needs for dragging along with them than ducks have need for swimming gourds when they go swimming.

LITTLE GIRL KILLED BY AUTO TRUCK TUESDAY

Early Tuesday morning little Ruth Kate Thompson, age six, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Thompson, was run over and killed by a large auto truck. The child was crossing the street in front on the family residence in Elyton, when the big truck driven by a negro came speeding by and crushed the life out of the child. Her head was mashed very badly.

Before moving to Birmingham a few years ago, Mr. Thompson lived near Clanton. Many friends of the family here regret the sad news of the child's death and extend sympathy to the bereaved parents.

The body of the little girl was brought to Clanton Wednesday morning and was buried in the Clanton Cemetery.

TWO ARRESTED ON WHISKEY CHARGE LAST SATURDAY

Deputy Sheriff W. G. Culp last Saturday arrested George Traywick and Tom Hinton as they came across the river at Adams Ferry with a supply of moonshine whiskey. Traywick had a five-gallon keg and Hinton had a two-gallon jug. The officer had apprehended their purposes and movements and placed himself on this side of the river. When the two men came across in a boat and unloaded their cargo he took charge of them. A message was sent to Sheriff Gore at Clalnton who got in his car and quickly brought the prisoners to jail. Both are out on bond awaiting trial in the courts.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN HAS BROKEN LOOSE AGAIN

William Jennings Bryan, whom the people had almost forgot, has broken loose again. He has hatched up a legislative program for a Republican Congress that is sure enough some bird of a rare plumage. He states that it is the only thing that will save the country from chaos and many other awful things too numerous to mention. He gives us ony the introduction to his panacea, promising to deal out the rest of it to us as we can stand it. Naturally the one hundred and ten mililon Americans will wait gaspingly for the Nebraskan to deliver himself of the full of his scheme to bring to life the corpse of a nation that was demanded and delivered by the Democratic party.

Mr. Bryan has a terrible nightmare as he beholds the terrible condition of the American people. He sees the heartless profiteers sucking the life-blood of their writhing victims. greedy eyes, taking the last pound of flesh of the toiling millions. He sees the colossal trusts, filling their capacious maws with billions of money that they are robbing the poor laboring man of, by cornering on every necessary of life and running the cost of living into the blue empyrean. He has been in the United States during these past six years and is just now seeing these terrible thing. Why has he not had his eyes open during these six years of Democratic high-handednes and cried aloud and spared not, demanding that the Democrats pass some legislation to curb these awful things? Why is it that he is just now realizing that the nation is on a toboggan slide, bound for perdition, since the Republicans have gained control of both houses of the Congress?

Mr. Bryan is a typical Democrat, true to form in every respect. He never does anything when he has the chance, save pad his own wallet, and after his opportunity has slipped thru his fingers he charges his negligence up to his opponents. He is a past-master at fashioning millenniums, formulating promises, denouncing and imploring. He was never known to deliver the goods, and he has progressed thus far on life's rugged pathway only on wind. No political demagogue, living or dead, ever pumped more hot air through his face than has William Jennings Bryan. Woodrow Wilson may have him 'skinned" when it comes to world dreaming, but Mr. Bryan takes the cake when it comes to hatching up panaceas that any sensible man knows would not work in a thousand years.

Mr. Bryan and the other Democratic politicians are never greater frinds of the plain people than when out of power. Having had the opportunity, extending over a period of six years, to do something for the common man and utterly failed, they propose to formulate a program that will help him, and help him at once, if they are only given an opoprtunity. Since the lightning struck them last November and they realize that the American people have branded them as unfaithful servants they have begun to whine about what they could do if they had a chance, just as they did in other days when the people refused to entrust them with the affairs of the government. They have the superlative gall to thus begin to try to fool the nation again before the rejoicing over the late defeat has hardly ceased to rumble up and down the country nd reverberate up against the rafters of the heavens.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

"OLD ALABAM'" TO WIPE SLATE CLEAN ON ITS WAR WELFARE PLEDGES

"Old Alabam'" is exactly $200,000 shy of a most spectacular record in the United War Work Campaign Fund—and it is just about a moral certainty that "Old Alabam'" will come through with a grand rush at the finish. Alabama's quota was set at $847,415, but Alabama said "No—we'll tilt it a bit." And Alabama tilted the pot to $1,400,000. "We'll give THAT," said "Old Alabam.'"

And old Alabama has actually paid in $1,200,000, cash money, on that splendid, generous pledge. Only $200,000 remains to be collected. The manner in which Alabama boys made history and glory for their state in the great war is well known. Now only $200,000 is lacking to put the grand old state up with its pledge and enable it to take its stand among the top states.

The war is won and for the most of us it is over and done with. The boys coming back from France cast off their uniform with a feeling of a job well and completely done. It is over for them. They have done all that was asked or expected of them and better. But there are a few phases of the war in which the homefolks took part, that are not as yet completed. In mind is the United War Work Campaign which was held November of last year. Alabama pledged a total of $1,400,000. Of this grand total there has been paid in up to this time the amount of $1,200,000. All of this money was pledged in entire good faith by the citizenship of the state.

The war work is over, but only part of the boys have been sent home from France. Those that remain are impatient and restless and chafing to get back. Put yourself in a foreign country, with strange faces and languages, bound by an iron discipline and with your thoughts turning ever to HOME. How would you feel? The welfare agencies, which co-operated in the United War Work Campaign are at the present time doing the biggest piece of work in their history.

Helping the Boys

Large colleges with full staffs of educators are helping the boys improve their time of waiting; scores and scores of trained entertainers are traveling from one end of France to the other, dispensing cheer and sunshine and helping the boys get up their own shows; athletic events are being staged that compare with former Olympic meets; everything possible is being done at this time to make the hours go faster for the boys who [illegible] are upholding the power of right to the Germans. The war is won, but a good many of the boys who helped win it are still in France ready for any eventuallty. We owe them a debt; the money has been pledged and in paying it real true-blue patriotism will be shown.

Need for Funds

Secretary Josephus Daniels, in approving the budgets of the War Work societies, made an urgent request to the people of the nation to pay in full their pledges. Following is a combined statement of Secretary Newton D. Baker and Secretary Josephus Daniels.

Regarding the budgets which will finance the activities of the seven organizations presented in the campaign from October 1st, last, to December 31, 1919, the secretaries declared reports from overseas confirmed the necessity of "maintaining and, in some of its aspects, augmenting this work."

"In our judgment," the statement continued, "the full sum subscribed in the campaign will be required, if these societies are to do what the American people desire to have them do in serving the soldiers and sailors and the other classes included in the orginal appeal.

"Moreover, there could, in our judgment, be no wiser use of such funds. The demoblization plans, so far as they have been determined, make it plain the work of the different organizations will be needed for a long time still, and, owing to conditions which necesssarily characterize the period of demobilization, this practical welfare work will be even more needed than ever."

Wipe the Slate Clean

Of the 67 counties in Alabama, twelve have gone out in front, with their slates wiped clean and in some cases over-collections reported.

In the other counties, some are on the verge of cleaning up. Others lag. In those that are lagging there seems to be a sentiment that the money is not needed very much, since the war is over and won.

But you have the word of the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy that EVERY CENT pledged is needed, and needed URGENTLY. There's also that grand old standard of civic pride and county pride; the intense local pride of every true Southerner, who will not stand by quietly and see his city or his town or his county outdone in any good enterprise.

The Alabama boys at the front did their part—and then some. Now is the time for the Alabamans who stayed at home to clean up.

Marshall Baker of Birmingham was in Clainton the first of this week visiting relatives and friends.

ALABAMA STATE HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

Montgomery, Ala., June 23.—The Good Roads Convention in Montgomery July 10-11 promises to be the largest meeting of the kind ever held in Alabama. Already half the counties of the state have notified the Alabama Highway Improvement Associa'n that they would have delegates present, and Jefferson County is preparing to send one hundred automobiles. In each county one automobile will be selected to report upon road condtions to the capital. This will be known as the official car, and will carry a purple pennant bearing the name of the county in gilt letters. Banners for other automobiles are being prepared and will be furnished by the Alabama Highway Improvement Association. The great interest taken in this convention is due to the fact that something definite is going to be done that will enable Alabama to take advantage of six million dollars Federal aid, and to construct and maintain the roads all over the State. An attractife program with striking features is now being worked out for the entertainment of the Good Roads enthusiasts while in Montgomery.

NOTHING TASTED GOOD TO THIS SICKLY WOMAN

"Flu left her stomach weak, system in bad condition, nerves all gone; appetite poor and daily constipated.

Dreco Worked Wonders.

She has gained ten pounds on two bottles; stomach digests everything; constipation gone and liver active.

Many cases are coming to light where "flu" has left the victim in bad condition. Some suffer from weak kidneys, pans in the back, limbs aching. Some find their stomashs gons back on them, and the food lies there undigested, making gas form and choking them up. Some so bad that it presses against the heart, giving the feeling of a weak heart. Many are constipated and have sluggish livers. Nearly all suffer from nervousness, are weak and rundown, lacking energy and strength. Read what the new medicine did for this Montgomery woman, Mrs. Fannie E. Norris of Route 3. She says: "A bad attack of the "Flu" left me in pretty bad shape. I had no appetite, nothing that I ate tasted good, and my stomach was upset most of the time. I'd bloat up with gas; was very nervous; conldn' sleep; my tongde was coated and I oten had dizzy spells, I fell off in weight and was quite worried over my condition."

"So many people were praising of Dreco that I got a bottle and frank to say, it didn't do me much good, so I went up and talked to the Dreco man about it. He eyplained that possibly my condition was so run-down that my system had not come under the full influence of the medicine, he asked me to take at least one more bottle of the medicine which I did. It is remarkable what the medicine has done for me. I feel like another person; have gind tn pounds; my liver is active again; constipation relievd; stomach digests my food; I sleep well and just feel grand again. And DRECO did it."

All good druggists now sell Dreco, and it is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Company.

SOME FIGURES ON VAST FOOD STORES HELD BY MILITARY

Referring to High Cost of Living Representative Would Know Policy

LAW'S OPERATION NOT FREE

Supply and Demand Fail to Cut Price While Country Is Full of Live Stock

Washington, June 25, —Reffering in the House to the abnormally high prices of the necessaries of life, Representative Fess of Ohio said:

"I was looking over the price current as furnished in the daily press. Meat is selling at a price never known before in the history of the country, and, at the same time, so far as we know, the product is not limited, but rather, extended beyond the normal. So it would appear that the law of supply and demand, which has heretofore operated to control price, dose not operate, and all of us are anxious to know why it does not. It is pertinent to ask what influence is at work to interrupt this law.

"I have made a little inquiry about the amount of meats held by the Goverment, purchased for the purpose of war, and I want to give you the figures. I would like to have the attention of the membership of the committee as to these figures, for I know they must carry some significance when considered in the light of the scaling high prices charged to the public.

Quantities Held.

Roast beef held by the Government on the 20th of May, 12,000,000 6-pound cans, which would be about 72,000,000 pounds; 17,300,000 2-pound cans, or over34,000,000 pounds; 9,000,000 1-pound cans in addition to a great number of 12 ounce tins, or a total of something approaching 120,000,000 pounds of roast beef.

"Corned beef, 5,600,000 6-pound cans, or 33,000,000 pounds; 18,000,000 2-pound cans, or 36,000,000 pounds ; 9,000,000 1-pound cans; and 4,500,000 12-ounce cans; corned beef hash, 20,820,000 1 and 2 pound cans;bacon, 47,219,620 pounds.

"This represents about 282,000,000 pounds of meats held by the Government, which, according to a statement of the packers, represented five monts of the activities of the packing interest which were operating to collect the meat products for the Government. In normal times it is stated by the same authority that this would represent about two years of activity.

Wants to Know

"I am not, and every member will recognize this, criticizing the Governmentfor purchasing these large amounts because it was done in the midst of war for the purpose of feeding the soldiers of an army the duration of which nobody could estimate,and therefore the purchase is free of criticism. But here is my question: If the Government is holding to-day this vast number of pounds of meat with the country full of live stock and the price of bacon, nothwithstanding this tremendous supply, has reached the vanising point of 60 cents, why is it that there is not a freedom of the operation of the law of supply and demand? And the question immediately comes to me, What is the policy of the Government in its action in price fixing."

WOULD ELIMINATE FAT BUREAU JOBS

Washington, June 16.—"I have made some investigation of late," said Senator Smoot, in advocating limitation of salaries under the bill for vocational rehabilitation of injured ,"in conection with some of the salaries being paid today in bureaus which have been created, and they range all the wy from $5,000 up to $15,000 year, the latter sum being twice as much as a Senator of the United States is paid; and I know that the men who are holding the places could not command any such salaries as those in any other walk of life. They are being paid those amounts today by the Government of the United States; and I think we ought to limit the amount of salary that can be paid to any employees of this board."

Senator Kenyon and other agreed with the Utah Senator and there are indications that from now on there will be a distinct effort sharply to limit salaries to reasonable figures.

FLOYD

Editor Union-Banner, and to the people: Here I come again with a few words about the Catholics.

As I stand on the planes of religious and political freedom, I can hear the howl of the wolf, the scream of the panther, the growl of the tiger and the roar of the lion. And as I listen they seem to be getting nearer all the time, and as I look I can see in the horison a dark cloud that threatens to bring a storm. So it is high time that we arm ourselves with the weapon of the Word of God, and flee to the shelter of Christ. Listen, dear people; if the Catholics were a religion alone separated from politics and the government it would be well enough to just let them alone; but that is not all. They want to connect church and state together. But even if they only held it as a religion it would be wise to fear them.

I will give you some of their devotions to the "Virgin Mary," which is found on page 313 and 314 of their manual called "Our Heavenly Guest" which reads as follows: "Behold, at thy feet a mother of perpetual help, a wretched sinner who has recourse to thee and confides in thee, O Mother of Mercy, have pity on me; I hear thee called by all the refuge and the hope of sinners be. Then my refuge and my hope, assist me for the love of Jesus Christ, stretch forth thy hand to a miserable fallen creature who recommends himself to thee and who devotes himself to thy service forever. I bless and thank Almighty God who in mercy has given me this confidence in the which I hold to be a pledge of my eternal salvation. It is true that in the past I have miserably fallen into sin because I had not recourse to thee. I know that with thy help I shall conquer. I know too that thou will assist me if I commit myself to thee, but I fear that in time of danger I may neglect to call on thee and thus lose my soul this grace. Then I ask of thee, and this I beg with all the ferver of my soul, that in all the attacks of hell, I may ever have recourse to thee. O Mary, help me; O Mother of perpetual help, never suffer me to lose my god."

Now, dear people, how does this sound to you? Does it sound like Christ is on the meditorial thrones or the "virgin Mary?" This and many more such things is found in this manuel which is their ritual and mode of worship.

I will in the near future give you these examinations for confession. So come on you readers, and let's help our brave Editor fight the battle.

REPUBLICANS IN CONGRESS KEEPING ECONOMY PLEDGE

Floor Leader Issues List Showing A Few of the Things that Have been Accomplished.

EARNESTNESS IS EVIDENT

Washington, June 30.—The Republican floor leader of the House, Representative Frank Mondell, of Wyoming, has issued the following review of the accomplishments of the House during the first months of its session.

"The special session of the Sixty sixth Congress has been in session a month. During that time the House of Representatives has considered and passed the six general supply bills and the railroad deficiency bills that failed in the closing hours of the last Congress at the end of three-months session.

Billion Dollars Saved.

"In the consideration and passage of these bills the House has effected a saving of approximately a billion dollars in the amounts carried in the session that expired March 4 last.

"These savings were in the main on three bills, though there were some reductions on all, and on these three bills, the army, navy and sundry civil, the reductions were in round figures approximately as follows:

"On the army appropriation bill, $400,000,000.

"On the Naval appropriation bill, $225,000,000.

"On the Sundry Civil appropriation bill, $385,000,000.

"In addition to these reductions the bill to supply deficiencies in railway revenues as it passed the House carried $750,000,000 instead of $1,200,000,000 as estimated by the railroad administration—a reduction of $150,000,000.

"These savings taken all together total nearly one and one-half billions of dollars as the approximate net reduction of appropriations by this first session of the Repubican Congress below the proposed appropriations of the closing session of the Democratic congress and estimates.

"Not only has the House made an unprecedented record during the 30 days of the session in disposing of the appropriation bills but the bills have receiveo careful and businesslike consideration, both in committee and on the floor. The reductions have not been made recklessly but after due consideration.

"Notwithstanding the very great savings that have been accomplished in the appropriations, it can be said without fear of successful contradiction that no legitimate, essential or useful public service has been injuriously curtailed by the reduction that has been made. The army and the navy and the civil services of the nation will all he adequately cared for, and provided for under the appropriations that have been made by the House.

Have Kept Pledge.

"At the beginning of the session the Republican majority in the House in conference promised speedy action on these appropriation bills and also prompt consideration of the program of legislation and investigation. There can be no question but what this pledge has been splendidly kept as far as appropriations are concerned, and in the matter of legislation the House has considered and passed the Woman Suffrage Resolution, the Day-Light Saving Repeal, and the bill returning the wires to their owners. And the various committees of the House are actively engaged in the consideration of other important legislation.

"A committee has been constituted to make an audit and study of the expenditures of the War Department during the period of the war, totaling $16,000,000,000. This Committee has organized, sub-divided into sub-committees and is prepared for work.

"The temper and attendance of the House has been good and the membership is evidencing a disposition to earnestly and carefully consider the problems before them. The record up to date is unsurpassed and the out look for the future bright promising results useful ond helpful in the public interest."

PROPAGANDA TO CONTINUE WAR BUREAUS

Republicans Will Not Relax Use of Knife in Effort To Lower Taxation

HOUSING COMMISSION DOOMED

Washington, June 30—The efforts of thousands of war-time office holders in Washington to impress upon the legeslative leaders the necessity for continuing the bureaus in which they are employed, although a state of peace has existd for more than half a year, is proving to be one of the greatest sources of annoyance to those Republicans members of Congress who are intent upon reducing taxation. At least two of these Republicans have expressed themselves upon the subject upon the floors of Congress and Senator Gronna of North Dakota, has suggested that the whole matter should be turned over to a commission which could report to Congress and enable it to make a clean sweep of superfluous bureaus and employees.

"Just on one small item in the agricultural appropriation bill," said Senator Gronna, who is chairman of the Agricultural Committee, "I have had at least one hundred of the employes of the affected bureau come to my office to urge not only continuation of the work, but also a greatly enlarged appropriation for its expansion. I think this matter of placing the executive branch of the government on a peace basis should be turned over to a commission which could do the work thoroughly."

Representative Fess of Ohio revealed even greater annoyances on the House side of the Capitol. He said:

Many Agencies.

"During the war there sprung up work in the conduct of the war that to the war machine seemed to do, and probably did, such good work in the conduct of the war that they are now, when the war is over, insisting upon continuing and enlisting all possible influences to impress the public with the tremendous importance of their activities. My office, as is your office, is besieged every day by both young and old, by people in office and out of office, by persons in Washington and out of Washington, by personal visitation and by letter and telegram, declaring that if we do not continue this agency and that agency we are going to turn the clock of progress backwards.

"Every member has been told that a refusal proves that he is not willing to be as progressive as was suggsted by the needs of war. Many of these agencies are conducting systematic propaganda which is now running at high speed. But in the light of the fabulous drain upon the Treasury, which reaches over $1,000,000,000 a month, our first duty is to use the knife. That duty is more imperrative and even more important than expedition in legislation."

The Housing Commission.

One of the bureaus which has made the most desperate efforts in this direction in the Housing commission which has already cost the country about $70,000,000, without, in the opinion of many members of congress, having accomplished good commensurate with the vast outlay of money. Chairman Langley of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds has brought the future of this particular commission to a crisis by introducing a resolution providing for a special investigation of its activities and expenditures. Even though the investigation should not be undertaken, it is practically certain that the commission will be cut short of funds on July 1, and thus forced to pass into history.

The committee on Public Buildings and ground recently inquired into the expenditures of the commission and concluded that out of the $100,000,000, appropriated for housing, there should be on hand an unexpended balance of $40,000,000. The commission, however, says it has only $32,000,000 on hand, and Chairman Langley proposes to find out what has become of the $8,000,000 which the commission has not acounted for. In addition to this disparity, Mr. Langley is anxious to get information as to the activities of the Commission in Bethlehem, Pa., where it is alleged it has expended $3,000,000 without having completed a single building.

One Country.

After all,
One country, brethren! We must rise or fail
With the supreme republic. We must be
The makers of her immortality—
Her freedom, fame,
Her glory or her shame,
Liegemen to God and fathers of the free!

After all—
Hark! From the heights the clean, strong clarion call
And the command imperious: "Stand forth
Sons of the South and brothers of the North!
Stand forth and be
As on soil and sea—
Your country's honor more than empire's worth!"

After all,
'Tis Freedom wears the loveliest coronal.
Her brow is to the morning; in the sod
She breathes the breath of patriots; every clod
Answers her call
And rises like a wall
Against the foes of liberty and God!

Tax Collector J. Dudley Collins went to Montgomery last Friday to make final settlement with the State Auditor, of tax matters of Chilton County for the past year.

CLANTON WANTS PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY TO HELP US CELEBRATE ON THE FOURTH.

All Things Are in Readiness for a Most Glorious Day for Chilton County. Do Not Fail to Come. Returned Soldiers and their Relatives Are Provided Entertainment.

Everybody in Clanton wants Every body in Chilton County to come here on the Fourth and partake of the festivities and the Barbecue. Just because Clanton realized that she must pay for the barbecue, and did it, does not alter the fact that the Celebration is a county affair. Every body knows why the people in the country have not pot paid much to ward the expenses of the day. It is because they havebeenbusily engaged in fighting grass and boll weevils between showers of rain that they have not given the proposition very much thought. The appeal has not been made to the people of the county by the committeemen selected for that purpose, because the committeemen were as busy as the other people.

But that is neither here nor there now. Last Saturday night Clanton resolved that Chilton County should have a barbecue and celebration for our returned soldiers at Clanton on July Fourth. A plan was organized by which Clanton should pay for the proceedings of the day whether the county helped or not. In other words Clanton determined that the county should have the Celebration for our soldiers, and that the people need not worry about the expense. Clanton is doing that part of the game. The money has been raised now and all things are ready for the feast. All the people of the county have got to do to fulfill their part of the contract is to lend their presence here on the Fourth. Of course if somebody wants to bring a basket along that will be all right.

Those of the county who have contributed toward the expense should feel assured that their donations were received with due thanks by the committee in charge. When Clanton decided to shoulder the financial burden of the occasion, it was done, knowing that the farmers were very busy and could not spare the time necessary to work up a response in their communities. It will be as much as the average farmer can do to spare the day the Fourth out of his crop to come here and enjoy the day.

So we are prepared to say to the people of the county, go to it; fight the grass and boll weevils to a finish till Thursday night. Then lay down the shovel and the hoe and pick up the fiddle and the bow. Come to Clanton on the Fourth and help us eat all those nice fat goats and lambs and calves that are right now being dressed for that purpose. And if your wife feels that she would like to fix up a few cakes and pies and custards to bring along in a basket to go with that barbecued meat, let her do so. All baskets will be welcomed on the table.

And don't forget to remind all the soldier boys that they are expected here on that day. We can't show them how we appreciate them if they are some other place. We want them in Clanton. Tell them all to be sure to come.

BE CAREFUL WITH YOUR CAR IN CLANTON ON THE FOURTH; DRIVE SLOWLY

Don't spoil your pleasure and the pleasure of somebody else by getting into an automobile accident on the Fourth. Keep your head and drive carefully. There will be a great number of people here on that day, and automobile and vehicle traffic will be heavy. If accidents are to be avoided the greatest care must be exercised by everyone.

It is far more easy to avoid these unpleasant accidents by being careful beforehand then it is to rectify the fatal results afterward.

There is entirely too much careless driving of cars about Clanton any how here lately. Many entirely unnecessary accidents have happened and others narrowly averted. There are other acidents just ahead of the careless and reckless driver.

We hope everyone will exercise caution on the Fourth in order that disastrous accidents may be averted.

ALL DAY SINGING

There will be an all day singing at Mt. Pisgah Church, five miles south of Clanton, on the Second Sunday in July. Everybody invited to come and bring dinner. J. S. HAND.

Wanted--A Father and Mother and Home

The Alabama Children's Aid Society is seeking a wholesome, Christian home for these three beautiful girls. The oldest has been the mother, since the real mamma died, to the two sisters and two brothers. Their father is an invalid, and has not worked for twelve months. An older brother supported them, for he is strong and full of courage. But they have no education, and no mother and no home. Won't you give them your home, your love, your affection?

PUBLIC IS PLEASED WITH BUSINESS VIM OF OUR CONGRESS

Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee Praises the Legislators.

SPECIFIES MUCH ACHIEVEMENT

Important Wark Accomplished in a Little Over one Month of Present Session.

Washington, June 30.—Republican National Chairman Will H. Hays who has been in various parts of the west in the past several weeks declares that the public appreciates and is much alive to the fact that Congress is getting down to business and is working efficiently in the effort to restore things to peace time conditions.

Mr. Hays in speaking about the achievements of Congress laid emphasis on the submission of the woman's suffrage amendment, the quick passage of appropaiation bills, the saving of something like $1,500,000,000 in expenditures and the return of the telephone and telegraph to their owners.

People Appreciative

"I can assure you that the people throught t he country appreciate the fact that Congress is working efficiently," said Mr. Hays. "The session has now lasted a month, and a little over. In that time a remarkable amount has been accomplished.

"The woman's suffrage amendment after waiting forty years was passed by the house on the third day of the session and not long afterward by the Senate.

"In this connection wherever I have gone I have found the women of the country are alive to the situation and very keenly interested in getting ready for participation in politics. I found a keen interest was taken in the recent conference which we had in Washington when it was announced that the women voters would be received into the Republican party and would freely participate in its affairs as new voters would participate.

A Great Task.

"The great task of passing the appropriation bills before July 1st when the fiscal year begins will be completed by both houses. Compared with bills of last session or demands of departments a saving will be made of approximately $1,500,000,000. The Committees have made enormous savings in spite of the fact that congress was not called until almost three months later than it might have been thus leaving little time for the consideration of the details of appropriations. Economy has been exercised without impairing the efficiency of the departments. The average man and woman without any question is deeply interested in the saving of money in these appropriations and thus tending to relieve the burden of taxation.

"Passage of the bill to restore the telephones and telegraphs to their owners is another important matter which this congress has accomplished. The bill to restore the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission over rates will soon be enacted. This is something greatly demanded by the country.

"The country is very anxious to see the railroad question taken up and settled and I am informed that the Interstate Commerce Committees of the House and Senate are about ready to devote themselves to a railroad bill and that there is reason to believe one will be passed within the next few months."

Mr. Hayes referred also to the activity of the important Committees of Congress and mentioned among others the Senate Education and Labor Committee and the House Labor Committee which he said were taking hold of labor problems with a view to trying to solve them in a broad-minded manner.

Wat shall we do with The Kaiser?

THEIR "FLAGSHIP"

By Clarissa Mackie

OUR members of the town committee stood on the dock and watched from afar the moving of Captain Lemuel Shad from his floating home, the Golden Hour.

The Golden Hour was a three-masted schooner of ancient build and her long anchorage in Little Harbor had not improved her appearance. Her hulk was a cloudy white, mottled with rust from the anchor chains, and her masts, stripped of canvas and rigging, were gaunt and bare.

Captain Lemuel's brother Abel owned the Golden Hour and it was by his "charity" that the old sailor remained in his floating home, where he lived a happy bachelor existence. Captain Lem had a little money and he was very contented aboard the old craft, dreaming over his years when, with a stout ship under control, he sailed the "Seven Seas."

Abel Shadd was one of the four men on the dock. He was looking through a telescope at the old schooner.

"She's a menace to navigation," said Abel, virtuously. "There's plenty of room at our house and Martha says he's welcome to spend the rest of his days there."

The other men exchanged winks. They knew Mrs. Abel Shadd had a keen eye out for Captain Lemuel's bit of money.

"What you going to do with the boat, Abel?" asked Hiram Ricks.

Abel lowered the telescope and spoke in guarded tones.

"It's confidential," he whispered. "I've sold it to the Sand Hill club folks—they're going to blow her up tomorrow just to celebrate the opening of the new clubhouse."

"Well, great gosh!" ejaculated Ricks. "You must have got a fancy

price for her—to turn Cap'n Lem out and sell it to them Yacht club fellers."

"Oh, not so much," said Abel, uneasily. "She's a menace to navigation, you know."

"Have you told Lem?" asked William Weems.

"Not yet—time enough for him to know tomorrow, when it's too late for him to take on. It's my boat, anyway," he added defensively. "I can do as I like about it. If those rich fellers at the club want to pay my price so's they can celebrate the Glorious Fourth, 'tain't for me to forbid 'em!"

"Not when it's money in your pocket," added Hiram Ricks.

"There's Lem coming ashore with his trunks and stuff," said Jim Pollard. "We better meet him and help him load the stuff onto the wagon."

Abel Shadd vanished from sight and when Captain Lem and his pathetic boatload of personal belongings reached the foot of the steps he found three old cronies there to help him unload.

Captain Shadd looked worn and haggard

"The Golden Hour was my first ship, boys," he said grimly "I hoped to spend the last days of my life aboard her; but Abel's obstinate. He's bound I shall spend what money I got on his folks. He'll see!"

The four old cronies, who had spent many a pleasant evening on the anchored schooner, sighed over bygone games of cribbage and checkers, with pipes and tobacco.

If anyone heard a whisper of Abel's secret as it drifted to Captain Lem's incredulous ear, it was not repeated. Only it was significant that Captain Lem's belongings went back to the Golden Hour and the doughty captain whistled a salt-flavored tune as he lugged his stuff aboard.

Captain Lem had two visitors that evening. One was Abel, who stamped the decks and vowed that Lem would be blown sky-high the next morning.

"They'll bring dynamite aboard at three o'clock!" he yelled, dancing around.

"No they won't!" denied Lem, coolly.

"It's their boat now!"

"You mean you sold it?" Lem's keen eyes searched Abel's face.

"Yes; the money's been paid over. It belongs to the Sand Hill Yacht Club."

"Then I'll invite you to get off!" snapped Lem sharply. "I'm commanding this ship—scoot!"

Abel's face was distorted with rage. "If you're blown to atoms don't come and blame me!" he chattered hysterically.

"I ain't likely to," said Lem, dryly, as his stepbrother went over the side.

Lem's second visitor arrived without announcement. His boat was a dark blotch under the ghostly hull of the Golden Hour. Lem leaned over the rail and watched the new arrival, who noiselessly boarded the schooner and set several heavy objects in the lee of the deckhouse.

It was a moonless night and the harbor was in darkness except for the bobbing anchor lights of scattered craft. Aloft on the naked spar of the Golden Hour gleamed her light.

Up on the brink of the high bluffs was the Sand Hill clubhouse. There was the sound of music and many lighted windows. The clubhouse would be crowded over the Fourth. The blowing up of the Golden Hour would be the event of the day.

All that night strange things happened about the old schooner. Many mysterious trips were made aboard until there was a queer cargo arranged under the rail. If Abel Shadd had glimpsed the cargo he would have yelled "Dynamite!" and deserted at once.

But, strange to say, dark forms hovered around her all night. Under her quarters voices muttered and occasionally there was a sharp flash of light.

He whistled softly as he trod the deck, and occasionally he smiled, but the darkness hid his face and the humorous twinkle in his eyes.

From the shore came the boom of cannon and the rattle of firecrackers, for Little Harbor lads began to celebrate the day before the Fourth.

Once in a while a skyrocket ripped to the zenith and at such times, when the Golden Hour stood forth in the transient glow, she presented an unusual sight.

The celebration committee of the yacht club evidently thought so. They did not put out to the schooner until after sunrise and the crowd on the clubhouse verandas, the pier and the beaches all marveled at the transformation of the Golden Hour.

As by some painter's magic brush, she wore a patriotic dress.

From stem to stern her hulk was painted in alternate broad stripes of red and white, while under her bow was a bright blue field scattered with crudely made white stars. It was a smeary job, but considering it had been done in the dark it answered the purpose.

The Golden Horn was aflutter with stars and stripes; from her masthead

Captain Lem Shadd came to the rail and answered the cheery hail of the yachtsmen.

"Well, Captain Lem, you've certainly made the old girl look coquettish!" laughed Anthony Lane, as he prepared to come up the landing steps.

"Stop right there, Mr. Lane," ordered Captain Lem.

"What's up?" demanded young Lane, and his impatient companions in the launch echoed the question.

"Flags are up—no trespassing!" retorted Lem sharply.

"But—we're the dynamite squad from the club—going to blow the old tub sky-high! Hi, there, Tony"—to an Italian in the launch—"bring along your explosives and that fuse!"

"You can't blow up the Stars and Stripes," he said, with a curious catch in his voice. "You wouldn't fire on the flag, would you?" he asked simply.

"Why, no, of course not; but this is different, Captain Lem. We bought the Golden Hour in order to celebrate the day. You understand, eh?"

Captain Lem shook his head. There was a bewildered look in his faded eyes.

"I painted her so's you couldn't touch her without insulting the flag, and you—you can't!" he ended fiercely.

"Confound it all," stammered Anthony Lane. "What difference does it make to you what happens to the old hulk? She belongs to us."

"I know, I know," said Captain Lem fiercely, "but once she belonged to me—I was twenty-one when I received my master's papers and she was my first ship.

"Once I owned her and then I sold my share to my brother Abel. She was my first ship and I hoped to die here. I can't see the Golden Hour blown sky-high to make a Fourth of July spectacle for a crowd of folks!"

The dynamite squad looked sheepishly at one another. They conferred together and, with a brief salute to Captain Lem, they put back to the yacht club.

When they had gone Captain Lem sat down in the sunshine and dropped his head in his palms. It had been a worrisome week and his eyes had not closed all night. Now that the critical moment was over he felt strangely weak and despondent. His air was not that of one who had gained a victory.

From the shore came the continual explosion of fireworks. There was a smell of powder in the air.

It was the glorious Fourth!

"They've got the law agin me," he muttered at last, "but I'll give my last salute!"

He uncovered the little brass cannon and the boom echoed across the water.

The dynamite committee returned unnoticed and reached the deck before Lem discovered them. He scowled as Anthony Lane approached him with a folded paper.

"You needn't serve any warrants on me," he protested.

"Just read it, Captain Lem," they urged, and at last he put on his spectacles and read the legal document.

It was a conveyance of the "schooner Golden Hour to Samuel Shadd, master mariner, for the consideration of one dollar," etc., etc.

"The Golden Hour is yours, Captain Lem," said young Lane. "In this way the club has decided to celebrate and the dynamite plan is abolished. We have elected the Golden Hour to be the stationary flagship of the club and —er—Captain Lem, we want you up at the club for luncheon."

The Golden Hour still rocks at anchor near the Sand Hill club wharf. Her paint is always fresh in patriotic colors, and she is the favorite meeting place for Captain Lem's friends. In summer, when the clubhouse is open, she is the favorite rendezvous for lovers and more sedate members from the yacht club.

Perhaps Captain Lem's happiest moment in the year occurs on July Fourth. On that date he is an honored guest at the club luncheon and there is one toast which is responded to by rousing cheers:

"To Admiral Shadd of our flagship, and his three master painters!"

UNDER THE BIG DOME.

Washington, June 30.—There are five states of the union which have twice as many senators as they have Representatives in the lower House of congress. In other words, the states of Delaware, Arizona, Nevada, New Mexico and Wyoming, although they each have the prescribed pair of Senators, can boast of only one member in the House of Representatives. The stte of Wyoming, however, has made up for its deficiency in numbers by reason of the fact it has caputred the leadership, which rests with Representative Frank W. Mondell. This lone member of the House from Wyoming was left an orphan at 6, was brought up on an Iowa farm, was trained mainly in the school of hard knocks and hard work and has gained the leadership thru the fact he has done many years of arduous service for his constituents in the House who have kept him in the legislative harness, though he is comparatively a young man, for nearly a quarter of a century.

The Hawaiian delegate to Congress, J. Kuhio Kalanianole, popularly known as "Prince Cupid," is on his way to the opening of the present extra session of congress. Although this interesting member of the House packed up and got ready to start for Washington immediately when the President of the United States, on the other side of the world from Hawaii, called Congress into session, he had to wait several weeks before he could get any sort of accommodation between his home in Waikiki and Washington. It is probable that he will have something to say concerning the government control of transportation when he reaches the capital.

Representative Wm. B. McKinley, one of the Republican members of congress from Illinois, was very much afraid a few days ago, that he was about to lose the support of a constituent who had voted for him every time he had run for office. This constituent, although an ardent supporter of Mr. McKinley, was otherwise a strong Democrat, and scratched the Democratic ticket in favor of Mr. McKinley only because he admired him. So the Illinois Congressman was momentarily chagrined a few days ago when he received a letter from his constituent which started off as follows:

But Mr. McKinley felt better when he read the conclusion which said:

"Hereafter I intend to vote the whole Republican ticket."

FOR DIVERSION OF WATER

If Required for Industrial Purposes and not Obtainable.

Washington, June 30.—The Senate has passed a bill providing for the diversion of water from irrigation systems to industrial use, where it is found that such diversion will not interfere with irrigation. The applicant for this commercial concession must show that he is unable to secure sufficient water from other sources before his application will be approved.

Wat shall we do with The Kaiser?

FIGURED IN HISTORY

Old Blue Bell Tavern, Near Philadelphia, Is Famous Revolutionary Relic.

OF THE several far-extended roads reaching outward from Philadelphia, the Darby road leading along the highland southward to Chester has, from the beginning, been of the most importance in our periods of war. Strictly considered, the road to Chester is not a highway. It is maintained as a turnpike under the control of a company which exacts a rate of toll which yields an income, it is stated, nearly equal to the capital stock involved.

There is testimony that the first float bridge spanning the Schuylkill river was built on this road at Gray's ferry under the direction of Gen. Israel Putnam. It was removed a few months later to keep the British out of Philadelphia. Captain Montressor's clever engineers, however, replaced it,

There was plenty of going and coming at Gray's ferry in the winter of Valley Forge, as a considerable portion of Howe's army was "hutted," as Maj. John Andre recorded in his diary, along the Darby road for three miles. When the British withdrew from Philadelphia, in June, 1778, they destroyed the float bridges.

In April, 1789, the Gray's ferry float bridge was decorated in honor of the journey of Washington to New York.

At the foot of the hill, close by Cobb's creek, a border stream of the city, is the "Blue Bell" of Paschalville, now happily saved and safe upon park soil of the municipality. The original bridge across the creek was built about forty years before the Revolution. At that time a very old grist mill, which had been built by the Swedish Governor Printz, stood beside the creek. It is said to have been the first mill operated in Pennsylvania. In Penn's time it was acquired by William Cobb, hence the name of the stream. The original Blue Bell tavern was a small wooden building, but the existing structure antedates the Revolution, at which time it was a popular stage house conducted by the Paschal family. Robert Morton, a youth of Philadelphia, wrote in his diary under date of November, 1777:

"This evening Lord Cornwallis with 2,500 men marched over the bridge at the middle ferry. With the intentions, as supposed, to attack the fort at Red Bank."

The next morning, while on their march toward Darby, an American picket, concealed in the Blue Bell, fired upon the advance and killed two grenadiers. Five of the Americans were bayoneted in the tavern.

Great Patriot's Worthy Life.

Patrick Henry retired from office, a popular man, but a tired one, and went to live on a new estate, called Leatherwood, consisting of 10,000 acres. The people were not willing that he should live a quiet life and elected him governor again in 1784, after which he practiced law and won great renown as a criminal lawyer.

He died very peacefully at Red Hill in 1799, taking great comfort in the Christian religion, which throughout his life had given him not only comfort but courage and hope.

"Cradle of Liberty"

FAMOUS OLD FANEUIL HALL.

NEW YORK HAS LIBERTY BELL

THE Liberty bell in Independence hall, Philadelphia, is famous throughout the world. Its ringing proclaimed liberty July 4, 1776, and ever since it has been sacred to all Americans. Everybody knows all about that bell, but the New York Herald tells of another which played a part in the stirring scenes of the republic's founding. The Herald says:

Here in New York city is another liberty bell, a bell whose history is as remarkable as that of the Liberty bell in Philadelphia, but which is practically unknown except to a few persons who have delved into ancient records and documents concerning it.

New York city's liberty bell hangs concealed in the belfry of the Dutch church at Fifth avenue and Forty-eighth street. It has been in New York city since 1731.

It proclaimed liberty to the citizens July 9, 1776, when Gen. George Washington read the adopted Declaration of Independence to the American troops and asked for its acceptance and ratification. Had the army not acclaimed liberty at that time and agreed to fight to death for freedom the Declaration of Independence would have become a worthless scrap of paper. But the army did acclaim liberty, and the bell rang out the tidings here just as the other bell in Philadelphia had done five days before.

Legacy to Old Dutch Church.

New York city's Liberty bell was given as a legacy to the Dutch church by one of the oldest inhabitants of this city, Abraham de Peyster, who served as mayor, treasurer and councilor and as governor in 1701, and whose statue now stands in the place of that of George III in the Bowling Green.

The bell was cast in Amsterdam and bears an inscription in Dutch, which, translated, reads:

"I was made by Le Gravne and N. Muller, Amsterdam, 1731. Abraham de Peyster, born July 8, 1657; died Aug. [illegible] e Dutch church, [illegible] c service of the [illegible] death of George [illegible] Great Britain, [illegible] announcing the succession of his son George II. It welcomed seven foreign governors, from Admiral George Clinton to Sir William Tyron, and in after years called the citizens to defend their rights or warned them of calamities.

Its Voice Still Resonant.

This Liberty bell is not cracked; its tone is as fine and sweet and resonant as on the day it rang at General Washington's command. Following are the more important occasions upon which New York's Liberty bell was rung in the eighteenth century, from the time it arrived in New York city in 1731 until it proclaimed liberty in 1776. The list has been compiled from colonial records and the history of New York and is authentic in every particular:

1735—Announcing the liberty of the press.

1741—Warning the citizens to protect themselves against the negroes, who threatened to rise and murder the whites. They burned Governor Clarke's residence within the fort and the homes of Admiral Sir Peter Warren, Winant Van Zandt, Colonel Phillipse and others.

1755—Announced the defeat of General Braddock.

1759—Rang for the capture of Quebec.

1760—Tolled for the death of George II and later for the accession of George III.

1764—Citizens called by the bell to protect the fishermen who had been impressed by a British man-of-war. The same day the Sons of Liberty were organized and summoned to meet by strokes of the bell.

1770—The British Sixteenth regiment attacked the Sons of Liberty, who had been summoned by the bell, and then occurred the battle of Golden Hill, when the first blood was shed in the American revolution, for it was five years before the battle of Lexington.

1775—News of the battle of Lexington reached New York city, and the citizens were summoned by the bell to seize a vessel in the harbor loaded with stores for the British army at Boston.

1775—News of the battle of Ticonderoga, and later of the battle of Bunker Hill, announced by the ringing of the bell.

1776—General Washington proclaimed the Declaration of Independence to the American army, and the Liberty bell and other bells in the city rang for several hours.

WHEN PATRIOT SPOKE

Ringing Words of Patrick Henry Are Enshrined in Hearts of All Free Men.

"I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

THESE were the ringing, closing words of Patrick Henry on March 23, 1775, as he delivered his immortal and eloquent address in support of the resolutions passed by the second revolutionary convention of Virginia, of which he was an honored delegate.

For six months the various colonies had been making military preparations. Lord Dunmore in Virginia wrote in December, 1774, to the earl of Dartmouth:

"Every county is now arming a company of men, whom they call an independent company for the avowed purpose of protecting their committees and to be employed against the government if occasion require."

When the movement for a well-regulated militia, referred to above, was introduced in the revolutionary congress in Virginia, it met some opposition, not because it was premature, but because Patrick Henry came out more boldly for war than anyone in the colonies had done before that time. Nearly fifty years later Thomas Jefferson said: "After all, it must be allowed that Patrick Henry was our leader in the measures of the resolutions in Virginia, and in that respect more is due to him than to any other person. . . . He left us all behind."

John Roane, who heard Patrick Henry's famous speech described it to Edward Fontaine in 1834, and this manuscript is in the library of Cornell university:

"You remember, sir, the conclusion of the speech, so often declaimed in various ways by schoolboys—'Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty, or give me death!' He gave each of these words a meaning which is not conveyed by the reading or delivery of them in the ordinary way.

"After a solemn pause, he raised his eyes and chained hands toward heaven, and prayed, in words and tones which thrilled every heart, 'Forbid it, Almighty God!' He then turned toward the timid loyalists of the house, who were quaking with terror at the idea of the consequences of participating in proceedings which would be visited with the penalties of treason by the British crown; and he slowly bent his form yet nearer to the earth, and said: 'I know not what course others may take,' and he accompanied the words with his hands still crossed, while he seemed to be weighted down with his emotion.

"Continuing, he lifted one hand firmly, as if holding a dagger with the point aimed at his breast. He stood like a Roman senator defying Caesar, while the unconquerable spirit of Cato of Utica flashed from every feature; and he closed the grand appeal with the solemn words, 'or give me death!' which sounded with the awful cadence of a hero's dirge, fearless of death, and victorious in death; and he suited the action to the word by a blow upon the left breast with the [illegible] and which seemed to drive the [illegible] home."

Battle of Bunker Hill

WON STRUGGLE FOR COLONISTS

What the Battle of Bunker Hill Meant to the Revolutionary Cause.

A LITTLE before sunset, 143 years ago, a few hundred American troops stacked their guns, threw off their packs, seized their trenching tools and set to work with great spirit. At midnight Boston was buried in sleep. The sentry's cry of "All's well!" could be heard distinctly from its shores.

At dawn, 143 years ago, the Americans at work were seen by the sailors on board the British ships of war and the alarm was given. The captain of the Lively, the nearest ship, without waiting for orders, put a spring upon her cable and, bringing her guns to bear, opened a fire upon the hill. One man, among a number who had incautiously ventured outside, was killed. A subaltern reported his death to Colonel Prescott and asked what was to be done. "Bury him," was the reply.

It was the first fatality in the battle of Bunker Hill, one of the most momentous conflicts in our Revolutionary history. It was the first regular battle betwen the British and the Americans and most eventful in its consequences. The British had ridiculed them as dastardly and inefficient; yet here the best British troops, led on by experienced officers, were repeatedly repulsed by an inferior force of that enemy—mere yeomanry—from works thrown up in a single night, and suffered a loss rarely paralleled in battle with the most veteran soldiers. According to their own returns their killed and wounded, out of a detachment of 2,000 men, amounted to 1,054 and a large proportion of them officers. The loss of the Americans was 411, out of 1,500 men engaged. So the number of casualties in this battle was more than 30 per cent of the number in action, thus placing it among the bloodiest battles known to history. At Waterloo the British loss was less than 34 per cent. No wonder that June 17 is to Boston a second Fourth of July.

Battle Meant Everything.

A gallant loyalist of Massachusetts, who fought so well for King George that he rose to be a full general in the British army, regarded Bunker Hill as a transaction which controlled everything that followed. "You could not," he would say to his friends on the other side, "have succeeded without it."

Bunker Hill exhibited the Americans to all the world as a people to be courted by allies and counted with by foes. It was a marvel that so many armed citizens had been got together so quickly and still a greater marvel that they had stayed together so long.

After the engagement at Lexington on April 19 the British force under General Gage was increased to 10,000 men by the arrival of Generals Howe, Clinton and Burgoyne with their commands from England. These occupied the town of Boston on a peninsula extending into the harbor. The naval forces consisted of the Falcon, Lively, Somerset, Symmetry, Glasgow and four floating batteries. Across the Charles river at Cambridge, and on the surrounding hills, were encamped between 16,000 and 20,000 undisciplined Americans. The British, thus cut off from communication with the mainland, were seriously hampered for provisions, and General Gage contemplated a movement to occupy the several heights near Charlestown, at Dorchester and adjacent points.

Colonists Alarmed.

The arrival of such a formidable force of the enemy caused the gravest concern to the colonists. It was rumored that the British would sally forth from Boston and burn the neighboring towns. It was to prevent this that the Americans determined to fortify Bunker Hill; for if the British should get out of the city and intrench upon Dorchester heights to the south of Boston, the continental position would be made untenable.

Not an unnecessary sound was made during the long hours of the night of June 16, 1775, and when dawn came intrenchments six feet high along the side of the hill were disclosed. In the face of the fire from the enemy ships and by the battery on Copp's hill the Americans kept steadily at work completing their intrenchments and, when there was a slight show of faltering after a shot better directed than the others had done some execution in the trenches, Prescott himself mounted the works and marched to and fro with drawn sword, regardless of the fact that he was a mark for the British. He thus preserved the courage of his men who had never before been under fire.

British Began Attack.

It was about three o'clock in the afternoon when the British troops, supported by a terrific bombardment from the ships in the harbor, advanced in solid column against the fortifications. Confidently they approached the works of the Americans, construing the silence on the hilltop as timidity. They changed their attitude on this point when they arrived within a few hundred feet of the redoubt. The Americans had been ordered to refrain from firing until the command was given. Thus it was the British advancing over the open stretch of ground, panting from the heat and the weight of their knapsacks, heard the word "Fire!" at the moment of their supreme confidence, and recoiled before a volley that mowed down many of their number.

A deadly fire was poured into the British columns, the marksmen of the Americans picking off the officers. Along the whole line of fortifications, from the rail fence to the redoubt, the British columns advanced a second time and once more were met with deadly fire. Now, however, they were prepared for it; although staggered by the shock, they soon rallied and continued their advance. The Americans fired with such rapidity that it seemed as if a continuous stream of fire poured out from the redoubt.

Brought Help to Prescott.

Although the field was strewn with their dead, the British again attempted to take the American position. Prescott had sent for re-enforcements early in the day and John Stark, with his New Hampshire company, had courageously crossed Charlestown neck under a severe fire from the enemy. But the hazard of the attempt deterred other commanders from bringing troops to the support of the brave Prescott.

With ammunition almost exhausted and troops tired out from the strain to which they had been subjected, Prescott realized the futility of holding his position in the face of repeated attacks by the reformed and re-enforced British lines. Nevertheless, he determined again to measure his strength with the adversary; and, with a command to his men to make every shot tell, he awaited the advance of the British. Again the latter were permitted to advance within 20 yards of the American works before they were fired upon. The British line was broken, but still it advanced. With their powder now quite exhausted, the Americans met their opponents with clubbed muskets and bayonets.

The odds were too great and Prescott ordered his men to retreat. It was in doing this that the Americans suffered their heaviest loss; among others who fell was Warren, one of the most cherished of the popular leaders.

E. A. Norris and E. L. Jones of Corinth, Beat 5, were in Clanton on Monday. They say that people in their community are coming to Clanton on the Fourth, expecting a big time.

Jessie Teel is at home again from the army. He saw several months service in France, and he now relates with pleasure the many experiences he had in the old world.

The British had ridiculed them as dastardly and inefficient; yet here the best British troops, led on by experienced officers, were repeatedly repulsed by an inferior force of that enemy—mere yeomanry—from works thrown up in a single night, and suffered a loss rarely paralleled in battle with the most veteran soldiers. According to their own returns their killed and wounded, out of a detachment of 2,000 men, amounted to 1,054 and a large proportion of them officers. The loss of the Americans was 411, out of 1,500 men engaged. So the number of casualties in this battle was more than 30 per cent of the number in action, thus placing it among the bloodiest battles known to history. At Waterloo the British loss was less than 34 per cent. No wonder that June 17 is to Boston a second Fourth of July.

Battle Meant Everything.

A gallant loyalist of Massachusetts, who fought so well for King George that he rose to be a full general in the British army, regarded Bunker Hill as a transaction which controlled everything that followed. "You could not," he would say to his friends on the other side, "have succeeded without it."

Bunker Hill exhibited the Americans to all the world as a people to be courted by allies and counted with by foes. It was a marvel that so many armed citizens had been got together so quickly and still a greater marvel that they had stayed together so long.

After the engagement at Lexington on April 19 the British force under General Gage was increased to 10,000 men by the arrival of Generals Howe, Clinton and Burgoyne with their commands from England. These occupied the town of Boston on a peninsula extending into the harbor. The naval forces consisted of the Falcon, Lively, Somerset, Symmetry, Glasgow and four floating batteries. Across the Charles river at Cambridge, and on the surrounding hills, were encamped between 16,000 and 20,000 undisciplined Americans. The British, thus cut off from communication with the mainland, were seriously hampered for provisions, and General Gage contemplated a movement to occupy the several heights near Charlestown, at Dorchester and adjacent points.

Colonists Alarmed.

The arrival of such a formidable force of the enemy caused the gravest concern to the colonists. It was rumored that the British would sally forth from Boston and burn the neighboring towns. It was to prevent this that the Americans determined to fortify Bunker Hill; for if the British should get out of the city and intrench upon Dorchester heights to the south of Boston, the continental position would be made untenable.

Not an unnecessary sound was made during the long hours of the night of June 16, 1775, and when dawn came intrenchments six feet high along the side of the hill were disclosed. In the face of the fire from the enemy ships and by the battery on Copp's hill the Americans kept steadily at work completing their intrenchments and, when there was a slight show of faltering after a shot better directed than the others had done some execution in the trenches, Prescott himself mounted the works and marched to and fro with drawn sword, regardless of the fact that he was a mark for the British. He thus preserved the courage of his men who had never before been under fire.

British Began Attack.

It was about three o'clock in the afternoon when the British troops, supported by a terrific bombardment from the ships in the harbor, advanced in solid column against the fortifications. Confidently they approached the works of the Americans, construing the silence on the hilltop as timidity. They changed their attitude on this point when they arrived within a few hundred feet of the redoubt. The Americans had been ordered to refrain from firing until the command was given. Thus it was the British advancing over the open stretch of ground, panting from the heat and the weight of their knapsacks, heard the word "Fire!" at the moment of their supreme confidence, and recoiled before a volley that mowed down many of their number.

A deadly fire was poured into the British columns, the marksmen of the Americans picking off the officers. Along the whole line of fortifications, from the rail fence to the redoubt, the British columns advanced a second time and once more were met with deadly fire. Now, however, they were prepared for it; although staggered by the shock, they soon rallied and continued their advance. The Americans fired with such rapidity that it seemed as if a continuous stream of fire poured out from the redoubt.

Brought Help to Prescott.

Although the field was strewn with their dead, the British again attempted to take the American position. Prescott had sent for re-enforcements early in the day and John Stark, with his New Hampshire company, had courageously crossed Charlestown neck under a severe fire from the enemy. But the hazard of the attempt deterred other commanders from bringing troops to the support of the brave Prescott.

With ammunition almost exhausted and troops tired out from the strain to which they had been subjected, Prescott realized the futility of holding his position in the face of repeated attacks by the reformed and re-enforced British lines. Nevertheless, he determined again to measure his strength with the adversary; and, with a command to his men to make every shot tell, he awaited the advance of the British. Again the latter were permitted to advance within 20 yards of the American works before they were fired upon. The British line was broken, but still it advanced. With their powder now quite exhausted, the Americans met their opponents with clubbed muskets and bayonets.

The odds were too great and Prescott ordered his men to retreat. It was in doing this that the Americans suffered their heaviest loss; among others who fell was Warren, one of the most cherished of the popular leaders.

"Cradle of Liberty"

FAMOUS OLD FANEUIL HALL.

NEW YORK HAS LIBERTY BELL

THE Liberty bell in Independence hall, Philadelphia, is famous throughout the world. Its ringing proclaimed liberty July 4, 1776, and ever since it has been sacred to all Americans. Everybody knows all about that bell, but the New York Herald tells of another which played a part in the stirring scenes of the republic's founding. The Herald says:

Here in New York city is another liberty bell, a bell whose history is as remarkable as that of the Liberty bell in Philadelphia, but which is practically unknown except to a few persons who have delved into ancient records and documents concerning it.

New York city's liberty bell hangs concealed in the belfry of the Dutch church at Fifth avenue and Forty-eighth street. It has been in New York city since 1731.

It proclaimed liberty to the citizens July 9, 1776, when Gen. George Washington read the adopted Declaration of Independence to the American troops and asked for its acceptance and ratification. Had the army not acclaimed liberty at that time and agreed to fight to death for freedom the Declaration of Independence would have become a worthless scrap of paper. But the army did acclaim liberty, and the bell rang out the tidings here just as the other bell in Philadelphia had done five days before.

Legacy to Old Dutch Church.

New York city's Liberty bell was given as a legacy to the Dutch church by one of the oldest inhabitants of this city, Abraham de Peyster, who served as mayor, treasurer and councilor and as governor in 1701, and whose statue now stands in the place of that of George III in the Bowling Green.

The bell was cast in Amsterdam and bears an inscription in Dutch, which, translated, reads:

"I was made by Le Gravse and N. Muller, Amsterdam, 1731. Abraham de Peyster, born July 8, 1657; died Aug. 8, 1728. A legacy to the Dutch church, New York."

Almost the first public service of the bell was tolling for the death of George I, the German king of Great Britain, and announcing the succession of his son George II. It welcomed news from abroad, sometimes from Admiral George Clinton, to the British throne, and in after years called the citizens to defend their rights or warned them of calamities.

Its Voice Still Resonant.

This Liberty bell is not cracked; its tone is as fine and sweet and resonant as on the day it rang at General Washington's command. Following are the more important occasions upon which New York's Liberty bell was rung in the eighteenth century, from the time it arrived in New York city in 1731 until it proclaimed liberty in 1776. The list has been compiled from colonial records and the history of New York and is authentic in every particular:

1735—Announcing the liberty of the press.

1741—Warning the citizens to protect themselves against the negroes, who threatened to rise and murder the whites. They burned Governor Clarke's residence within the fort and the homes of Admiral Sir Peter Warren, Winant Van Zandt, Colonel Phillipse and others.

1755—Announced the defeat of General Braddock.

1759—Rang for the capture of Quebec.

1760—Tolled for the death of George II and later for the accession of George III.

1764—Citizens called by the bell to protect the fishermen who had been impressed by a British man-of-war. The same day the Sons of Liberty were organized and summoned to meet by strokes of the bell.

1770—The British Sixteenth regiment attacked the Sons of Liberty, who had been summoned by the bell, and then occurred the battle of Golden Hill, when the first blood was shed in the American revolution, for it was five years before the battle of Lexington.

1775—News of the battle of Lexington reached New York city, and the citizens were summoned by the bell to seize a vessel in the harbor loaded with stores for the British army at Boston.

1775—News of the battle of Ticonderoga, and later of the battle of Bunker Hill, announced by the ringing of the bell.

1776—General Washington proclaimed the Declaration of Independence to the American army, and the Liberty bell and other bells in the city rang [illegible]

WHEN PATRIOT SPOKE

Ringing Words of Patrick Henry Are Enshrined in Hearts of All Free Men.

"I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

THESE were the ringing, closing words of Patrick Henry on March 23, 1775, as he delivered his immortal and eloquent address in support of the resolutions passed by the second revolutionary convention of Virginia, of which he was an honored delegate.

For six months the various colonies had been making military preparations. Lord Dunmore in Virginia wrote in December, 1774, to the earl of Dartmouth:

"Every county is now arming a company of men, whom they call an independent company for the avowed purpose of protecting their committees and to be employed against the government if occasion require."

introduced in the revolutionary congress in Virginia, it met some opposition, not because it was premature, but because Patrick Henry came out more boldly for war than anyone in the colonies had done before that time. Nearly fifty years later Thomas Jefferson said: "After all, it must be allowed that Patrick Henry was our leader in the measures of the resolutions in Virginia, and in that respect more is due to him than to any other person. . . . He left us all behind."

John Roane, who heard Patrick Henry's famous speech described it to Edward Fontaine in 1834, and this manuscript is in the library of Cornell university:

"You remember, sir, the conclusion of the speech, so often declaimed in various ways by schoolboys—'Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty, or give me death!' He gave each of these words a meaning which is not conveyed by the reading or delivery of them in the ordinary way.

"After a solemn pause, he raised his eyes and chained hands toward heaven, and prayed, in words and tones which thrilled every heart, 'Forbid it, Almighty God!' He then turned toward the timid loyalists of the house, who were quaking with terror at the idea of the consequences of participating in proceedings which would be visited with the penalties of treason by the British crown; and he slowly bent his form yet nearer to the earth, and said: 'I know not what course others may take,' and he accompanied the words with his hands still crossed, while he seemed to be weighted down with his emotion.

"Continuing, he lifted one hand firmly, as if holding a dagger with the point aimed at his breast. He stood like a Roman senator defying Cæsar, while the unconquerable spirit of Cato of Utica flashed from every feature; and he closed the grand appeal with the solemn words, 'or give me death!' which sounded with the awful cadence of a hero's dirge, fearless of death, and victorious in death; and he suited the action to the word by a blow upon the left breast with the [illegible]

Battle of Bunker Hill

What the Battle of Bunker Hill Meant to the Revolutionary Cause.

A LITTLE before sunset, 143 years ago, a few hundred American troops stacked their guns, threw off their packs, seized their trenching tools and set to work with great spirit. At midnight Boston was buried in sleep. The sentry's cry of "All's well!" could be heard distinctly from its shores.

At dawn, 143 years ago, the Americans at work were seen by the sailors on board the British ships of war and the alarm was given. The captain of the Lively, the nearest ship, without waiting for orders, put a spring upon her cable and, bringing her guns to bear, opened a fire upon the hill. One man, among a number who had incautiously ventured outside, was killed. A subaltern reported his death to Colonel Prescott and asked what was to be done. "Bury him," was the reply.

It was the first fatality in the battle of Bunker Hill, one of the most momentous conflicts in our Revolutionary history. It was the first regular battle betwen the British and the Americans and most eventful in its consequences. The British had ridiculed them as dastardly and inefficient; yet here the best British troops, led on by experienced officers, were repeatedly repulsed by an inferior force of that enemy—mere yeomanry—from works thrown up in a single night, and suffered a loss rarely paralleled in battle with the most veteran soldiers. ROLL CALL AND COVENANT MEETING AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH HERE

On next Sunday, July 6, the church will hold a periodical roll call and Covenant Meeting, as is the custom in a large proportion of Baptist churches. The membership has a tendency to become scattered and the roll call assists in locating them.

The Church Covenant is used by Baptist Churches as a short summary of the Scripture statements of Christ and the apostle as to the nature of a New Tesament Church and the obligations assumed by its members towards each other and the world at large. This is especially appropriate at this time just after a large number of young people who need instructing have come into our church.

The world at large should not judge Christianity by the conduct of its church members altogether, although it has the right to do so, but rather should examine the ideals for which Christianity contends, e.g., as set forth in the Covenant. If the professors of Christianity fall short it is their individual fault and not of Him who said "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me."

Covenant Agreement of Members of Clanton Baptist Church.

As we have been brought by divine grace to embrace the Lord Jesus Christ as our Savior, and by the influence of His Spirit to give ourselves up to him; so we do now solemnly covenant with each other, that God helping us, we will walk together in Brotherly Love.—I Cor., 12:12.

That we will exercise a Christian care and watchfulness over each other and faithfully warn, rebuke and admonish one another as the case my require.—I Thes. 5:14-15.

That we will not forsake the assembling of ourselves together, nor omit the great duty of prayer(both for ourselves nd others.)—Hebrews 10:25 .

That we will participate in each others joys and endeavor with tenderness and sympathy to bear each others burdens and sorrows.—Romans 12;15; Gal. 6:1-2.

That we will earnestly endeavor to bring up those who are under our care in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.—Eph. 6.4.

That we will seek divine aid to enable us to walk circumspectly and prayerfully in the world, denying ourselves of all ungodliness and worldly lust.—Titus 2:11-12.

That we will strive together for the support of a faithful and evangelical ministry.—I Cor. 9:14.

That we will endeavor by precent and example, to win souls to Christ and through life, amidst evil as well as good report, seek to live to the glory of Him who has calleld us out of darkness into His marvelous light. —I Peter 2:11-12.

SESSION CHILTON COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION

The Fifteenth Annual Session of the Chilton County Singing Convention will be held at Collins Chapel Church, two miles east of Thorsby, on Saturday afternoon and Sunday, July 19 and 20, 1919.

A business session will be held on Saturday at 2:00 o'clock, p.m..

Sunday will be spent in singing, and we expect to have some of the best singers of the county in attendance.

All members are urged to attend the business session.

Those wishing conveyance from Thorsby, write J. M. Mims, Clanton, Alabama, Route No. 4.

MRS. HONEYCUTT DEAD

Mrs. R. M. Honeycutt, wife of former Probate Judge Huneycutt, died at the Family home in Jemison last Saturday and was burried at Pleasant Grove Sunday. The deceased was an honored lady of good report, having many dear friends through out the County who will mourn her untimely death.

WHERE THE BARBECUE WILL BE

The Committee on Location for the Barbecue in Clanton on the Fourth has decided to have it in the grove just north of Maddox's Gin, on the hillside adjacent to the city water works plant. The location is not what you might call an ideal one, but taking all things into consideration, it is the best that can be obtained in Clanton. There is plenty of shade and conditions surrounding the place make it free and accessible for such an occasion.

The table is being constructed in good style, and the committee in the charge of the barbecue is having the meats prepared. The boy scouts will be on the ground with plenty of ice cold drinks to quench your thirst, and everything points to a successful day.

OLD SOLDIERS INVITED TO COME HERE ON THE FOURTH

The committee in charge of the Barbecue and Sosdiers Celebration here on the Fourth of July extends a special invitation to all the old Confederate soldiers in the County to come here on the Fourth and have a good time with the young soldiers of the late war.

We hope that all the Confederate veterans of the county will be here. Provisions will be made by the committee to see that they have a good time and are taken care of. The boy scouts will be on hand to assist the old soldiers in any way they can. Come along, old soldiers, and help the young soldiers have a time.

J. Monroe Parrish of Beat 16 came to Clanton Monday and paid to the Barbecue Treasurer the contribution of his community for the Fourth of July Celebration. He said his people intended to come to Clanton on the Fourth and help make the day what it ought to be for our soldiers, and that they wanted to pay their bit on the expenses. This shows that old Beat 16 can still be depended upon to come across with her share of any good movement. The people of that Beat live in the hills it is true, but there are no better people on earth.

NEWS OF MARS HILL

Dear Editor:

Will you please allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words from this place.

Health around here is very good, everybody working these beautiful days.

Singing here at this place was just fine. Every singer seemed to take a great interest in the singing.

The directors for the day were, A. H. Glasscock, James Franklin, C. W. Scott, Zack Jones, Joseph Headley and Edgar Scott.

We were sure glad to have Prof. A. H. Glasscock and Prof. Franklin with us. They rendered us some good songs, which we are sure everyone enjoyed, the singers especially.

Organists for the day were, Miss Mamie Cofer, Mrs. Levie Scott, Mrs. China Headley and Prof. George Anderson.

Several people were here from Pates Chapel, Providence and many other places.

There were some visitors here from Pletcher and Brompton.

At noon a bountiful dinner was served, everyone (I suppose) enjoyed a full meal.

There will be preaching at this place next First Sunday.

W were glad to see so many folks come out to the singing. We have singings every second and fourth Sundays in each month.

The farmers seem to be getting along well with their crops. Hope they will have a success.

Come, all you subscribers to this paper, and let's cheer our readers by writing the happenings of our home communities.

Wat shall we do with The Kaiser?

Keep your eye on the yellow name label on your paper. It tells you the date your subscription will be out. Remember we stop your paper when your time is out.

GOOD ROADS MEETING AT MONTGOMERY JULY 10-11

A letter received by The Union-Baner from Mr. F. A. Gulledge of Verbena, is of especial interest and significance to the people of Chilton County in the matter of good roads and improved highways. Mr. Gulledge's remarks are made upon the receipt by him of a letter from Hon. F. J. Cramton of Montgomery, president of the Alabama Highway Improvement Association.

The subject under direct discussion in both letters is the meeting of the Highway Association in Montgomery July 10 and 11, and indirectly urging our people to wake up to their opportunities in the matter of good roads.

Mr. Gulledge's Letter.

Editor Union-Banner:

I send you for publication in your next week's issue a copy of letter to me from Fred J. Cramton, president of the Alabama Highway Improvement Association, relative to a meeting of the association in Montgomery on July 10 and 11.

The public of Chilton and all other Alabama counties should bear in mind that they have an offer from Uncle Sam of six million dollars. If Alabama will raise a like amount. I have no automobile, use the public roads very little, yet, to further guud roads and the comfort and financial interest of Alabama's citizens I spend probably more money than any citizen of our county.

Let Chilton County send a strong delegation down, not for one but two days. Let us get out of that meeting all there is to be had. Bring out your new big cars. Rub up your old Ford; get a hair cut and a nice shave; put on your best clothes; go down and let us put Chilton County on the map.

Take your wives and daughters along. You and they will learn something at this good roads gathering. Don't go to the picture show, but to the good roads meeting, at the close of which you can say like the good old Methodist or Baptist at the close of a revival: "Brethren, it is good to be here."

Yours for the six million and better roads. F. A. Gulledge.

Cramton's Letter.

Mr. F. A. Gulledge.

My Dear Sir:—The time has come when the people of Alabama must settle the question of building and maintaining good roads all over the State. A way must be found to secure the six million dollars which has been offered to Alabama by the Federal Government.

The Good Roads Convention in Montgomery July 10—11 will be the opportunity for your County to show whether it wants good roads or not. The members of the Legislature are anxious that Alabama should have good roads, but we must let them know that we are interested, and you must let them know that your County is interested.

The Convention will determine a definite plan of good roads building for recommendation to the Legislature, and as a pledge of support to their final action.

Many counties in the State have already expressed their deep interest in the Convention and will send a strong delegation to represent them. Every county in the State should be well represented. The interest of your county in good roads will be indicated by the delegation you send to the Convention.

Yours for good roads for Alabama.

F. J. Cramton, Pres.

We people of Clanton are good people, even if we do have to say it ourselves. While at the same time, we have to give ourselves credit for also being very peculiar animals. Both these qualities have been very prominently shown in the recent activity regarding the Fourth of July Barbecue and Celebration. Clanton people have shown that they possess the most estimable spirit of giving to a good cause. Not only has that been demonstrated by the thousand dollars given by Clanton to provide our returned soldiers this Barbecue and celebration; but our city has paid its quota in the several drives of one sort and another for war funds in the past two years.

Clanton evidently, is interested and determined in its action toward the Barbecue, or else the money would not have been raised so easily, but outside of paying the cash no interest was manifest; and therein lies an instance of our peculiarity. People are looking forward to the Fourth expecting a big time and they will have it too. But more of us should realize that there then on the Fourth go up to a table in the grove is more to do than merely to pay a dollar and and grab a leg of barbecued mutton and set to work on it. Our people are indeed entitled to high honors for their financial support. But they should be impressed to lend more of their personal influence toward helping carry out plans. It is too much for the few who have kept this thing alive to have to make all the plans and carry out, when at the same time there are dozens of other good competent citizens doing nothing but paying their dollar and sitting in their easy chairs waiting for the meat to be cooked.

Clanton has the right kind of public spirit. Our people are good people and can be relied upon for their part of any honorable proposition. But their interest can be measured only by what they actually pay. They seem to be absolutely averse to coming out to a public meeting to push an undertaking. But if some two or three will lay out the scheme and send the list around, they will pay all right.

We reckon after all it is better for us to fail to show our interest publicly, but give of our means liberally when asked, than to make a big public showing at first and then fail to come across with the cash.

Anyway, now the barbecue has been pulled through. The plans have all been splendidly executed, the tables all built, and even at this writing you may sense the odor of barbecued lamb and mutton and beef, all getting in readiness for the host of people that are to be here on the Fourth.

And the honors for the occasion are not after all to those whose money provided the material things of the day. All these things are reverently given by the donors that our soldier boys who have returned to us may feel that they did not fight in vain, and that their comrades who sleep in Flanders fields did not die for a people who do not appreciate their sacrifice.

Where Were They a Year Ago?

A year ago our boys were facing the Huns on the bloody battle line in France. In addition to those who were already facing the enemy guns millions more were training in the camps of this country preparing themselves for the awful ordeal. And behind those in the camps there was another steady stream of millions of civilians whose uniforms were already made and whose guns were already forged, waiting the call that would bring them into active service. Indeed, our whole country, men, money, and all material, resources, was devoted to the filling of the bloody lusts of the war god, mad with rage throughout the entire world.

But what is the condition today? The bloody beast that set the world on fire has been subdued by the onsloughts of our own determined boys. Our resources have accomplished that task whereunto we so loyally devoted them, and our sons and brothers have returned to us with the trophy of victory. The great stream of our best and most vigorous mankind that a year ago was flowing outward from our homes to foreign lands, has been turned about and has quickly wafted the boys back to us. Then should we be proud? Should we celebrate our success.

Indeed, there has never been a time in the brief space of our lives when we had more real reason to celebrate than this Fourth of July, our National Independence Day. Chilton County had her share of the men engaged in the great conflict that has just been officially closed by the signing of the peace treaty. And we should now do our share of the celebrating. Let us do it on the Fourth. Clanton will be running over with the joy of the occasion on the Fourth. The people of Chilton County will be here to show that they are glad that we now live in a world at peace, instead of a world at war.

JUDGE REYNOLDS' APPEAL FOR DELEGATION TO ROAD MEETING

The Alabama Highway Improvement Association will meet in Montgomery July 10 and 11. I have asked for 20 penants for cars going from here and I hope every one will be used. I am asking that everyone who will carry their car to Montgomery the 10th write me so that I can furnish them a penant.

I want the people in this county to take an interest in this meeting for it will be an important meeing for us as we must have something done for the highways or we will lose what has already been done. It is time the poor counties, like ours,, were doing something to try and get help on our public roads and as the legislature will be in session on the day the association meets, a large convention will certainly have some effect on them.

The United States government has given Chilton County three trucks. We have one tractor and some other road tools which could be used on the roads if we only had some money with which to operate them, but we have not a cent that we can spare. If we had $6,000 to put up for the county we could get $6,000 given to us by the State and $12,000 given to us by the U. S. government. Now, if this is not enough to arouse every thinking man in this county—to put up one dollar and the government gives you three—and yet, we cannot go our part on account of our financial condition.

The rich counties are taking advantage of the offers of the government and are building roads all over their county, but poor counties like ours are going backwards for we are letting our roads go down.

I have written so much about the roads that I am almost ashamed to ask the papers to print anything from me, but when I see the roads going down I feel like I want to do something. So, won't you go to Montgomery July 10 to meet the legislature and impress with them the importance of getting up some plan to help the counties that are in the same condition as ours?

I hope at least twenty men will immediately write me that they will go to Montgomery July 10 and 11, and I will send them a banner for their car.

The Mahan Brake in Operation.

CLANTON BRAKE FACTORY TO EXPAND ITS SCOPE

Mahan Brake Company, Incorporated, Will Extend its Sales Field Over Entire Country now.

After ten years of successful manufacturing and selling of the Mahan Wagon Brake, the owners of the business have decided that now is the right time to expand their business and to reach out into larger fields for their business.

They have just recently equipped their factory with modern machinery that has largely increased its daily capacity and are thus prepared to take care of much larger volume of business than they have been heretofore.

The Mahan Wagon Brake is well and favorably known over all middle Alabama and in many other parts of the country as well. It possesses points of superiority not held by any other brake made and is especially popular with loggers, lumbermen, farmers and others whose work demands an absolutely efficient and sure-working brake.

The present owners of the business, Messrs Henry, Arkie and Zed Mahan and J. W. Stanfield, will incorporate immediately for $50,000. Part of the capital stock will be placed on the market. The people of Clanton and Chilton County will be given the first oportunity of investing in this home enterprise and if any stock remains, it will be placed elsewhere.

The Organization Service, Inc., of Birmingham, are acting as fiscal, advertising and sales agents for the new corporation, and they have placed Mr. Claud E. Marcus, a well known Clanton boy who is a member of the firm, in Clanton to look after the local end of the business. Sales and advertising offices have already been opened in the Lyric Building, Birmingham, under the direct charge of H. D. Cullen, president of the Organization Service, Inc.

Local people are very enthusiastic as to the future of this enterprising firm and good business is predicted from the start.

Mr. Marcus will have charge of the demonstration booth at Clanton on Friday of this week, on the occasion of Chilton County's big home-coming celebration, where the brakes will be shown in actual operation to all those who may not already be familiar with it.

BOY SCOUTS

The Clanton Boy Scouts are going to cut a big figure in the Celebration at Clanton on the Fourth. Their activities will take in vasrious phases of the occasion, and preparations have been made to pull down their part of the program in grand style. The scouts have officially adopted as their slogan for that day "Tell it to the Boy Scouts; they will help yoo do it."

The Scout Band.

To begin with, the music for the occasion is to be furnished by the Boy Scout Band. This feature alone stamps the scout movement in Clanton as a thing of which our people ought to be highly thankful and in which we ought to exercise much pride. It is worth a great deal for Clanton to have right here at home a band for such occasions. And for all this the scouts are to be rendered the thanks.

Information Bureau.

On the barbecue grounds the Fourth there will be established temporary scout headquarters which will be for the purpose of serving the people as an information and assistance agency. Don't forget to tell it to the Boy Scouts. They will help you do it. Ask them anything you want to know and you will get a keen and cordial response. The ladies and old people especially are urged to take advantage of the usefulness of the scouts on that day. One main thing the scouts are planning to do is to help the mothers keep track of the babies and little ones who may chance to roam among the crowds, and any assistance that they may be to the older who need assistance and direction about anything, the same will be granted with gladness. It is a part of the scout program, and the people are expected to use the boys in any of these ways.

Ice Cream and Drinks.

The entire concession for selling ice cream and cold drinks on the barbecue grounds for that day has been given to the souts and they have already made arrangements to serve the people amply in this respect. It is hoped that the patronage that they receive in this business that day may render aid to the scout movement financially and enable the boys to have a little money ahead in their treasury to take care of their little necessary expenses from time to time. You are urged to quench your thirst on the Fourth by a drink of soda water and thereby at the same time help to strengtnen the scouts in their worthy efforts to accomplish things worth while.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

Hymn for Independence Day

Eugene C. Dolson.

O Thou, who through the long years gone
Hast guided us in safety on,—
God of our native land, to Thee,
The guardian of Liberty,
Our hearts today in one accord
Acknowledge all, and thank Thee, Lord.

Beyond the swift-receding past
The world moves on, through changes vast;
Beyond the reach of ways outworn
Our restless age is onward borne.
Oh, keep us one in heart henceforth,
From sea to sea, from South to North!

On this, our nation's natal day,
For world-wide amity we pray;
For peace, good-will, disarmament
In lands by war and faction rent;
For all which trends to common good
And universal brotherhood.

But first and most of all things yet,
Our own trust let us not forget:
Be ours to guard that freedom won
At Bunker Hill and Lexington,—
Be ours true loyal hearts and free—
True to our sires and true to Thee!

Replica of One of the Huts Which Sheltered Hessians Is Interesting in This Year 1919.

As a reminder of the dark days in our history, a replica of one of the huts that sheltered the Hessian troops on Inwood hill, Manhattan Island, in Revolutionary times has been reconstructed at Broadway and Two Hundred and Fourth street, New York. It is built of stones excavated from the ruins of some 40 of the barracks that have of late been uncovered on the east slope of the historical ridge, and of timbers of a Long Island barn erected in the latter part of the eighteenth century. It contains many of the relics that have been recovered during the excavating, which has been carried on for several years.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

NORTH CAROLINA WAS FIRST

Published Declaration of Independence Long Before the One Which Has Become Immortal.

North Carolina not only disputes with New England the honor of the first battle of the Revolution, and the credit of holding the first "tea party," but points with pride to its Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, antedating that of Philadelphia by two months. The battle of Alamance was fought in 1771, admitted by at least one New England historian, Bancroft, as being the first of the Revolution. The tea party was held in front of the governor's palace at least eighty years before Boston dumped her tea in the harbor.

A BIBLE INSTITUTE

I attended three lectures given by C. Leroy Butler, D.D., L.L.D., at Salem Baptist Church (colored) in Clanton last week, and I want to say they have a man that is qulified to do the darkies great good and I feel sure that he is doing a great work among the colored people.

He is an evangelist of the Home Board of the Southern Baptist Convention and I do not think the Board has made any mistake in sending out this man. I understand that he has worked for four years traveling in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Georgia and is now in Alabama, his native State. He was born at Wilsonville, Shelby County.

The Shelby Springs Colored Baptist Association of which Rev R. C. Mixon is Moderator, arranged with the Board to secure the services of Rev. Butler five weeks within their bounds. They call it conducting Bible Institutes and a school for the pastors. The pastors will follow this Institute work with an evangelic campaign under the leadership of Dr. Butler.

I will say further that he is not only intelligent but if I am any judge, he preaches sound Bible doctrine, which is sometimes a rarity in this day. Good for the darkies.

Rev. R. C. Mixon has been pastor in Clanton I understand about sixteen years, and has the confidence and esteem of his people. There seems to be no thought among the colored people of having anybody else as pastor. He is a good mixer and a good stayer.

AMERICA'S DEBT TO LAFAYETTE

Washington Paid Tribute to Great Services Rendered.

WHEN the Revolution began Americans were still pioneers and straight shooters. The country was full of men who had seen service in war against the French and Indians. Washington had been all his life a soldier. It is not surprising that American officers felt quite able to handle the military situation without assistance from the host of applicants for commissions from abroad. Therefore when Washington heard that a young Frenchman named Lafayette had left his wife and child and crossed the ocean to serve the American cause as a volunteer without pay, he muttered: "One more incumbrance." But Lafayette pleaded: "Give me a chance; I do not want to be an honorary soldier."

He went to Washington's camp and there began a friendship which ran through so many years like an idyl. In 1788 Brissot visited Washington at Mt. Vernon with a letter from Lafayette.

Lafayette.

He says Washington "spoke to me of M. De Lafayette with emotion; he considers him as his child." Later, Lafayette sent to Washington the key to the destroyed Bastile, saying: "It is a tribute which I owe as a son to my adopted father, as an aid-de-camp to my general, as a missionary of liberty to its patriarch."

French Eager in Liberty's Cause.

The spirit of Lafayette was the spirit of Rochambeau's army. A host of young French officers looked on the expedition as a crusade for liberty, and crowded for places. Young Berthier was a volunteer at Yorktown, and he became a marshal of France. Viscount De Noailles marched afoot the whole 756 miles from Newport to Yorktown. Young Saint-Simon, Closen, Chastellux, a brother of Mirabeau, a brother of Talleyrand, Barras, later Director Barras, and many other enthusiasts for liberty were in the expedition. They understood Americans. Equality was the particular American trait which impressed them most, and this idea was imported by them from America into France.

Rochambeau placed himself and his army under the command of Washington. The ragged Americans always had the right of the line. In case of equality of rank, the American officer always took command. Not so much as a cabbage was taken without payment. Before Yorktown the Americans were not skilled in siege operations, and Washington gratefully acknowledged the service of the French engineers. The French fleet closed the river, and the surrender came. Without that French help we tremble to think what might have happened.

Fired Lafayette's Ardor.

Toward the close of the year 1776, the duke of Cumberland, who was the brother of King George III of England, was traveling in France, and one day he arrived at the town of Metz, then a French possession. A certain count De Broglie, a veteran of many battles, was in command of the garrison, and, to do honor to his distinguished visitor, he invited some of his officers to meet him at dinner. Now it happened that the duke of Cumberland was in disfavor with his royal brother—he was, in fact, in banishment. He had lately received news that certain of his majesty's colonies in America had rebelled and declared themselves free, declining to be subject any longer to a tyrannical king. It would seem that the duke of Cumberland told the story with some gusto, as if he were not altogether sorry that his brother was in trouble. One officer listened with particular attention. He was a youth of nineteen, tall and thin, with a long nose and reddish hair. His solemn expression and his somewhat awkward manner contrasted strongly with the frivolous ease and grace of the other young officers present. He was a marquis of long descent, connected by marriage with one of the greatest families in France, and he had at his own disposition a very large income. He listened intently, he asked many eager questions, and when he rose from the table he had made a momentous and historic resolution. He had resolved to abandon the pleasures and luxuries of the gayest court in the world, even to leave his young wife and child, and to cast in his lot with these strange rebels in America. In his own words, "When first I heard of American independence, my heart was enlisted!" That young man was Lafayette; and when the American army went to the front in France, it merely paid a small part of the debt of gratitude we owe that splendid young officer—that true nobleman.

Appointed a major general by Washington in July, he fought at the battle of Brandywine in September and received an ugly wound. Soon again in the saddle, he went through many vicissitudes and privations with Washington at Valley Forge, his crowning exploit being the forcing of the retreat of Lord Cornwallis, leading to his surrender at Yorktown, in 1781. Although Washington and other famous American generals had joined him previous to the surrender, Lafayette, with a small force, had initiated the rout of Cornwallis at the battle of Albemarle. That the highest credit was due to Lafayette is shown by the fact that Washington warmly thanked and complimented him in the presence of the troops, after the great surrender which practically ended the war.

Patriot of Marblehead.

General Lafayette paid a tribute to Marblehead, Mass., by making two visits to the people, by whom he was received with bands of music and a huge procession of citizens. It is related that on his first visit in 1784 there was a controversy as to how the procession was to proceed through the main streets of the town, owing to the fact that at one of the sharp turns, a house so jutted into the road that the general's coach could not pass. On the morning of the great event, it was discovered that the patriotic family occupying the property had cut off a section of the house, removing the offending corner and thus the coach was driven without a hitch through the street. The house with part of the first story missing can still be seen in this year of 1919, and is shown in the illustration.

Scene of Battle of Concord

"By the rude bridge that arched the flood, their flag to April's breeze unfurled, here once the embattled farmers stood and fired the shot heard round the world."

FREEDOM OVER ALL THE EARTH

Due Recognition of Human Rights Now the Aim of Mankind.

Independence hall is holy ground at the entrance to which, like Moses at the bush of fire, one should remove his shoes; but it pales into insignificance beside Interdependence hall which some day we must build across the street from the "birthplace of American liberty." One hundred, two score and three years ago, the federation of the thirteen colonies into a federal union was a political event of prime import; today it is overshadowed by the thing of which Tennyson dreamed, "The Federation of the World." The Declaration of Independence is a state paper of such significance as to stand in a class by itself. It immortalized every man who signed it. "These united colonies are and of right ought to be free and independent states; absolved from all allegiance to the British crown; and all connection between them and Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved." So run the words of fire the idealism of which was to be made real if need be, by the lives, as well as the property and sacred honor of the signatories. But the Declaration of Interdependence of all free peoples will overtop that of July 4, 1776, as the oak overtops the daisy.

Great Patriotic Aim.

But at that time independence was the biggest and best thing the fathers could purchase in a war of seven years. They could not enjoy the unalienable rights of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" while ruled by Great Britain, for to be subject to England meant to be robbed and exploited, jailed or hanged at the behest of a half-mad German, George III, who wore the British crown.

And so the patriots proposed to stand alone, to be independent. They proposed an equitable self-rule on lines more liberal than ever had been tried; there were to be neither kings nor kinglets but rather a state of human equality.

Across the water it was a dark day for human rights. In all Europe liberty was eclipsed; there was not one free people. Monarchs were supreme and more or less tyrannical; and so, to stand alone and even aloof, as Washington counseled, was to be prudent. No alliance was possible save with that which they had just renounced—kingcraft.

Old Order Abolished.

But "the old order changeth, giving place to new." Today, in 1919, the proper social desire of the individual is to "live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man." And similarly, to live in the crossroads of the nations and show vital interest in all that pertains to humanity is the proper attitude for the nation. The setting for the next act on the world stage must be big enough for interdependence and internationalism. Interdependence is life and opportunity for both. "We must hang together or we will hang separately."

By maintaining independence and aloofness the fathers hoped to succeed; isolation spelled safety, and so they trusted that a deep, wide moat at their front door, the Atlantic ocean, would keep their foes at a distance of 3,000 miles while they should gain numbers and wealth and experience in governing themselves. They minted coins bearing the inscriptions, "Let Me Alone" and "Don't Step on Me," the latter beneath the figure of a coiled rattlesnake, and cutting themselves off from world politics and world interests they became a self-contained, self-sufficient people, enjoying free assembly, free speech, free press and free religion, but making Americanism dangerously near a big provincialism. We helped no other people to gain our glorious liberty. All was well if we were let alone by the political and warring world.

Autocracy in Rout.

But a new world order has come in. The western hemisphere is all free. China has astonished the world by electing a president. "The bear that walks like a man" becomes human for a fortnight and is free—until his liberty, mistaken for license, enslaved him to the bolsheviki. France and Portugal are free; Great Britain, our ancient oppressor, is free and is our friend. The British empire is free, a galaxy of great self-governing peoples—Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa—all free, even though a figurehead king is its nominal head; but Lloyd George, democrat, not George V autocrat, is the real ruler of the British empire!

Now for "Peace on Earth."

Free peoples do not menace the tranquility of the world; they are not bent on conquest; they seek not to impose their will on their neighbors, even though the neighbor be weak and small. They covet nothing which is their neighbor's. They stand for peace on earth and good will among men. The considerations alike of safety and ethics demand the observation of the golden rule among nations.

On July 4, 1776, the old Liberty bell rang out in order to "proclaim liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof." Suppose that on another July 4 it were permitted to raise its cracked and wheezy voice to do a bigger and far nobler thing: Proclaim liberty to all the oppressed of the world! Where is the man who would not wish to live in that good world? Surely not one would pray with Simeon, "Lord, lettest thou thy servant now depart in peace."

Let all the free peoples of the world send representatives to meet in Independence hall. Let them create and sign a nobler document than that which the fathers made and signed; nobler and larger for one reason only—the new document will be the Declaration of Interdependence.

That declaration will enable all free peoples to stand against the aggression of autocratic spoilers. It will assert the solidarity of all who stand for freedom and who love their fellow men. It will set forth the growing sense of human brotherhood. It will express in larger measure the high political ideals of our time. It may not ring in a thousand years of peace, but it will herald that dawn—

When light shall spread, and man be liker man,
Through all the circle of the golden year.

Come In With Us!

For ten years the Mahan Wagon Brake has been manufactured right here in Clanton—at first in the blacksmith shop made by by hand; later we have been making more of them and have installed suitable machinery for quantity production.

We believe that it has been fully demonstrated that the Brake is a thorough success, mechanically as nearly perfect as it can be made. Brakes that have been in use in Chilton County for ten years are still giving full satisfaction and their owners would not dispose of them at any price, unless they could replace them.

We are incorporating our business and are providing more adequate capital for expansion. We are putting our own money into the new cofpany in full confidence.—and we are offering our friends right here in Clanton and Chilton Couty the opportunity to come in with us on a fair basis. No stock will be offered outside of this county until we have taken care of our friends at home.

Mr. Claud E. Marcus, field representative of the Organization Service, Inc., is acting fiscal agent and will be located in Clanton for some time. He is a Clanton boy, who is himself very much interested in the success of this business, and we bespeak for him your courtesy and hope that he will be successful in dispoing of all the tock that we intend to sell, right here in Clanton.

SAMARIA NEWS

Health of this community is good at present. Farmers are moving on nicely with their work. Boll weevils are plentiful in this community. The crops are growing nicely.

We are glad to say that our Sunday School at Samaria is progressing well. Had a large attendance last Sunday.

We were glad to have Mr. Taylor of Clanton and Mr. Lowery and family of Liberty Hill at Sunday School with us Sunday.

Our protracted meeting will begin the 4th Sunday in July.

Mr. E. L. Smith of Weogufka is visiting relatives here.

Mr. Joe Smith and daughter, Eunire, visited Mr. J. P. Smith of Mulberry Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Jim Jones and family spent Saturday with Mr. David Smith.

Mrs. Charlotte Sanders and family spent Saturday and Sunday with her son, Mr. J. D. Sanders.

Mr. Lowery and family, Mr. J. C. Alred and family, Mr. Taylor, Miss Eunice and Lula Smith, all visited at Mr. Joe Culp's Sunday afternoon.

We are glad to know that Mr. Leonard Jones and Mr. Houston Coggins is back from over seas.

Come on all you correspondents to the Banner every week.

THE FIVE SOLDIER SONS OF MR. J. BICE OF LOMAX, ALA.

It is one of the remarkable occurrences of the war that five boys out of one family should go through the whole conflict and return home without a scratch. But such is the experience of the five boys of Mr. Jonathan Bice of Lomax. They all entered the service early in the days of the war and all went across and did active service in France, and today they are all back home in the best of health and spirits, having seen the whole show without a single wound to anyone of them. They were all in Clanton a few days ago with their father and had a picture made with him. The Union-Banner secured one of the pictures and we reproduce it above for the benefit of our readers over the county, many of whom know Mr. Bice and the boys well.

Mr. Bice was in Clanton Tuesday and states that he and his five boys would be in Clanton on the Fourth, where they hope to see all their old friends.

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady. Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Prine, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child...I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time...

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. ——— about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble', so he got me 5 bottles...After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved...before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it.

The DISPATCH RIDER

BY F. A. MITCHEL

THERE was a time during the American Revolution when the British held New York city and a portion of New Jersey. The American forces were at Morristown, N. J., and at Dobbs Ferry on the Hudson and points above. Communication between Morristown and Dobbs Ferry was maintained by dispatch riders who traveled in a line between the two points through Orange. At a recent decentennial celebration of the founding of the latter place a bronze statue of the dispatch rider was erected.

One day George Paton, one of these messengers, stood in Washington's private office at his Morristown headquarters. (Any visitor may see the room today just as it was then, on the northwest corner of the building.) Washington, sitting at his desk, turned and handed Paton a dispatch, saying:

"I wish you could contrive to let this dispatch fall into the hands of the enemy. Further, I would like information of their movements when they receive it, though I admit I don't expect such information. At any rate, after leaving Orange you might pretend to have lost your way, taking a southerly direction between Newark and Elizabeth, where the enemy's outposts are located. I will give you the best horse in the command. You may contrive to drop the dispatch—let them pick it up and escape. This is only a suggestion; you must, of course, be governed by circumstances."

That afternoon George Paton, instead of following his commander's suggestion, rode boldly up to a British outpost near Elizabeth, surrendered himself and asked to be taken to the British general. There he produced his dispatch, which the general read eagerly.

Turned and Handed Paton a Dispatch.

"What does this mean?" he asked, looking up at Paton.

"It means, general, that I have been a dispatch rider in the American army, but I am convinced that it is useless and wicked to fight against the lawful sovereign. I was charged this morning to take this dispatch to Dobbs Ferry. I have brought it to you."

The general turned again to the dispatch. There was Washington's handwriting—his signature. Then he looked anew at the dispatch rider. Then he probed Paton with cross questions, all of which the man answered satisfactorily. Then the general sat looking at him with an expression on his face which plainly said: "Dare I trust you?"

"Young man," he said presently, looking up with a crafty eye. "You can do your king a great service. I will give you a dispatch for General Howe, commanding in New York. Go back with it to this rebel, Washington, and tell him you chased a messenger of mine and took it from him. Will you do this?"

"You ask too much, general. I was met and questioned by a party of American horsemen just outside your lines. Seeing that I could not give them a good reason for not being on the road to Dobbs Ferry, I put spurs to my horse and got away from them. To go back to General Washington would be to go to a halter. But this I will do. Give me the king's uniform and the dispatch. I will approach the American lines, and on being seen will turn and run, dropping the dispatch on the way, for them to pick up."

"H'm," said the general, thoughtfully, "I am disappointed that you can't adopt the plan I propose. However, your refusal to do so convinces me that you have told me the truth and have turned to our side. If you can work the plan you suggest it may serve the same purpose."

At nine o'clock that night George Paton rode up to the ferryman at Communipaw, and as a courier from the general commanding at Elizabeth, demanded to be taken at once across to General Howe at New York. He found the general just about to go to bed. Paton handed him the dispatch. General Howe read it and called an aide-de-camp. Couriers were sent flying down the Jersey coast.

Paton, stating that he had orders to return at once to Elizabeth, recrossed the ferry, and at daylight the next morning rode up to the American pickets at Morristown. He was recognized and permitted to go to headquarters. He found General Washington up and giving his aide, Capt. Alexander Hamilton, memoranda upon which to write the communications for the day. Washington, seeing Paton in the uniform of a British trooper, looked at him in astonishment. The young man gave him an account of his doings as it has been given here, following it up by an explanation of what had probably been accomplished.

Washington, desirous of making transposition of his forces between Morristown and the Hudson in order to distract the enemy's attention, had sent by Paton a communication that he was about to attack certain British troops in the neighborhood of Trenton. The general commanding at Elizabeth gave Paton a dispatch to General Howe, intended for Washington, stating that the troops at Trenton were without arms and ammunition and practically defenseless. At the same time he ordered a large portion of his force there. General Howe, on receipt of the dispatch, ordered troops on the Jersey coast hurried to Trenton. The consequence of this secret service diplomacy was that Washington made his transfers between Dobbs Ferry and Morristown without being disturbed.

When the dispatch rider had finished his account Washington said to him:

"Your riding into the enemy's lines as a deserter was an exhibition of splendid nerve; your refusal to bear a message back to me was a stroke of genius. Had you agreed, it would have shown conclusively that you were a spy, seeking to deceive and gather information. You are the champion secret service rider in this or any other army."

"And the champion liar," added Captain Hamilton.

"Given a spy," said Paton, smiling, "and a bad liar, and the result is a scaffold."

Now Is a Good Time To Drive Out Catarrh

The Trouble Is In the Blood.

Summer catarrh, with its nauseous discharge, stuffed up glands, difficult breathing, and summer colds, is bad enough, but the worst of it is yet to come if you neglect to check the growth that is forming to attack you with ten-fold greater power during the winter.

That's why it is so important to treat catarrhs and other blood disorders with S. S. S. during warm weather, and thus free the system from all impurities.

It is now an established fact that catarrh is in the blood and that lotions and salves do not give relief. The experience of others has proven that S. S. S. strikes at the very root of the trouble and eliminates it. Waste no time in this matter, for it is of the utmost importance. Write to our Medical Advisor about your case. Address Swift Specific Co., Dept. 53, Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. J. N. Dennis informs us that he has delivered 310.3 tons of government nitrate of soda to the farmers of Chilton County this season. This represents a saving of over $10 per ton, or a total saving of over $3,100 to the farmers of the county using nitrate of soda this season.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW OF THE HOME OF FOOD PRODUCTS YOU USE

An article for food use in a can or package is like a person dressed in his "best." But you can't judge by appearances.

Every housewife should know something of the homes of the food products she buys. She should know something of the materials used—of the methods employed.

Is the factory clean? Is it sanitary? Are the materials pure and kept pure? You can't always tell by the looks of an article or by the taste. There's only one safe way— and that is knowledge of the source of production—acquaintance with the factory.

The Calument Baking Powder Co. of Chicago seems to appreciate the importance of the housewifes knowing the facts about the Calumet factory—the home of Calument Baking Powder. They not only invite everyone to visit their plant but also publish booklets, etc., picturing and describing their factory. It is the largest, finest best equipped factory of the kind in the world. Absolute sanitation governs every operation of manufacture. Every appliance, every inch of space is kept hygienically clean. Human hands never touch Calument.

Secured Liberty

The original Declaration itself and the desk on which it was written are preserved in the state department at Washington. The document, written on parchment in a bold hand and bearing the original signatures, was deposited with the department of state when the government was organized in 1789, and is still there, though sealed up in a steel case to preserve it from light and air, on account of the fading text and signatures, some of which have become illegible. That of John Hancock, which heads the names of the Massachusetts signers, is still conspicuous by its boldness, while that of Stephen Hopkins of Rhode Island still indicates the physical infirmity that made it almost impossible for him to write his name. Other historic names on the old document, some of them hardly legible, are Samuel Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman, Robert Morris, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Rush and others less famous. Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence, gave the desk as a wedding present to a gentleman of Boston, who married Jefferson's granddaughter, and it remained in the family till 1880, when it was presented to President Hayes, who placed it in the state department building beside the immortal instrument which was written upon it in 1776.

DOCUMENT THAT MADE HISTORY

How the Immortal Declaration Was Drawn Up and Signed.

THE Fourth of July represents to the average American boy a great victory won some 140 years ago against overwhelming odds. He dimly remembers from his history lesson that something or other, called the Declaration of Independence, was signed that day in 1776. Sometimes he is not quite so sure of the date as that and he knows very little concerning the original document itself.

The original of the Declaration, written by hand on parchment, and now much worn and faded, is carefully preserved in an air-tight and light-proof case in the library of the department of state. Only facsimiles are exhibited today, the original being too precious a document to risk in the light and air.

A facsimile of the Declaration is on exhibition in the division of history in the older building of the National museum at Washington, where there are also preserved personal relics and mementos of several of the members of the second continental congress who signed this great resolution.

The history of the origin and drafting of the Declaration is of considerable interest. In the second continental congress, which was meeting in Philadelphia, Richard Henry Lee of Virginia, on June 7, 1776, introduced the following resolution, which was seconded by John Adams:

"Resolved, That these united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved.

"That it is expedient forthwith to take the most effectual measures for forming foreign alliances.

"That a plan of confederation be prepared and transmitted to the respective colonies for their approbation."

Consideration of this resolution was postponed, and on June 11, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman and R. R. Livingston were appointed a committee to prepare a Declaration to serve as a preamble to this independence resolution. This committee, known as the Jefferson committee, submitted a draft of the Declaration on June 28, which was laid on the table for later consideration. On July 1 congress, sitting as a committee of the whole to consider the resolution respecting independence, agreed thereto, and reported it to congress.

On July 2 the resolution itself was adopted by congress, and the Declaration was considered by the committee of the whole, being taken up the next day, July 3.

On July 4 the Declaration, which included the first paragraph of the resolution, was agreed to by the committee of the whole, reported to congress, and adopted. The independence of the united colonies was thus declared, and thereupon congress immediately ordered that the Declaration be authenticated and printed under the supervision of the committee previously appointed to prepare it, and that copies thereof be distributed to all state assemblies and to the commanding officers of the army.

In accordance with the above order, the Declaration was issued as a printed broadside on July 5, with the heading: "In Congress, July 4, 1776. A Declaration by the Representatives of the United States of America in General Congress assembled." It bore the name in print of John Hancock, president of the congress, and was attested by Secretary Charles Thomson, but bore no other names.

On July 19 it was resolved in congress:

"That the Declaration passed on the fourth be fairly engrossed on parchment, with the title and stile (style) of 'The unanimous declaration of the thirteen United States of America, and that the same, when engrossed, be signed by every member of congress."

It could not have been headed "Unanimous" on July 4, for the New York delegates had not then been authorized to agree to it, and it was not until July 15 that it was announced in the continental congress that the assembly of New York had approved the Declaration, and thus made it unanimous.

On August 2, 1776, the Declaration of Independence, being engrossed and compared, was signed by the members; those who were not present on August 2 affixing their signatures at later dates, all but one signing before January 18, 1777.

It has been ascertained that of the fifty-six signers, more than one-fourth were not present on July 4, 1776, and seven of them—Thornton, Williams, Rush, Clymer, Smith, Taylor and Ross—were not members on that date. On the other hand, seven members on that date—George Clinton, John Alsop, R. R. Livingston, Henry Wisner, Thomas Willing, Charles Humphreys and John Rogers—had not the privilege of becoming "signers," for the membership of all but one had ceased prior to August 2.

The first official issue of the Declaration bearing the names of the signers was printed as a broadside in Baltimore under the resolution of January 18, 1777, ordering that copies be sent to each of the United States. There are only four copies of this issue now known to exist, one of which is in the library of congress at Washington. It is authenticated in writing by John Hancock as president of congress and attested by Secretary Thomson.

Contrary to popular opinion, therefore, it is seen that the Declaration was not signed on July 4, the day it passed, but between August 2, 1776, and January 18, 1777, after it had been engrossed and compared, and then only by 55 members, all of whom were ordered to do so by the resolution passed July 19, 1776. The name of Thomas McKean, which does not appear among the signers in the printed copy, was added later—possibly not until 1781, making the fifty-sixth signer.

But little has ever been done to perpetuate the memory of these 56 early Americans, only a few of whom are well-known, but it is interesting to know that the National Society of the Sons of American Revolution, in cooperation with the Society of Descendants of the signers, is locating the graves of those patriots, and preparing a memorial volume to include a biography of each individual.

An Urgent Celebration

By Willis Brooks.

My father was Marshal one Fourth of July,
And made a long-lasting impression,
With his sash and his sword and a plume waving high,
As he gallantly rode a gay thoroughbred by
At the head of the gorgeous procession.

In a garlanded chariot next to the band
My mother was Liberty's Goddess;
With a cap on her head and a sword in her hand,
Begowned in the stripes of our glorious land,
Set off with a star-spangled bodice.

You see, this was ever so long, long ago—
Before they were known to each other;
And, of course, since he wasn't so much as her beau,
Neither one of them had any reason to know
That they were my father and mother.

Now the Marshal, you know, is expected to ride
Up and down the whole length of the column;
And the Goddess is always supposed to preside
As the guardian of Freedom, America's pride,
With a dignity stately and solemn.

For a Marshal is one who's appointed to see
That the marchers are all in their stations;
And a Goddess, of course, is expected to be
So far above earthly enticements that she
Will indulge in no human flirtations.

But I've heard people say 'twas the talk of the town
That this Marshal was so patriotic
He pranced and cavorted his steed up and down
Within sight of the red, white and blue of that gown
As if held there by fetters despotic.

And that Goddess, I'm told, without turning her head,
Saw each of these purposeful prances,
And reflected her colors from cheeks blushing red
Under temples of white; and her eyes, it is said,
Were bright with the blue of her glances.

So, that's how it comes that the Fourth of July
Provokes me to glad celebration.
If the Marshal and Goddess had let it go by
And taken no part, who the dickens would I
Have been in the scheme of Creation?

DESIGNED FAMOUS OLD HALL

Philadelphia Lawyer Architect of Building Where Immortal Declaration Was Signed.

Independence hall stands not only as the place of rest for the Liberty bell, but as the old Pennsylvania statehouse, and the building wherin the Declaration of Independence was signed in 1776, with John Hancock at its head. It is still in excellent preservation, and its quaint red and white front and brick belfry give it an air of romance and antiquity.

For many years it was unknown who was the designer of the old statehouse, now better known as Independence hall. But the discovery about forty years ago of the identical design, now in the Pennsylvania Historical society's collection, set the question at rest.

Independence Hall.

It was none other than Andrew Hamilton, who not only held high office in the province, but as a lawyer made the reputation of the Philadelphia bar. This was accomplished when he was invited to New York to defend the printer, Zenger, and contended successfully for the liberty of the press, the first time the subject had been settled in a court of law in this country.

Nation's Great Destiny.

Our country is a fact so fast, so tremendous in its import and bearings, that the mind can hardly grasp it. It reminds us of the Almighty. It suggests omnipotence.

And yet it may be truthfully said that the nation has scarcely begun its career. Great as it is, it is but an infant compared with what it is destined to become.—Rev. T. E. Gregory.

STANDS FOR ALL TIME

Famous Phrase of Thomas Jefferson as True in This Year 1919 as in 1776.

"GOVERNMENTS are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." This famous phrase was written by Thomas Jefferson, in the preamble to the Declaration, on July 4, 1776.

"Mr. Jefferson," wrote John Adams in his autobiography, referring to the events of 1776, "had been now about a year a member of congress, but had attended his duty in the house a small part of the time, and, when there, had never spoken in public. During the whole time I sat with him in congress I never heard him utter three sentences together. It will naturally be inquired how it happened that he was appointed on a committee of such importance. Mr. Jefferson had the reputation of a masterly pen."

The committee which was appointed to prepare the Declaration consisted of Benjamin Franklin, aged seventy; Roger Sherman, fifty-five; John Adams, forty; Thomas Jefferson, thirty-three, and Robert E. Livingston, twenty-nine. Franklin was the patriarch of this immortal body, and Jefferson and Livingston were both young men, with their lives practically before them.

Thomas Jefferson.

"I gave Jefferson my vote for chairman of the committee," said Adams, "and did all in my power to secure the votes of others. I think he had one more vote than any other, and that placed him at the head of the committee. I had the next highest number, and that placed me second."

"A committee was appointed to prepare a 'Declaration of Independence' wrote Jefferson in his notes. "The committee was J. Adams, Doctor Franklin, Roger Sherman, Robert R. Livingston and myself. . . . The committee for drafting the Declaration desired me to do it. It was accordingly done, and, before approved by them, I reported it to the house on Friday, June 28, when it was read and ordered to lie on the table."

Amid all the changes in the phraseology of the Declaration before it was finally adopted, the sentence of the headline remained intact, and just as Jefferson originally presented it.

The paragraph which led up to the quoted words is always worthy of being printed, and never more so than now:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

Continental's Dark Days.

In the first part of the Revolution the states were taxed to provide money for feeding the army, but later they were required to send the food itself instead of money. It was then that things were at the lowest ebb for the Continental armies.

BUSY SESSION OF THE JULY COUNTY COURT

LARGE ATTENDANCE SHOWS INTEREST OF GREAT NUMBER OF PEOPLE IN THE CASES TRIED.

Last Monday was one of the busiest days ever experienced in the County Court of Chilton County. Judge Reynolds was busy as he could be from the opening of the court early in the morning to late in the evening. Twenty-two cases were disposed of during the day. The largest attendance that has ever appeared at the county court was here. It was a surprising attendance owing to the fact that the cases on hand were of only minor importance. Following is the list of cases tried and disposed of:

F. W. Johnson, charged with failure to dip cattle; defendant failed to appear before the court; alias issued.

Scote Porter, charged with ———; adjudged a malicious prosecution and fees and costs assessed against the proecutor, W. W. Wilson.

Bunk Porter, charged with assault and intent to murder; trial and discharged.

Sam Lockhart, charged with abusive language; continued to the first Monday in August.

Tom Wright, charged with assault and intent to murder; after hearing all evidence in the case the court held that the prosecution was malicious, and the prosecutor, Rufus Wilson, was assessed with the fees and costs in the case.

John Mac Fohee, charged with assault and battery; adjudged guilty and fined $5.00 and costs.

William Minor, charged with breaking loose a boat; cost $21.50.

Tom Hinton, charged with violating prohibition laws; sentenced to six months hard labor and fined $100.

G. W. Traywick, charged with violating prohibition laws; continued with agreement that defendant plead guilty the first Monday in August.

REPUBLICANS IN HOUSE TO KEEP BODY AT WORK

Leades do not Intend to Let Down by Permitting Three Day Recess Suggestion.

Washington, July 3.—After the passage of the appropriation bills, congress does not intend to relax in its purpose to go ahead with legislative work of importance to the nation.

Some talk has been current that after the appropriations were disposed of the House would take a series of three day recess. House leaders say this will not be done. They point out that there is important reconstruction work to be done and that this ought not to be delayed any longer than is necessary. The House will therefore keep on grinding and will take up various important bills after the supply bills are disposed of. The senate also plans to keep steadily at work. Altogether the present indications are that the new congress will get very little rest either this summer or the coming fall and that the extra session will either run into the regular session or will come very near doing so

The Clanton baseball team won a game of baseball played against a Montgomery amateur team here the Fourth of July. The score was 11. to 2. A large crowd of people witnessed the game with much pleasure.

FLYING MEN SHOW CLANTON PEOPLE SOME AERIEL STUNTS

The airplane feature of the Fourth of July Celebration in Clanton was pulled off in grand style by a machine from the Repair Depot at Montgomery, in charge of Lieutenant Bunting of the army air service. Owing to a high wind and local rain storms, not much flying was accomplished on the Fourth, but the next day, Saturday, everything was favorable, and the machine went up and showed us several very interesting tricks The flying man was in the air for quite a long while, and covered not only Clanton but the country for miles around as well.

The large crowds here on the 4th were delighted at seeing the machines on the ground. The air service recruiting force was here that day with the exhibition machine that they are carrying over the state on a tour. Many people enjoyed giving the outfit a close-up view.

THORSBY INSTITUTE NOTES

For the past month Thorsby Institute has been conducting a "drive" for a sustaining fund to enable it to do more effective work and to extend its influence more widely. They were helped very much by two public meetings, at one of which the principal speaker was Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, president of Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., who is also president of Thorsby Institute Board of Trustees, and whose daughter, Miss Helen C. Jenkins, is the principal of the Thorsby Institute.

Later in the campaign Judge L. H. Reynolds gave us a strong address and a generous subscription. The objective of the campaign was pledges for $1,000 a year for five years, the $1,000 for this year to be in hand on or before July 1. The field canvassed was Thorsby and people who had property or financial interests in or near Thorsby; and of all the subscriptions listed, that of Judge Reynolds, given without solicitation, was the only one which did not come from the above mentioned classes.

At the close of the drive the committee had the great satisfaction of finding that the pledges on the five year basis, exceeded $5,100, and that the installments paid in were above $1,100. The committee also had the satisfaction of noting that Thorsby had lived up to her record af paying her pledges, for of the more than 100 pledges made only one is not "paid in full" for 1919.

One incentive to this drive was the promise from a society interested in the school and its work to give to the school another $1,000 a year for the five years, if Thorsby should raise her thousand. It is now proposed to make immediately a drive for more students for next year. There are enough boys and girls in Chilton County who ought to be in its high schools to fill all its high schools to overflowing and Thorsby Institute is well equipped in teaching force and otherwise to care for many more than she has had.

It is believed that one result of this drive has been to unite the people of Thorsby as never before in the purpose to support and "pull for" their school.

The committee who had this drive in hand consisted of Miss May Stoddard, Mr. J. P. Sorensen and Rev. J. W. Davenport, but they had a number of effective helpers

We were pleased to see our good friend and correspondent, Z. J. Jones from West Chilton, in Clanton the Fourth. We hope he had an enjoyable day, and got plenty of barbecue and camp stew.

UNDER THE BIG DOME

Washington, June 3.—"Dick" Yates former governor of Illinois, and now a member of congress, has developed some new wrinkles in his forehead which are giving him trouble.

"When these wrinkles first became noticeable," said Congressman Yates today, "lots of people thought I was frowning. So to remedy the situation, I developed a permanent smile which I thought would remove the difficulty. But a few days ago I was called upon to preside over the House and while performing those duties it was necessary for me to make a ruling which was displeasing to a fellow member. When I was relieved of the chair, I went to this member and expressed my regret that it had been necessary for me to rule against him. And what do you suppose he said? Well, he replied that he would not have cared at all, if I had just left off that 'miserable smile' when I did it."

The ways and means committee of the House, which is considering proposed legislation for the protection of industries developed in the United States as a result of the war, has given an extensive hearing to the pearl button industry, which employs 20,000 wage earners, and represents an investment of several millions of dollars. This industry is not directly a development of the war, but it is now threatened by an invasion of pearl buttons from Japan which are manufactured at an extremely low figure. It is this competition against which the industry hopes to be protected.

Here is a story recently current at the capitol, which sheds interesting light upon the universal query as to where the government's money has gone during the last few years:

A manufacturer of airplane parts was asked to submit a bid for 2,000 airplane accessories that were needed by the war department. These articles ordinarily cost about $15 each, and the manufacturer thought a bid of $17 each for the number required by the government would be about right, in view of the fact that they were difficult to get in large quantities.

So he instructed his stenographer to submit a bid at that figure.

But the stenographer being of war time quality, made an error, and instead of quoting a price of $17 each, made the figure $117 each.

And the bid was accepted.

Can you imagine a man in Clanton who was put on the brbecue committee to help out in the plans for the affair; and this same man could not be induced in any way to attend a meeting of the committee nor help with the plans. Yet when it was all over Friday and those who had carried the burden did all they could to make the day a success (and they made is splendidly) and the first thing Saturday morning here comes along this good citizen raising a kick about the way the barbecue was managed. He had his plans of how it should have been done all drawn off on a piece of paper to perfection. Now, can you tell us why such fellows as that won't help out a good thing with their suggestions before it is too late? We think we know why, but would like to hear your idea about it.

Mr. L. E. Lamont and Mr. A. Vickers of Montgomery, are the ghests of Mr. and Ms. J. B. Atkinson this week.

Representative Madden, Republican, of Illinois, points with pride to the achievement of the Republican management in the House of Representatives in disposing of all of the great appropriation bills within one month after congress convened, and to the further fact that the House, instead of taking a breathing spell after completing this task, is plunging into the consideration of general legislation which the country is demanding.

"After disposing of the money bills," said Mr. Madden today, "the House immediately took up and adopted the bill returning the telegraph systems to their rightful owners, acted upon the daylight saving measure, and is now ready to take up the water-power bill which will throw open a development of vast power resources which have heretofore been withheld from public use. Congress is not going to quit, now that it has passed the appropriation bills. It merely got a good start in handling them so promptly, and will go right ahead with the legislative program to which the Republican party has pledged."

It was developed in the general debate in the House that the priceless draft-board records which were sent to Washington from each one of the states for the use of the War Department are now scattered all over the capital for lack of suitable attention and proper storage facilities. One member said that upon making inquiry concerning the questionaire and other records affecting one of his constituents, he had been told that it was in Washington, but that it would be impossible to locate it in less than two or three months. Another member said that he had held in his hands draft records in Washington which had been stored near a system of steam pipes, and that they had dropped to pieces.

To remedy this situation which is threatening documents of the greatest personal and historical value, Representative Fess, a Republican member from Ohio, has urged upon Congress the necessity for erecting in Washington a Hall of Records for the safekeeping of all government papers. If a public building appropriation bill is reported this session, it will probably contain an appropriation for the erection of this building.

DEATH OF JOHN DUNCAN JULY 4 WAS UNEXPECTED

Had Been Sick Only Short Time And Condition Not Known Serious.

Late in the evening of July 4th, aftef the day of Celebration and enjoyment in Clanton, this community was thrown into a gloomy sadness by the unexpected announcement of the death of one our noblest citizens, Mr. John H. Duncan. It was like a bolt of lightning coming from a clear sky, and when it struck many staunch friends of this splendid man were utterly staggered. The writer knows what the shock was because he, with the great number of others, realizes that it is a friend gone from the walks of life.

Mr. Duncan had been sick for only a couple of days with malaria fever, and it was not known by his friends that he was in a dngerous condition. Not even his immediate family realized that the end was so near. He died about seven o'clock Friday evening, and was buried Saturday at New Salem. He was a member of the Lodge of Masons and Odd Fellows.

For many years Mr. Duncan has been prominent in business life of Clanton. He was for some time the manager of the Farmers Union Warehouse at Clanton. In addition to his other business activities he was a prominent farmer.

His wife is the only member of his immediate family surviving him, and to her hundreds of sorrowing friends extend heartfelt sympathy.

REPUBLICANS WILL INSIST UPON A BUDGET SYSTEM

For First Time in History of Congress Business-like Scheme To Prevail.

MUCH TIME WASTED IN PAST

Washington, June 3.—For the first time in the history of Congress, the question of establishing a system of coordination and unification of estimates of appropriations for the annual departmental needs is to be given serious consideration. It is difficult to recall another subject about which there has been so much talk and so little action over a long span of years as the budget question. Bills have been introduced in both houses of congress providing for the establishment of a budget bureau, and they will shortly be brought up for consideration in committee.

Direct Action Favored.

In the House, the budget bill has been referred to the Committee on Appropriations, but Chairman Volstead of the Judiciary Committee has made an informal request that this proposed legislation be referred to his committee for consideration, and this will probably be done. It is being urged by some members that the question should be finally referred to a commission which would study the budget systems of other governmnts and then report its recommendations to congress. Much sentiment, however, favors direct action upon the question by the present session of congress, and this is the sentiment of Mr. Volsted who feels that the Judiciary Committee, composed entirely of men trained in legal affairs, could devise a suitable budget system within a comparatively short time.

CLANTON BOY SCOUT BAND

The Clanton Boy Scout Band was subjected to quite a degree of embarassment in failing to execute their program here on the Fourth, all on account of the fact that their leader compleetly lay down on them and would not officiate. We do not know what motives he could have had for treating the boys so unjustly, unless he was just like a good many other people in the county we know, just prejudiced against Clanton and anything she attempts to do. But if he did not intend to see the boys through with their program he ought to have been fair enough to sty out of the thing all together. It was very unjust to our boys to get them into the deep water and abandon them to the chagrin of a failure for which they were not at all responsible. If the leader had done his part the boys certainly could have played their program very successfully. We know they could because we have heard them play splendidly on several occasions at their practice.

TO ROAD OVERSEERS AND APPORTIONERS

SOME REMARKS ABOUT ROADS FROM THE COMMISSIONERS COURT OF CHILTON COUNTY

M.D. Foshee, comp.

The Commissioners Court, feel our duty to call the attention of the apportioners, overseers and the road hands to their duty as is required by law:

The law requires the apportioners to see that each overseer who works under him works his road hands ten hours each day and ten days each year. The law also requires each road hand to work ten days of ten hours in each year. The smallest fine for failing to comply with the above law is $50.00.

We appeal to the apportioners, overseers, and road hands to do their duty, for we have no money to work the roads with, and we must have roads. We not only appeal to the apportioners, overseers and road hands but we ask that everybody take their teams and help the overseers put the roads in good condition, for now is the time to fix all the places that get bad in winter.

We wish we had some money in the treasury to help the road work with but we haven't and will not have any soon unless the Legislature gives us some assistance.

We can have good roads if we will all try: We can fix all the bad places if everybody will do his duty. Remember that the mail carriers have to pass over their routes every day except Sunday and a few holidays, and the overseers must watch their routes and keep them up for them.

In conclusion we want to ask that you begin the road work right away and not wait until the roads are so bad you cannot fix them.

Respectfuliy yours,
L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate.

FREE TRADE TALK NOT HEARD IN WASHINGTON

Once Famous Democratic Cry Falls Into Discard of Theories That Failed.

Washington, July 2.—Conspicuous by its absence in these days is the talk in Washington in favor of the doctrine of free trade.

One might almost ask, in the language of that well-known Hoosier poet, "Who remembers the old-time politician who used to orate on the merits of free-trade?"

Even the president in his messageI recognized the idea that competition with the foreign producer was a thing to be considered.

The hearings before the House ways and means committee on protection for the dye industry are now bringing out some interesting things. For instance, one of the witnesses was Grinnell Jones, chemical expert of the tariff commission. He told the committee that while the industry had grown greatly he regarded government protection as essential for its development. He said 77 firms were making dyes in 1918 and more factories would be started if the industry were given protection.

It has never been charged that the tariff commission was a high tariff body.

NOTICE — BIDS WANTED

I will be at Clanton Saturday, July 12, 1919, at 10 o'clock, a.m., for the purpose of receiving bids for rebuilding two bridges—one near J.P. Gore's on the Lock 12 Road and the other on the Higgins Ferry Road—both bridges being near Clanton.

Some Legislation that Should be Enacted in Alabama.

Everybody who reads and thinks and who has the best interests of pure American Government and American institutions at heart, has long since come to the inevitable conclusion that the very greatest inpending menace to our government principles and the perpetuation of our American institutions is found in the political machinations of what is publicly termed the Roman Catholic Church. And now, since the devil has been located by his infamous products, the means of removing him from his position in our midst must be accomplished, that we may be relieved of future recurrence of his pernicious practices.

So far as the State of Alabama is concerned, (and the same is true of any number of American patriots wherever they are) our people have had enaugh of Romanism in state and national political and civil matters. They are now ready to apply the best and quickest means of removing this stigma from our midst.

In order to properly begin this movement at home in our own state our legislature in session this week should without hesitation, come out boldly in the enactment of some such legislation, as follows:

First, there should be a law passed authorizing the regular inspection of Catholic convents by the properly designated and authorized officials of the law, in communities where such institutions exist. They should be open to the public at all times, just on the same basis as our other educational institutions are open.

Second, a law should be enacted whereby just and equitable taxes should be paid on all income property held, owned or controlled by any church or religious institution.

Our legislators down at Montgomery are going to have an opportunity to adopt such laws as are outlined above. In fact, they are going to be asked to enact them. Whether they are made laws or not depends on the intelligence and patriotism of the men of the body who do the voting. We live in hope.

He Called it "A Living Lie," and That is its Real Name.

The time is at hand when those who would meet the forces of Roman Catholic despotism at the altar of American freedom, and contest the right of popery to enslave our people and debaunch our blood-bought liberties, those who would essay to do that task must employ the method of calling things by their real name. A spade must be called a spade, and a shovel must be called a shovel.

Now, this brings us to the subject of this article,—the speech of Mr. Durant, at the Baptist Church on Monday night. The subject of the speaker was the evils of Romanism. Among many other things all worthy of note and much thought, we wish especially to pass on to our readers one splendid thing he said, as follows:

> "They said we went to Europe to fight and make the world safe for democracy. That is a living lie."

It is a living lie, and in addition, has come to be a stale joke all over our great victorious country. When one looks about and sees the autocracy of Roman Catholic political methods which our officials are permitting if not actually aiding in the administration of government affairs, nothing can prevent him from at once seeing that we have not even got democracy at home, much less having established it in Europe—where the strangle hold of Romanism is much tighter than it is in America.

Let us free ourselves from the strangle of the octopus before setting out on another wild goose chase across the Atlantic in search of another golden fleece.

Sit steady in the boat, brother. Don't get alarmed when you hear a fellow turn loose to "cussing the Catholics." Things like that are being done now on a small scale compared to what they will be in a short time. At present there is nothing but a little preliminary word battle waging between Romanists and Americans. We will live to see the conflict take on the aspects of ballots, and even bullets and bayonets very probably. Cheer up, the worst is yet to come.

Another Rubber Stamp Endorsement of the League of Nations.

Nobody is surprised by the announcement of Oscar Underwood that he will support the League of Nations in the Senate just as the covenant is submitted to that body by the president. Such a cause only is befitting the phonographic make-up of the man. He has always been a machine upon which was played the records reproducing some other fellow's ideas. His methods are always of the rubber-stamp kind which blindly endorses the acts of powers higher up. He has never showed any evidences of ability or intentions to back his own judgment; or in fact he has never really shown that he had any judgment of his own to back if he wanted to. He has not got the "guts" to question anything that comes to him with the brand of "Wilson" on it, but he swallows it down without any question whether the consequences result in good of otherwise to the people of the country.

Here is his official announcement of his position on the League. Could anything have been more typical of this blind and rotten partisan politican mummy?:

> "The people of Alabama know that I have supported every measure advocated by the president and deemed by him necessary for the successful prosecution of the war. When the treaty is laid before the senate and the president has stated that it is the best that can be done, that the United States is protected in every way, I shall unhesiatingly vote for its ratification. I will vote against any amendment that might be suggested that will weaken its force or defeat its purpose.
> "Such has been my purpose all along, but I have not thought it wise to state my position until the president has finished his work in Paris."

If our national government were made up of men like Underwood, who exercises no judgment nor powers of his own, but leaves the whole legislative, executive and judicial authority to one man, we would then have an autocracy in our land just in as much reality as was the autocracy which we went to Europe to stamp out with our armies.

Yes, We Will be Busy at Home; but If We are in the League---?

> "We are going to be so busy with our reconstruction work that we won't hear the din of the minor troubles over in Europe."—Birmingham Ledger.

That is right, brother, but what about that League of Nations you so ardently espouse? True enough the American people will not have time to fool with every little dog-fight that arises in Europe. We will not be disposed to become engaged in the family quarrels and tribal feuds of the two million savages and semi-civilized negroes of Liberia. We cannot leave our honest pursuits of bread, liberty and happiness to look after the business of keeping the three hundred thousand wild Bedouins of Hedjaz orderly and peaceable.

But yet you hear strange voices going abroad over this fair land of ours singing the praises of Wilson's world-wide internationalism that under the league of nations, will place America down in the dust at the mercy of the dusky tribes of the earth. Then we WILL hear the din of minor troubles in Europe and Asia, because those minor people have a vote in the league that will force us to hear, and as Lloyd George said, America will be into the conflict the first day instead of two years after.

We will have no rights to our own pleasure in entering any conflict that may arise. At the moment the die is cast by even the least or the greatest of the powers, we will have no more time for reconstruction; we must quit our task and enter the world conflict and never ask the question what are we fighting for and how does it concern the people of the United States.

The people of this country don't want to hear the din of minor troubles in Europe, and they ordinarily would not hear them. But the league of nations is designed to make us hear them and take part in them. America is willing at any time to go to any part of the world and unsheath the sword for principles that rightly concern the freedom of the world. But at the same time we would like to be our own judges as to our concern about those things which are to be fought for. Lloyd George foresaw trouble in Britain's possessions in years to come. He perceived the idea that some future day might see another subject of Britain's crown rise up under a George Washington and declare for the God-given rights of a free people. He knew that then Britain would need the help of the other nations of the world in subduing a rebellious province. Therefore he had Article 10 of the league covenant inserted, pledging every nation in the league to help maintain the territorial integrity of England and to see that all her vast island possessions and continental dominions remain vassals of the British crown forever and always in the future.

If the Soldiers Are Satisfied, Why Not Other People?

Who got up the idea that Chilton County's soldier boys were hankering after a parade here on the Fourth?

Whoever it was, you can bet your botton dollar he never had a seventy-pound pack strapped across his back and a Springfield on his shoulder and hiked ten miles every morning before breakfast for six months.

The editor of the Union-Banner has been a soldier, and not one of the gold-brick type either. He has had his on the hard turn-pike, and along with the other boys who have been there, he can speak with authority.

Nobody need worry about us fellows being peeved because we did not have a chance to show off here on the Fourth. It went just like we wanted it to go so far as the parade stuff is concerned. Every soldier was free to do as he pleased, dress as he pleased and use his own pleasure about the manner in which to get the most pleasure our of the day. And that is what they wanted.

So, now, if the Celebration was given for the pleasure of the soldiers and the soldiers enjoyed it and were pleased, whothel wants to go raise any kick about a beastly parade?

A news dispatch from Montgomery in the daily papers saye that even the lone Republicans in the Legislature will vote for a resolution favoring the League of Nations covenant. We do not believe they will do any such thing. And if they do we frankly confess that we will be ashamed of them.

A delegation of Democratic senators went out on a battleship to meet President Wilson on his return from France. The Republicans are saving their reception for Mr. Wilson until he comes into the Senate with the League of Nations covenant tucked under his arm. We hope they will make it warm for him.

From Democratic sources we learn that had Theodore Roosevelt lived impeachment proceedings would have been taken out against Secretary Baker. That's the reason such spraddle-legged curs as edit the Birmingham (Ala.) News rejoiced when Roosevelt died. — The Yellow Jacket.

Senator Reed, Democrat, says the League of Nations will be dominated by those who are not of the white race. Won't it be glorious when it comes to the pass that this once proud nation must bow to the votes of peoples who have not a drop of Caucasian blood in their veins? Yet, there are people who had rather be ruled by a slant-eyed Oriental who whittles out his god from white pine wood and carries it in his pocket, provided the Oriental bore the O.K. of some Democratic politician, than to be under the leadership of an independent American who places his country first above all other considerations.—Yellow Jacket.

Clanton Did It, All Right.

The splendid success of the Fourth of July Celebration and Barbecue in Clanton is a source of much gratification to our people generally, and especially to the committees in the direct charge of the arrangements. It is not an easy chair job to pull the scheme through by any means, which fact will be readily attested by any one of the men who put up the effort to carry it through. But it went just the same, in spite of those few knockers who persisted in their time-worn cry that Clanton could not do it. We congratulate Clanton for the way she stood behind the committee with the money that was necessary. For after all it is money that makes the mare go. You know they say that love makes the world go round; and so may it never cease. But please remember that money is the axle grease.

Twenty-five Years Ago

What Happened in Chilton County as Recorded in THE BANNER of that date.

Tuesday night at Mr. Tom Hubbard's place, Bully Hubbard, a negro employed on the place struck a sick negro tramp named Frank, on the head with a hoe. Frank died the next morning. Bully Hubbard was placed in jail.

On Tuesday evening about 4:30 a difficulty occurred at Jemison, between Dr. J. P. Givhan and Mr. J. C. Woolley, a merchant. Mr. Woolley went to the doctor's office with a Winchester rifle and shot at the doctor who returned the fire. Mr. Woolley was shot in the left shoulder and right temple.—Dr. Givhan was not hurt.

Louis Bankhead, who attempted to outrage the little daughter of Mr. F. Jones near Coopers last week, was captured last Saturday morning at 2 o'clock lying asleep beside the L.&N. railroad track. He was taken to the scene of his criminal attack and was speedily identified. A temporary gallows was erected nearby, a rope placed around his neck and the miserable existence of the negro was hastily terminated. Before his execution he confessed his guilt in this particular instance and in others also. Only the evening before, while making his escape he made an attempt to sieze hold of little 12 year old Katie Hill at Lomax, Ala. She escaped by outrunning him.

NEVER was such right-handed-two-fisted smokejoy as you puff out of a jimmy pipe packed with Prince Albert! That's because P. A. has the quality!

You can't fool your taste apparatus any more than you can get five aces out of a family deck! So, when you hit Prince Albert, coming and going, and get up half an hour earlier just to start stoking your pipe or rolling cigarettes, you know you've got the big prize on the end of your line!

Prince Albert's quality alone puts it in a class of its own, but when you figure that P. A. is made by our exclusive patented process that cuts out bite and parch—well—you feel like getting a flock of dictionaries to find enough words to express your happy days sentiments!

THANKS FROM OLD SOLDIERS

Dr. G. P. Whaley, age close to 80 years, writes as follows, in which he expresses the feelings of the old veterans at the Alabama old Soldiers Home:

We, the inmates of the Alabama Old Soldiers Home, do render our heart-felt thanks to the choir of vocal music from Clanton and surrounding country, who sang for us. Their voices so blended together that well may we say that music is succession of pleasing sounds and does not consist in those who can sing the loudest and fastest. Their appreciated visit tends to drive away monotony and despondency, and fills our hearts with new life and zeal, and takes our mind back to childhood. Oh, how soul-stirring while our ears are saluted with the spirit and melodious songs which were a treat to our ears.

The joyous notes from the singers' throats wafting in the trees were as morsels of needed nourishment for the hungry souls.

CAPT. F. S. WHITE FAVORS SUFFRAGE

SUFFRAGE RATIFICATION NECESSARY FOR SAFETY OF DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Capt. Frank S. White, Old Line Democrat, Urges Legislature to Ratify.

One of the staunchest of the old-line Jeffersonian Democrats has recently come out strongly in favor of ratification of the Federal Suffrage amendment by the Alabama Legislature. Ex-Senator Frank S. White, of Birmingham, a native Alabamian, who wore the gray in 1861, who lived through the dread days of reconstruction, who is southern to the heart's core, and who understands the perils of the negro problems as only a southerner can, has announced that in the Suffrage Amendment he sees no menace to the safety of white domination in the South. On the contary, he declares that the very safety of Democracy and the Democratic Party lies in the ratification of the Amendment by the Legislatures of the Southern States. Captain White says:

RATIFICATION CERTAIN.

"The ratification of this amendment by a sufficient number of states is now a foregone conclusion. The support of millions of women will be either attracted to or driven from the Democratic party by the failure of Democratic States in granting them the right of suffrage. No newly enfranchised voters have ever failed to show their appreciation to the party enfranchising them, by giving it support, or their enmity to the party opposing their admission to the electorate, by voting against it.

DELAY DANGEROUS TO DEMOCRACY.

"In considering this question, it must not be overlooked that there are enough states now in which women have the right to vote to turn the scale in any Presidential or Congressional election. For Democratic States to oppose the ratification of this amendment will be to invite the opposition of the women as well as the men who favor their enfranchisement. Wherever equal suffrage has been granted in a state, it has had the effect of making the male voters of the state adherents of equal suffrage, as not to give their adherence would be political suicide to them.

FAVORED ENFRANCHISEMENT IN 1916.

"A very similar situation was presented in the Democratic National Convention at St. Louis in 1916. When the convention met, the Republican party had already declared in favor of the enfranchisement of women. To counteract the effect of this declaration in the Republican platform, it was necessary that some favorable action on the subject be taken by the Democratic convention. It was my fortune to be a member of the Platform Committee on that occasion. The question of woman suffrage was presented and discussed at great length, pro and con, during the all-night session of the committee. We received word from the President requesting that a plank favorable to admission of women into the electorate be written in the platform. We were also appealed to by Senators, Representatives and other public men from the equal suffrage states, and we were warned that a failure to declare in favor of suffrage would result in the defeat of Woodrow Wilson and the Democratic party. The result was that after a very thorough and full consideration of the subject, the committee recommended the insertion of a plank in the Democratic Platform to the effect that the party favored equal suffrage by state action.

WILSON ELECTED BY INSERTION OF CLAUSE.

"When this fact was reported to the Alabama delegation opposition was manifested in the convention to a marked degree, and seemed to be irreconcilable until it was overcome by an appeal of Senators Walsh of Montant and John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, who urged the adoption of this plank to save the Democratic party from defeat in the coming election. The convention finally endorsed the action of the Committee, and inserted the plank in the platform.

"But for the electoral votes obtained by President Wilson in the equal suffrage states of the West, he would have been defeated, and no doubt the Democrats would have been left in the minority in both houses of Congress, as its majority in each branch was very meagre.

WILSON'S ELECTION SAVED DEMOCRATS.

"All realize now, as many of us did at that time, that the defeat of President Wilson in that election would not only have been a great party loss, but would have imperilled the future success of the Nation.

By successfully winning this war, the Democratic party has placed more to its credit than it had throughout its glorious history of one hundred years. The defeat of the Democratic party in the next election will probably mean its loss of the country's control for a quarter, or perhaps a half a century.

OPPOSITION WOULD IMPERIL PARTY.

"The Democratic party is not reactionary but progressive. One of its fundamentals is that it keeps abreast of the times. I think it would be exceedingly unwise and impolitic to imperil the present and future success of the party by inaction or opposition towards the ratification of this amendment.

"Therefore, from the viewpoint of party interest, my opinion is that it is not only expedient, but necessary to party success for the present Legislature of Alabama, as well as the Legislatures of other Southern States, to ratify the proposed amendment as speedily as possible.

"Very respectfully yours,
(Signed) "FRANK S. WHITE."

COLD STORAGE HOLDINGS

In 1812 when quack Democrats were howling about the high cost of living, next to the tariff, they blamed the cold storage plants for food aviation, and they assured the public that this was going to be properly regulated. A recent survey of the U. S. Bureau of Markets shows that on June 1st of this year cold storage holdings included nearly 111,000,000 pounds of poultry, 22,164,00 pounds of cheese of various kinds, over half of it American, 30,156,000 pounds of butter, nearly 6,000,000 cases of eggs and 11,310,000 pounds of frozen eggs. This does not include the enormous holdings of canned meats, bacon, vegetables, soups, fruits, etc., held on account of the Federal government, the sole of which to the public, from whose pockets came the money to purchase them, is now being urged by Republicans in Congress. A chicken today costs more in the market than a bird in paradise would bring on a lady's hat; cheese is more regal than ambergris, and the nuggets of today are the eggs of yesteryear. No gold leaf was ever spread thinner than is the small boy's slice of bread so faintly dabbled with butter. The high cost of food is reducing the American people to a peasantry and "praties and point" are not for off. And this under an administration pledged to lower living costs. But the quack Democrats see no way out, so the Republicans must solve the problem. The man who does most to solve it should have a statue erected to his memory and it might appropriately be called "Liver and Bacon Enlightening the World."

TEMPLE CHURCH NEWS

Editon UnionBanner:

Please allow me a small space in your paper, as it has been some time since I have seen anything from this part of the county.

Everything is getting along nicely here at present. Crops are looking better since the farmers have harvested a nice chance of hay and have received a fine shower.

Our Sunday School is progressing under the management of Mr. G.M. Mims Superintendent, and Mr. J.M. Powell Secretary and Treasurer. Our enrollment is 106 with 93 present last Sunday. We make an average of 85. Just think of listening to 85 scripture verses being recited by fathers, mothers and children.

Each student quotes a verse, from the oldest man or woman down to little tots only three years old. If the people in the community would turn out as they should we could easily enroll 200.

The annual Pentecostal Revival is to begin July 18th and continue ten days or more. The services will be conducted by Rev. L. P. Adams, the well-known evangelist, who has been coming here for almost 20 years.

Everybody is invited to come and listen to the old-time truth preached by this great man of God.

Don't miss this opportunity.

Mrs. Lottie Nix, who has been sick quite a while, at this writing is better as reported.

On last Sunday your correspondent and a number of others rigged up a flivver to attend a Sunday singing at Underwood, Shelby County. On account of Mahan's Creek being swollen beyond its normal capacity, we headed for the quiet little town of Ashby, then to Brierfield, Wilton, Montevallo, and then on to Underwood, where we found the singing in full sway, Prof. Lowery directing. In due time dinner was announced. Then out under the sweet shades of Underwood such a feast was spread—kid, cakes, pies, pickles, chicken, vegetables—enough to satisfy the most fastidious. The people gave the singing good attention. A number of gentlemen publicly expressed their approval of the services. But our faithful young chauffeur looked a little sick as he contemplated the wash-outs, broken bridges, and mud along the way. Indeed, one of the party proposed to ship the car to Randolph, and we get back the best we could, but in the afternoon our driver brightened up as we headed east for Dargon, then on to Calera, where we had the pleasure of meeting some long absent loved ones, then to West Chilton, safe and happy, remembering with pleasure the good people of Underwood, the pleasures of the way, and with deep appreciation the service of our gallant little chauffeur.

WOULD AID BOY SCOUTS

Republican Congressman J. C. Strong of Kansas, one of the new members of the House, has introduced a bill providing for the issuance of army equipment to all Boy Scout officials for use on the hikes and at the camps of the scouts. The introduction of the measure came at a very opportune time, during the nation-wide campaign for 1,000,000 associate members of the boy scout organization, and much attention was given to the measure for that reason The bill has been referred to the military affairs committee, and Mr. Strong will keep in touch with its members and endeavor to secure an early and favorable report.

LOSS OF APPETITE

As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite, and if you skip a or only eat two meals for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meals when meal time comes. Bear in mind that at least hours should always elapse between meals so as to give the food ample time to digest and and the stomach a perod of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite is caused by constipation as is often the case, that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlin's Tablets will do it.

THE MORNING HOUR

Once more we have had a practical demonstration of the futility of trying to overturn by law the customs established by long experience. The daylight saving law proved to be a waster of daylight, for, under the law, farmers and farm hands arose an hour earlier but were compelled to delay morning work in the fields until the dew had evaporated. The daylight saving law gave city people more time for enjoyment but it curtailed production of crops and made city people pay more for food. Along with price-fixing, government operation and "cost-plus" contracting, daylight saving has given way to practical experience.

RENFROE MULLINS

DEMOCRATIC PARTY COMMITMENTS.

"As the first national political organization to record itself in favor of woman suffrage and as the first to welcome the women into full participation in party councils we deplorse and condemn the dilatory tactics of the Republican party in the closing hours of the last session of Congress which resulted in the failure of the suffrage resolution at a time when its proponents were assured of the requisite number of votes to accomplish its passage.

"At this time, therefore, the Democratic party confidently asks the support of the independent and progressive electorate of the United States in the maintenance of the splendid achievements of President Wilson's administration and the perpetuation of these principles and policies."—(Chicago—May, 1919.)

"The Federal Amendment is the only effective method and the only method, in fact, that will secure equality of rights for women in every State of the Union.

"I, therefore, favor the Federal Amendment for Woman Suffrage. I earnestly hope that the Congress will enact the necessary legislation and thus put it within the power of the States to do through the Federal Constitution what, in my judgment, justice and democratic ideals imperatively demand."

—William G. McAdoo.

HOW THE SOUTH PUT EQUAL SUFFRAGE ON THE MAP

If it had not been for a Southern gentleman, there might not have been an equal suffrage state by this time.

It was the chivalry of the South that gave the first real political equality in the world to women, and the first man to do it was William Bright, of Baltimore, afterward of Wyoming Territory, who realized in 1869 that his wife and mother and daughter had no say at all in the government, while negro men had been enfranchised in the state he had just left.

He introduced a bill into the Wyoming Legislature to give women of the territory the same right as men. Equal political rights with men were thus granted to the women of Wyoming—the first commonwealth in the world to concede complete political equality to women—by the Democratic party, made up then very largely from men who had pioneered from the Southeastern states of the Union.

The bill was adopted by both houses on December 10, 1869—fifty years ago—by a Democratic majority, and was signed by a Republican Governor.

Thus the beginning of political equality for women in the United States was a Southern idea. It is a curious fact that it has been kept awake ever since by Southern legislators in Western states and in the Congress of the United States.

The twelve Southern women members of the Associate National Committee of the Democratic National Committee are: Mrs. Pattie Ruffner Jacobs, Birmingham, Alabama; Mrs. James D. Head, Texarkana, Arkansas; Mrs. J. A. Corbet, Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. John K. Ottley, Atlanta, Georgia; Mrs. J. Frazier Bonnie, Louisville, Kentucky; Mrs. J. E. Friend, New Orleans, Louisiana; Miss Henrietta S. Mitchell, Jackson, Mississippi; Mrs. Hugh Ward, Kansas City, Missouri, Chairman of Woman's Auxiliary of Democratic National Committee; Miss Mary O. Graham, Raleigh, North Carolina; Mrs. Wm. C. Cathcart, Columbia, South Carolina; Miss Charl Williams, Memphis, Tennessee; Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, Texas.

"Woman suffrage is not a question of sentiment. It is a question of sound common-sense business. To the South it is an absolute business necessity."—Dr. M. Eugene Street, of North Carolina, in The Manufacturers' Record.

WOUNDS FROM A FRIEND

If Congress undertakes an investigation of the manner in which public funds were wasted in the aircraft fiasco, David Lawrence, a worshipper of the Wilson administration, will apparently make a first-class witness. Here is what he says of the situation after the people of this country have spent hundreds of millions of dollars for aircraft production: "The United States is not able, in the event of an emergency on the Mexican Border, to put into action at once an air service comparable to that which General Pershing had when he first undertook the pursuit of Villa." A sad state of affairs indeed.

Circuit Court in Equity.

J. D. Wesson, Complainant, vs. Cleadeth Wesson, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Grady Reynolds, attorney for Complainant, that the defendant is a non-resident, and that her place of residence and post office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the defendant is of the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in The Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Cleadeth Wesson, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 5th day of August, 1919, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against her.

Done at office in Clanton, Ala., this 5th day of July, 1919.

7-10-3t H.M. SIMPSON, Register.

ALL DAY SINGING

There will be an all-day singing at Walnut Creek Church, two and a half miles east of Clanton next Sunday. Everybody invited to come and bring dinner and new song books.

BEVERIDGE ON BOUNDARIES

Ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana in his recent address before the Pennsylvania Bar Association at Bedford, Pa., placed before the country in logical order the questions arising from the "gravest question except one ever raised in the history of the Republic," the peace treaty. In speaking on the much discussed Section 10 of the league covenant, which forms the major part of the treaty, Mr. Beveridge said:

"Section 10 of the covenant would bind us to go to war to defend from 'external aggression' new territorial boundaries fixed up by the big four as well as old boundaries recognized by that body, and to support the 'political independence' of the powers governing those territories. If this is not the true purport of that section, what is the real meaning of it? But our Constitution gives Congress the exclusive power to declare war.

"As a member of the superstate, which would govern us, Section 10 of the Covenant or the war power of our Constitution? Both cannot stand; they are absolutely irreconcilable. By the covenant we would be pledged to make war whether we wish to do so or not. If Congress should refuse, would we not break our treaty? And would not this invite retaliation? Would it not, as the very least and certain result, bring upon us the hatred of the nation we refuse to support and the distrust of all other nations?

"And what are the boundaries of the foreign States which the league covenant would bind us to defend with American blood and treasure? Does any human being now in America know? Is not this all that anybody in America does know, that these boundaries inclose new and old dominions in every quarter of the globe?"

Mr. Horace Davis of Birmingham, employed at the American Trust and Savings Bank, is taking his vacation this week. He and Mrs. Davis are in Clanton visiting friends and relatives.

LITTLEJOHN SCHOOLHOUSE

Our school is progressing nicely under the management of Prof. F. B. Williams, who opened school here the 16th of June with 22 pupils. We now have 46 pupils and more entering every day as they catch up with their work. We all like our teacher fine, and if you don't believe we are learning lots just come out to the schoolhouse Friday and we will show you. We have made some improvements already and are going to make some more right away. We have put up new shades and curtains, bought new waterbuckets, washpans, dippers,soap and towels and mirrors; cleaned off our school grounds nicely. We are going to have a box supper Saturday night, July 12. All that are interested are cordially invited to come.

The proceeds from the supper will be used for the benefit of the school. We want to buy some nice pictures and maps for our school and start us a library; so come on and help us out.

The farmers are all about up with their work so we are looking for a good crowd out Friday P.M. to hear us speak, spell and review what we have been over this past month.

There are several on the sick list this week—Minnie Taylor, Mrs. Varden, Mrs. Pierce; but we hope none are seriously ill.

Mr. John Duncan, one of our neighbors died Friday night and was buried at New Salem Saturday.

Our Sunday School at Liberty is progressing nicely. Mr. Albert Foshee is our faithful Superintendent. We have bought curtains to make separate rooms for each of our four classes.

Protracted meeting will begin at Liberty Saturday before the third Sunday in July. Our pastor, Bro. B. C. Hughes, wull do the preaching.

Our singing class is doing fine too.

As this is my first time to give you a few lines, will close. A PUPIL.

MOUNTAIN SPRINGS

There will be preaching at this place on next Saturday night, July 12th, by Bro. Lembrick of Billingsley. Everybody is invited to come.

SHILOH CEMETERY

All who are interested in the Cemetery at Shiloh, are requested to meet there on Thursday, July 17, for the purpose of cleaning up the grave yard at that place. J. J. BICE.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gray of Route 7 had a visitor to their home on the Fourth. It is a fine young girl who expects to stay with them indefinitely.

Bill Goodgame was in Clanton the Fourth. He has moved to Tharsby from Birmingham and has bought the Stanley Gin at this place. Next season Bill will operate the gin and warehouse at Thorsby and will buy cotton and cotton seed and handle meal and hulls. When he gets things fixed up and going he will place an adv. in the Union-Banner telling his friends all about it. Watch for the announcement.

Dr. Gragg informs us that every day sees the Clanton Infirmary nearer ready for opening. Various appurtenances of one kind and another are being installed, and the place will soon be ready to accommodate the sick folks of Clanton and adjacent community. A two-thousand dollar X-Ray machine has been bought and will be installed in a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Mims of Maple Springs are the parents of a new boy who arrived at their home last Sunday.

T. E. Williams of Albany, now employed in the Morgan County National Bank, has been in Clanton several days spending his vacation with relatives and friends.

County Farm Demonstrator W. H. Conway, of Jemison, was in Clanton Monday night and Tuesday. Mr. Conway says he has about got the details of his farm tour to south Alabama arranged. Some half a dozen or more local farmers have accepted the chance to go with him. Full details of the plans of the trip will be announced later.

Among the rural carriers who were in attendance at the State Convention of Rural Mail Carriers in Montgomwere the following representatives from Chilton County: Grover Harris, of Clanton Route 3, W. J. Armstrong of Clanton Route 4 and Ben Franklin of Thorsby Route 1. These men report a very pleasant time and royal entertainment by the city of Montgomery. They make especial mention of the courtesies shown them by the Montgomery newspapers.

B. E. Collum, merchant and business man of Jemison, was in Clanton Tuesday of this attending to some business matter.

Mr. and Mr. W. Z. Hodges spent last Sunday as visitors at the home of Charley Cox at Jumbo.

Two charming daughters of Mr. F. M. Dobson of Montgomery are visiting friends in Clanton this week.

Will DeShazo of Mulberry was in Clanton the Fourth taking in the barbecue and celebration. He told us a great big tale about a potato which he said he dug out of his patch the other day. From what he said it was a mighty fine one for this time of the year, but somehow he forgot to bring it along with him. He might have just been telling that potato tale to ge his name in the paper. He promised however, to bring us one in a few days. If he does we will give him a second write-up.

Newton Alridge of Decatur was in Clanton this week visiting relatives and friends. Newt is holding down a seat with the Western Union Telegraph Company in the north Alabama city.

Summer Complaint in Children.

There is not anything like so many deaths from this disease now as before Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy came into such general use. When this Remedy is given with castor oil as directed and proper care is taken as to diet, it is safe to say thatfully ninety nine out of every hundred case recover. Mr. W. G. Watch the Little Pimples; They are Nature's Warning

Unsightly and Disfiguring Signals of Bad Blood.

Pimples on the face and other parts of the body are warnings from Nature that your blood is sluggish and impoverished. Sometimes they foretell eczema, boils, blisters, and other skin disorders that burn like flames of fire.

They mean that your blood needs S. S. S. to purify it and cleanse it of these impure accumulations that can cause unlimited trouble. This remedy is the greatest vegetable blood purifier known, and contains no minerals or chemicals to injure the most delicate skin.

Go to your drug store, and get a bottle of S. S. S. today, get rid of those unsightly, disfiguring pimples, and other skin irritations. It will cleanse your blood thoroughly. For special medical advice free, address Medical Director, 41 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Miss Lena Wilbanks of Alexander City, Miss Bertha Coley of Montgomery, Miss Nan Thomas of Alexander City, Miss Judson Coley of Montgomery, Miss L. E. Wilbanks, Alexander City and Miss Evelyn Moore of Columbus, Ga., guests of the house party given by Misses Coley of Montgomery, spent Tuesday at Clanton as the guests of Mr. Frank Thomas.

Frank Thomas spent the week end at Montgomery as the guest of Misses Bertha and Judson Coley.

Curtis Courtney, orignally from Billingsley, has returned home from service with the army overseas. Curtis looks fine and dandy, and he displays prominently the big broad smilt that all the boys have when they get back home from "Frog Land."

The Democratic idea is that this country must now take up the burden of the world, regardless of the price in men or money. For our part, we say first let us look well after America. That's Republicanism and it's what American people want.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bates of Vincent and Mrs. W. R. Millican of Atlanta, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Atkinson last week.

Clanton is moving—Watch us.

A Democratic Senator says he believes Gid is responsible for the election of Woodrow Wilson. All we've got to say is that in that event God is in for considerable criticism at the next elecion.

IS CALLED BEST TRUCK FARMER IN ALABAMA

Owns bog Farm, 150 Acres under Cultivation; raises fine Cattle. It is men of this kind who are Openly Endorsing Dreco.

"The best truck farmer in the State of Alabama," is what they call Mr. M. G. Hewitt, who resides about four miles from Anniston, on Route 2. Read what he thinks about Dreco, the new medicine:

"I have been a sufferer from stomach troubles for a long time, and haven't ben able to find anything to cure me. After eatmg, gas would bloat my stomach; made me drawsy, and often had bad headaches. My liver seemed to be sluggish nd my entire system run down. z

"My brother, L. L. Hewitt, told me that he was taking Dreco, and it was doing him a lot of good, so I got a bottle of it, and after a week's time, I saw wonderful benefits. My stomach was greatly improved, so much that I could eat big, hearty meals and never have any gas to trouble me as before. The dizzy spells stopped, and I have not had a headache since I began taking Dreco. Instead of feeling drowsy and sluggish, I now feel full of energy; my liver is active, in fact I'm greatly helped by Dreco and you have my permission to publish this letter."

It is the good substantial folks that are endorsing Dreco. Thit is why the sale is so enormous. Rreco i an article of real merit that acts on the vital organs and restores them to full action.

All good druggists now sell Dreco, and it is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

EXPLANATION NEEDED

It is announced that the League to Enforce Peace is going to adopt the slogan: "Do not let Germany win the war through the United States Senate." This League is spending money like water in propagandizing the league of nations. The slogan will create something of a discord in the ears of the American people when they recall that Germany is to become a member of the league of nations.

The Editor of The Union-Banner had the pleasure last Sunday of listening to some splendid and inspiring sacred songs at the Old Soldiers Home at Mountain Creek. They were what is popularly termed the "old-time singing." Our version of it would rather be 'the real gospel music." Such songs, rendered by the good old men whose heads are wearing the snow-white crowns of mature years, with the overflowing spirit of religion from their hearts, bears a testimony to the supreme gospel power of "Sacred Harp and Christian Harmony." Many of the old veterans expressed their feelings with tearful eyes as the beautiful notes of the old hymns, the mingling of youthful and aged voices, carried them back to the days when they were young, when the impressions of those songs were first made upon their minds, not to be erased even by the terrible conflict through which they went in the Civil War.

Hon. Joseph O. Tnompson of Birmingham, prominent in business and political circles in Alabama, was in Clanton the Fourth, and made a speel to the crowds at the barbecue. Mr. Thompson has many friends in Clanton and Chilton County, who were indeed glad to see him and hear him speak. He is a man that always has something interesting and worthwhile for his hearers.

FEDERAL FARM LOAN FACTS

Federal farm loans are made on improved farm lands in sums not to exceed fifty per cent of the value of the land and twenty per cent of the value of the insured improvements, on terms of from five to thirty-five years.

Low Rate of Interest and Long Terms

The rate of interest is 5½ per cent per annum, but by paying of an additional one per cent, or six and one-half per cent per annum, the principal is liquidated in thirty-five years and mortgage "Satisfied" both as to interest and principal.

Stock Holders in Associations.

Five per cent of the amount borrowed must be subscribed for stock in the National Farm Loan Association through which the loan is made. This means $5 is duducted out of each $100 borrow.

Dividends Received on Stock.

Teh amount deducted for stock of the Association will be applied as cash whenever the last payment is made. In other words, on a $100 loan the $5 deducated for stock will be credited when the last payment is made. In the mean time the stock earn what ever dividends the Federal Bannk declares each year, which will be paid to the Association and in turn distributed to stockholders as provided by the Farm Loan Act.

Paying up Loans.

Loans can be liquidated at anytime after they have been in effect for five years, either as to the whole amount or any part thereof in sums of not less than Twenty-Five dollars or any multiple thereof, without any charges or so-called bonuses.

Filling Applications for Loans.

Applications must be filled through the Secretary-Treasurer of the Farm Loan Association operating in the territory in which the land offered as security is located, property appraised by Loan Committee and approved by the Board of irectors of the Association

After the National Farm Loan Association approves application, it is sent to Federal Land Bank and property appraised, Association notified of amount loan is approved for and borrower requested to send abstract of title which is passed on by Legal Department of the Bank and loan paid.

Purposes of Loans.

Loans may be obtained by farmers for the following purposes: To provide for the purchase of land for agricultural purposes. To provide for the purchase of equipment, fertilizer and live stock necessary for the proper and reasonable operation of the mortgaged farm. To provide buildings and for the improvement of farm lands. To liquidate indebtedness of the owner of land mortgaged.

To Assist the Farmer.

In substance, the Federal Farm Loan Act provides for farmers actually in control of the cultivation of their lands to secrre loans ranging from $100 to $10,000 for terms of from five to thirty-five years, as desired, to be secured by a first mortgage on their farms.

Any time after a loan has been in effect for five years, it may be liquidated by paying whatever balance is due on the principal without paying any bonus or other charges.

Under this system, a man desiring to engage in farming may borrow through the Federal Land Bank fifty per cent of the purchase price of a farm and arrange with the vendor for the payment of the other fifty per cent. However, the Federal Land Bank must hold first mortgage.

Again, if a farmer has a mortgage on his property he may borrow thru the Federal Land Bnk an amount not to exceed fifty per cent of the value of his farm to liquidate the mortgage he has and thereby take advantage of the low rate interest and long terms afforded through the system.

Further; should a farmer desire to build a new barn, silo, residence, or make other improvements to his farm may obtain the necessary funds and have a long term of years to pay same in.

Experience has taught the farmer he cannot accomplish much on short time loans, as he does not begin to get returns from the improvements for which the money was expended before the principal becomes due and he is compelled to pay one note by making out another with compound interest, which has debt is continually growing larger.

Under the Federal system of rural credits, he reduces the principal each year by paying an additional one per cent per annum or $1 on each $100 borrowed and on the amortization plan used, his loan is liquidated both as to interest and principal in thirty five years by paying 6½ per cent interest per annum on the amount borrowed. In other words, he pays in addition to the interest of 5½ per cent only $350 to liquidate a $1,000 loan.

If you desire any further information it will be cheerfully given by the Federal Land Bank of New Orleans, or L. F. Gerald, Secretary-Treasurer of the National Farm Loan Association in Chilton County.

SHOULTS

Mr. Editor Union-Banner: I want to say that our Edicational meeting we held at Pleasant Grove last Sunday was a success. I want to say that I have no objections to people raising money for Education but I do think we should put comfortable seats in our Church so we can sit and listen to the preachers that we all ready have, put heaters in our school houses so that our Children can be taught in the cold winter, paint our school house so it will last longer and look like something first, then sweep around our own doors before leaving home. I do not expect everyone to agree with me. People did not agree with Christ, to say nothing about such a worm as I. But this is the way I see things.

If I am not in the way I will come again. C. T. Walker

A. L. Bowles of Billingsley was in Clanton last Saturday and stated that he had already seen some cotton blooms in his field. He also said the boll weevil was doing considerable damage in his part of the County.

It used to be jokingly asserted that the people of Coosa County would not be bothered by the boll weevil because the pest could not cross the river. But Ed Mims says there is nothing to that idea. He is farming on the Gilchrist Island which is totally surrounded by the river and he says the weevils are damaging his cotton very badly.

Claude E. Marcus spent Wesday in Birmingham attending to some business.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set but. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

THE UNION-BANNER

VOLUME VIII | CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., JULY 17, 1919. | NUMBER 16.

A MAN WHO KNOWS GIVES OUT THE FACTS

Major General Goethals, Who Built Panama Canal is Before Committee.

WILSON AND BAKER AT FAULT

President and Secretary of War Opposed to Plan Which Would Reduce Inefficiency.

Washington, July 14.—Bureaucracy in its most selfish form has been revealed to the special committee on expenditures in the War Department by Major General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal and Director of Purchase, Storage and Traffic during the wr, in his testimony concerning the difficulties that beset everyone who attempted to bring about an efficient and economical coordination of supply purchases in the War Department.

General Goethals in his discussion before the committee, brought out the fact which, perhaps, was never realized by the country, that during the first eleven months of this country's participation in the war absolutely nothing was done by the Secretary of War to bring about a coordination of the purchasing facilities, although it was repeatedly urged upon him that none was ever actually put into effect because of the fact that before the system finally consented to by the Secretary could be established the armistice was signed.

No Co-Ordination.

"All of these purchasing agencies of the various bureaus of the War Department many of which were constantly bidding against each other for identical supplies, thereby causing increased prices, could have been coordinated by order of the Secretary of War," said General Goethals, "but such an order was never issued."

When he was asked by Chairman Graham why the Secretary opposed this reform for so long, General Goethals replied that President Wilson did not approve if it, and that the bureau chiefs were afraid that it would mean diminished authority for them. He said these chiefs were very jealous of their power, and had opposed the proposed consolidation at every opportunity.

"Cost Plus" Failure

General Goethals also said that the "cost plus" plan whereby the Government purchased vast quanities of war materials at a price which allowed the manufacturer a profit of 10 per cent above actual cost of production, was a very extravagant system.

"Under this system," said the General, "the manufacturer was only interested in his 10 per cent profit, and the cost was permitted to take care of itself. His profit was greater as the cost was greater, and it was a very extravagant system."

HE-MAN WANTED

The pacifists who were in control of the government when foreign enemies threatened, and who are still in control when domestic foes attack our institutions, are consistent in the pacifism. They preach and practice delay. But results have convinced the American people of the folly of putting pacifists on guard for the protection of American interests either abroad or at home. The next president of the United States will be a man with plenty of iron in his blood. There are many to choose from who are now serving or have served in Congress.

A SELECT LIST

A New York dispatch announces the arrival there of a 10,000 ton transport carrying one officer and ten men, with no cargo. There was no explanation for the "restricted" passenger list. Yet, people who complain of the delay in returning soldiers, the delay in mail and parcel post matter, the heavy taxes, etc., etc., are accused of being near traitors. Well, if this be treason, make the most of it.

SHOULTS

Dear Editor:

I want to say that on the 7th of July we met on the Birds Creek Road and, according to the vote, J. R. McAfee has the honor of being the ugly man. Mr. McAfee did not show up but the men worked like tigers anyhow.

When we got to Maplesville C. T. Walker was ready for the foot-race, but Mr. Oden did not show up; so Walker got the prize. C. N. Parnell was also ready for the race, but Geo. Bearden did not show up; so I guess Dock will get that prize.

One more day's work like last Monday and we will have a road good enough for the Kaiser to drive over.

Take the Banner if you want to hear from Shoults.

BIG IKE.

SAMARIA NEWS

Health of this community is good at this writing, with the exception of Mr. J. C. Alred, who is quite sick.

Crops are looking fine. Had a nice rain Wednesday.

Mr. J. Hance Alred spent a few days with home folks last week.

Mrs. J. C. Alred visited her granddaughter, Mrs. Bertha Scott of Coopers last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Newt Calloway and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson visited at Mr. Alred's Sunday.

Mrs. Ada Sims of Birmingham is spending a few days with her father, Mr. J. D. Smith.

We are pleased to know that Mr. Fonza Smith is at home from over seas. Home folks and friends are all proud to see him. He has been away four years.

Mr. Thomas Henderson of Mississippi is visiting relatives here.

Several from Samaria attended the singing at Mt. Pisgah Sunday.

LULA SMITH.

CORINTH NEWS

Will you allow me space to say a few words in your paper?

Health here is very good; everybody seems to be enjoying the warm weather.

We thank the few who attended our prayer service last Sunday night. We had a glorious meeting. Everybody seemed to be overjoyed with the love of God.

We are proud to say that one of our soldier boys, Mr. Henry Jones, has had a 12-days furlough with his mother and father, Mrs. and Mr. Pink Jones of this place. But it is sad to say that he has returned to Camp at Charleston, S. C.

Mr. Jim Jones, whose wife died June 14, has been visiting his son at Prattville; but is back with us now.

Our singing school at Corinth is to start the 28th of this month. We cordially invite everybody that wants to come and be in the school.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Jones of this place are expecting every week to hear that their son, Archie, is back in the U.S. from France.

Our community has gone over the top in the Baptist Campaign. We thank the people for their nice contributions.

Will close, wishing the Union-Banner a great success.

Come on, you writers, and let's try and make the paper more interesting to its many readers.

DEMOCRATS FLAY PRESENT POLICY OF DEPARTMENTS

In Sharp Attack Upon His Own Party Senator King Charges Continued Waste.

HINTS ILLEGAL EXPENDITURES

Washington, July 14.—One of the sharpest attacks which yet has been made in Congress upon the policy of the executive departments and bureaus to keep as many persons on the government pay roll at the expense of the taxpayers as possible was made by Senator King of Utah, one of the Democratic leaders. Senator King's statements bore out much that has been said with respect to the extravagant insistence of officials to employ practically as many people as they employed while the war was on.

Senator King declared some of the heads of bureaus ought to be investigated and perhaps suit ought to be instituted against them to recover expenditures illegally made.

More Than Required.

"When our country entered the war of course it became necessary to increase the number of employees," said Senator King. "The result was that tens of thousands came to Washington, many more, in my opinion than we needed. It has seemed to me that there is a predetermination upon the part of departments, bureaus and governmental agencies to keep in Washington and in the service of the government all those who were brought here for an emergency. Instead of there being an attempt to separate some of these individuals from the rolls there seems to be a determination to keep them upon the rolls as employees of the government. Only a few thousands have been discharged from the various departments and in many of the departments and bureaus there are more people employed now than there were at any time during the period of the war.

Continue to Spend.

"Instead of endeavoring to reduce expenses and practice economy many of these executive agencies are evincing a purpose to continue upon a war basis and expend the same or larger sums than the necessities of the war called for. Reductions will only come when Congress enacts appropriate legislation and refuses to make the appropriation demanded by such agencies and departments. As long as the appeals and demands of bureaus and departments and agencies and instrumentalities are controlling, this vast army of employees in Washington and through out the nation will be continued. I venture the opinion that every department and every executive agency represented here in Washington has submitted many reasons for continuing the war agencies and war machiery and war and wails forigncounmau,ions,heioet appropriations. There are outcries of despair when Congress attempts to reduce the number of employees or the compensation which was based upon war conditions."

G. O. P. DID IT

"Congress has justified the faith of American women," declares Mrs. Maude Wood Park, referring to the passage of the suffrage amendment. And it was a Republican Congress. Do not forget that. Had Mr. Wilson urged four years ago the passage of the amendment with the insistence which he urged the passage of some of his socialistic projects, the women would have voted in the 1916 election.

WATCHFUL WAITING

The day after the bomb explosions 22 anarchists were arrested. The pertinent question is, why were they not arrested the day before, instead of the day after the explosions. The particular men were not bomb-throwers—they were merely sympathizers or plotters whose activities should have been as well known the day before the explosions as the day after.

BRANDEGEE HITS LEAGUE A MIGHTY HARD BLOW

Will Quit Republican Party if the Party Takes Stand in Favor of the League of Nations.

Washington, July 14.—The Republican publicity Association, through its president, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today, gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

'Americanism will not lack for vigorous protection as long as the Senate contains such members as Hon Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut. He does not mince words in stating his position on the league of nations, and his determination to stand to the last in upholding the oath he took to defend he constitution. In a statement recently issued by Mr. Brandegee he uses the following language:

This country has had three critical shocks.

First achieving its independence.

Second, framing its Constitution.

Third, preserving the Union under the Constitution.

We are now confronted with the fourth crisis. It is, Shall we preserve our independence or surrender it.

I am an American and nothing else. I am a United States Senator and a member of the Foreign Relations Committee. I have taken oath to preserve and protect the Constitution of the United States, and, so help me God, I am going to do it. I thoroughly realize the responsibility which is resting upon me and I propose to use my best judgment that God has given me without fear or favor.

The so-called covenant for the league of nations which the executive has made, is, in my mind, a hideous monstrosity. I shall not vote for it till hell freezes over, and I think that such event is probably somewhat remote. I am not to be buncoed by any lingo about "humanity or the moral forces of the world or voices in the air." I am for upholding the American flag and not for hauling it down. I am for the Stars and Stripes, and not for the milk-white flag of neutral internationalism. I am for the America of George Washington. I believe America can best serve humanity by minding its own business. I am not ready to cast this country into the witches' couldron on international complications. Are we to tax our people, conscript our boys and fight the battles of the world to please somebody's idealism. I am utterly opposed to the league and in favor of peace. I do not believe it will become a party issue, but I will leave the Republican party the minute it stands for the league.

"In giving utterance to these trenchant expressions of patriotism Senator Brandegee knows that he but echoes the centiments of an overwhelming majority of his New England constituents. They have inherited the blood of distinguished Revolutionary ancestors, who did not hesitate to declare and fight for their independence from the oppression of the most powerful nation in the entire world. The country is now being threatened with coercion by force of arms unless we are willing to surrender the independence won by the fathers of the country, and consent to slip back into the condition of subservance from which the Revolution rescued us. The odds against us now are great, but not so heavy as those that confronted the colonists. The world never saw more virile courage than was exhibited by those great men. It is possible that the American quality of patriotism is not of as high a standard now as it was in '76.

OUR LESSON

While the world is getting back on a peace basis, some of our industries may get along without a protective tariff, but this much is certain—a protective tariff can do no harm and may do a lot of good later. We neglected preparedness once to our sorrow.

MT. PISGAH

The 13th day of July was an enjoyable day at Mt. Pisgah. By 10 a.m. a number of the best singers in the county were seen on the ground. Prof. H. C. Collins arranged the seats and directed a few songs, then prayer by G. W. Edwards.

The following committee was appointed to arrange program for the day: A. J. Culp, Ira Yeargan and O. L. Devaughn.

A. A. Beard and others directed a few songs, then 10 minutes recess. We had the pleasure of listening to an able sermon by Rev. F. A. Gipson.

By 2 p.m., the committee had their program arranged, as follows: Sam Henley, O. L. Devaughn, John Lowery, J. M. Taylor and Lee Grant, 3 songs each. Then recess ten minutes.

After recess we had a beautiful quartette by H. C. Collins, A. A Beaird and two Messrs Devaughn.

Lee Robinson, H. C. Collins, S. M. Yates, A. C. Neeley and Robert Murphy sung three songs each. One song by F. I. Popwell, and dismission by Rev. F. A. Gipson.

The organists for the day were Vela Scott, Birdie Edwards, Dera Jones, Claudie Lee Murphy, Lee Robinson, Lee Grant, A. A. Beaird and H. C. Collins.

MR. JOHNSON DENIES CHARGE ON HIM—DECLARES INNOCENCE

Mr. J. O. Johnson, the leader of the Boy Scouts Band enters severe protest against the charge in last week's Union-Banner that he lay down on the boys in their Fourth of July program. He demands that we make amends for our charge against him, because he says that our statements are unjust and untrue. If what we said was unjust and untrue, we stand ready to yield our position to that which is correct, and we offer to the public the explanation of Mr. Johnson himself, which he assures us is the positive truth about the matter.

Mr. Johnson asserts that his failure to officiate as leader of the band was not due to wilfully laying down on his part, but was because a blister on his lip utterly incapacitated him in sounding his horn, and therefore, he was forced, greatly against his will, to give up the program. He avows that no one is more regretful of the failure of the band program than himself; but maintains that the failure was the result of a condition beyond his control.

We are glad to have Mr. Johnson explain the matter as he does. For we had much rather be assured that his failure was not wilful, than to be impressed that he chose to humiliate our boys through the abandonment of his duties as their leader.

RURAL CARRIERS EXAMINATION

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for the County of Chilton, Alabama, to be held at Clanton and Maplesville, on August 19, 1919, to fill the position of rural carrier at Maplesville, and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from other post offices in Chilton County. The examination will be open only to citizens who re actually domiciled in the territory of a post office in the county and who meet the other requirements set forth in Form No. 1977. This form and application blanks may be obtained from the offices mentioned above or from the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D.C. Applications should be forwarded to the Commission at Washington at the earliest practicable date.

PROVIDENCE CEMETERY

Providence people have agreed to meet on Tuesday, July 22, for the purpose of cleaning off the Cemetery and church ground. All who are interested will please come on that day for that purpose.

REPUBLICANS WILL REPEAL LUXURY TAX

Member of Sterring Committee of House Believes Action Not Far Distant.

TO CONTINUE ENERGETIC PACE

Circuit Clerk, 1 Jan 16

Washington, July 14—Having completed passage of the great appropriation bills, the House has now launched itself upon a program of general legislation which indicates its purpose to continue the energetic pace which has marked the first few weeks of the session. One of the interesting developments is the probability, as viewed by Representative Madden, of Illinois, a member of the Republican steering committee, that Congress will see its way clear to repeal such of the so-called luxury taxes as apply to the necessaries of life, such as clothing, and to such minor luxuries as moving-picture theatres and soft drinks.

"We have wanted to repeal the consumption taxes ever since the Republicans came into control," said Mr. Madden, today, "but it is only recently that we have found the answer to the question of how it could be done. We now find the answer in the fact that the Republicans have already reduced appropriations by approximately $1,500,000,000, and with this saving we would be in a position to revoke the consumption taxes."

The general legislative program already decided upon, as reviewed by Mr. Madden is as follows:

Waterpower legislation, which is already under consideration.

The formulation of a permanent merchant marine policy.

Protective legislation for the American dye industry.

The soldier settlement bill.

Return of the railroads to their owners.

SESSION CHILTON COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION

The Fifteenth Annual Session of the Chilton County Singing Convention will be held at Collins Chapel Church, two miles east of Thorsby, on Saturday afternoon and Sunday, July 19 and 20, 1919.

A business session will be held on Saturday at 2:00 o'clock, p.m..

Sunday will be spent in singing, and we expect to have some of the best singers of the county in attendance.

All members are urged to attend the business session.

Those wishing conveyance from Thorsby, write J. M. Mims, Clanton, Alabama, Route No. 4.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON EXERCISES AT LITTLEJOHN SCHOOLHOUSE

On last Friday afternoon quite a number of the trustees and patrons of the Littlejohn School met at the school house and witnessed some special exercises performed by the students. The program consisted principally of review work for the past month of school, together with some spelling matches, recitations, etc.

There were about 25 patrons of the school present besides over forty visitors.

Such meetings as these are inspiring to the students of a school, and they also serve as a great encouragement to the teacher. It shows that the people are interested in their school and in their children.

TEMPLE CHURCH

The annual pentecostal revival will begin at Temple Church, 3½ miles east of Clanton, on Friday, July 18th. Rev. L. P. Adams will have charge of the preaching. Everybody is invited to attend the services.

The Highway Question in Alabama An Important Matter.

The highways of Alabama are in a state of rapid deterioration. From every county is coming the cry that our roads are going to the bad and no means at hand to rebuild them. Millions of dollars have been spent on the roads all of which will soon be wasted at the rate we are going, unless more money is provided to save that which has already been put in the building of roads.

The plan which has been worked out by the Alabama Highway Improvement Association, which is now before the State Legislature looks to us like the only hope of improved highways in the State, and the only means of saving the money that has already been put in the roads.

Scarcely a single county in the State is able to maintain its roads. Nearly all the counties are as deep in debt as they can go, with no money on hand and the roads daily going to pieces.

The plan under consideration is this: For the state to vote a bond issue of 25 million dollars to meet the federal appropriation for high ways, thus, creating a fund that will put our highways already constructed in good condition, gravel them and build parts of our highways that have never before been graded and graveled. The interest on the bonds to be paid by the automobile and motor vehicle license of the State.

There are many worthy features of this plan which stand out prominently. First, it will guarantee a system of good highways connecting all points of the State. It will relieve each and every individual county of the responsibility and expense of keeping up the parts of trunk highway lines passing through those counties. The highways will be paid for and kept up by the people who use them and get the direct benefit from them, the automobile owners. The farmer who does not live near these highways and does not own an automobile will not pay one red cent toward keeping up the highways. When a county is relieved of the expense of keeping up these highways, it will have that much more money and time to devote to its other roads, which will work a direct advantage to every citizen of the county, who owns as much as an ox wagon and travels a public road at all. It looks to us like this is the chance for the people to put the expense of the highways on the fellows who own automobiles, and at the same time save their own tax money to work the roads that run out over the county.

We hope that the Legislature will give the people a chance to vote on this proposition. We believe they can see the wisdom of the plan, and whereby it is for the best interest of the people in every county in Alabama.

Birmingham People Pull Another Big Bone this Week:

The sensible people of Birmingham must indeed hang their heads in shame at the capers some of their fellow citizens have been cutting in regard to Senator Reed speaking in that city against the league of nations. Those who have so bitterly protested against Sen. Reed speaking, and who have been so unthoughted in their threats against him have displayed anything and everything except the spirit of fair play and democracy. They have shown the very narrow space that separates their eyes, and such action as they have taken unto themselves befits none but the low-brow element of humanity.

Are not the people of Birmingham willing to grant to every man the right to his own individual thoughts and his own words? Do they think that a people must fall for the preachments of Wilson as though he were a despot holding a rod of iron across our shoulders and daring us to raise our eyes to the light of knowledge lest he smite us down and crush our lives from our bodies? People who behave like those in Birmingham who so unwisely protested against Senator Reed's speech, are not deserving of the freedom that is guaranteed under the American Constitution. They would bite the hand that is feeding them. They would throttle the stream that brings them waer of life and turn its course into regions where its life-giving splendor goes to waste.

The League of Nations Violates All of American Integrity.

"The present league of nations ought not be ratified by the Senate because it invades the sovereignty of the United States. Article X compels us to defend the teritorial integrity and political independence of all member nations of the league. This binds us to defend Japan in her possession of Shantung against any efforts of the Chinese government to retake this territory and forty-four million of her people of which she has been despoiled. It binds us equally to defend Great Britain's colonial possessions anywhere in the world. This article not only says that we will respect such territorial integrity but we will undertake to preserve it. There is no way to preserve the territory of one of the league members against external aggression save by armies and navies. The United States therefore embroils herself in both Europe and Asia to presrve the territorial possessions of Japan and Great Britain. Our navy and a large army are in constant danger of being employed to this end.

"Article 11 provides that any war or threat of war whether immediately affecting any of the members of the league or not, is a matter of concern to the whole league and the league shall take any action it may deem wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations.

"Article 16 provides for the automatic declaration of war whenever any covenant breaking nation resorts to war in violence of the league's articles. It is, as it states, an ipso facto declaration of war against the U. S. The United States then finds itself in a condition of war without a declaration by congress. It relieves Congress from any responsibility save that of drafting men and levying taxes to create armies and navies. This is an invasion of sovereignty.

"The Monroe Doctrine is construed away into nebulous metaphysics. It is resolved into the dim generality of a regional understanding which in turn is, but comparative in character and will become a mere matter of illustration instead of the settled American policy of this republic.

"It is obvious that such a league ought not be entangled with the peace treaty. The peace treaty is designed to end the condition of war declared to exist betwen this country and Germany April 6, 1917. The general desire for the conclusion of peace ought not be made a logrolling device to foist upon the country a league which few people understand and still fewer will support when its provisions have time to be thoroughly known to all."—Senator Sherman.

Birmingham Council of American Legion Gone Wild.

Is the Birmingham Council a fair sample of the American Legion? If the Organization of ex-soldiers in America is going to be pledged to such narrow-minded acts as the Birmingham Council has pulled off on Senator Reed, here is one lad who shouldered a Springfield that don't want any of it in his. If it is going to be a gang with the purpose of gagging the country on Mr. Wilson's socialistis dreams of international idealism, we have got enough of the American Legion right here and now. If it is going to help the Roman Catholics of America suppress the right of free speech and free press, it can have none of our support at all.

Our opinion is that the Birmingham Council his missed the aims of the organization. Those fellows have gone off their nut entirely to begin with. If that is all the democracy that is in the American soldiers it is prima facie evidence that they went to Europe to fight for some thing which they themselves did not have the first principles of in the own hearts.

A convent inspection bill has been introduced in the Alabama Legislature, and you just ought to see how the frock-tailed she-ma le men of the priesthool from one end of the State to the other are rising up in arms against the measure. They realize that if it passes and is made a law it will throw open their dens of crime and wickedness to the unmerciful eyes of the decent people of the State. They will move heaven and earth to defeat the bill. We hope that the legislature is made of men who can sand the fire and put the law on our statute books that will put the bachelor preachers and filthy nuns of Rome on the run from Alabama.

A subscriber asks how we think the people stand on the government control of wires, roads, etc. They stand disgusted to a man. The only person we know of who favors the darned mess is one Albert Sidney Burleson.—Yellow Jacket.

When Wilson said he would keep us out of war, he meant he would keep us out until he was inaugurated the second time, but the silly Democrats couldn't see it and wanted to mob the Republicans who declared it was a snare.

The highways of the state must be dealt with separate from the other roads of the various counties if either system is ever to be improved and made worth while.

Some Things We Saw at the Good Roads Meeting in Montgomery

Last Thursday morning, by invitation of Judge Reynolds, the editor in company with Judge Reynolds himself and County Commissioner A.P. Vinson, set out to Montgomery to be present at the meeting of the Alabama Highway Improvement Association. The trip was to be accomplished in Judge Reynolds' big Winton Six, which faithful boat successfully executed its mission under the judicious piloting of Judge Reynolds. There was many a bump and hole in the worn-out road which we had to travel, and it was quite enough to convince anyone of the dire need of highway improvement in Alabama just to travel over that road one time in a car. It was bad enough with a big Winton. No telling how bad it would have been in a flivver. The road from here to Montgomery is truly a bad one. Parts of the way which were once the finest kind of highway have gone down till it is worse than the average country road that has never been graded and improved. The Autauga link of the road which has never been graded nor graveled is now about as good as any other part of the way.

We reached Montgomery shortly after noon, and as stated above we were much more enthused over good roads than before we had made the trip. I guess it was enthusiasm for good roads that we felt. Anyway, I am sure it was a particular aversion for bad roads. For we had about all of the bumps and thrills that a fellow cares for in a space of forty-six miles in four hours. We stopped at the City Hall and registered, whereupon we were tagged as good roads delegates. Mr. Vinson then made a motion that we locate an eat-house, which was readily seconded by the editor, and was quickly made unanimous by the consent of Judge Reynolds. Next stop was the Pickwick. The severe shaking we had received from the trip just finished had materially aided our digestive apperatus, and before we had begun the se ncocdueroszaBon vbgk cmfw vbg second course of our dinner, it was realized that the cafe had us assessed with three dollars and sixty-five cents damages against the bill of fare.

Feeling much better after lunch we went back to the City Hall for the first session of the good roads Convention. There was much ado at the hall when we arrived. The place was thronged by men from every nook and corner of the States. Probate Judges, editors, preachers, county commissioners, lawyers, doctors, farmers, bankers, all were mixing and mingling, shaking hands with old friends and political enemies. Even plain old Bill Brandon was there in full force, running for Governor right on but camouflaged behind a good roads badge.

When Uncle Fred Cramton appeared on the scene all became quiet and a brass band opened the meeting with a fitting selection. Prayer was reverently sent up by a Doctor Dickenson. The welcome address was delivered to the delegates composing the meeting by Hon. Robert H. Jones. president of the Board of Revenue of Montgomery County. The response was made in behalf of the delegates by Judge Brandon, and you know how Bill can do such stunts as that. He is a peach of a fellow for such occasions, and his words at this time were well chosen and particularly impressive.

On the stage and taking prominent part in the doings of the occasion was Bruce Kennedy of the Chamber of Commerce. We don't know what Montgomery would do without Bruce. A man sitting beside me was astonished that Indiana had sent James Whitcomb Riley down here to our good roads Convention; but when we had observed the object of his amazement sitting there on the stage, it was none other than Frank Willis Barnett of the Birmingham Age-Herald. Our neighbor looked dejected when we assured him that his friend Riley had been dead for some years. After a short spell of wheezing and resoluting the body adjourned for the grand automobile parade.

Hundreds and hundreds of cars—both automobiles and Fords, formed into the parade line in column of 2's, near the city hall, and proceeded to the State Capitol. Each car bore a banner with the name of its home county thereon, and carried its capacity of delegates all tagged nd decorated with the good roads scenery. Our party in Judge Reynolds car was greatly augmented in both dignity and appearance by the presence of Mr. Howard S. Doster, editor of the Prattville Progress, who rode with us in the parade. Members of the Legislature joined the parade at the capitol and the grand pageant proceeded down Dexter Avenue through the city and out to the flying field at West End.

Those fellows that Uncle Sam has got operating his flying machines out at Wright Field seem to be in competition with the road business. For they do not need any roads at all for their way of locomotion. But for all that most of the delegates present were willing to let them have their flying machines, and we would just go ahead and build highways and depend on the dauntless flivver for our going about. But it is worth while and indeed amusing to see what is going on at the repair depot and flying field. One can have no conception of such a plant until he has been through it. We found Red McKee and Grover Bice in the shop assembling motors for the flying boats.

After we had been through the immense plant of the repair depot we came out on the field to find half a dozen or more of the big birds ready to take the wing. The stunts they pulled off included everything in the catalogue and a few extras for the day not mentioned in the regular list. Lieut. Steel in his little blue bird rotary plane cut up so much that he reminded us of a a june-bug with his head cut off. With the fun all over at the flying field and the day well spent we came back to the city. On the way we picked up Mr. F. A. Gulledge to keep him frim having to walk back to the city.

Judge Reynolds and Mr. Vinson attended the night session of the Convention but the editor did not. On the other hand, I enjoyed the extreme pleasure of two hours at supper with Judge Weaver of Shelby and E. M. Allen, a friend who lives in Montgomery. Besides taking us up for supper and paying the bill, Allen did another unfortunate thing. He mentioned politics about the time we sat down to the table, whereupon Judge Weaver and I both turned loose our Republican artillery against the Democratic flashes of our worthy host. I want to say right here that Judge Weaver is wound up for eight days at a time on this political stuff, and if he hands it to those Shelby Democrats like he did to our friend Allen, he will make things look smoky for some of them a while yet. After supper we assured friend Allen that it had been a delightful treat for us and with duet hanks we bade him good night. Upon going to my room at the Gay-Teague, I found Judge Reynolds and Mr. Vinson already retired and enjoying the cool breezes that were cheerfully playing around the windows of the fifth-story of that superb hostelry, while the thermometer on the side walk must have been at least 93 or more and it eleven o'clock at night.

The next morning we arose refreshed with rest, and after donning clean shirt and collar set out to get breakfast. Then to the nine-o'clock session of the Good Roads Convention. Uncle Fred was a bit late in wielding the gravel. But when things were finally set in motion, we heard speeches on everything you can imagine from the Civil war to Woman Suffrage. After two hours of more more or less windy speeches from a dozen or more good roads orators, the meeting adjourned sine die. And as yet the greatest mystery of that great meeting remains unsolved, namely: "Why somebody didn't introduce a resolution endorsing Mr. Wilson and the League of Nations."

Our next stop was at the State Capitol whither we went to get our representative, W. A. Reynolds to lunch with us. Upon ariving at the capitol we found the lawlmakers not yet adjourned for dinner. We took seat in the gallery and observed two representatives on the floor of the house about ready to tie up on some debate. At first thought we felt that we were going to make up for not seeing the Willard-Dimpsey fight by seeing one in the arena below us. Judge Reynolds told the following story while we sat there waiting for the hour of adjournment:

When Joe Mullins was quite a small boy his father, Hon. Tipton Mullins went down to take a look at the lawmakers one day and carried Joe along with him. Joe, like all small boys are when they go to the city, was very restless, and every place his father would carry him he naturally wanted it to be some other place. But Mr. Mullins pacified Joe by continually telling him, "We will go to see the legislature after a while, son. Just be a good boy now a while longer."

Finally the gallery overlooking the floor of the house was reached whereupon Mr. Mullins pointed below and said: "Now, son, look down there. Do you see the legislature?"

"No, papa, I don't see it. Where is it," inquired Joe.

"Ah, Son, there it is down there those men you see," assured Mr. Mullins.

"Pshaw, papa," said Joe, in a disappointed way, "I thought it was going to be some animals."

One o'clock found Alabama's lawmakers hurrying out to lunch. We went along with them. Contemplating the ups and downs of the return trip, we ate heavily in order to ward off sea-sickness, and when we had our fill the return was begun, via Wetumpka. Just as we were leaving Grover Walker came along stating that he was broke and wanted to come back with us. We were glad to take him on to help hold the boat to the ground. But Grover was not broke, for he had twenty cents when we reached Wetumpka, with which he bought a cigar and a watermelon.

Our trip home was an uneventful one except the severe shocking we occasionally got at the hands of the unmerciful bumps in the bad roads. In conclusion, we might say that if you know of a fellow who is wrong on the good roads question just put him in your flivver and run to Montgomery and back with him, and his heart will be in the right place when he gets back home, if he is lucky enough to get back without having it shaken out of him entirely.

Chilton County delegates attending the good roads convention in Montgomery last week were Judge Reynolds and W. M, Wyatt from Clanton, A. P. Vinson, Tom and Dewey Rockett and Olvin McSwain of Coopers, R. J. Williams and D. O. Manning of Maplesville, F. A. Gulledge, W. A Gulledge and H.B. Oliver of Verbena.

Last Monday as Lieut. Powell and Lieut. Steele from the flying field in Montgomery were on their way to Birmingham in one of the army planes they had engine trouble and were forced to land near Clanton. They came to earth in John Gray's corn field just west of town, and damaged quite a lot of growing corn. The machine was not damaged except a broken propeflor, and the aviators were not hurt in the forced landing. The machine was repaired in the afternoon and Lieut. Powell piloted her back to Montgomery.

Hon. Pope M. Long of Cordova and Judge J. J. Curtis of Jasper were in Clanton Wednesday. Mr. Long is Chairman of the State Republican Executive Committee. Judge Curtis bears the distinction of being the only Republican circuit Judge in Alabama. His circuit comprises the two counties of Walker and Winston.

Judge Reynolds and Mr. A. P. Vinson are in Birmingham this week looking after the government motor trucks that have been awarded to Chilton County through the Alabama Highway Commission. These trucks when delivered here will be used by the county in road work.

Dr. Clarence Roper is in Clanton this week on a visit to his parents.

SECRETARY OF NAVY DANIELS URGES THE RATIFICATION OF THE SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT

In a recent telegram to Mrs. John D. McNeel, Alabama Chairman of Ratification Committee, Secretary Daniels says:

"Democratic senators from Texas Arkansas, Louisiana, Georgia, Oklahoma and Tennessee were among those who voted on June 4 to submit the nineteenth amendment to the states for ratification. That amendment has been ratified by 11 states and special sessions of the General Assembly have been called in others to consider it. Every state that has held a session of the legislature since it was submitted has ratified it by overwhelming majorities. Democrats and Republicans have united in hastening to give this delayed right to women in order that they may participate in the next presidential election. Great Britain and Germany have now asked women to become equal partners in government housekeeping. Why should the United States hesitate?

"The day for debate as to the capacity of women to wisely exercise the right of suffrage has passed. At least we Democrats cannot deny that she knew what she was about when it was largely due to the vote of the women in the Western states that made the re-election of President Wilson. That was a party victory, but it was much more than that; without his vision and his faith can we dare believe this blessing to the world would have been achieved?

"The argument for woman suffrage is alike to the people of Alabama and Massachusetts. It makes no change in state laws of the qualifications to vote that do not already exist. Each section has its problems which it must solve. With suffrage to women the same requirements now affecting male voters will apply to female voters. The South has nothing to fear from the amendment, but it would be a loss to Southern chivalry and Southern prestige if our section of the country halted this great reform.

"Earnestly hope the people of Alabama will take the lead of Southern states east of the Mississippi and follow the wise leadership of Texas and Missouri and other progressive commonwealths. There is no doubt of the ratification. Let Alabama lead and not follow. It has blasted the way in other days in noble achievement and is known far and wide for its chivalry. Its ratification would be hailed with satisfaction by the whole country and would gladden the heart of the president as he returns with the covenant of nations."

(Signed) "JOSEPHUS DANIELS."

FOR DESERVING DEMOCRATS

If the British-Wilsonian league of nations is anything like the Wilson administration at Washington, it will even before it comes into legal existence, begin to assert that its duties are so numerous and its tasks so great that it must have increased appropriations for the employment of increased numbers of experts, etc., etc. It must be admitted that the league scheme involves such serious international difficulties as to require a large amount of negotiation to make a decent sort of record preliminary to the wars that are assured, if the league shall become a reality.

YOU NEED NOT SUFFER FROM CATARRH

But You Must Drive It Out of Your Blood.

Catarrh is annoying enough when it chokes up your nostrils and air passages, causing difficult breathing and other discomforts. Real danger comes when it reaches down into your lungs.

This is why you should at once realize the importance of the proper treatment, and lose no time experimenting with worthless remedies which touch only the surface.

To be rid of Catarrh, you must drive the disease germs out of your blood.

Splendid results have been reported from the use of S. S. S., which completely routs from your blood the Catarrh germs, for which it is a perfect antidote.

If you wish medical advice as to the treatment of your own individual case, write to Chief Medical Adviser, 42 Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

NOTED SOUTHERN ATTORNEY FAVORS FEDERAL SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT.

George Gordon Battle, a Southerner, who is today widely known as one of New York's leading attorneys, is unequivocally in favor of the Federal Suffrage Amendment.

"I have always believed in suffrage," he says, "as I have confidence in the good sense of the majority of the adult citizens. Having these democratic sympathies, I have been able to see no reason why the right of suffrage should not be extended to women, and I have therefore, strongly advocated the measure in the past. Now that the Amendment has passed the Congress and is to be submitted to the Legislatures of the respective States, I have no doubt that the result will be favorable. Indeed, I think the result is a foregone conclusion, and one of the strongest arguments in favor of the Amendment is the fact that it is in any event inevitable."

TO PALE PEOPLE— YOUR BLOOD MAY BE STARVING FOR IRON!

If Your Blood Needs Iron, It Needs ZIRON, the New Compound of Iron, Which Acts as a Strengthening Tonic, Enriching the Blood and Building up the System.

When your blood lacks the proper proportion of red corpuscles to give your complexion the "rosy hue of health" and your complexion is pale, "pasty-looking", perhaps even greenish-tinged, you are probably of an anemic or chlorotic nature, and your blood needs Ziron, to bring back the rich, red flush of health.

Ziron, the new compound of iron, the hypophosphites of lime and soda, and other tonic, strengthening ingredients, has been found of great value in conditions of simple anemia, chlorosis, debility, nervousness, lack of ambition, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, etc. It is a valuable reconstructive tonic, in cases of weakness, and helps build up the constitution after severe illness.

Mrs. Mae Belle Perkins, of Adairsville, Ga., writes: "About two months ago I got to feeling badly. My back hurt me badly, and my legs and arms hurt too, and I didn't have any appetite at all to eat. About two weeks ago I commenced taking Ziron, according to directions on the bottle . . . By the time I had taken the medicine for a week, I could see it was doing me good. I had been weak and nervous, and it made me feel stronger, and I'm not a bit nervous now. My back is all right, and my arms and legs do not ache. And my appetite is good again.

Before I started using Ziron I wouldn't rest at night, I was so tired feeling and felt worn out. I have used nearly the whole bottle and now I sleep fine every night. It sure is a fine medicine, and I am glad I tried it."

Ziron is non-alcoholic, contains no habit-forming drugs, acts gently, has no bad after-effects, is good for men, women and children. It is a medicine of genuine merit, composed of ingredients prescribed by eminent physicians. Try it.

SPECIAL OFFER: Buy a bottle of ZIRON, today, at your druggist's and give it a fair trial, according to directions on the label. After using up one bottle, if you find it has not benefited you, take it back to the druggist and he will refund what you paid him for it. We repay him, so there is no reason why he should not repay you. This offer only applies to the first trial bottle. (Z. A. L.)

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENTS

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Circuit Court in Equity.

J. D. Wesson, Complainant, vs. Cleadeth Wesson, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Grady Reynolds, attorney for Complainant, that the defendant is a non-resident, and that her place of residence and post office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the defendant is of the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in The Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Cleadeth Wesson, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 5th day of August, 1919, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against her.

Done at office in Clanton, Ala., this 5th day of July, 1919.

What did it? Good breeding and care. If you grow better heifers than their mothers, they must have better sires. See Lassi Foso Pogis at Dr. Hinkle's. His sire's mother produced 962 pounds of butter in one year.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

STATES WHERE WOMEN VOTE

White states have full suffrage. Dotted states have partial suffrage. Black states have no suffrage.

Alabama is one of seven states left whose women cannot vote on any question.

MRS. SOLON JACOBS.

She is Alabama Chairman of the Women Associates of the Democratic National Committee, of which Homer Cummings is chairman.

At its national conference in May, this Committee passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, the Democratic Party is on record as favoring Woman's Suffrage, and

"Whereas, it now appears certain that the federal suffrage amendment will pass the United States Senate within the next few days, and

"Whereas, it is the earnest desire of the Democratic Party that all women vote in the elections of 1920,

"Therefore be it Resolved, That the Democratic National Committee urges the calling of special sessions of the state legislatures wherever necessary to bring about a speedy ratification of said federal amendment."

STAY-AT-HOMES HOLD THE SOLDIERS OLD JOB

Men Who Fought in France at Disadvantage in Getting Places Back.

Washington, July 15.—Much complaint is arising from clerks in the departments who served in the army and navy, many of whom fought in France, to the effect that on their return to civil life they are being forced to take positions subordinate to clerks who before the war were subordinate to them. In other words, it appears that many of these clerks who offered their lives to their country are now getting as their reward the discvovery that in their absence from the departments other employees have been promoted while the best that is allowed them is restoration to their old positions.

Many instances of this sort of thing are coming to light and are being brought to the attention of members of the House and Senate. The defense of the officials of the dpeartments is that they have no authority to do more than restore returned soldiers and sailors to the positions that they left when they entered the service of the land or naval focres. Many members of Congress feel that while technically this may be a correct statement officials who were fully appreciative of the deserts of the men who entered the service could find ways of giving them appropriate recognition.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS FOR WAR

War is rarely made by the people. In the case of democratic governments, it may be declared by representatives of the people, as in the case of the American Congress, or House of Commons in England under autocratic governments, which, thank God, are rapidly disappearing, it may be declared by a coterie, as in the recent great war brought on by Germany; but, at all events, a declaration of war is made by individuals, and it seems to me that if the great statesmen assembled in Paris had really meant to make war in the future impossible, the first clause of the league of nations covenant, as drawn up by them, would read about as follows:

All war, except in the defensive, is illegal and an international code shall be drawn up in every way qualifying what defensive war means.

The punishment for violation if this first clause of the treaty should mean death to those making said declarations or affixing their signatures thereto, and after that clause it seems to me that any further clauses would be almost needless, except those defining the methods of trial of the criminals.

This would be a real league of nations for peace; instead of that, we have a document, which, while no doubt meritorious in many respects, is nothing but a league of nations for war. And I have heard Mr. Fred Coudert, the eloquent and eminent defender of the proposed league, state in Carnegie Hall that this "was no league of nations for peace, but a league of nations for peace through war."

As for me the crushing results of the recent war do not make a league of nations for peace through war sound very attractive.

"If such a clause had been inserted, the trial of the criminals would be a routine matter, and the result inevitable. The present contemplated trial of the parties, who, under the present international code, are not criminals, in my opinion, although I make no pretense of being a lawyer, I believe, will result in a farce, which will only bring ridicule to the Allies, and add to the insolence of the German Junkers, and give them a renewed standing in their own country, which, it seems to me, might have been avoided."

LOSS OF APPETITE

As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite, and if you skip a or only eat two meals for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meals when meal time comes. Bear in mind that at least hours should always elapse between meals so as to give the food ample time to digest and and the stomach a perod of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite is caused by constipation as is often the case, that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlin's Tablets will do it.

WAGONS BUGGIES HARNESS

THE LONG LIFE OF A GOOD WAGON

We bought our two Studebakers from your agent, Moses Logan, 37 years ago.

Our neighbors have worn out three or four wagons of other makes since we bought ours.

We have never broken anything on the wagons and the hubs are perfect yet.

One is a lumber wagon, the other a spring wagon. Both are good for years of work yet.

Sandy Lake, Pa.

Studebaker 37 years old—hubs perfect yet

Not strange for the Studebaker—because the hubs are of fine, close grain—tough, strong and treated with a secret sealing solution that is weather resisting.

Notice the hubs on the next Studebaker you pass on the road—you'll find they are not split or checked like the ordinary wagon.

And in these hubs are set the famous Studebaker slope shoulder spokes.

The Studebaker Farm Wagon Wheel is best made.

We sell the Studebaker because we believe it is the biggest wagon value on the market.

SHALL WE DUST FOR BOLL WEEVIL CONTROL?

This question has become of extreme interest to the cotton growers of Alabama during the past few months through the reports which have been issued from the U. S. Boll Weevil Laboratory at Tallulah, Louisiana, where for several years Mr. B. R. Coad of that Bureau has been conducting very careful investigations as to the practicability of controlling the boll weevil by dusting the cotton plant with powdered calcium arsenate.

Mr. Coad frankly states that the whole subject is still so largely an experimental matter that definite recommendations cannot be given which can be followed with assurance of profitable results by the average cotton farmer.

Besides the report of Mr. Coad's work, the Department of Entomology of the Alabama Experiment Station conducted tests upon eighteen plots in the season of 1918. Under the climatic conditions prevailing in Alabma last year, not a single one of these yielded a profitable result. The writer also examined dusting work conducted by the Georgia State Entomologist in the season of 1918 with hardly more favorable results than those obtained in Alabama.

Considering all sources of information and the results thus far obtained in all places where dusting has been tried we come to the following general conclusions: 1. That at this time dusting cannot be recommended for general use. The results are too uncertain to justify the application of an expensive treatment except under extremely favorable conditions for the best effects.

2. The cost of dusting treatment covering four applications averaging five pounds of calcium arsenate each or twenty pounds per acre for each acre to be treated, will amount to from seven to ten dollars per acre This expense cannot, in all probability, be covered and a profit realized except under conditions of extremely heavy boll weevil infestation and on cotton land that will produce normally better than a third of a bale per acre It is doubtful if dusting will ever be practicable upon the average field which produces about one hundred and thirty-five to one hundred and forty-five pounds of lint per acre, as has been the average in Alabama during the past ten years.

Any planter who is interested in this matter should immediately write to the Entomologist, Auburn, Ala. for Circular No. 30 and for such suggestions and advice as may fit his particular case. The Department of Entomology will conduct experimental and demonstrational work again this season, but it is unfortunate that the resources available for the work will not allow this to be done as extensively as the interests of the cotton farmers in this matter demand at this time.

STACKING PEANUTS

Since the peanut crop is made, it behooves every man who has peanuts planted to prepare for stacking them in the very best shape possible in order that he may place on the market a desirable product. Last season there was a large percentage of the peanut crop that was never stacked but simply windrowed or left on the rows as they were plowed up. This condition together with the excessive rain in the peanut producing sections of the state, made it hard on the producer because of the inferior grade of peanuts placed on the market. The Alabama Extension Service made a special effort to assist the farmers in the sale of peanuts and found it very difficult to handle peanuts that were windrowed or otherwise left exposed to the weather.

The problem of stacking then should be a serious one after last year's experience. To stack properly the peanuts should be placed around poles approximately 7 feet long, firmly set in the ground. The poles should have cross pieces 16 to 18 inches in length nailed firmly to them at approximately one foot from the ground. The peanuts should then be taken up directly behind the plows and stacked around the poles with the nuts to the pole. The stack should hold 2 to 3 bushels and should be rounded off well at the top and capped with grass weeds or old sacks.

The problem of capping off the stacks is a very important one, and unless properly done, there will be considerable loss on the top of the stack, regardless of how well the stack was put up.

If the peanuts are stacked immediately after they are plowed up (before wilting), they will wilt in the stack and settle down, forming a compact mass that will shed water almost as effectively as the roof of a house. If however, the peanuts are left in the fields a day or two before stacking and allowed to wilt completely, it is impossible to stack them to the best advantage. Peanuts properly stacked will turn out a bright sample, even with such excessive rain as was experienced last season.

Mr. Alex Russ died at Midway this week. His body was carried to New Salem Tuesday for burial. He had been in feeble health for several months.

Raymond Marcus has returned from the army.

CONCERNING REFERENDUM

The Supreme Court of Oregon gave a jolt to the assumption that ratification by a state legislature of a Federal Constitutional amendment is not final in those states where legislative acts are subject under state requirements, to a popular referendum.

Oregon is the pioneer referendum state. Yet its highest court holds unanimously that the exclusive power of the Legislature to approve constitutional amendments submitted by Congress has not been impaired by the introduction of a referendum.

The Federal Constitution prescribes that amendments to it shall be ratified by the state legislatures. In ratifying, the Legislatures are presumed to act in a somewhat different capacity from that in which they act in passing state laws.

The Oregon Supreme Court sustained the refusal of the Secretary of State to accept a petition asking for a referendum on the Legislature's action approving the prohibition amendment. The same would occur should the Alabama Legislature attempt a suffrage referendum and it is in line with common sense. It combats the theory that when a Constitution said LEGISLATURE it meant to include in that term any and every organ within a state which might hereafter acquire a share of direct legislativve power.

A referendum for the suffrage amendment would entail a large expense at a time when our schools and other state insitutions are clamoring for more money. Were this straw vote in favor of equal suffrage the legislature could not act until the next quadrennial session without the further expense of an extra session. And this straw vote, obtained at great expense would not legally obligate the general assembly, if called in extra session, because it is without legal satus in connection with the ratification of amendments.

The referendum would be used by opponents of equal suffrage just as the opposition to the prohibition amendment wanted it used. It is the last refuge against the oncoming of a resistless tide. The equal suffragists are no more deceived by the fiction than were prohibitionists. Prohibition legislators supporting a referendum on equal suffrage would with difficulty explain why they refused one on prohibition. They were elected on an anti-referendum platform.

Beginning with June 10 and up to and including July 2, just one day more than three weeks, eleven states, one of the largest of southern commonwealths, ratified the suffrage amendment with almost unanimous assent. Almost a third of the necessary number obtained in so short a period with none voting opposition is ample evidence of the resistless force of the movement.

In Alabama it is the choice between giving men's teammates, fellow war workers, partners on the job, the willing sharers of their burdens and equals in intelligence, the same right to the ballot as they enjoy, or having it voted on Alabama manhood by men of other states. Sidestepping will deceive no one.

It is inconceivable that the opposition to equal suffrage in Alabama should veil that opposition under a guise of a referendum. A referendum is the means of dodging an issue. It is not the constitutional means of passing on amendments. It would have no binding force on the legislature. It would simply be a straw ballot without legal safeguard, and every one knows what occurs in such cases.

If the Alabama spirit of referendum novers over the camp of the opposition the friends of equal suffrage will no more take to that side track than the opposition to prohobition took to the same side track of stuffed straw.

LITTLEJOHN SCHOOL

Our school is progressing nicely. We have fifty-one pupils now, and are expecting more to enter soon. We are glad to say that we had a large crowd of visitors Friday afternoon, at the close of the first month's work.

We had a box supper at our school Saturday night. There was a large crowd present and everyone seemed to enjoy it. The proceeds from the supper amounted to $40, one box selling for six dollars. Etta Foshee got the prize as being the prettiest girl at the box supper. The money received will be used for the improvements of this school.

We certainly like our pictures and maps which we have on the walls. They are very helpful.

Mrs. J. M. Littlejohn and Dorothy Sessions have been sick, but are some better now. The farmer are about through work and the protracted meetings will begin at Liberty next Saturday, the 19th. We hope that all will come and help us to make this a successful meeting. Rev. B. C. Hughes will conduct the revival services.

Mrs. W. C. Scarbrough and children from Birmingham are visiting Rev. A. L. Foshee and family. They will stay and attend the revival services at Liberty.

A Republic of the World

By James A. Edgerton

When our deathless Declaration
Brought a new land into birth,
It was not alone a nation
It conferred upon the earth;
But it added to the glory
Of that fair, immortal page
The first chapters of the story
Of a new and golden age.

Over this achievement real,
That the eyes of all might see,
It erected an ideal
Of humanity made free;
It set up for all the races
The same goal that it had won
And it bade them turn their faces
To the rising of the sun.

Since that time the generations
Of mankind are growing free,
While the progress of the nations
Keeps in step with Liberty;
New republics are the fashion,
Of our own design and plan,
Burning with the sacred passion
Of the brotherhood of man.

What though now the lands kingridden
All are weltering in gore,
Freedom's light cannot be hidden
By the clouds and wrack of war;
For, from out its devastations,
A new flag may be unfurled
Of a Union of the nations,
A Republic of the World.

Herein lies the deeper meaning
Of the many in the one:
'Tis a lesson for the gleaning
Of all lands beneath the sun.
Racial rivers coalescing
Here commingle and increase,
So all earth may find the blessing
Born of union and of peace.

BECAUSE SHE IS A SOUTHERNER

Speaking as a Southerner with a Southern ancestry that reaches back through Virginia to the very beginnings of America, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, associate member of the National Democratic Committee, and former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, endorsed the Federal Suffrage Amendment in the following words:

'I am heart and soul in favor of the amendment and it is not in spite of the fact that I am a Southerner, but because of it as a Southerner. I know full well the merits of the doctrine of state rights, but I know equally well that on fundamental question of democracy as on fundamental questions of economics and morality, the South has always risen above nice distinctions between federal and state sovereignity.

"It has proved this by its stand on federal prohibition.

"It will, I hope, prove it by its stand on the Federal Suffrage Amendment.

"In that amendment there is inherent a great principle of justice to women that is being recognized the world over today as right in theory and inevitable in practice That amendment in no way interferes with the state's right to regulate the qualification of its voters save on the one point of discriminating against women on account of sex. For fifty years the states of the South have regulated their own franchise qualifications without federal intervention. The 19th, or Federal Suffrage Amendment, confers the suffrage on nobody. It simply provides that sex shall not be construed as a reason for keeping anybody from voting.

"Speaking as a Democrat also, I am for the amendment. It is to the Democratic party that I look for the liberalizing and the democratizing of the country. Fifteen and one-half million women over voting age live today in states that have given women the right to vote for the next president. Most of these women reside in states that are normally Republican in politics. Their votes in normal elections, fusing with men's votes go to swell the popular vote of the Republican party. Of the eleven and one-half million women over voting age who will not be able to vote for the next president of the United States, unless the Federal Suffrage Amendment is ratified, many live in the Democratic South.

"Of course, the electoral vote of Southern states can be relied on to go Democratic, but I do not want the imagination of the country at large influenced by belief that Democracy, with a big D, is less popular than it really is and would show itself to be, if Democratic women as well as Democratic men could vote."

LAYING BY YOUR CORN

The cultivation of corn should continue until the silking period, thus enabling the soil to retain moisture which is greatly needed by corn in this stage. The last or laying by cultivation should be similar to other cultivations—never deeper than two inches, leaving the soil in fine, loose, smooth condition. A wide scrape is an excellent implement to use.

Plowing alone should not complete the laying-by process, an essential part of which should be the immediate planting of a following cover crop as a protection to the soil. Either rye or cowpeas should be sowed broadcast in front of the plow at the laying-by cultivation, which will cover the seed. Peas planted at this time are primarily for soil building, while rye will furnish pasturge, prevent winter leaching, and add organic matter if turned under in the Spring. Each will act as a nurse crop for bur clover which is an excellent crop to be sown with either one.

As a soil builder and pasture crop bur clover stands among the best. It has proven its value in every section of Alabama. During the winter it acts as a cover crop and early in the Spring it is ready for grazing. It will furnish an abundant pasturage until May, when it should be turned under and the land again planted to corn or some other crop. If turned under green, it adds a large quantity of organic matter and plant food to the soil To reseed itself it must be allowed to mature.

For a good stand the first year eight or ten bushels to the acre are necessary. It must, however, be kept in mind that bur clover seed may require two years in coming up.

Not to sow a cover crop as suggested above will be a mistake, because such crops are essential for the building up of soil, which is the southern farmer's greatest problem. A good crop of bur clover turned under has been known to double the yield of corn in one year. It is a good thing to start with an acre or even less, and use it as a seed bed to seed the entire farm within a few years.

Woodrow's chair-warming jobholders refer to the President's high ideals. If they're anywhere near as high as the cost of living, they are sure doing some aviating.

DRECO GAVE RELIEF.

"I would like to have a statement of my wife's case put in the papers, so that all her friends will know what it was that overcame her troubles," stated Mr. R. L. Berry, a prosperous farmer of Acmar, St. Clair Co., Ala. "She had been feeling puny for a long time; the worst things being costive bowels, indigestion, kidney trouble, and a lazy liver, which gave her bad dizzy spells. She has taken lots of medicine, but it seemed it only eased her for a while, and then the troubles would return. The pains in her back got so bad that she could hardly get about, and had plasters all over it, seeking relief, but they only helped a while. Her stomach was also very weak, and it would fill up with gas and also gripe her whenever she wasn't very careful what she ate. Every night she had to take medicine to force a bowel action next. If she would forget to take this, she would be all bound up, and this made her have dull headaches."

"I always have believed that the best medicine ws made from roots and herbs, if you could ust get the right ones. That is why I decided to give her Dreco; and that medicine sure seems to have the right herb in it; for it went right away with my wife's troubles and knocked them out. She is well and sound now and enjoying things like she has not in a long time."

All good druggists now sell Dreco, and it is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

The Democratic idea is that this country must now take up the burden of the world, regardless of the price in men or money. For our part, we say first let us look well after our own country. That's Republicanism and what the American people want.

We are reliably informed by an ancient statesman that the constitution always follows the flag, but if the U. S. capital follows our globe-trotting Dem. president and his hiphopping cabinet it will have to go some.

THE UNION-BANNER

VOLUME VIII — CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., JULY 24, 1919. — NUMBER 17.

PRESIDENT FAILS TO IMPRESS SENATE BY LEAGUE ARGUMENT

Neither Friends nor Foes Satisfied by His Talk Before Senate.

COMMENT MADE BY SENATORS

Felt that Chief Executive Did Not Live up to His Promise to Explain.

Washington, July 21.—President Wilson's address to the Senate on the League of Nations covenant failed to satisfy either friends or enemies of the League. The promise of a more or less complete review and explanation of the direct causes leading up to the creation of the League of Nations and the terms of peace pact itself, was not kept, they felt. The president, in the opinion of his official hearers, gave a more or less loosely phrased excuse for the existence of the present situation and then leaped into the realm of abstract discourse.

The disappointment at the peculiarly general character was reflected not only in the endorsements of his words by his allies but in the criticisms by the opponents of his proposed internationalization of the United States.

Senate Amazed.

The Senate stood amazed at the paucity of argument presented and practically every supporter of the president made use of an apology for the incompleteness of the president's explanation.

The address, if anything, has left the cause for important changes with respect to the covenant stronger than ever. This view is freely expressed by senators.

The address was extremely general. It was everywhere remarked that it shed no light—none of the much-needed illumination—on the reasons for some things in the covenant or in the treaty.

One phrase, at least, however, the president used which was not fortunate for his purpose to force the ratification of covenant and treaty without crossing a "t" or dotting an "i". This was when he referred to the demand for the league "at whatever cost of independent action."

America Disregarded.

It has all along been the contention of those that believe the present covenant unsatisfactory that it has been made up with scant regard for American welfare or American sovereignty. In this phrase, as many senators see it, the president, to put it mildly, exhibited a strong disposition to admit this contenion.

To be Amended.

That a majority of the Senate will vote for important amendments to the covenant in the form of reservations was asserted on good authority before the address of the President. The same is true today, according to all indications.

A significant comment was made by Senator Capper of Kansas, one of the new members of the body, a member who is by no means hostile to a league of nations formed with due regard for the welfare of the United States.

"I am more convinced than ever that we should vote for reservations" said Senator Capper after he had heard the presidential address.

Lacked Force.

Comment was widely made that the address by its extreme generality did lack force and convincing power.

In commenting upon the president's address Senator Smoot of Utah said: "It was another Wilsonian essay but not up to the standard."

Senator Edge of New Jersey said: "I believe and always have believed that a majority of the senators are entirely willing for the United States to enter a league of nations, but will insist upon reservations which will leave without question the right and authority of the United States to regulate its own domestic affairs, which will continue the Monroe Doctrine, and which will not force the United States into war without the consent of Congress.'"

"Soap Bubbles."

The comment of Senator Brandegee of Connecticut was that the speech was "soap bubbles of oratory and a scuffle of phrases."

HOUSE ACTS PROMPTLY ON WATER POWER BILL

Measure Providing for Development of Many Sites Given Quick Approval.

Washington, July 22.—Although the Republican leaders of the House have had waterpower legislation on their official program for action at this session ever since the new Congress convened, the capital was somewhat surprised as it discovered that the waterpower bill had been taken up and disposed of in the House in the threatening legislative jam occuring just prior to the final adoption of all of the great appropriation bills on July 1st. At the evening session on that date, when the House was patiently waiting for action by the Senate and House conferees on the appropriation bills, it was decided to give consideration to the waterpower bill, and along toward midnight this measure, which provides for federal state or private development of power sites, and the improvement of navigation, was adopted. It is believed to be practically certain that the Senate will act favorably upon this question at an early date.

REPUBLICANS SEE GREAT TASK ON MONEY BILLS

Looking forward to the Work of Next Winter and to New Appropriations.

TO FULLY EXAMINE NEEDS

Have already Saved Vast Sums by Wise Consideration of Govt. Department Demands.

Washington, July 22.—Although the appropriation bills for the fiscal year which is just beginning have been passed by Congress after hard and effective work of but little more than a month and this has been done in such a way as to save enormous sums to the public the committees which are charged with the responsibility for appropriations are going to get little rest. Already the chairmen and most active members of those committees are looking ahead to the great task which confronts them next winter. Then the appropriation bills for the fiscal year that begins a year hence will have to be considered and passed, and this will be a proposition in some respects even more exacting and difficult than the one of handling the measures that have just been put through.

Another Great Saving.

Great savings as contrasted with the appropriation bills of last session and with the demand of the various departments were made by the responsible committees and by Congress after hasty and incomplete investigation of the estimates. But in passing the appropriation bills next winter, in the course of the regular session, the most thorough examination into the estimates will be called for and will be made. The result of any such examination will be to accomplish another great saving in the public funds.

Time Too Short.

Congress has been in session thirty eight days and in that time has had to dispose of a large amount of other buiness in addition to passing the appropriation bills. The time for dealing with these bills has been nanifestly too brief and no one seriously disputes that it would have been better for the public had the extra session been called soon after March 4th. Many millions additional to what was saved could have been pared off the appropriations had there been time to make more thorough study of the demands of the departments.

To Cut Expenses.

The estimates of the departments for the coming fiscal year will be most thoroughly scrutinized. One result of this will probably be to cut off a small army of employees whose services could be dispensed with. Members of the committees in charge of appropriations are already beginning preliminary studies of the needs of the various departments.

RURAL CARRIERS EXAMINATION

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for the County of Chilton, Alabama, to be held at Clanton and Maplesville, on August 9, 1919, to fill the position of rural carrier at Maplesville, and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from other post offices in Chilton County. The examination will be open only to citizens who re actually domiciled in the territory of a post office in the county and who meet the other requirements set forth in Form No. 1977. This form and application blanks may be obtained from the offices mentioned above or from the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D.C. Applications should be forwarded to the Commission at Washington at the earliest practicable date.

READJUSTMENT OF POST PAY

Congress to Take Question Up at Present Session—Figures Will Be Looked Into.

Washington, July 21.—One of the questions which will come before Congress this session will be the readjustment of the pay of all employees of the postal service including first, second, third and fourth-class postmasters, clerk and employees of the railway mail service. Although those members of Congress who are interested in postal legislation are largely of the opinion that re-adjustment must be made, involving increases which, in the aggregate, would amount to a great figure, they are greatly at variance in their own plans for bringing this about without creating a deficit in the operation of the postoffice department.

Initial Steps.

However, it is probable that the initial steps toward securing additional postal revenue to defray the expense of increased salaries will lead the postal committees of Congress to a scrutiny of many of the regulations promulgated by Postmaster General Burleson which, it is claimed, have resulted in great monetary loss to the government. One of these regulations is that which covered books and catalogues into the parcels post clasfication, which has resulted in stupendous profit to certain large mail order houses and a corresponding loss of revenue to the Government. This regulation made it possible for the mail order houses, by sending their catalogues to postal zone centers by freight, and then distributing them by mail, to reduce their postage bill from 8 cents per pound to less than 2 cents per pound. The profit of one concern in this manner amounted to $1,500,000 in one year, which, it is now claimed was distributed to stockholders as interest on $20,000,000 worth of new stock created to take care of this additional profit.

Chairman Steenerson, of the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads is firm in his contention that the postmaster general did some desperate figuring to bring about an alleged profit of $44,000,000 in the operation of the post-office department. He believes that Mr. Burleson made a marked under-estimate of the additional revenue accruing to the war fund through 3-cent postage and thus showing a larger general surplus, and it is probable that some very interesting facts will be produced in this connection when the time comes to consider increased pay for the postal employees.

THE MAHAN WAGON BRAKE FACTORY SPREADING OUT

The Mahan Wagon Brake Company has been incorporated under the laws of the State of Alabama, and in addition to their factory for making brakes at Clanton, a sales office has been established in Birmingham. A force of live salesmen have been sent out over Alabama and adjoining states, and the rush of orders for the Mahan Brake is keeping the factor at Clanton busy in supplying the demands.

By a carefully planned campaign of advertising the merits of the Mahan product are becoming widely known and every man who uses a brake invariably demands the Mahan Brake.

We are proud to see this local institution spreading out in its scope. It is destined to develop in the near future into an enterprise that is very greatly worth while to its promoters and one that will add much to the industrial side of Clanton's business activity.

HALT HOSPITAL BUYING

Congress to Investigate Alleged Extravagance in Purchases.

Washington, July 22—Further construction and purchase of certain proposed public health service hospitals will probably be suspended by the Treasury Department as the result of a letter from Chairman Good of the House Committee on Appropriations, who states that Congress wishes to inquire into alleged extravagance in this connection. Chairman Goode believes that such an inquiry would show that a number of hospitals were built or purchased when those already in the government's possession had many empty beds!

CONCERT AT VERBENA

There will be a concert at the high school auditorium at Verbena next Saturday night, July 26th. This will be a musical program given by the class which is under the instructions of H. C. Collins. Program will be made up of duets, quartets, children songs and choruses from Fillmore, Gabriel and Showalter books. Come. Admission 25 cents.

Mrs. F. B. Collier of Clanton was issued a first-grade Alabama teachers certificate recently by State Superintendent Spright Dowell. Mrs. Collier will be one of the teachers in the grammar school next year. She is a teacher of exceptional ability, having taught extensively in other States. Her addition to the faculty of our school will prove highly satisfactory to the patrons here.

Dr. E. E. Upchurch has just returned from a visit to the cities of the East. He says the people of Baltimore and Washinpton were glad to see him; nearly all of them met him at the trains, and came to the depot to see him leave.

SOLDIERS FROWN ON WILSON'S LEAGUE OF NATIONS IN EUROPE

Men who fought in France Against Tangling up in European Alliances.

CANNOT EXPRESS FEELING NOW

Army Regulations Prevent Full Discussion by Returning Veterans of War.

Washington, July 21.—An interesting light on the attitude of the men who fought in France toward the Wlison plan for a league of nations and especially toward that part of the plan which is embodied in Article X and which is calculated to require America to underwrite the boundary line of a large share of the rest of the world was shed today by a colonel of the Rainbiw Division, a National Guardsman of many years, experience, who served brilliantly with the expeditionary forces and who was wounded in the Argonne. When asked how the officers and men of the expeditionary forces looked upon the covenant as drawn for the league of nations he replied:

"The troops are not for the league of nations. There is no mistake about that. Practically all of them feel the same way about it. They want to get back home and to stay there. They are opposed to any proposition which will keep them tangled up in European affairs at this time or that will tangle them up in European affairs in the future. They have seen something of the fierce rivalries and bitter jealousies among the peoples of Europe and you can take it from me, they do not want America to get mixed up with them. Right now France and Germany are looking on ahead to the time when this struggle will be renewed and all of Europe is seething with hatred of generations and even centuries. Officers and men had the opportunity to sense something of the bitterness among the different countries there and are utterly opposed to becoming involved in this bitterness. For the reason that few soldiers have felt free to express themselves while in uniform you have heard little from them on this subject but I have no doubt that this is an accurate representation of the real feeling of the vast majority."

DEMOCRAT INDICTS MEXICAN POLICY OF PRESIDENT WILSON

Washington, July 21.—What amounts to a severe indictment of the administration policy with respect to Mexico is contained in a Senate resolution offered by Senator King, one of the Democratic leaders.

The resolution sets forth that "American citizens residing in and having property in the Republic of Mexico have suffered damages amounting to several hundred million dollars by reason of the unlawful destruction and larceny of property, and in addition thereto have been subjected to gross personal outrages and in hundreds of cases have suffered murder and assassination; and no progress has apparently been made toward the liquidation, settlement and payment of claims against the Mexican Government on account of whose delinquencies such damages and outrages have been suffered."

The resolution then provides for a sweeping investigation by the Foreign Relations Committee into the damages and outrages suffered by American citizens in Mexico, the fact concerning the murders of Americans the property losses through destruction, confiscation and larceny and all other matters having relation to the wrongs which in recent years have been visited upon United States citizens on the Mexican side of the border.

The resolution of Senator King reflects not only a wide-spread feeling in Congress of resentment over the innumerable outrages committed against Americans in Mexico but also a brief equally widespread that the State Department has been singularly remiss and inert in seeking to obtain indemnities or satisfaction of adequate sort for what has been done.

Eddie Atchison has returned from France. He is looking fine. His relatives and friends are glad to welcome him back.

Thursday was a great day for Randolph—the best in the history. It was a picnic in the honor of the returned soldier boys as well as those who are coming and those who are never coming back. Also the public installation of the Masonic officials at the appointed hour. Rev. Smitherman called the large crowd to order and introduced Solicitor Thompson of Centreville, who delivered a good address, eulogizing the ideal community, intimating that such was possible and would be in the future when the Golden Rule would be in force. Also eulogized the ancient order of Masonry, partially reviewed the great war and gave the American soldiers unstinted praise. His theme was "Can we ever forget their heroic service?"

Dinner was announced and the people stood back while the soldier boys marched to the table first. It was a great feast spread for them in the afternoon. Rev. D. R. Wells of Florida addressed the people.

Paid $105.00 for a Studebaker wagon 38 years ago

IN 1876 Mr. R. F. Dewey of Millersburg, Ind., bought a Studebaker farm wagon for $105. Dividing $105 by 38 years it will be seen that Mr. Dewey's Studebaker cost him—to date—$2.77 a year.

—and, as the wagon is still giving good service, every additional year that Mr. Dewey uses his wagon still further reduces the cost per year.

You can't beat this for an investment.

We carry a line of Studebaker wagons just as strongly made, just as reliable, as the Studebaker wagon Mr. Dewey bought 38 years ago.

Come in and look them over. We will demonstrate to you that a Studebaker wagon is an investment that pays every time.

CLEBURNE COUNTY MAN, 62, DECLARES HE FEELS LIKE 16

Bent over from Rhumatism, hobbled About on a Walking Cane, and Couldn't tie his own Shoes.

Thew Cane away.

Walks as straight as anyone and hasn't a pain in his body; says Dreco did it for him.

"I'm 62 years old, but am feeling like 16 a 16 year old boy," declares Mr. S. Webster, who is o big farmer owning a lot of land and stock near Solomon, Cleburne County, Ala.

"I was bent ovtr from rhumatism; every muscle and joint seemed to be effected. I had to hobble about with a walking stick and was not able to get along without it, and my back was so stiff and painful I couldn't bend over far enough to tie my own shoe strings. One of my neighbors kept begging me to try the new medicine Dreco, but I didn't have any faith in it, for I had been fooled so much and had thrown away so much money, but I got so bad during this long rainy spell that I had to get something for relief, so sent for a bottle of Dreco, and now I have a different story to tell.

"When I had finished the forst bottle, I was feeling a great deal better, the pains were easing off and also my bowels and liver were acting fine. I got another bottle and kept on taking it, and now I can bend over and straighten up; and walk as well as anybody and I've thrown away my oln walking cane for I don't need it any longer. I seally feel as good as a youngster 16 years old, and I give the entire credit to the new root and herb remedy, Dreco. It is fine medicine."

All good druggists now sell Dreco and it is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurca Drug Co.

UNCLE DOCK WELLS' WARTS

"Just because the warts disappeared from the boy's hands you needn't think I am a conjurer," said Uncle Dock Wells the other day in duscussing an incident, which we will relate below. He continued: "I am just a plain preacher of the Gospel, trying to impress people wherever I go with the true meaning and practical applications of Christianity. I don't wait till I get up before a thousand people in a big fine church to preach. I preach to every man I meet on the street or in the road. I preach in the stores and everywhere I go, the same simple lessons of faith in the power of God."

Now we will relate the incident that started this story about Uncle Dock.

A little boy, the son of Mr. Andrew Miner of Clanton, had his hands covered with big ugly warts. A few days ago the child was going along the street and met Uncle Dock, who noticed the condition of his hands.

"Little man," said Uncle Dock, "would you like to have those warts taken off your hands?"

"Yes, sir, I sure would," was the prompt reply.

"Well," said Uncle Dock, "If the Lord will take those warts off your hands, will you promise to be a good boy and love Him all your life? and if I will ask the Lord to take away these warts, will you love me?"

"Yes, sir, I sure will," was the boy's reply.

In parting with the little fellow Uncle Dock assured him that he would ask the Lord to remove the ugly warts from his hands.

One day this week the little young fellow came running up to Uncle Dock with his hands stretched out and said, "Uncle Dock, I came to show you my hands. The warts are gone."

And they were. The kid's hands that were literally covered with warts are now as clean and smooth as they were before the warts were ever there. And Uncle Dock insists that he be not called a conjurer for this. He deelares that he didn't do a thing but ask the Lord to take the warts off the little boy's hands.

CHILD KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE NEAR TOWN SUNDAY MORNING

Last Sunday morning about 8:00 o'clock one of the most frightful and disastrous automobile accidents that has ever happened in this country occurred at the home of Mr. Ruben Wyatt, two miles north-east of Clanton.

The result was the almost instant killing of a seven year-old boy, Earl, son of Mr. Tommie Mims, and slight personal injury to Mr. Wyatt. The awful scene was enacted by a Ford car driven by Cary Robinson, right in front of the door of Mr. Wyatt's house.

Following is a description of the scene and the details of the accident according to those who witnessed the tragedy:

As the road from Clanton reaches the yard at Mr. Wyatt's home it forks, one road passing the house on the south and the other passing the house on the north-west side. The car was coming toward Clanton on the road south of the house. Mr. Wyatt, with the boy who was killed and a negro, Dan Jackson, were standing in the fork of the road which is directly in front of the house. When they observed the approaching car they figured that it was coming straight on to town, and stepped back into the other road. Robinson, who was driving the car saw that they expected him to go on down the road to town, but his purpose was to make the sharp turn around the yard and proceed up the other road past the house. When he observed that they had gotten directly in the way he intended driving his car he called to them and told them he was coming that way. Beyond this the scene seems to be confused, resulting from the misunderstanding about which direction the car was going. The result was that the boy was run over by both left wheels of the car, and Mr. Wyatt was knocked down but not run over. The negro was not hurt. The driver let the car go straight into a ditch on the other side of the road from the house.

The injured boy was picked up and carried in the house and the doctor summoned immediately. But it was impossible to save him. He died in something less than an hour.

In the car with Robinson was his wife and little boy, neither of whom was hurt. The damage to the car was not very mnch. As the left front wheel went into the ditch against the bank, that wheel was broken and some other minor disarrangements were registered.

Mr. Mims, the father of the child lived a few hundred yards away from the scene of the tragedy. He and the little boy's mother came quickly and were present when the little fellow expired. He was conscious for some minutes after he was carried into the house, and is said to have talked a bit to his father and mother and his Uncle, Mr. Wyatt.

The accident seems to have been utterly unavoidable both on the part of the driver of the car and those who were hurt. It is the most deplorable thing that has been recorded in this county in the way of automobile accidents. The parents and relatives of the little boy who lost his life are utterly stricken with grief, and many sorrowing friends extend their sympathy.

ALABAMA MEMORIAL CAMPAIN

The campaign for Chilton County's quota in the Alabama Soldiers Memorial Fund has been started out on a firm basis with Mr. Howard L. Foshee as Chairman.

Chilton County furnished 771 soldiers in the war just closed, and the plan is to have the name of each one of these enrolled on the memorial tablet in the soldiers building to be erected on the capital grounds in Montgomery. The quota is six dollars for each soldier that went from Chilton County. There is no doubt that every one of Chilton's heroes has a friend who will be glad to pay the six dollars to place the soldier's name on the memorial tablet.

Later on the campaign in the county will be brought down to the school district as a unit, with a competent manager in charge of each district. The drive for subscriptions in the county will be put on about October. It is hoped that Chilton will go over the top with her six dollars for each soldier who went to the war.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

Summer Complaint in Children.

There is not anything like so many deaths fgrom this disease now as before Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy came into such general use. When this Remedy is given with castor oil as directed and proper care is taken as to diet, it is safe to say thatfully ninety nine out of every hundred case recover. Mr. W. G. Cambell of Butler, Tenn., says, "I have used Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for summer complaint in children. It is far ahead of anythoing I have ever used for this purpose."

LOSS OF APPETITE

As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite, and if you skip a or only eat two meals for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meals when meal time comes. Bear in mind that at least hours should always elapse between meals so as to give the food ample time to digest and and the stomach a perod of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite is caused by constipation as is often the case, that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlin's Tablets will do it.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. P. I. Hopkins of Dothan is visiting the family of Dr. Upchurch this week.

Burnie Thompson of Birmingham was in Clanton Monday visiting relatives and friends.

Frank Mims has bought a "flivver" from Dr. Crumpton.

Will DeShazo has waited too long to bring us that potato. It will take a big watermelon now to get his name in the paper any more.

Col. A. C. Smith has been to the National Capital for the past few days attending to some legal business.

Miss Bettie M. Gardner, the Bell Telephone Operator at Clanton, visited her home at Verbena last week.

Clarence Smith, one of our good friends who lives on Route 4 brought the Banner a fine watermelon last Saturday. Thank you, Smith. As we ate the juicy fruit of this big melon, our thoughts ran back to the days of "squads right" and "fall out one" at Camp Hancock last summer.

A. L. Bowles of Billingsley was in Clanton Monday. He brought the Union-Banner a fine watermelon for which we are duly thankful.

Guy Roberts of the Rainbiw Division has returned home from France.

Dr. V. J. Gragg has been quite sick for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jadie Wagoner are in Clanton visiting friends and relatives. They came here from Mineola, Texas, where Mr. Wagoner's father now lives. Jadie is still in the United States Navy stationed at the League Island Navy Yard at Philadelphia. After a visit in Clanton this week they will return to Philadelphia.

H. B. Glenn of Salem, Beat 16, was in Clanton Tuesday. Mr Glenn says prospects are for a good crop in his settlement, but rain is needed right at this time.

What Is Rheumatism? Why Suffer from It?

Sufferers Should Realize That It Is a Blood Infection.

Doubtless like other sufferers, you have often asked yourself this question, which continues to remain unanswered.

Science has proven that Rheumatism is caused by a germ in your blood, and the only way to reach it is by a remedy which eliminates and removes these little pain demons. This explains why liniments and lotions can do no permanent good, for they cannot possibly reach these germs, which infest your blood by the millions.

S. S. S. has been successfully used for Rheumatism for more than fifty years. Try it to-day, and you will find yourself at last on the right track to get rid of your Rheumatism. For treatment of your individual case address Chief Medical Adviser, Swift Specific Co., Dept. 43, Atlanta, Ga.

THE UNION-BANNER

VOLUME VIII — CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., JULY 31, 1919. — NUMBER 18.

ANOTHER BANK TO OPEN IN CLANTON IN FEW DAYS TIME

NAME OF NEW INSTITUTION IS THE CITIZENS BANK OF CLANTON

For several years the opportunity for another bank to succeed in Clanton has been in existence. Any city the size of Clanton and with the business volume of Clanton is ample for the support of more than one banking institution.

Last week Mr. A. M. Grimsley of Fayette, Ala., came to Clanton to look over the field here with prospects of opening a bank. He found conditions very satisfactory, and at once determined that he should have a bank here. This week Mr. J.W. Strange is here representing Mr. Grimsley in getting the details all arranged for the opening of the bank just as soon as possible.

The new bank is to have a paid up capital of $30,000.00.

Mr. Grimsley is offering stock in the bank to the people of Clanton, and all stock that is not sold here will be taken up by himself and his associated interests.

The men behind this new institution have a record of 15 years successful banking business in Alabama, and they are at present operating six banks in this State.

Clanton should feel proud of the fact that our business activity is to be so strengthened by this new financial institution. The field here is ripe unto harvest and we predict that a remarkable success will soon reward the efforts of those who are coming here with the new bank.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE CHILTON CO. S.S. ASSOCIATION

On August 29, 1919, the annual convention of the Chilton County Sunday School Association will be held at Mulberry, 12 miles west of Clanton. We hope to see every Sunday School in the county represented.

Mr. Leon C. Palmer and Mr. W. C. Blassingame, two of the State's best workers, will be with us. This program will be something new. Instead of having two days, as we have always had, we have only one and the night session at 5:20. We will have organized recreation on the ground, athletics and old fashioned games for everybody. This is something every community needs.

At 8:30 we will have a stereopticon lecture: "The Sunday School and the Social Gospel." We will have demonstration teaching of the Sunday School lesson and we have helps for the superintendents.

Mulberry extends to every school a hearty welcome. The county president wants to meet every superintendent and help every school. He can't visit every school, but he will be at Mulberry.

And as many superintendents have been changed since last July, your county secretary, Miss Della Williams, will appreciate so much just a card from each school, with Superintendent's name and address and a report from your school, if you can give it. Any way, write her, and do not forget to go to Mulberry August 29th. D.J. FLUMMER, Pres.,
DELLA WILLIAMS, Secy.

GIVE NO ARGUMENT TO SUPPORT HIS "VISION"

Adoption of League as it Now Stands Forces Us into the Hands Of Council.

Washington, July 30.—Representative Madison of Illinois, is among the large number of congressmen who believe that President Wilson failed to produce either argument or facts in support of the League of Nations in hes recent address before congress He said today:

"The president, by his own words, has made it plain that if we adopt the League of Nations as it now is standing we are to place ourselves in the hands of an international council to which we must submit to the fullest degree. He has woven a blanket, at the expense of the United States, which is to be spread over the discardant elements of Europe, where peace is to be maintained with troops furnished by the United States. The president's plan transcends all visions he has ever had, and he has had some glittering ones before this."

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION HELD AT MESSER'S CHAPEL

Our Sunday School Convention, which was held at Messer's Chapel last Sunday, was enjoyed by all who attended. We have only two things to regret, one was that some of our speakers were absent; another some of our schools were not represented.

Prof. J. L. Johnson, the Teenage Superintendent of Chilton County, spoke on "Furnishing Wholesome Fun for the Young and Old People." We regret so much that everybody in our district did not hear it. He was kind enough to promise to come back some day. Show us how to put some of these good things in practice. We would like to say to the other district president, if you need help, call on Prof. Johnson, Clanton, Ala., and he will help you.

Rev. C. D. Messer told us how to "Get the People in Sunday School." Only those that have heard him in these conventions know how much and how well he can tell us how to do. He, himself, is a doer of the word, and not a hearer only.

Miss Cordelia Scott of Verbena, told us something about the great problem of teaching the little folks. If we will only do as we were told by this young lady, our little people will love the Sunday School and they will grow up to be Christian men and women.

At the close of the Convention, we felt like rising up and saying. He that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin. It was all good, and the Sunday School was kind enough to invite us again.

W. A. CALLOWAY, Pres.,
LEE ROBINSON, Secy.

IN MEMORY

On Sunday morning, July 20, one of the most deplorable auto accidents of this county, occurred near Mr. R. F. Wyatt's, about two miles from Clanton, when little Earl, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Mims, was seriously injured by a car driven by Cary Robinson. The physician was quickly called, but medical aid could not save him, death resulting one hour later.

His remains were laid to rest Monday in the Walnut Creek Cemetery, Rev. Lembric conducting the funeral services.

Little Earl was the light and joy of his home. He always greeted you with a smiling face and was loved by everyone who knew him.

We know little Earl has gone to rest,
In that heavenly home with the blest,
In that beautiful land far above,
Where all is joy and peace and love.
Just trust in the Lord till life is past
And we are all gathered home at last;
Then little Earl we shall all meet,
And with all our loved ones, him we shall greet. His Cousin,
EVEREE MADDOX.

HITCHCOCK SNUB IS GIVEN A POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE

Democratic Circles Stirred Over the President's Turn Against Senator.

NEBRASKAN MAY BE AMBITIOUS

Underground Political Current Indicates Legislator May Desire Presidency.

Washington, July 29.—A great ruction has been caused in Senate Democratic circles as well as in Administration circles because of the failure of President Wilson to show appreciation of the efforts made by Sennator Hitchcock to lead the fight in the upper house for the covenant for the league of nations. Senantor Hitchcock has for many months been playing the role, supposedly, of the administration leader for the president's league in the senate. It was supposed that as soon as the president returned he would call Mr. Hitchcock to the White House and lay the whole situation with respect to the peace treaty and the covenant before the Nebraska Senator. The president did not do so and Senator Hitchcock packed up his grip and went to Massachusetts to cool off. Senantor Hitchcock's friends made no oncealment of the fact that they considered he had been slighted and many stories thereupon went out over the wires, some of them in administration newspapers, that Senator Hitchcock had been ousted from the leadership in the fight to have treaty and covenant retified without amendment and that Senator Swanson of Virginia had been put in charge.

Fear At White House.

The flood of stories concerning the coolness with which the president treated Senator Hitchcock caused embarassment at the White House thru fear that they might have an effect in weakening the president at the capitol and secretary Tumulty put out a statement saying the reports of a disagreement between the president and Senator Hitchcock were untrue and that the president would soon seek opportunity to confer with him on the peace treaty. Senator Swanson also felt impelled to deny that he had been put in charge of the treaty and covenant.

Resents Independence.

In spite of the official denials, the stories persist at the capitol that Senator Hitchcock resents the way he has been treated and that there is chilliness between the president and himself. The reports have gained the more credence because they have been freely gossiped about in the cloakrooms and because it is perfectly well understood that the administration has resented certain displays of independence which Senator Hitchcock has made at times in the past. As a member of the Senate Military Committee, Senator Hitchcock was active in exposing some of the incompetency of the War Department as the war was on and for the part he played in this he got himself disliked by the Executive. On several occasions he has steered away from partisanship and taken independent stands, and this has tended to make persona non grata with the Chief Executive. That being the case there has been no wonderment among Senators of others familiar with the real facts, over the snub which Senator Hitchcock is now alleged to have been given. It will take something more than official denial to rid the capitol of the impression which has sunk in deeply there that the Senator from Omaha has encountered a White House frost.

Reason for Frigidity.

There are those who profess to know something of underground currents in politics who opine that Senator Hitchcock has presidential ambitions of his own, that this is the chief reasons for his great ardor for the covenant for the league of nations and that this is also the real reason why the temperature about the executive office runs so low as the Nebraska solon approaches them.

BRYAN HAS ANNOUNCED OPPOSITION TO WILSON

In His Speech at Lincoln, He Sets Himself Squarely Against President Wilson.

Washington, July 29.—The capital has expressed interest in the speech of W. J. Bryan, delivered in Lincoln, Neb., July 7, in which he announces his intention of opposing President Wilson's efforts to secure an alliance between France and the United States. Concerning it Bryan said:

"I am against the proposition to enter into an alliance with Great Britain and France and I shall devote all of my strength to the end that it shall be defeated. I am not willing that any other nation say when we shall enter war and when we shall not. Great Britain and France have aims and purposes inconsistent with and not same as ours. I am not for a league within a league that will tend to dissolve and destroy the league and leave the nations of the earth up against the certainty of future war"

DISTRICT CONVENTION OF I. O. O. F. AT PRATTVILLE

A delegation of Odd Fellows from Cooper and Clanton Lodges attended the District Convention at Prattville last week.

Those who went from the Cooper Lodge were H. A. Harris, Jim Grant, J. B. Rockett, Tom Driver, J. H. Foshee, J. J. Lovinsky. Clanton Lodge was represented by G. C. Harris, G. D. Retherford, Wat Willis, Ben Edwards.

Those who went report a splendid time. They say they were royally entertained by the Odd Fellows and citizens of Prattville.

Much enthusiasm seems to have prevailed in the convention over the success that has come to the order of Odd Fellows in Alabama the past year. State Grand Master Palmer Daugette, was at the District Convention, and shed much light among the members in regard to the advancement of the order in Alabama.

Especial praise is given to Prattville Odd Fellows for the fine barbecue which they gave to the visiting delegates at the convention.

WEST CHILTON

How swiftly the seasons come and go. Like coming events with shadows in front, the approachng fall is heralded with occasional days that forcefully remind us of its coming.

Mrs. Lottie Nix, wife of J. T. Nix, died Thursday night. A noble lady is gone.

Jack Smth, son of H.L. Smith, arrived on No. 19 Saturday, from France, safe and sound; another home is made happy.

Mrs. Grace Waldrup is reported sick. Hope for her speedy recovery.

Mrs. Scoggins of Autauga is spending some time at S.N. Waldrup's.

Rollie Waldrup arrived last week from France, and all right. He can tell fully of his air plane flights into Berlin and of the fine sanitary condition of that city. Of course, he is glad to be home. He left his train at Bibb Mills and took a near cut for home where he met a joyous reception.

A gentleman remarked that labor, alluding to agricultural people, had experienced a reduction. So, in thinking of what that term implies, we find that it means a gradual lifting up to the perfection of life, which is corroborated by nature. Time was when the lady from the rural district would carry her eggs and other products to town and sell them, provided she would take goods for them. No money whatever; but now changed. Firms from the Gulf to the northern cities, are anxious to buy her products and pay spot cash. While parcel post makes delivery a resurrection; no going back. All other lines of business have the same trend.

Mrs. Bristow died Monday afternoon at her home in Jemison.

SPECIAL COMMITTEES TO FACILITATE WORK

Republican Leaders Construct Machinery for Speeding up Our Legislative Business.

Washington, July 29.—The Republican leaders have decided upon the immediate creation of two special committees of the House, one to undertake the drafting of a budget system for governmental expenditures, and the other will conduct a thorough investigation of the administration of the Shipping Board.

"Our decision to give these important tasks to special committees of the House," said Representative Mondell of Wyoming, Republican leader, today, "is in line with our policy of leaving the standing committees free to conduct their ordinary business which, at this time, is very great and very important. An investigation of the shipping board might ordinarily be made by the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, but it is our hope that this committee will be able to present to the House a legislative program for the future regulation of our merchant marine, and this will occupy their time for many weeks."

Mr. Mondell said that the decision to investigate the Shipping Board, which has expended tremendous amounts of money, would be in the nature of a Congressional audit of their disbursements, and that it had been a part of the Republican program ever since they came into control of congress. The fact that the resignation of Chairman Hurley, to take effect August 1, has recently been announced, has no bearing upon the decision of the Republican leaders.

Speaking of the special committee to formulate a budget system, Mr. Mondell said:

"Although, there is unanimity of opinion as to the desirability of a budget system, there has been a division as to how it could best be accomplished, and it has finally been decided that the question is so large and important that a special committee will be required.

HAYS OUTLINES REPUBLICAN DEMANDS ON LEAGUE ISSUE

Must Safeguard U. S. Sovereignty, Monroe Doctrine, Eliminate or Modify Article X, and Provide Full Riget of Withdrawal at Any Time Desired.

Will H. Hays, chair. of the Republican Nation Committee, who has been in constant touch with the leaders of the party both in Washington and elsewhere for more than a month in regard to the attitude that should be taken on the League of Nations covenant, has issled the following statement under date of July 17:

"The situation respecting the league covenant is simply this:

"There must be effective reservations. These reservations must safeguard the sovereignty of the United States in every particular; must guarantee the Monroe Doctrine beyond the shadow of a doubt. Must either eliminate Article X entirely or so modify it that our own congress shall be morally as well as legally free after a specified period to decide when and where and to what extent our soldiers shall be employed; must retain our full control of immigration, tariff and all other purely domestic policies, and must provide full right to withdraw from the league at any time without hindrance or conditions of any kind, upon giving suitable notice.

"It is up to the Administration to decide whether it will or will not accept these essential guarantees of American independence, which would unjuestionably be promptly accepted by the other nations."

"They Shall Not Pass."

Before the signing of the armistice, many an American heart was thrilled by the slogan of our French friends: "They shall not pass." And they did not pass. The allied armies, assisted by our own brave boys, were able to stem the on-rushing tide of the Hun hordes and to turn it back, so that Paris was saved. Had the Huns been allowed to pass, no man can begin to realize what a calamity to the entire world would have resulted. We know that the disaster would have been sure and swift and that liberty would have perished from the earth, at least for many years. But there was an overruling Providence and we were not permitted to suffer more than we could bear.

But again, liberty is in danger. Again there is a chance that a "government of the people, from the people, by the people, shall . . . perish from the earth." It is possible that some future historian may write a history entitled: "The Rise and Fall of the American Republic." We believe that the situation is just that serious, and that the danger developed with the departure of our chief magistrate from our territory. Not that we say or think that any such thought, much less purpose, was, or ever has been, in his mind. We simply think that his actions, his plans, have been ill-advised, and that the results will be vastly different from those which he has sought to bring about. But we firmly believe that the stability of our institutions is menaced, that our form of government is in danger of being undermined, that if the Congress of the United States shall not stand firm and assert its undoubted authority, the disintegration of our government has already begun. If there were nothing else, we believe that when one branch of the government can so coerce another branch, with at leat co-ordinate authority, as to force its members to do what they believe will be against the best interests of the country, what is a practical violation of their oaths of office, what is contrary to the Federal Constitution, the Union might as well be dissolved.

But the present indications are that the Treaty of Peace in its present form will not pass. This firm and patriotic stand on the part of the United States Senate will send their names down through all the ages to come as being worthy of the same reverence as the signers of the Declaration of Independence or as the authors of the Federal Constitution. When the smoke of battle shall have cleared away, that immortal band who have been firm in their stand against certain of the provisions of the Treaty of Peace, and especially those parts of the covenant of the League of Nations which are in opposition to our form of government, and who have said of them that "They Shall not Pass," will be hailed by all wise statesmen and distinguished patriots.—American Economist.

An observing citizen of Chilton County calls the editor's attention to the lax execution of the law in Chilton County in regard to paying taxes on dogs. This citizen says he observes that there are a very great number of dogs that are not assessed for taxes. We are confident that there are many owners of dogs who do not pay taxes on them and this is not right. If one man pays on his dog every dog owner should pay. If the property owner who assesses his dog along with his other property pays his dollar for his dog, the lazy negro who has not got anything in the world but three or four yellow hounds should be made to pay on them. Whether the dog tax law is a good one or not, it sure is not right to allow discrimination in the execution of the law. Our authorities should see that this law is operated with fairness to everybody.

The Woman Suffrage campaign in Alabama keeps sending us a lot of dope to publish whereby they hope to justify themselves for being woman suffragists and at the same time faithful adherents to the Democratic party. We don't care anything about such arguments. If Their conscience is hurting them they should tell their troubles to somebody who sympathizes with them. It is none of our job to help clear the skirts of somebody who has flew the Democratic coop and gone off with the suffrage gang. If any of the sinners in the Democratic party are willing to repent and quit the thing we will help them to make up their excuse and get them a ticket to a better show.

The Convent Inspection Bill.

A rome-shy reporter for the papal Montgomery Advertiser advances the remarkable and most enlightening theory that the convent inspection bill that is before the Alabama Legislature is "aimed at one religion." The Advertiser hasn't got sense enough to see that it is not aimed at any religion. It is aimed at that murderous most ungodly rotten hierarchy that prostitutes what might be a religious creed and uses it as a political machine to elevate the elect of the plan to high places and to crush the life out of the poor to maintain the rascals at the top. That is the system it is aimed at and not any religion at all.

Nothing in that bill will prevent any Catholic or Protestant from worshiping God just as he pleases. But it will throw open the slave pens and prisons that have been operating sweat shops and oppressing innocent girls and women under the guise of religious istitutions.

We notice that Senator Craft of Mobile will lead the fight in the Senate against the convent inspection bill. That fellow Craft is the same Hon. John Craft, who has been busting his shirt in Alabama in recent years for good roads. He may be a good roads wheel horse all right, but our ardor for him is dampered by his display of the fact that he is the biggest cog in the Catholic machine in Alabama legaslature.

Besides being mean the Catholic hierarchy must also be given credit for being wise. But you know a fellow can't be a successful crook unless he has got some sense. They see that the convent inspection bill is going to pass the legislature in spite of the efforts of Mr. Craft. So if they can't defeat the bill they will capture it. Just as they would capture our public schools and control them where they can't defeat them.

They see that the doors of the convents are going to be opened to the inspection of the people, and now Senator Craft, the Catholic mouth-piece at Montgomery, wants to provide in the bill that the inspection be made by women. Don't you see where they are driving to? They plan to have the inspection done by one of their nuns. What good would it do the public to have the nuns inspect the convents? They can get into them now and see what is going on there. No man in the legaslature having any information at all on Rome's tricks will fall for this clever ruse of Senator Craft and Father Thomas.

Will American Jesuit Try Kaiser?

Press reports which seem to be officially inspired, as most press reports are, suggest that Chief Justice White of the supreme court of the United States will be chosen as the American member of the court to try the former kaiser of Germany for his official crimes.

The chief justice is a typical product of Jesuitism. He was brought up in the environment that seeks to destroy our public schools. His own preparatory education was obtained in Mount St. Mary's near Emmistsburg, Maryland; and he received his college training in New Orleans Jesuit college and the Georgetown Jesuit university at the national capital.

Placed on the Supreme Court bench by President Cleveland as part of the price of Roman Catholic support in the presidential election of 1892, he was singled out, though a Democrat, by President Taft, a Republican, for promotion to the rank of Chief Justice in reward for papal support to Mr. Taft in 1908. So he has twice enjoyed the fruits of secret deals between national campaign managers and the Roman Catholic political machine, though he is not known to have been personally implicated in the deals.

Having paid a secret visit to the Pope before sitting down in the peace conference, and having chosen a militant Roman Catholic politician for Secretary-General of his league of nations and selected the home of the Black Pope as the seat of the league government, President Wilson would seem to have paid already a substantial international price for Roman Catholic support in his second Presidential campaign. But Jesuitry is never satisfied. Its political appetite is insatiable. Unless Rome prefers more sinister favors at the future hands of the present administration, White will very likely preside over the international trial court in London, provided such a court is really held. Patriots will do well to watch this situation.

We are sorry for such weak little critters as The Alabama Power Company. It looks like the new revenue bill before the legislature will put them out of business. They are so weak that they need a toddy to stimulite them so they can operate. You know they said a while back that they were not even able to build a power line from Lock 12 to Clanton.

Speaking at Columbus, O., Son-in-law McAdoo,, declared that opposition to the British-Wilson covenant was the work of the friends of war. Barring the general untruthfulness of that assertion, doesn't McAdoo know that if there were any friends of war in this country before his father-in-law was re-elected on the pledge to keep us out of war, there wouldn't be any left after erperiencing a war as conducted by a Democratic national administration.

POINTED PARAGRAFS

From The NATIONAL REPUBLICAN

Anyway, you'll have to admit that as a strike-breaker Postmaster General Burleson is no slouch.

It is easily possible for any citizen to so conduct himself that it will not take him several weeks and a million dollars to prove in court that he isn't an anarchist.

President Wilson says: "You cannot earn a reputation and not live up to it." And you cannot live up to a reputation you have not earned.

The London Standard now claims that it was Lord Balfour who got the United States into the world war. We know who it was kept us out of war, but we didn't know that it was Balfour who got us in.

President Wilson says the Fourth of July now has a broader meaning. Like the Monroe Doctrine, it has been extended to the whole world. Broadened out just like the marriage covenant is when a man becomes a bigamist.

By the way, the people of the world will find that the big bunk being passed out by the world statesmen will not provide food or clothing and will decide that it will be necessary, after all, for everybody to go back to work.

First the league of nations to keep us out of war, and then the treaty with France which binds us to get into war whenever the peace of Europe is threatened again by any war in which Germany and France are both engaged. You can pass some people any old bunn and make them think that they like it.

David Lawrence says the Senate's power is "ominous." Any power but that of the president is ominous to an administration press agent at present. It is not claimed that any power the Senate proposes to exert is unconstitutional, and neither is it claimed that all the power the President himself assumes to exercise is warranted by the Constitution.

Josephus Daniels says the league of nations constitution is the greatest covenant since the Sermon on the Mount. Greater than the Magna Carta, greater than the United States Constitution, greater than the Declaration of Independence, greater than the Emancipation Proclamation, but it is hard to believe that it is greater than the North Carolina election law which prohibits the secret ballot and deprives about 75 per cent of the citizenship of the state of the right to vote.

Non-Citizens and Nun Voters.

Popery is as ready for its women to vote for church purposes as it is for them to teach in the "Godless" public schools for church purposes. As equal suffrage secures the franchise for women, an equality which the papal machine has so long opposed, there is a grand rush of nuns everywhere to become naturalized and registered so they can do their "religious" duty at the polls as well as elsewhere.

When these dupes of priestcraft came up in covies to be naturalized at Kansas City—in large numbers that have lived in this country for many years without seeking citizenship, they were asked for an explanation concerning their sudden and unanimous interest in the country and its affairs. The answer was illuminating—they had been "requested" to do so, and the request came from their superior which was equivalent to a command.

The requests, commands, and laws of Rome come down to its dupes from above; and it is the will of Rome that these enslaved women who have hitherto cared so little for this country as to neglect naturalization, shall be naturalized and voted just as its male dupes are voted for the greater glory of popery.

Rome not in politics? Oh no! It lines up all its elements to vote, but is not in politics for being in politics is not altogether consistent with exclusive devotion to religion. It gets its agents and subjects into both elective and appointive offices in numbers out of all proportion to their ratio of population, and lobbies against public education always as it is now doing against the Smith-Towner educational bills, but Rome is not in politics.

Without woman's suffrage the nuns were non-citizens no matter how long they might live in this country after importation; but woman's suffrage puts the ballot in their hands and they must dutifully comply with the naturalization laws so they can vote in behalf of their superiors' superior, the pope and hierarchy. But they are not breaking into politics. They are just going to vote for what the priests tell them is right.—The Menace.

After the republic of China, without being consulted by the Paris peace makers, had been robbed of ten thousand square miles of land and forty million people, she was refused permission to sign the treaty with reservations. Probably the reason President Wilson's claquers say the United States cannot sign the treaty with reservations is that they think this country is in the same class with China.

The election of a socialist to Congress in a St. Paul district which gave 12,000 for Wilson, with the Republican candidate second and the Democrat third, indicates the direction in which the present national administration has been educating public sentiment. The only alternative to socialism in this country is Republicanism, and Republicanism must prepare to fight the battle along these lines, without dodging, trimming or compromise.

LOOK AT YOUR TONGUE! IS IT BROAD, WHITE, FLABBY? —YOUR BLOOD NEEDS ZIRON!

When Your Tongue Is White and Flabby, It Is a Sign That You Are Anemic and That Your Blood Needs Ziron Iron Tonic, For the Benefit of Your Weakened System.

Look at your tongue in the mirror!

It ought to be pointed, pink, clean and firm.

If it is broad, white, coated, flabby, it is probably a sign that you are anemic, that your blood lacks red corpuscles, that you are not in good health, that your system needs iron to bring it up to proper condition.

When your blood needs iron, take Ziron, the new Iron Tonic, which contains also the hypophosphites of lime and soda and other valuable tonic ingredients prescribed by the best physicians for this form of trouble.

When you feel tired and miserable, lack ambition, suffer from indigestion, rheumatic pains, gastric catarrh, depression of spirits and a general feeling of being "under the weather", why not try Ziron to help you back to health?

Ziron, the new compound of Iron, contains no habit-forming drugs. It is a safe, reliable tonic remedy—good for men, women and children.

Mr. R. L. Poston, of Lillie, La., writes: "Some weeks ago I was suffering with something like dumb chills. I just ached all over, my skin would feel clammy. I ached worse from my knees down. I didn't rest well nights, and my appetite wasn't good. I was afraid I would get down in bed and so much to do in the Spring of the year. I began to look around for something to help me and decided to try Ziron...I had not taken one third of a bottle until I felt much better. I grew stronger, began to get hungry and did not have any more of the chills. I think Ziron is a splendid tonic."

SPECIAL OFFER: Buy a bottle of ZIRON, today, at your druggist's and give it a fair trial, according to directions on the bottle. If, after using up one bottle, you find it has not benefited you, take the empty bottle back to the druggist and he will refund what you paid him for it. We repay him, so there is no reason why he should not repay you. This offer only applies to the first trial bottle. (ZA 3)

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENTS

State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Circuit Court in Equity.

Lillie Dennis, Complainant, vs. Fred Dennis, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Grady Reynolds, attorney for complainant, that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that his place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address can not be ascertained after reasonable effort; and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the defendant is of the age of twenty-one years:

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in The Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said Fred Dennis, to plead, answer, or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 5th day of August, 1919, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office in Clanton, Ala., this 5th day of July, 1919.

Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This machine always wins the good opinion if not the praise of those who use it. Try it when you have need of such a remedy.

LOSS OF APPETITE

As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite, and if you skip a or only eat two meals for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meals when meal time comes. Bear in mind that at least hours should always elapse between meals so as to give the food ample time to digest and and the stomach a perod of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite is caused by constipation as is often the case, that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlin's Tablets will do it.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENTS

State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Circuit Court in Equity.

J. D. Wesson, Complainant, vs. Cleadeth Wesson, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Grady Reynolds, attorney for Complainant, that the defendant is a non-resident, and that her place of residence and post office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the defendant is of the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in The Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Cleadeth Wesson, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by

Summer Complaint in Children.

There is not anything like so many deaths fgrom this disease now as before Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy came into such general use. When this Remedy is given with castor oil as directed and proper care is taken as to diet, it is safe to say thatfully ninety nine out of every hundred case recover. Mr. W. G. Cambell of Butler, Tenn., says, "I have used Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for summer complaint in children. It is far ahead of anythoing I have ever used for this purpose."

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

WOULD RATHER FIGHT THAN TO WORK

"I suffered for years with stomach trouble and could not eat, and just hated for anyone to say work to me. I would rather fight. Since taking a course of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy I actually want to work, and talk about eat, I am the last one to leave the table now." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation that causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

John Patton, Jr., of Birmingham, formerly of Jemison, was in Clanton Monday. He is selling Todd Check Protecting machines.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Gonzales, Tex.— Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days ...I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go...I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle...I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. E 78

Keep Plenty of Stationery, Stamps and Postal Cards

No farmer who considers himself half way up to date ought to depend on buying a stamp or two at a time, or an occasional postal card just when he wishes to use one. Many a farmer wastes 25 cents of time buying a 2 cent stamp

Now, that postage stamps have got back to the standard permanent price of two cents, every farmer ought to make it a rule to buy a hundred stamps and a hundred postal cards at a time and keep up a supply always on hand It is also foolish to buy one or two pencils at a time instead of buying by the dozen

Printed stationery offers so many advantages that its use ought to be be the rule rather than the exception. For $10.78 the United States government will furnish you 500 ready stamped, 2-cent envelopes with your name and address neatly printed in the upper left-hand corner. In other words, since $10 of the $10.78 represents postage, the envelopes, which are of good quality, together with the neat printing of your name and address on them costs you all together only 78 cents. Any postmaster will take your order, and every man who gets a letter from you in one of these envelopes will have greater respect for you and greater confidence in you than if your letter went to him in an ordinary envelope.

For a few dollars, too, your local printer will also print a thousand letterheads for you with your name, address, farm name, and everything you wish to add about your farm and its specialties.

The man who wishes to adopt progressive business habits, must make it easy to do these things. Even the small farmers should buy fifty or a hundred postal cards and fifty or a hundred stamped envelopes at a time, together with an appropriate quantity of stationery; while no farmer who buys or sells by mail should think of doing business without printed stationery and envelopes. The folly of buying one or two stamps at a time, one postal card at a time, one pencil or pen at a time, should be self-evident. The time wasted amounts to from two to ten times as much as the article costs.—Progressive Farmer.

PUT ON SHOES FIRST TIME IN TWO MONTHS

Sixteen-year-old Girl gets Wonderful Relief from Liver and Stomach Trouble, Constipation and Catarrh.

The new root and herb juice remedy, Dreco, scores another victory over pain and disease.

"Today is the first time in two months that my sixteen year old daughter has had on her shoes, and she is feeling stronger and better than in many months," are the words of Lula Pipe of Route 1, Huntsville, who is a member of one of the best thought of colored families in this country.

"My daughter has had catarrh of the head and stomach; badly constipated; often had headaches; dizzy spells; was very nervous, could not sleep; had no appetite, and her stomach seemed almost dead, for no food seemed to do her any good. She was weak and puny and seemed not to take anyq interest in anything.

"It was sure a good friend of mine who advised me to give her Dreco, for this medicine has sure brought her out and got rid of all her troubles; she is picking up every day and looks better than she has in a long time. Dreco is sure a fine medicine, and I am mighty glad I found out about it."

Dreco is composed of the juices and extracts of many different roots, herbs, barks and berries, which act on the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and purify the blood. It relieves constipation, prevents gas forming in the stomach; increases the appetite; insures sound refreshing leep; banihes catarrh of the head and takes the pain out of rhumatic joints.

All good drugists now sell Dreco and it is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

FINAL SETTLEMENT NOTICE

In the matter of the estate of Mrs. W. T. Goodwin, deceased; this day came H. M. Nix, the administrator of said estate, and filed his statement, accounts, and evidences, for a final settlement of his administration: It is ordered that Monday, the 18th day of August, 1919, be appointed a day on which to make such settlement, at which time all persons interested can appear and contest the said settlement, if they think proper.

Studebaker wagon in five runaways—and still working

A WAGON that is 45 years old, been through five runaways and can still carry 5000 pounds of sand might be considered a remarkable wagon, but Studebaker records are filled with remarkable stories about the long life and wonderful wearing qualities of Studebaker wagons.

At Litchfield, Minn., lives Mr. Andrew Kittleson who owns the forty-five year old Studebaker wagon described above.

You can own a Studebaker that will give you equally good service.

We carry them in stock.

When you get ready to buy that new farm wagon drop in and let us show you why a Studebaker is the best investment.

NOT GUILTY OF THE CHARGE

Editor Union-Banner:
Dear Sir.—

A story is being circulated all over the county and even surrounding counties, that Wm. D. Dykes has been shot dead one time in some one's watermelon patch, and another time in a store at Coopers.

I wish to state that I have not been in any one's watermelon patch in a way to be shot; also I have not been to Coopers this year. I am very much alive, and I would like to advise the one responsible for this story to find some other way of creating excitement; as I do not appreciate the joke, if so it is intended.

Wm. D. DYKES,

CIVIL SERVICE A TARGET FOR SERIOUS CHARGES

Continuous Complaint Made to Congress Regarding Law Enforcement.

DSMOCRATS GET GOOD JOBS.

Commission Disregards Theory and Spirit of Law When Making Appointments.

Washington, July 28.—Almost continuous complaints that a farce is being made of the civil service law are reaching Congress. It is only a little while since the civil service commission was shaken up because two of the commissioners had insisted that the spirit of the civil service law be applied to appointments under the postoffice department, more especially to the appointment of postmasters.

Now, it appears that the new civil service commission, disregarding the theory and spirit of the civil service law, is complacently fulfilling the rejuirements of those partisans who succeeded in getting the former commission broken up. The civil service examinations, for appointments to postmasterships are said to work out in such a fashion that Democratic workers land the jobs in most cases no matter how high Republican applicants are graded.

Interesting Case.

An interesting case which is cited relates to the examination of three men for postmaster at Morehead City, N. C. Willis, a Republican, made the highest grade; Wade, Democrat, an active politician, was second; a third, Willis, Democrat, made the lowest grade. The civil service commission certified the Republican, Willis, for appointment, but when protest was made by Democratic Congressmen from North Carolina, the examination papers were recalled, gone over again and it was announced that as a matter of fact, Wade, the Democrat, ranked highest. He was given the appointment.

Demand for Investigation.

This is just one sample of many instances much similar which are complained of and which are leading to a streneous demand for an investigation of the workings of the civil service commission. If twenty-five per cent of the allegations which are made concerning the disregard of the spirit of the law are true the civil service system is being almost hopelessly debased.

ARKANSAS SOLONS ADOPT SUFFRAGE

Little Rock, Ark., July 28—The Arkansas legislature, called in special session for the purpose, today ratified the federal woman suffrage amendment, the Senate voting 29 to 2 and the House 76 to 19. Arkansas is the twelfth state to ratify the amendment and the second in the South to take this action.

Tax Collector J. D. Collins, one of our best hog raisers, is planning a trip for several Clanton citizens to Orrville near Selma, on next Tuesday. The occasion is a big hog sale at that place.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. W. A. Kemp is planning to enlarge the volume of his business in Clanton this fall. An addition of sixty feet is being made to his present building, and when completed will make his store one of the largest in Clanton. He is at present in Philadelphia and will visit other markets in the east buying goods. When he gets back to Clanton and opens up for the fall and winter, he will have a showing of goods that will be attractive and worthwhile to buyers in this vicinity.

The Probate Judge has completed the moving of his office into quarters in the new court house. The records of the county which are in the hands of the judge are now safely deposited in the big fire-proof vault. Judge Reynolds feels greatly relieved since getting moved into the new building.

WILL BUY CORN—I Want to buy some Corn, shelled and sacked, three to five hundred bushels.—J. A. Maddox, Clanton, Ala.

Miss Lena Downs was in Clanton Tuesday. She says she has been spending the summer in the country, because it is the finest place in the world to live in.

We were pleased on Monday to see Calvin Wilson and Newt Askins on the streets of Clanton together again. Those two boys used to be a fixture here, but they worked up in the business world and went out to seek pastures that were greener than Clanton afforded them. Calvin is in the drug business at Montevallo, and making a plendid success. Newton is connected with the Hagan Drug Company at Sylacauga.

W. J. Vinzant of Mineral Springs was in town Monday. He is a faithful subscriber of the Union-Banner.

Yancey Giles of Birmingham was in Clanton among friends and relatives last Sunday.

W. F. Deshazo of Mulberry came to see the editor Monday morning. He brought along the potatoes all right, but he said a methodist preacher got the watermelon he had picked out for us. You know Methodist preachers are bad after watermelons and fried chicken.

The many friends of Dr. Gragg are very glad to see him on the streets again after a week's confinement to his room with an attack of malaria.

Lee Vickers came to see the Union-Banner last Saturday. He said he didn't have any potatoes nor watermelons, so he brought along a box of fine ripe peaches. We assured him that they would entitle him to honorable mention in the columns of the paper.

INTERPRETATIONS OF THE LEAGUE ARE NOT AMENDMENTS TO IT

WHAT WILSON THINKS ABOUT IT WILL NOT AFFECT ITS OPERATION AFTER WE SIGN IT.

Washington, Aug. 1—That interpretations by the president or the Senate of the league covenant will have no binding effect upon the league in constructing its provisions is the contention of the Republican Publicity Association, as evidencey by the following:

"The president is understood to be ready to accept a ratification of the peace treaty by the Senate with such reservations of an 'interpretative' nature as Senators may care to add, but he remains unalterably opposed to any changes in the text. Mr. Wilson himself is busily engaged in 'interpreting' thetreaty to Republican Senators as he calls them to the White House one by one. But he is making little progress in his efforts to convince the league opponents that adherence to the covenant will mean no surrenders on the part of the United States.

"It is all very well in the course of the discussion for Mr. Wilson and the Senators to explain the treaty and covenant. But it must not be forgotten that interpretations are merely matters of opinion. The plain language of the treaty continues to stare us in the face, regardless of how often or by whom its terms are construed. Once the undertaking is signed by the United States our power of translating its provisions passes from us. The league council then has the situation in hand, and we are bound by the construction its members care to put upon the document to which we have subscribed. Previous expressions of Mr. Wilson and Senators as to what they thought the covenant meant when it was endorsed by the United States will have no weight once ratifications are exchanged.

"That was precisely the trouble with China. The Chinese delegates were ready to sign the treaty, provided they could make certain reservations before attaching their signatures instead of after. That they were prevented from doing whereupon they withdrew from the conference. The Chinese well knew that the treaty with their signatures at the end constituted a distinct and separate obligation on their part, regardless of any qualifications they chose to add afterwards.

"It is so with the United States. Let ratifications of the treaty as it now stands be exchanged with the other parties to it, and we are obligated in accordance with its terms. It makes no difference what the Senate may think it means, or what the resolution of ratification may contain as our interpretation of its provisions, the fact remains that unless the reservations are written into the text of the treaty itself they will be no more binding than a rope of sand.

"The Hague Convention of 1907 was ratified by the Senate with a clause reserving the Monroe Doctrine from the operation of the treaty. But that reservation had been written into the undertaking before the signatures of the American Commissioners were attached, and thus was a part of the treaty itself when it was presented to the Senate for approval. Nothing like that has occurred in the present instance. While the president may say that certain provisions of the treaty mean so-and-so, he was careful not to add his interpretations to the document before his signature and that of the other American commissioners were attached. As a consequence they are meaningless so far as they may influence the action of the league after it is organized. The only way the Senate can safeguard the interests of the United States is to put into the treaty itself amendments that will not fail to remove the many menaces to our liberties that it now contains."

PRISONER ATTEMPTS TO ESCAPE FROM DEPUTY S.

Last Monday afternoon Will Pearson, a prisoner, who was being carried from the court house to the jail by Deputy Sheriff Culp, decided he would attempt to get away. Without telling anybody what he had concluded to do he made his break and set up a lively pace down the alley. Deputy Culp followed him at a rapid rate, and employed his pistol in trying to frighten the prisonenr into stopping. Five shots were fired and Pearson was running faster than he was before they were shot. Culp then realized that there was nothing left for him to do but catch his man, so he did it at the end of a quarter of a mile chase. The prisoner was brought back to jail.

The charge against Pearson in the county court was an attempt to rape his own daughter. A hearing of the case had just been held before Judge Reynolds, after which he was returning to jail to await the grand jury. On his return he attempted to make his escape from the officer.

TAFT THE DISSEMBLER

Washington, August 4.—Evidently appalled at the rapidly widening breach between himself and his party associates, ex-president Taft has suddenly adopted a new course toward the league of nations. In a desperate effort to inaugurate himself once more in the party councils, and recover the ground that he has been steadily losing since his adoption of the role of chief Wilsonian lieutenant, Mr. Taft has made public a list of so-called reservations which he is willing should be made to the league covenant.

He still adheres to his belief that no amendments should be made to the treaty. Nevertheless, in order to gain votes for it in the Senate, Mr. Taft takes the position that it will do no harm to accompany the resolution of ratification with certain interpretations which he claims will amply safeguard the United States. His reservations are six in number and are as follows:

"1. Upon two years' notice the United States may cease to be a member of the league, but shall not be released from liabilities under the covenant, which are to be determined by the league.

"2. Self-governed colonies can never be represented if the council of the home government is represented.

"3. Article X shall be advisory only, and congress shall be left free to determine whether to accept the advice of the council as to how the territorial integrity of foreign states shall be protected.

"4. Imigration and tariff are declared to be domestic subjects, and are not to be submitted to a league.

"5. The United States shall not be challenged in preventing any attempt by a non-American nation contravening the principle of the Monroe Doctrine.

"6. The United States gives notice of withdrawal from the league in ten years, without waiving the right to withdraw at an earlitr date.

To the casual reader Mr. Taft's reservations are plausible enough, but closer study of their real effect discloses that, even though they took the form of actual changes in the treaty text, the functioning of the league would be little changed by them, so far as the United States is concerned.

"Mr. Taft's first reservation is absurd. What sort of a separation would it be if we continued under the burden of the covenant's liabilities? Mr. Taft thinks Senators should be satisfied with a withdrawal that denies us any slight benefits accruing from membership in the league, but but would still subject us to all of its obligations.

"The second suggestion is of little interest to the United States. It is in the nature of a slight restraint upon the British Empire clinching still still more firmly its hold upon the league through its colonial representation.

"The interpretation regarding Article X has not the slightest effect upon the application of that provision. The league is plain enough as it is. Of course congress can accept or reject the advice of the council to go to war, but, as Senator Borah says, "We cannot honorably refuse to follow the advice of those whom we have solemnly agreed shall advise.

Mr. Taft's fourth reservation, so far as it goes, is well enough. But there are many "domestic subjects" other than immigration and tariff, over which the league may still claim jurisdiction; in fact, Article 11 says the league may take cognizance of "any circumstances whatever." If Mr. Taft really wants to reserve domestic questions he should make his reservation very much broader than he has suggested.

The ex-president attempts to clarify the reference to the Monroe Doctrine by saying that interference with its principles by a "non-American" nation will not be tolerated by the United States, regardless of the league. But suppose the British Empire or Holland or France, because of their colonial possessions in this hemisprehe, should style themelves Americon to that extent and proceed to enlarge their holdings at the expense of the Latin-American republics. There is nothing in the Taft amendment that would prevent it, as the definition of "non-American" would be left to the league, and upon that definition the whole effect of the reservation depends. What is demanded by the American people is clean-cut amendment to the effect that "this covenant shall not be construed as affecting the Monroe Doctrine."

The purpose of Mr. Taft's sixth reservation is hard to interpret. If we could withdraw in two years, as friends of the league claim, why is it necessary to say that we can withdraw in ten years? Evidently this reservation is inserted merely to give sound to the whole presentation, and to impress incautious readers.

But in this letter to Mr. Hays calling attention to his suggestions there is no intimation that they are to be considered as actual amendments to the treaty text. Mr. Taft, in fact, refers to them as "reassuring interpretations." If that is to be their true character of course they are at once robbed of what litle merit they may possess. It is an etablished rule of law that interpretations of a treaty following the actual signatures, have no effect whatever in constructing its terms.

Following closely on the president's wily attempt to inveigle the Foreign Relations Committee into an acceptance of a part of the treaty by authorizing him to appoint the American member of the Reparations Commission, the most recent utterance of Mr. Taft must be taken as but another subterfuge on the part of the league forces to attain their ends. They are determined, by hook or crook, to secure the ratification of the text of the treaty and covenant as it stands. If it is within the bounds of crafty ingenuity to accomplish their purpose it will be done. Thus far, the Foreign Relations Committee and the Senate have been proof against the insiduous contrivances aimed at their overthrow and undoubtedly they will continue to stand firmly for actual amendments to the text of the league covenant that will secure beyond preadventure the liberties of the people whose representatives they are.

CHICKEN BARBECUE

One of the most delightful social affairs of the season was a Chicken Barbecue given by the members of the E. C. Maye S. S. class on Thursday in honor of Rev. and Mrs. May's guest, Mrs. Kress of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. J. M. McKinzie of New Orleans, La.

A most tempting picnic lunch followed by ice cream was served to the following: Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Maye, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Macy Jones, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. McSwain, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. VanDerveer, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Simpson, Mrs Sam Johnson, Mrs. N. S. Johnson, Mrs. Harvey Chandler, Mrs. Ervin Luckie, Mrs. Kress, Mrs. Maye, Mrs. Elna Roberts. Mrs. Clyde Jones, Mrs. Newton Askins of Sylacauga, Misses Callie Watts, May Roberts, Lurline Harper and Mr. Guy Roberts.

An irritale and fault-finding disposition is often caused by indigestion. A man with good digestion and bowels that act regularly is usually good natured. When troubled with indigestion or constipation take Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. They also cause a gentle movement of the bowels.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Smith were visitors at Thorby last week.

SENATORS UNMOVED AFTER CONFERENCE ON TREATY

President Fails in Effort to Win the Support for League Covenant.

Washington, Aug. 4.—It is apparent that President Wilson has been disappointed in his efforts to convert the Republican senators who favor modifications in the League of Nations covenant by calling them to the White House and discussing the considerations which have caused him to demand complete acceptance of the covenant. One by one these Senators have returned to Capitol Hill only to reiterate their belief that the future safey fo the United Sates rests in the reservations which they are determined to attach to the treaty before its ratification. One of the latest to be summoned to the Executive Mansion is Senator Walter Edge of New Jersey, and upon the conclusion of his conference with the president, he made the following statement which is typical of the views expressed by his colleagues who had preceded him to the White House:

"I am very glad to get the president's views," said the New Jersey Senator; "They are interesting, but I still feel that it is the solemn duty of the Senate to uphold the sovereignty of the United States through proper reservations to the peace treaty. The Senate is in a much better position to act freely as it was not a party to the peace conference. The president clearly had to give and take and is doubtless bound to stand by the decisions which were reached by the conference of which he was a member. I have no doubt that the reservations which we propose to make will be readily accepted by the other nations, and with out sovereignty fully protected we will be in a position to exercise the same influence for good during peace that we exercised during the war."

BOLSHEVISM AND THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS HAVE SIMILAR IDEAS

THE TWO MOVEMENTS HAVE SIMILAR IDEAS, BUILT ON SIMILAR METHODS AND HAVE SAME END.

Washington, Aug. 1—That Bolshevism and Internationalism embodied in the league of natnions have similar ideas, similar methods, and similar ends, is the assertion made by the Republican Publicity Association in a statement given out today emanuating the characteristics of the two movements, the staement says:

"Both are destructive of independence, the one of the individual, the other of the nation.

"Both depend on war for the accomplishment of their objects.

"Both aim at the creation of a world sovereignty, with consequent destruction of all national sovereignty.

"Both advocate the substitution of control by the ignorant mass of humanity for that of enlightened intelligence—the one by the assassination of the educated class, the other by giving equal voting privileges to nations peopled by primitive savages, and those having the highest type of civilization.

"Both are ruled by two or three self-constituted world autocrats—one by Lenine and Trotzky, the other by Wilson, et al.

"Both are being supported by vast sums of money—Bolshevism by monthly contributions from Russia and elsewhere of $2,000,000, according to the Department of Justice, and the league of nations by the combined power of international financiers.

"Both are being exploited by the dissemination of tons of inspired literature.

"Both have the open encouragement of persons occupying high official positions.

"Both have the support of proffessed pacifists—Bolshevism, because its advocates see in it a protest of the masses against the levying of war by constituted government, and the league of nations because it masquerades as a guarantor of world peace.

"Both are ardently championed by the Prussians. They saw in Bolshevism the weapon for wrecking the Russian military machine in the war. They see in the league of nations a means, through their own membership in it, for regaining their menacing position in world affairs at no distant date.

"Both have had their birth in the brains of impractical theorists in government.

"Both have had simple demonstration of their utter failure to accomplish their purposes, and of the great danger which they hold for civilization—Bolshevism in the succession of horrible events that have occurred in Russia, and the league of nations in the complete failure of the Holy Alliance of a century ago."

The capers of the G. O. P. Elephant are going to be more amusing for the next few years than the stale antics of the Democratic donkey.

Secretary Lansing will tell Congress about the Peace Treaty, says a headline. Somebody must tell it if we are to know about it. Wilson failed in his attempt before Congress when he returned from France.

But one can see by following his thought that his suggestions are not adaptible to Chilton County. Any one at all familiar with our conditions here can readily see why we could not employ those measures at the present time.

The Abbeville Herald says some Republicans are charging that the Democrats are responsible for the boll weevil. We expect that the boll weevil is just a small item compared with some of the things that the Democrats have put over this country in the past few years.

Now comes the paid press agents and assert that there is imminent danger of a coal famine to be added to the other problems that face the people of this country. We wonder what in the world will be next. The situation already looks about as complicated as possible.

President Wilson and his cabinet are devising means of lowering the cost of living. We look for things to come down now with a thump. Mr. Wilson and his cabinet have done so much for this country in the past few years that we naturally expect them to keep on doing things worth while.

We note with interest the plans of the Republican Campaign for sending Kennemer to Congress from the seventh District. We sincerely hope that they may succeed. There are enough Republicans in the district to do it if they will just stick to their colors and not be fooled by the sinister influences that have heretofore blinded them.

Senator Sherman says the packers are not to blame for the high cost of living; Senator Graham says the farmers are not; Senator Pittman says President Wilson is not. Well who is to blame? Senator Smoot says it is inflated money; Senator Smith of South Carolina says it is is movies and automobiles; Senator McCumber says it is cigar smoking; Senator Thomas says it is world conditions.

Our readers will be interested this week in the letter which we publish from Mr. J. B. Jones of Miami, Arizona. Mr. Jones is a former Chilton Citizen and has many friends here who will be glad to read what he says. The substance of his letter is good, and no doubt, such campaigns as he suggests would under the proper relative conditions produce much good.

Our correspondent's views of Chilton County from the far west, through the hazy absence of several years too, makes his vision of things here very much distorted. The most amusing thing about his letter is to observe how different things look from his viewpoint as compared with the way they look to us who have been here all these years and who have seen every turn of the hands of time.

The Union-Banner has received a letter from Mr. A. M. Grimsley of Fayette, Ala., thanking us for what we said about the new bank which he is organizing in Clanton. Among other things he said, "we expect to open up the new bank about the first of September, and will strive to give you a good bank not only for your town but also for the agricultural interests in your county."

President Wilson insists that the covenant of the league of nations shall be approved and its obligations imposed upon our citizens without the slightest opportunity being given them to express themselves by ballot. Their lives and wealth are to be mortgaged in favor of the territorial integrity of foreign States of which most of us never heard, and for which none of us care anything. It is time for every American who takes pride in the name to rise up and demand that the protections guaranteed in our country's constitution shall be observed.

Alabama Legislature is Still Badly out of Balance.

It must be just simply impossible for Alabama to have a legislature that will stick to the interests of the common people and make laws to that effect. We invite you to look at the revenue bill that has been up at Montgomery for passage. It was a great measure that had for its main purpose the sublime intention of raising money to defray the expenses of our State and to get us out of debt. What a noble intention and a thing that we need so much.

But just look what bobs up when the thing is gone into. Lo and behold we find a great raft of new offices created by the bill and fat salaries to be paid deserving politicians who have helped deceive the good people of the State. And when it is figured out to the last analysis the bill will raise just about enough money to pay the new officers that are created and the people who pay the freight are left still to grope their way through a benighted existence under the burden of a harrowing State debt.

Again we cite you to the State bond issue bill for building the highways of the State. Another movement that carries an excellent purpose and if carried out would result in untold benefit to Alabama. Twenty-five million dollars spent by Alabama in conjunction with the federal appropriation would keep up and build the highways of the State, and the motor vehicle license of the State would pay the interest on the bonds. An excellent plan it is.

But let us see how Alabama's wise solons in the capitol are trying to gobble up the plan. We fancy that some of them see too much advantage to the common people in the proposition. So they have gotten busy to fix it so some new officer will get the cream and Alabama will still be in the mud so far as roads are concerned.

A bill has been introduced in the House by Mr. Arnold of Jefferson (note where he is from) to provide for the creation of a State Highway Department, and this department to handle the bond issue, motor vehicle tax, and to have supervision of all road and bridge building in the State. Here are some of the provisions of the bill:

"The State highway engineer shall determine the character and shall have general supervision over the construction and maintenance of all public roads and bridges in the State."

"There is hereby appropriated to the State highway department for its use the entire net revenue derived from the sale of motor vehicle licenses in the State. Said sums herein appropriated, when received by the State treasurer, shall be set aside in a fund known as the State highway fund and be used for no other purpose than the carrying out of the provisions of this act."

"The State highway commission shall reserve out of the State highway fund sufficient sums annually, based upon estimates furnished by the State highway engineer, to support the State highway department. The balance (if any) shall be used in the construction and maintenance of State trunk roads and bridges."

"The State highway commission shall adopt such rules and regulations for the construction and maintenance of the public roads and bridges in Alabama as it shall deem proper. Same shall be printed and furnished to all local road officials in the State."

"The State highway commission may make such changes or additions to the system of the State trunk roads as it may deem proper and construct or maintain the same with State aid under the provisions of this act."

"He (the State highway engineer) may employ such assistant engineers, clerks, stenographers, draftsmen, foremen and laborers as may be necessary for the proper carrying out of the work of the State highway depatment, and fix their compensation, which shall be paid out of the State highway fund."

What is the use in such a law as the above? Why can't the County Commissioners continue to look after the road work in every county just as they have been doing? What is the use in creating these new jobs? If this bill is passed there will be "assistants, engineers, clerks, stenographers, draftsmen, foremen etc.," all over this State as thick as peddlers in hell, all appointed by the State highway department. And by the time they are all paid there will not be a cent left to build roads with. And if there should happen to be any roads built it would be in the big rich counties.

If Alabama is going to issue 25 million dollars of bonds to build highways with it should be prorated on the area basis of each and every county of the State. Then the work of spending the money and building the roads should be done by the Commissioners Court in each county. If it is not done that way, the people will not stand for it, and we don't blame them. These guys who are trying to gobble up the road money that they see coming through the bnod issue had better remember that the people are going to vote on that bond issue before it is dished out to the gluttons who are sneaking around looking for some new office that is to be created.

U S TROOPERS PURSUE BANDITS ACROSS BORDER

Senator Fall Declares Our Men Have Also Fought Regular Carranza Soldiers

Washington August 2.—"I desire to reiterate the statement I made here" said Senator Fall of New Mexico, on the floor of the Senate recently, "that within the last several months—I will not undertake to limit the time exactly—upon either seven or eight occasions troopers of the 7th Cavalry, United States Army, have pursued Mexicans across the Rio Grande into Mexico and that upon either six or seven of those occasions they have recovered a large amount of stolen property carried across by the raiding Mexicans. I desire further to reiterate the statement that Carranza's soldiers and officers have been killed, not only in Mexico but on this side, by our regular American soldiers, troopers of the 7th Cavalry."

Senator Fall put into the Record a telegram giving a list of Carranza officers and soldiers killed in raids on this side by American troopers.

"In raids upon this side," Senator Fall said further "bugles of the regular Carranzaista forces have been left when the thieves were driven off. I may say that an investigation will show that at least two sabers and accoutrements of Carranzista officers killed on this side are now in the possession of Americans."

OFFICIALS MISUSE FUNDS

Senator Smoot Charges Propaganda Is Carried on by Bureaus.

Washington, Aug 4—The use of government funds by officials of the Executive Department to inspire propaganda to influence Congress to continue publications which they have reasons of economy, is charged by Senator Smoot.

Senator Smoot said that is chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Printing he had been flooded with hundreds of telegrams of identical wording inspired by government officials. "The practice is becoming so common," Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, interrupted, "that it is a nuisance."

Pure Food

Our pure food laws have three purposes:

1. To prevent the use of unwholesome material.
2. To prevent fraudulent substitution.
3. To inform the purchaser what she is buying.

Some products are so well known to the housewife that from the class name under which they are sold she can tell the ingredients contained therein. With others, such as baking powder, all the ingredients are named on the label, and as a result the most healthful, economical and desirable kind can be selected.

There is one class of mixtures, however, which are still bought blindly without knowledge of the ingredients. These are the so-called Self-Rising Flours. Read the label on any package of self-rising flour and there is never found either the statement, "This package contains the following ingredients and none other," or any equivalent statement. One cannot determine from the label either the quality of the flour or the nature of the other ingredients mixed therewith.

In the selection of baking powder, the housewife is very particular; but in self-rising flour she takes whatever ingredients are handed her without asking questions and in an equal state of ignorance with the dealer who is selling to her, as to what these ingredients are.

It has been admitted by the manufacturers of acid phosphate that the phosphate used in self-rising flour frequently contains 25 per cent or over of calcium sulphate (gypsum). Physicians know the objections to introducing such an amount of unnecessary inedible material into the system.

The physician can do much toward the enactment of laws that will forbid the use of such material in the manufacture of self-rising flour and that will require a statement on self-rising flour of all the ingredients contained therein.

Such laws will protect the health and the pocketbook.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR CHILTON COUNTY

Being the Ideas of a Former Chilton Citizen Who Has Been in the West for Several Years Past.

I notice by the county paper that there is unusual interest taken in the good roads movement, which is no doubt much advanced compared with the conditions that were in vogue when I was there. I know that Chilton County needs good roads and needs them very badly. Roads are one thing that the politicians cannot keep hidden from the public.

But there are two other things that are vastly more important than good roads, and I have never heard of them being mentioned in Chilton County. But if the people ever realize that they have been duped as they have they will be surprised. Should Chilton County ever have a body of high class progressive officers that will give the people modern enlightenment they will come to realize things they never before dreamed of. I say absolutely no more Chilton County system for me; and if I could get every citizen of the county to realize what could be done I would consider my trip to the west a success.

I have seen both systems and I know what they will do. One is the health of the public and the other is the method of reducing the number of criminals. There is no question about Chilton County being able to accomplish these measures effectively if the people will demand the standard of high class men for officers that will put forth their efforts to prevent sickness as I have seen done here. If it were possible for me to spend the summer there with a good helper I could do as good work there as the doctors have done here. Anyway I have been living under this system seven years. After specializing in Raton, N. Mex., and Denver, Colo., and part of my time was spent in care of one of the most conscious men I ever met, and had been fortunate enough to have had such men to care for my health when I was young and ignorant I would never have been in this condition. Really my salvation came at the eleventh hour, and it was due to a line of instructions about how to care for my body which I had never had before.

The first two winters I spent here the head surgeon gave a series of lectures about the causes, nature, treatment and prevention of diseases that are most common, which include measles, small pox, fevers, tuberculosis and many others. He also made special lectures to the schools and women and young girls and boys.

I have been here seven years and the influenza is the only epidemic that made any headway. Of those who attended his lectures on how to care for and protect themselves and others I do not know of any that had it very bad. The greater part of the deaths were among those who did not attend his lectures.

Here is an example of how an epidemic of fever was prevented: About a year ago (the week that Mr. Wilson just south of Clanton died of typhoid fever) there were six cases of typhoid fever in the camp. It was supposed to have been caused by germs coming in either in fruit or milk. Conditions looked threatening for an epidemic of typhoid. Cards stating that there was a threatening epidemic of typhoid were printed and circulated over the mining district by the doctors. And the cards also stated that the doctor would lecture at the Y.M.C.A. on the cause, nature, prevention and treatment of typhoid. Each night at the lectures the hall was crowded with men, women and children who were eager to learn how to protect themselves. No doubt all of them put into practice what they were taught in the lectures, and the result was in a few days the whole thing was passed. No deaths at all and very little suffering was the extent of what might have been a serious eqidemic of typhoid.

That is the way the head surgeon does things here. Now compare it with Chilton County system and see the difference. We have sickness here, but not as much by a great deal, as there would be if it were not for our systematic precaution. There are health bulletins posted up at the plant where I am working giving such timely advice as how to prevent colds, how colds may develop into pneumonia, and how to prevent tuberculosis and other diseases.

Now, in regard to the criminals: During the time the doctor was giving his health lectures the county attorney lectured once a week for a few months about civil government, the law and its relation between man and man, and man and government, the methods of legal procedure, bringing criminals to justice, and the rights of man under the government, he duty of a citizen to the government and the duty of the government to the citizen. His lectures along these lines were more beneficial and instilled more patriotism into the hearts of his hearers than all the political rot I ever heard in Chilton County.

If all those who are morally and mentally weak could have the advantage of someone like this to guide their minds in channels of right thinking, there would not be nearly so many to get tangled in the network of the law and land in jail. Let them grow into manhood without any giudance or helping instruction, and they will suffer punishment for violating the law through ignorance many a time. It is Chilton County's curse to allow such conditions as these to exist and prosper without offering any remedy. I am convinced that the old school of mud-slinging politicians is somewhat responsible for a weakening influence.

I lived in Chilton County until I was thirty years old, and never met such men as I have met here in the west. No doubt anyone can by studying the lives of the unfortunates, what part of the county they come from, their parents, community surroundings and religious environments and find the causes that are responsible for their condition. Then eradicate much of these causes by the proper moral and religious influences.

Now, if you people back there will cut out your politics and come together in these two movements, and select a county health officer and have him work under the direction of conservative broad-minded men of your selection and pay him a good salary, and his only duty to be to lecture and educate the public on the general laws of health and how to prevent diseases, their treatment and the protection of others, and when there is a case of contagious diseases likely to become a community epidemic have him go to that community and teach the people to care for themselves, that one man (doctor) can within a few months, have the people educated to the point where it would be almost impossible for an epidemic to get much of a start.

And also hire a man who is well versed in law and have him follow some plans of legal and civil enlightenment and no doubt the reduction of criminals would save the tax payers more than his cost would be. Also many aching hearts and much family embarassment.

Camel Cigarettes

They Win You On Quality!

Your enjoyment of Camels will be very great because their refreshing flavor and fragrance and mellowness is so enticingly different. You never tasted such a cigarette! Bite is eliminated and there is a cheerful absence of any unpleasant cigaretty after-taste or any unpleasant cigaretty odor!

18 cents a package

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages of 20 cigarettes; or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-paper-covered carton. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

Camels are made of an expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos and are smooth and mild, but have that desirable full-body and certainly hand out satisfaction in generous measure. You will prefer this Camel blend to either kind of tobacco smoked straight!

Give Camels the stiffest tryout, then compare them with any cigarette in the world at any price for quality, flavor, satisfaction. No matter how liberally you smoke Camels they will not tire your taste!

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR CHILTON COUNTY

Being the Ideas of a Former Chilton Citizen Who Has Been in the West for Several Years Past.

I notice by the county paper that there is unusual interest taken in the good roads movement, which is no doubt much advanced compared with the conditions that were in vogue when I was there. I know that Chilton County needs good roads and needs them very badly. Roads are one thing that the politicians cannot keep hidden from the public.

But there are two other things that are vastly more important than good roads, and I have never heard of them being mentioned in Chilton County. But if the people ever realize that they have been duped as they have they will be surprised. Should Chilton County ever have a body of high class progressive officers that will give the people modern enlightenment they will come to realize things they never before dreamed of. I say absolutely no more Chilton County system for me; and if I could get every citizen of the county to realize what could be done I would consider my trip to the west a success.

I have seen both systems and I know what they will do. One is the health of the public and the other is the method of reducing the number of criminals. There is no question about Chilton County being able to accomplish these measures effectively if the people will demand the standard of high class men for officers that will put forth their efforts to prevent sickness as I have seen done here. If it were possible for me to spend the summer there with a good helper I could do as good work there as the doctors have done here. Anyway I have been living under this system seven years. After specializing in Raton, N. Mex., and Denver, Colo., and part of my time was spent in care of one of the most conscious men I ever met, and had been fortunate to care for my health when I was nate enough to have had such men young and ignorant I would never have been in this condition. Really my salvation came at the eleventh hour, and it was due to a line of instructions about how to care for my body which I had never had before.

The first two winters I spent here the head surgeon gave a series of lectures about the causes, nature, treatment and prevention of diseases that are most common, which include measles, small pox, fevers, tuberculosis and many others. He also made special lectures to the schools and women and young girls and boys.

I have been here seven years and the influenza is the only epidemic that made any headway. Of those who attended his lectures on how to care for and protect themselves and others I do not know of any that had it very bad. The greater part of the deaths were among those who did not attend his lectures.

Here is an example of how an epidemic of fever was prevented: About a year ago (the week that Mr. Wilson just south of Clanton died of typhoid fever) there were six cases of typhoid fever in the camp. It was supposed to have been caused by germs coming in either in fruit or milk. Conditions looked threatening for an epidemic of typhoid. Cards stating that there was a threatening epidemic of typhoid were printed and circulated over the mining district by the doctors. And the cards also stated that the doctor would lecture at the Y.M.C.A. on the cause, nature, prevention and treatment of typhoid. Each night at the lectures the hall was crowded with men, women and children who were eager to learn how to protect themselves. No doubt all of them put into practice what they were taught in the lectures, and the result was in a few days the whole thing was passed. No deaths at all and very little suffering was the extent of what might have been a serious eqidemic of typhoid.

That is the way the head surgeon does things here. Now compare it with Chilton County system and see the difference. We have sickness here, but not as much by a great deal, as there would be if it were not for our systematic precaution. There are health bulletins posted up at the plant where I am working giving such timely advice as how to prevent colds, how colds may develop into pneumonia, and how to prevent tuberculosis and other diseases.

Now, in regard to the criminals: During the time the doctor was giving his health lectures the county attorney lectured once a week for a few months about civil government, the law and its relation between man and man, and man and government, the methods of legal procedure, bringing criminals to justice, and the rights of man under the government, he duty of a citizen to the government and the duty of the government to the citizen. His lectures along these lines were more beneficial and instilled more patriotism into the hearts of his hearers than all the political rot I ever heard in Chilton County.

If all those who are morally and mentally weak could have the advantage of someone like this to guide their minds in channels of right thinking, there would not be nearly so many to get tangled in the network of the law and land in jail. Let them grow into manhood without any giudance or helping instruction, and they will suffer punishment for violating the law through ignorance many a time. It is Chilton County's curse to allow such conditions as these to exist and prosper without offering any remedy. I am convinced that the old school of mud-slinging politicians is somewhat responsible for a weakening influence.

I lived in Chilton County until I was thirty years old, and never met such men as I have met here in the west. No doubt anyone can by studying the lives of the unfortunates, what part of the county they come from, their parents, community surroundings and religious environments and find the causes that are responsible for their condition. Then eradicate much of these causes by the proper moral and religious influences.

Now, if you people back there will cut out your politics and come together in these two movements, and select a county health officer and have him work under the direction of conservative broad-minded men of your selection and pay him a good salary, and his only duty to be to lecture and educate the public on the general laws of health and how to prevent diseases, their treatment and the protection of others, and when there is a case of contagious diseases likely to become a community epidemic have him go to that community and teach the people to care for themselves, that one man (doctor) can within a few months, have the people educated to the point where it would be almost impossible for an epidemic to get much of a start.

And also hire a man who is well versed in law and have him follow some plans of legal and civil enlightenment and no doubt the reduction of criminals would save the tax payers more than his cost would be. Also many aching hearts and much family embarassment.

GERMAN MILLS SEEK LOW GRADE COTTON FROM U.S.

Washington, July 28.—German cotton mills, with 10,000,000 spindles, estimated as still suitable for operation, can consume about 1,000,000 bales of cotton during the next year, if means are found to finance the movement of the commodity from the United States, said a report by Erwin W. Thompson, commercial attach of the Bureau of foreign and domestic commerce made public tonight.

Mr. Erwin outlined a plan by which Danish and Dutch traders may be furnished cotton for resale to Germany and allowed to assume a part of the credit risk. Out of 4,067,018 bales of cotton in storage in the United States on June 30, he estimated a very large proportion was classified in the lower grades, which are especially suitable for German mills.

"At this time the German mills would be eager buyers for the lowest grades," Mr. Erwin's report said, pointing out that during the war they have been operating on wastes, shoddies, nettle fiber, and paper, owing to the pressure of the blockade.

"Cotton experts are agreed that the cotton in public store in the United States is nearly all of grades below those most desired by domestic mills."

To Our Customers & Friends:

You, Mothers and Fathers, know how hard Children are on shoes; and yet, very often, the child is blamed for wearing out the shoes too quickly, when the shoes themselves are really too poor to stand the wear an active child will give them.

You would not spend your money for some shoes if you could cut them open and see what is inside of them. A solid leather sole, if properly made, wears longer, holds its shape longer and in every way is a better shoe than one in which substitutes for leather are used. Do not buy shoes without having an opportunity to see the shoes themselves; and then study their quality and construction.

When you buy "Star Brand" Shoes from us, you not only see the shoes but can also see a shoe that has been cut open.

"Star Brand" Shoes for children are attractive in appearance and made to permit the proper development of the child's feet. Best of all they are right in price.

You will need more shoes very soon. Come in and examine our full line of children's shoes.

FROM THE STUDENTS OF THE LITTLEJOHN SCHOOL

We forgot to send in our pieces last week, but protracted meeting is over and our school is full again.

We had quite a number of visitors out with us Friday afternoon to listen to us speak, spell, tell jokes, riddles, stories and review our past week's work. Next week ends our second month's work, so we are expecting nearly all of our fathers and mothers, uncles and aunts as well as our grandpas and grandmas. Supt. Bean promised our teacher that he would come to see us too, so we are looking for him Friday p.m. We will review our past month's work orally and also give you a few new recitations, stories, jokes and riddles. We enjoy visitors very much, and we are going to give all who read our correspondence a special invitation to come to see us that p.m. We are going to have an old-fashioned game of town ball at noon Friday, also one after school; so come and enjoy all the evening with us.

I believe at this writing that there is no sickness in this community, as far as I know. Most of the people are talking about pulling fodder now, but we don't enjoy hearing that for we know it means that several of us pupils will have to quit school and go to it when it does get ready.

Mr. John Lowery reports good luck on his fishing trip at Yellow Leaf last week, but he never asked any of us to help him eat fish.

We still have plenty of good watermelons out this way.

Well, as this is my first write-up will ring off for this time by wishing the Union-Banner much success.

A PUPIL.

INFORMAL RECEPTION

A delightful event of Friday afternoon was an informal party given by Mrs. M. L. White, in compliment to Mrs. Burt Kress of Little Rock, Ark., Mrs. J. M. Maye of New Orleans, La., and Mrs. N. W. Askins of Sylacauga, Ala. The home was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and ferns. Music was enjoyed throughout the afternoon, when a delightful salad course was served. About twenty-five young matrons were invited to meet these charming ladies. Mrs. White was assisted in dispensing hospitalities by Mesdames J. M. Nix, J. D. Armstrong and Miss Eloise Kemp.

NEGRO THREATENED LIVES OF GOVERNORS

Washington, July 28.—Two threatening letters, one addressed to the Governor of Georgia and the other to the governor of Mississippi, were taken by the police from Willie Laney, negro, alleged slayer of a seventeen-year-old white boy during the riots of last week. The negro denies authorship of the letters and claims he found them.

The writer of the letters refers to himself as the "S. S. of the United States" taken by the police to mean sharp shooter. The letters to the governor of Georgia reads:

Dear Sir:—You are the Governor of the State of Georgia, and I want to consider that the negro was drafted during world war to fight for this country as well as the white man, and I want you to understand that this thing of lynching in the State of Georgia must be stopped.

"We went and killed Germans for your rights, and we can also kill Americans for our rights, and if I hear any more of lynching in the State of Georgia, I will come quickly and the people will weep after I leave, because I sweep from the cradle up. I will remember you this time. Why did you let this man be lynched in May?"

In the letters to the Governor of Mississippi the writer repeats the part the negroes played in the war and what they will do for their rights and concludes:

"Sir, this thing of lynching negroes in the State of Mississippi must be cut out. I am the negro 'S. S.' "

In the opening of the message to the governor of Georgia the writer wrote from the "S S" of the negro race.

LIBERTY HILL SINGING SOCIETY

held its regular meeting last Sunday afternoon, but as the weather was so threatening we did not have many singers.

The meeting was opened with song by Mr. Zack Lowery. The directors were, J.A.W. Mims, Zack Lowery, J. M. Smith and J. W Lowery. Organists were Miss Zelma Lowery.

The society meets every first and third Sunday afternoons, and all who are interested in sacred music come and help us.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Jno. F. Cable Pastor.

The pastor was away last week preaching in a protracted meeting at Pleasant Grove Church No. 2, four miles west of Maplesville. The pastor at Pleasant Grove is Rev. F.W.C. Bice of Thorsby. There were several obstacles in the way of obtaining the best results in the meeting, but 13 young people professed a saving faith and will be baptized at the next meeting, Saturday before the Fourth Sunday in this month. The people attended well and were very kind to the preachers, which is nothing new in that neighborhood. Several said they were much revived and one or two will join churches nearer home. One of the high points of interest during the week was the conversion of the leading gambler in the neighborhood, who in token of his sincerity, gave up his "craps" to the preacher, who still has them. If any of the brethren wish to "roll the bones" he is open for an interview.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

Be Strong

Strength of body, strength of nerves, strength of mind, depend very largely on whether you have enough iron in your blood. The world makes way for the strong people that they generally get what they want, out of life. Pale, weak, sickly, nervous, peevish, thin, dyspeptic individuals, need iron to build them up.

ZIRON

will put iron into your blood and help restore your health and strength. Eminent physicians agree as to the vital need of iron by the run-down system. ZIRON will give it to you.

J. E. Clifton, R. F. D. 3, Lyons, Ga., writes: "Last summer I had typhoid fever and had hemorrhages . . . and my health was wretched. I seemed to be unable to get my strength back. I had no appetite. I had no energy. I didn't think I was ever going to get well. My knees were weak, my flesh felt clammy. I was in a pretty bad condition. I heard of ZIRON and what a good tonic and strengthener it was and I sent for it at once. It helped me. I began to improve, and soon felt much better and stronger. My nerves were strengthened and I felt like doing something. We have nothing but words of praise for ZIRON". Try ZIRON.

WAR RISK BUREAU FLAT FAILURE REPORT SHOWS

Mismanagement by Appointees of President Responsible for Chaotic Conditions.

Washington, August 3.—Representative Albert Johnson of Washington, has introduced a bill in Congress providing for the establishment of branch offices of the War Risk Insurance Bureau in each State, each bureau to handle exclusively the insurance and allotment cases belonging to the State in which it is located. Although this measure carries out the suggestion contained in the report of Charles Evans Hughes and his associates, Mr. Johnson had previously arrived at the same conclusion, and he believes it is the most promising method so far advanced.

Members of Congress who have had practical experience in the insurance business express the greatest alarm at the statement in the Hughes report that three-fourths of the soldiers and sailors had dropped their insurance policies. Representative Andrews of Nebraska pointed out today that this probably means that a large portion of the policies still in effect represent cases where the risk to the government is greatest, and that eventually it will sustain an enormous loss. Lack of faith in the bureau on the part of men now leaving the military service as believed to be the reason for the lapsing of thousands of policies in which the government's risk was negligible.

Washington, Aug. 3—A congressional investigation into the coal situation will probably be made. Investigations have been proposed both in the Senate and the House and one inquiry will probably be made to serve the purpose of both bodies. Inquiry, if made, will have particular bearing on the price of coal paid by concumers.

WATCH CENSUS BUREAU

Department Heads Block Congress in Efforts to Reduce Payroll.

Washington, July 31.—The Census Bureau is preparing for enormous additions to its force. About five thousand more employees will be put on the payroll of Uncle Sam in the District of Columbia and kept there until the 1920 Census of the country is taken and compiled. This army of additional employees, together with additional employees which are being put on by some of the other government agencies, means that there will be practically little reduction in the force of government workers here. Efforts of Congress to cut down the total number of employees and thus lessen expenditures are being blocked by department heads.

Members of Congress are watching what course the Bureau takes with reference to observance of the civil service system

Senator New Mexico Criticizes Policy of War Deportment.

Washington, August 2.—That the War Department is not handling the military situation along the Mexican border properly or adequately is the opinion of Senator Fall of New Mexico.

"In my judgment," said Senator Fall, "the trouble along the border is that the troops there have not the proper orders. In my judgment if they were ordered to prevent raids of incursions upon this side and to take any means which they thought necessary to preserve order along the border and to protect the lives and property of American citizens, one-tenth the number now on the border could do it."

MR. G. W. FRANKLIN'S CASE WAS COMMON TALK IN ABERNANT

Everyone Knew how he Had Suffered from Stomach Trouble, Constipated Bowels and Weak Kidneys.

DRECO RELIEVED HIM.

"My case was common talk in my home town and among the L. & N. railroad folks, who knew me quite well," said Mr. G. W. Franklin of Abernant, Ala.

"But I've won a great battle with stomach trouble of ten years standing even if it did take six bottles of Dreco to do it. I was improving all along with each bottle, so was encouraged to keep at it from the very first.

"No matter how careful I was about my food, it would turn to gas and fill me up so that my breathing was difficult, and I had a sense of suffocation. I'd belch up water as hot as fire that would burn my throat; a heavy lump seemed to lay in my stomach; my bowels were badly constipated and I had to take liver regulators all the time to keep them active. My kidneys often called me out of bed five and six times at night.

"But it is all over now, for Dreco has put an end to all these ails and I'm a well man today; eat anything I want; never have any gas in my stomach and bowels, act freely with out assistance of other medicines; kidneys don's trouble me at night now, and I'm just feeling grand. Dreco sure is a fine medicine, and I have sent a lot of my friends to get it on account of the good it did me."

Dreco is not an experiment, it is a safe, harmless combination of nature's extracts, and contains no dangerous minerals, acids or salts. It is nature's medicine and can be taken with afety into the most delicate system. Dreco is inexpensive and is now dispensed by modern drug stores almost everywhere.

All good druggists now sell Dreco and it is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

HAYS WILL NOT RUN FOR GOVERNOR IN STATE OF INDIANA

Chairman of the Republican National Committee States Position.

SEES NATIONAL PARTY VICTORY

Sensible of Honor Proposed He Believes Duty Now Lies With Work in Hand.

In declining the highest state honor his party could offer him, because of his conviction that it would limit his opportunities for service as chairman of the Republican National Committee, Will H. Hays, declared in an address before the annual meeting of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association. "I can not consider being a candidate for Governor. I am committed a definite undertaking as the chairman of the National Republican Committee, and I shall finish that job."

Was Urged to Run.

Chairman Hays' declination puts an end to a campaign inaugurated by his home-state friends some months ago to induce him to be the Republican candidate for governor of Indiana. Newspapers in all sections of his state had declared editorially for "Hays for Governor," and it is understood that the Chairman received many letters from party workers of all classes urging him to announce his candidacy. For some time it has been practically assured that Mr. Hays could have the nomination for the asking, and his friends insisted that if he accepted it the campaign for his election would not require his personal attention. Party leaders in Washington and elsewhere, who have insisted the Chairman was too valuable an asset to be given to one state alone, and who have been hoping he would not be lost to the National Committee work, will be gratified by his refusal to run. In declining Mr. Hays said:

"It is difficult for me to express the gratitude which I feel for the assurances that have come to me relative to the governorship. The friendship and confidence which these assurances prove mean more to me than anything else and move me very deeply.

Sensible of Honor.

"I am very sensible of the privilege incident to the opportunity for service and distinguished honor in the governorship of Indiana, but I can not, however, further consider being a candidate. I am committed to a definite undertaking and I shall finish that job. The work in connection with the Republican National Committee is daily becoming so all absorbing and the importance of the successful outcome so vital that there I must do that which it is given me to do, and must do it to the hilt.

Could Not Do Both.

"It has been thought by many of my friends that I could do both but the hundred per cent efficiency in initiative and execution due each position if I have the other on my mind.

Predicts Party Victory.

"Believing this as I do, then my course is clear. I must do the one or the other. There is no doubt about a complete Republican victory in Indiana and the nation and it is simply for me to decide where I may be able to do the largest good and where my duty lies. This, I believe, is in the work which I have in hand in aiding insofar as is in my power to bring the complete Republican national victory so absolutely esesntiol to the country's welfare. Therefore, I shall not be a candidate for governor."

GREAT ALARM OVER THE U. S. ECONOMIC CONDITION

Washington, August 11.—Panic-stricken at the national unrest looming greater day by day, President Wilson has thrown up his hands and appealed to a Republican congress to save the situation. The full effects of his maladministration are now being interpreted to every citizen in terms of dollars and cents. We call it the high cost of living. A more exact characterization would be the high cost of Wilsonian Democracy.

Many things have contributed to the economic state in which the country finds herself. Chief among them are the extremes of extravagance and wanton waste that have marked the convulsions of the Wilson apopintees in conducting us through the greatest war in history. Inefficiency has been predominant among the individuals appointed, and political exigencies and prime consideration in their selection. By its cost-plus scheme of making contracts, the administration forced prices to abnormal heights. By favoritism to city wage-earners, it drew labor away from food production. By inflation of the currency, the buying power of the dollar was reduced. The food situations in Europe have taken precedence in the president's mind over the needs of our own peopjle, with the result that millions of tons of foodstuffs have been taken from the mouths of Americans and given to inhabitants of the old world, much of it to the people of the very nations responsible for the war. The railroads of the country have been continued under Federal control in spite of the fact that the deficit is monthly mounting into hundreds of millions of dollars. As a consequence freight rates have been raised and will be raised again, to be added in turn to the ultimate costs of food and other products. All efforts of the Republicans to have the Democratic congress adopt a sane system of reconstruction were rejected by the president, and as a reult demobilization of our armies and war industries has proceeded under no preconceived plan to return to a peace basis with least economic dusturbance. Intermittent unemployment and shutting down of factories has followed, all of which has contributed to the high cost of living.

Those and other causes are responsible for the present state of affairs. Mr. Wilson has been the nation's autocrat, selecting his own heads of departments and other minor officials. During the war congress never grudged him a single power that he asked, and practically every federal activity was governed by his discretion alone. His aversion to advice has been notorious, and he has sought and been granted powers never before possessed but by the most absolute monarchs. His seven months' absence in a foreign capital indicates how lightly he regarded the responsibility for American welfare that rested upon his shoulders. During that time the executive branch was left solely in charge of political incompetencies whom he had clothed with authority.

Like a tidal wave the conditions that Mr. Wilson inaugurated and fostered have rolled up and now threaten to engolf the United States in economic chaos. Like the Kaiser who deserted his armies and fled the country when he saw that all was lost, Mr. Wilson throws up his hands and turns to the Republicans in congress to ave the country from "this intricate situation." To a man, the members of the House have responded, abandoned plans for a recess pending debate on the peace treaty in the Senate and have settled down to retrive, if possible, the disaster that would otherwise surely descend upon the country when Mr. Wilson's false economic structure topples to the earth.

Squire A. F. Childress of Thorsby was a visitor to Clanton on Monday. Mr. Childress stated that crops in his section are going to be reasonably good in spite of the boll weevils and wet weather.

AMERICAN DISINTEGRATION

Washington, August 12.—That the league of nations, if America were a member of it, would throw European controversies into American politics, because of our large foreign---born population, is the opinion expressed by the Republican Publicity Association in a statement issued today by its president, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr. The statement which presents a new view of the league, is as follows:

"One of the most vicious features of the league of nations, in its attack upon our domestic peace, is the fact that once foreign governments have a voice in our affairs it is inevitable that a large portion of the people of this country will divide themselves into groups, each American and something else, or still more likely each something else first and American afterward, we have seen something of that, surely enough, to cause us to take warning.

"So a league of nations instead of promoting Americanism and cementing us into a single nation of patriotic people will cause a segregation in interest of many people derived from many nationalities of Europe, each with a reservation of mind whenever its own foreign nation's interest is at stake. It will make the United States an unthinkable sort of nation and one without capacity to protect itself from a diversified disloyalty within its borders.

"Once we are members of the league of nations every other member of the league will have a very positive interest in our domestic as well as foreign affairs. Our electorate will be of immense interest to those foreign governments and next to their own voters ours will be of importance.

"We have seen enough of propaganda to know that every nation depending upon our support of its own policies will seek to shape our public opinion according to its own pattern and there will be a powerful incentive for persistent propaganda, and along aside of propaganda will go a spy system as a necessary means of directing and giving force to propaganda. We will be fruitful tamping ground for intrigueing diplomats and propagandists from all the great nations of the earth. To make matters worse the propagandists will have a sort of official standing under the leagne of nations and we would find it difficult to resent their activities although when wholly independent of them we could take positive measures to suppress them.

"We all know that when we call the neighbors into our family quarrels the result is a divided house. We have had our own domestic difficulties and have fought them out in the forum and at the ballot box and at the end of our most intense political battles we have accepted the verdict of the ballot box until the battle could again be waged at the next election. All this has been in such friendly spirit as to cause wonder that the heat of political battle could so soon be cast aside and it has been possible because we have had faith that whatever differences of opinion have prevailed our people were Americans, simply dividing in their views as to what has been best for the welfare of our common country. There has seldom been any suspicion that any portion of the electorate has acted for the benefit of any foreign country.

"But with a league of nations there will be a very positive suspicion that in league questions affecting the welfare of other countries racial prejudices will sway otherwise well - meaning men.

"This is a weakness of the league that applies to us alone among all the nations of the earth. It cannot apply to England, or France or Germany or Italy or any other member of the League because their population has been thoroughly nationalized by centuries of unity of interest.

"We must bear ni mind that a house divided against itself must surely fall."

PRESIDENT WANTS TO PREVENT HUMILIATION

Logis of His Argument In favor of Ratification is Purely Personal.

COUNTRY IS ABOVE INDIVIDUAL

Senators Believe Safety on Nation Higher than Petty Profit In Politics.

Washington, August 12.—A new argument in favor of accepting the league of nations and all other features of the peace treaty without any change is now being advanced by the president in his talks with Senators. This argument is that it would be "humiliating" to have to resubmit the treaty to Germany to get Germany's approval of the changes that might be made in the instrument for the purpose of safeguarding American rights and interests.

While the president is not quoted as saying to whom it would be "humiliating" the inference is that he would regard it as reflecting upon the framers of the treaty and especially upon the American commissioners. The logic of this is, inasmuch as the president took no guidance from the rest of the commissioners, that the making of changes would be regarded as "humiliating" to President Wilson himself.

Senators who are opposed to certain features of the treaty and of the covenant for the league of nations and who believe that the covenant in its present form impairs American rights have not been slow to point out that the rights and interests of the United States are of more importance than the question whether any individual or individuals feel themselves reflected upon or humiliated. According to Senators the President is still insisting that the Senate must accept the treaty just as it has been written.

ANTI-ADMINISTRATION VICTORY IN MISSOURI

President's Friends Fail in Announced Intention to "Get" Senator Reed.

Washington, August 12.—Although Administration Democrats have long been proclaiming that they would get the scalp of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, prominent Democrat who has courageously taken an independent stand with respect to the covenant for the league of nations and who has refused on this and numerous other occasions to take orders from the White House, there is strong evidence to show that Senator Reed has been in line with the views of a majority of his party in his own home State. In a straight out fight in the Democratic State Central Committee of Missouri, the Reed forces won a decisive victory.

Democratic State Chairman Ben M. Neale sought to carry the league issue into the election of a Secretary of the State Central Committee. Mr. Neale favors the stand of the administration as to the covenant and set out to give a black eye to the supporters of Senator Reed. He failed. The Reed men elected Luther Shepherd of Milan, secretary of the State committee and now the scalp of Neal himself is in danger.

THERE ARE PLENTY OF REPUBLICAN PROSPECTS

Washington, August 11.—The poverty-stricken condition of the Democratic party and the wealth of the Republicans in material for the making of presidents is a condition which must impress the minds of the American people. Wilson and McAdoo constitute the sole reliance of the Democrats. None other is even mentioned as a possible nominee of the Democratic Convention in 19[illegible] has already been repudi[illegible] the people, in the answer to his challenge at the polls in November, 1918. The other wrote his own brief obituary when he resigned the Dictatorship of railroads after involving the transportation systems of the country in the worst financial difficulties imaginable.

How much more fortunate is the Republican party. It has an abundance of tried and approved material from which to select. Considering first the men who are mentioned frequently and who have had the approval of popular votes, we have the following naming them alphabetically:

Borah of Idaho, three times elected to the Senate and an outspoken defender of American nationalism.

Capper of Kansas, twice elected Governor of his state and in 1918 elected Senator by a vote of nearly two to one over the man supported by President Wilson.

Cummins of Iowa, who served in the state legislature and the governorship and was three times elected to a seat in the Senate. A long-time student of transportation problems.

Harding of Ohio, twice elected to the state Senate, to the lieutenant governorship and further approved by election to the United States Senate in 1914.

Johnson of Callifornia, twice elected governor of his state and sent to the Senate by an overwhelming plurality in 1916.

Kellogg of Minnesota, known as the trust-buster, elected to the Senate in 1916, when the "kept-us-out-of-war" camouflage prevented a complete Republican victory.

Knox of Pennsylvania, Attorney General under McKinley and Roosevelt, once appointed and twice elected by the legislature to serve in the Senate, Secretary of State under Taft, and elected by popular vote to serve a third term in the Senate.

Lenroot of Wisconsin, three times elected to the State legislature, five times to the House, and then promoted to the Senate as a recognition of faithful service.

Lowden of Illinois, three times elected a member of the House of Representatives and his record approved by election to the Governorship.

Poindexter of Washington, elected prosecuting attorney, later elected to a superior judgeship, thence sent to the House of Representatives and further approved by election to the Senate. Made the first speech in the Senate against the league of nations.

Watson of Indiana, six times elected to the House of Representatives and elected to the Senate in 1916 when all the power of the administration was exerted in behalf of his opponent, Senator Thomas Taggart.

All the foregoing are men whose names are frequently mentioned in political discussion. To the list might well be added a number of members of the House whose repeated endorsements at home and whose long legislative experience fits them for governmental duties of even broader range. Among the men of long service whose present work brings them into prominence are Speaker Gillett, Mondell of Wyoming, floor leader; Fordney of Michigan, of the Ways and Means Committee; Esch of Wisconsin, of the Interstate Commerce Committee.

[We wish our Washington correspondent would tell us which of the above list would duck to the Catholics if elected. We shall demand a little light on that phase of the subject.—Editor.]

WILSON LOSING HIS FAVOR IN THE WEST

CHAIRMAN CUMMINGS FINDS WESTERN ATTITUDE NOT FAVORABLE TOWARD PRESIDENT.

Washington, August 11.—President Wilson is receiving adivces from his political [illegible] bassy which has been touring [illegible] west headed by National [illegible]man Homer S. Cummings, to the effect that all is not well in many of the states of the middle west, the north-west and the far west. The National Chairman has made his report to the White House and even pro-administration spokesmen have been unable to conceal the fact that the report was of a pessimistic character. Mr. Cummings himself although he seeks to portray that the country is overwhelmingly with the president in favor of the league covenant and peace treaty, is unable to hide the fact that there is deep dissatisfaction among the public because the administration has been devoting the last seven or eight months to foreign affairs and has been giving no attention to domestic matters. He admits the public is deeply dissatisfied over the high cost of living.

Profound dissatisfaction with the administration has been found to exist in the States through which Mr. Cummings and his political commissioners have been traveling. Altogether, Mr. Cummings, assessment of public sentiment is not of such a character as to add to the joy of life at the White House.

WILD CAT STILL CAPTURED BY SHERIFF GORE AND OFF. PITTS

Pate Arledge Arrested in Connection with the Operation; Others Make Their Get Away.

After a two days and nights patrol of the mountains of Waxahatchie in Stumps Hills Sheriff Gore and Revenue Officer Pitts last Friday bagged a big wild cat still and arrested Pate Arledge in connection with its operation. There were some four or five others in the gang but they all escaped but Arledge.

The outfit was being put up and prepared for operation, and the officers were lying in wait till the work got under headway. Plans were laid for capturing the whole gang when they got in operation.

But Arledge, the man who was captured was acting as sentinel for the others and was walking around the still at a distance of about two hundred yards with a shot gun. His purpose was to prevent officers from disturbing the operation. As he was on his post he walked straight into the muzzle of Sheriff Gore's shot gun. When Arledge saw that he was in the power of the Sheriff he began talking so loud that the others heard him. They knew something had gone wrong and fled before the officers had time to surround them.

The scene of the raid was about two miles from the steel bridge over Waxahatchie. The forty gallon copper still was brought to Clanton and eight fermenters filled with beer ready to run were destroyed on the scene. Arledge was carried to Montgomery by Officer Pitts. He will have to answer his charge in both the federal and county courts.

MORE DISCRIMINATION

How the Railroad Administration is lowering rates on imported goods, and to the injury of railroads, revenues were set forth by Representative Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the ways and means committee in a recent speech in the House. Mr. Fordney declared that through the president orders had been issued putting into effect freight rates on imported goods that amounted to a gross discriminaion against American industry, American manufacturers, and American farmers.

Mr. Fordney quoted a number of the rates named in the order of the railroad administration to which he alluded.

Odd Fellows Fall Into the Snare; An Unthoughtful Act.

One of the greatest faults, or weaknesses we had better say, of the human being is that his mind is more orl ess prone to travel in a path some other mind has previously made. Too many of us would consent to do this rather than risk our own intellectual genius, and set sail upon seas of thought yet undiscovered. We are too much like a flock of sheep blindly following the leader, with no thought as to where we shall end the journey. The weary traveler, foot-sore and tired, can be easily drawn into delusion by the beaten pathway, rather than to face the hardships of an unmarked trail across the hills and valleys.

The Odd Fellows Convention in Birmingham last week displayed just the very weaknesses that are mentioned above when that body adopted a resolution endorsing the League of Nations. They might be excused for endorsing the league, but they went further than that and expressly approved of Mr. Wilson's acts as president, and of the acts of Mr. Taft in aiding the President in his league schemes, championing the league.

The resolution states that in behalf of a world-wide fraternity, for which the Odd Fellows stand, endorsement is given the world league of nations and so on. Now the Odd Fellows believe in a world-wide fraternity all right, and their principles for attaining this purpose are very broad and elevating. We have never seen anything in those principles that indicates the espousal of such projects as the league of nations. And it is furthermore alien to the principles of Odd Fellowship to pick up the dirty escutcheon of politics to the extremity of endorsing Wilson and Taft in their high-handed political manouvers behind the screen of the proposed league of nations.

Stop with us just a minute and let us think. We will trace the limits of the resolution referred to and see what it commits its executors to so far as the league of nations is applied therein.

First, we will say that if the Odd Fellows stand for anything they stand unqualifiedly for the preservation of our American institutions through the perpetuation of those sacred principles upon which the great superstructure of brotherly love is so nobly builded, and exemplification of same in the sanctity of the family home. Those ideas beget the purest patriotic American motives, and they are indelibly stamped upon the hearts of true Odd Fellows.

Now, how does the various applications of the world league relate to this policy of Americanism? The fraternity spirit of Odd Fellows does not bind us to an endorsement of the principles of autocracy and world dominion which the league of nations premeditatedly outlines and delivers over to the Pope of Rome and his minions in America. And it is our opinion that a resolution which commits Odd Fellows in Alabama to such a policy does not truly represent the minds of all who are connected by the three links.

How are the Odd Fellows or anybody else as for that matter, going to be Americans first and then endorse a world-wide scheme of internationalism that throws us into a mele of uncertain conditions and wipes out America's distinction among the nations of the world; that does away with our Monroe Doctrine, that national policy that has gone down in our history as the savior not only of America but the entire Western Hemisphere from the dangerous entanglements of European muddles; that commits us to a policy that would take our armies to any part of the world on any pretext whatsoever, without giving to our Congress its constitutional right to consider questions that tend to involve his country into war.

And then, just think what is meant by such a blanket endorsement of Mr. Wilson's acts as president of the U. S. A. Don't you know that such an idea is not a true expression of the men who compose the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in Alabama?

Do the Odd Fellows endorse Mr. Wilson's visit to the Vatican in Rome when he secretly locked himself in the holy chamber with Pope Benedict and got his orders about how to fix the league. That resolution says they endorse this.

Do Odd Fellows endorse the recognition of Rome at the peace conference when no other religious sect was given official seat there? The resolution said they endorse this, for Mr. Wilson did not oppose it.

But now we come to the shame of it all. We hesitate to mention this next phase of the matter, for it will bring a blush of shame to the face of every Odd Fellow in Alabama. Do Odd Fellows endorse Mr. Wilson's war policy that excluded them from activity among our boys in the cantonments, when the insult was hurled into the faces of Odd Fellows and Masons that the privilege of such activity was reserved for the Catholic Knights of Columbus?

Think of that a moment, Brother Odd Fellow. Mr. Wilson told you flatly that you could not go among our soldier boys in the camps and teach them your beautiful lessons of David and Jonathan. You should not have the opportunity of impressing them with the spirit of the Good Samaritan. No. That would not be allowed. Those boys were to be taught by the K. of C. that the word of the Pope was the divine law, reigning above the power of all things both temporal and spiritual. Listen, Odd Fellows, you know that when Wilson did that one thing he spat in your honest faces. Yet you come up now wiping his slime out of your eyes and send him a resolution endorsing what he did. Think of it for a moment, will you please?

Do Odd Fellows endorse all this stuff and much more that we could mention? We answer that they do not. They are too much American to do it. Then why this resolution that was adopted at the Birmingham convention?

Just as we said in the beginning. A case of traveling in the rut that was made by somebody else. Somebody popped up and offered the resolution there because a similar one had been adopted by the Alabama Legislature, the Alabama Press Association, the American Federation of Know Nothings and the Possum Ridge Boys Pig Club. When he sprung it no one would dare spoil the end of a perfect day by raising objections and so here she went right on down the road in the same old rut. We venture this resolution which the papers reported as unanimous in the convention does not represent the individual minds of one-tenth of the men who sat there and let it pass.

Those Americans who composed that convention should have risen up in arms against that resolution and killed it dead on the floor and stamped it under their feet. Those fellows at Washington should be made to feel the current of Americanism that swells the veins of patriots with indignance at the hob-nobbing around the corners with the Catholics. How are we ever to stop it unless we let them know that we oppose it? And how shall we make them know we oppose their methods as long as we allow such lying resolutions to go to them with our endorsement stamped "unanimous" thereon, when as a matter of fact our heartfelt sentiments are the exact opposite?

Any man who sat in that hall and allowed such a resolution to pass without his open protest would have no right to kick if Wilson were to issue an edict closing every Odd Fellow Lodge in America, and turning the keys over to the Knights of Columbus.

The Alabama Legislature is afraid to place the duty of property valuations on the Tax Assessors of the state; and what do you suppose is their reason for such fear? Here is what they give as their reasons, but it is mighty thin kind of reason. They say the Tax Assessors being elective officers, will be influenced by politics and not make fair valuations. Almost all the Tax Assessors in Alabama are what we call Democrats and nearly all the members of the Legislature are of the same species of political animals. Looks funny then that the Democratic legislature is afraid of the Democratic Tax Assessors of Alabama, don't it? Here is the main thorn in the flesh. If the boards of equaliaztion are abolished, and tax valuationns put in the hands of the Tax Assessors, it will mean a gret reduction in the number of officers in Alabama; and you know it is strictly against the policy of governmental bodies to reduce the number of salary grabbers in this latter period of progress in the world. The idea on the other hand is to increase the number of pilferers in the public till.

The Alabama Legislature does not want to abolish the jury commission system in this state. They say that there are four or five counties that have Republican county commissioners. They had rather have the State pension three deserving Democrats in each county to pollute the jury boxes than to see half a dozen counties draw their juries through Republican courts of County Commissioners. Now ain't it a dandy come-off? Some economy in that, ain't it? Yet such is the gauge of Alabama's Democratic law-makers.

We know at heart the Odd Fellows of Alabama are American and for American principles and American institutions. Then how are they going to stand up for the great Democratic leader who has been running things in this country after the manner outlined by the Pope? How are they going to be for Americanism and Wilson when he keeps a Roman Jesuit as his private secretary, this Jesuit being bound by an oath to the Pope that is traitorous to anything and everything that is American?

A number of the Chilton County boys will be glad to hear of the election of Capt. King Swope to Conngress from the Eighth District of Kentucky. Capt. Swope was our Commanding Officer while we were in training at Camp Hancock, Ga., last year. He is a splendid young man who has risen high in the world by rigid devotion to duty in every phase of life. We shall watch his progress in Congress with much interest and high hopes for his success.

This State had just as well wipe off the slate and start to figuring all over again, so far as effective government is concerned. We will never get anywhere under the present regime. Four years ago we never would have believed any crowd could make a bigger mess of the State than Henderson and his gang were doing. But now Kilby and his followers are producing bigger headlines in the papers than ever did Henderson or even O'Neal. Lacy did go ahead of them, though in his pine box episode. The friends of Kilby are rising up against him, and it begins to look like the present legislature will result in an absolute farce comedy. If the entire fold has turned to black sheep, what in the heck is to become of our dear Alabama?

The League of Nations is like the Democratic National Platform of 1916, guaranteed to keep us out of war. And just look at the suckers who are still biting at the old bait. You remember these familiar sweet words that captivated the women who didn't raise their boys to be soldiers: "Wilson and peace with honor; Hughes with Roosevelt and war. If you want war vote for Hughes; if you want peace vote for Wilson." Yes, the league of nations will keep us out of war, but to make assurance doubly sure Pacifist Newt Baker recommends to Congress an army with a war strength of a million and a quarter.

A great deal of interest has been exhibited among Clanton people this week in the X-Ray machine which has been installed by Dr. Gragg and Dr. Marcus in the Clanton Infirmary. This is a distinct innovation for Clanton, and people here are proud to see these two progressive doctors taking such an advanced step to meet the demands of our town. Several experimental views have been made by the machine on different people who did not mind showing what they had inside of them; among them was a view of Fenn Jones' heart. Yes, he has actually got a heart, girls. Dr. Gragg saw it with his own eyes.

You don't hear the Democratic dailies in Alabama saying much about how the Republican candidate for Congress in the Eighth Kentucky District beat his Democratic opponent on the League of Nations issue. The truth of it is that those guys who have been spreading the "pro-league pizen" in their sheets are scared in an inch of their lives for fear that Kennemar is going to leave Brat Rainey out in the cold in the Seventh Alabama District just as King Swope did old Judge Hardin in Kentucky. We hope to see their fears materializing on the day of the election.

The people of this country have endured a severe attack of Roman Catholic political manipulation under Wilson's administration. But our long suffering and forbearance for this kind of stuff is reaching its climax very rapidly. The situation is very appropriately summed up by the Menace in these words: "Any party that deliberately and openly loads its national ticket with popery next year will commit political suicide. Either party that offers a clean ticket and platform will carry the election with a million votes to spare; and if both parties defile themselves with the mother of political harlots and abominations of the earth, the people will take matters into their own hands and place a ticket in the field worthy of patriotic support."

Let us make up our minds now that no hyphenated American, no matter what word he has on the hither side of the hyphen, shall be elected to any office in the United States hereafter. The man who can't drop the qualification of his Americanism is not a good enough American to be placed in any position of trust.

Do not make the mistake of accepting Democratic propaganda for public sentiment. The two are vastly different and very far apart. Democratic propaganda would have you believe that to oppose the Wilson administration is to flirt with the political undertaker. But public sentiment says to the discard with Wilson and his gang no matter what follows.

Governor Kilby has started something with the Alabama Coal Mine Operators. They have got to calling one another names that sound rather irate. The trouble is that Kilby has got after the same thing for the state that the coal men have been and are yet after for themselves—money.

What is the matter with Clanton's post master problem up at Washington? Must be that the civil service reports and political records are out of harmony. It makes it awfully hard for some congressmen when a deserving political friend fails to go ahead of a political enemy on the civil service examination. Seems to get matters complitaced, and delays action somewhat. Now, don't it? But we never dreamed that such a thing would cause any worry to our Representative.

An American ship was reported as entering an English port, flying the colors of the Irish Sinn Feiners with Old Glory. But of course it is denied through Catholic press reports that there is no ship by that particular name in the United States service. Catholics are mighty particular about names in their arguments. They did not deny that the ship spoken of was flying the stars and stripes alongside of the bloody rag of the Irish Catholics (the latter above we presume.) They only denied the name of the vessel. They never denied the things that have been alleged to have been said in the national Catholic Register. They only said there was no such paper.

Appalling Price America Would Pay If the League of Nations is Ratified

One of the most concise treatises upon the League of Nations that we have seen was read into the Congressional Record last Thursday by Senator Brandegee of Connecticut. It is an elaboration by William George Jordan, entitled "Forty-one Points of Vagueness, Danger, Ambiguity, Impractibility and Weakness of the Covenant of the League." The last one of the forty-one points seems to us especially concise in its summary effect. It is entitled, "Appalling Price America Would Pay were she to Ratify this Covenant.' It is reproduced in full below:

"For more than 130 years the United States has been independent as a Nation. She has grown powerful, prosperous and influential as a union of free people. With the courage and pride of her individuality she has been working out her own destiny in her own way, neither interfering with the rights of other nations nor tolerating interference with rights exclusively her own. She has not lived a life of selfish isolation, but has offered an asylum for the poor and oppressed of all peoples and her hand and her wealth have ever been ready at the call of every great human need abroad as truly as at home. She has become a world power because she has not sought world power. Whatever she has been her voluntary act performed in accord with her national conscience, which has been kept at home, not put into pawn to any foreign power nor any syndicate of powers.

"But now we are asked to change all this. We are asked to trade the Aladdin's lamp of our nationalism which has proved to be such treasure for a newfangled contraption of a cheap, hastily-constructed, foreign-made lamp of internationalism. For a tried, tested, and true reality we are urged to substitute a dream. For a rich and certain estate now in our hands we are asked to accept the blue prints of some imaginary city of wondrous glory. For our birthright of freedom and independent government they want us take the mess of pottage of this paper scheme of slavery to nine men in Geneva. Let America's answer be brief and final: 'Gentlemen we have studied your elaborate prospectus, but we do not like it, and we decline to invest.'

"We are to sit with eight other men as a super-Government, meddling in the affairs of all nations, passing judgment with the finality of suddenly acquired omniscence on the disputes of all, acting as arbiter of the morals of all, constituting ourselves trustees of the destinies of the world. Has America made such an astounding success of her own problems in the past? Has she mastered the appalling problems that confront us at home at this very hour? Has she, with such infinite wisdom, guided chaotic Mexico into ways of good government that we are now sublimely equipped to join in the 'benevolent' autocracy of the whole world?

"Let us look the facts coldly, clearly and calmly squarely in the face. Europe does not want the United States just for ourselves, through her deep affection for us, she wants us for our money, our men, our ships, our initiative, our infinite resources. There are those that try to seduce us with the alluring and deceptive cry that 'America must take her part in the affairs of the world.' Yes; but America must be her own judge of what she will do, where she will do it, when she will do it and how she will do it. It must be by her voluntary act; she must be moved and inspired from within, not dictated to, directed, and controled from without; she must play the game herself, not become a mere pawn on the hands of other players.

"Article 16 says: 'The members of the league agree further that they will mutually support one another in the financial and economic measures, etc.' With Europe on the verge of bankruptcy and starvation what would this mean? It would mean that the United States would pay not only her own share but that of many other States, who either could not nor would not put up their quota. It reads smoothly enough on paper, but we had one domestic experience that should prove iluminating. At the time of the American Revolution every State was pledged to do its part and to furnish its quota of force and money, but many States failed to make good, and the burden fell on the others. A similar situation occurred in our War of 1812, when the States of New England refused to put their State troops at the disposal of the Federal Government. Yet we are asked to depend absolutely on the myriad promises, stated and implied, in this covenant.

"America has, in all the multiform activities of the league, the least to gain from every point of view that can be considered. If the United States ratified this covenant she would fulfill her pledges. Her very earnestness and enthusiasm would inspire other nations to hold back; America would be willing to do her part, and other nations would permit her to do her part—and theirs too. 'Let George do it,' has its international as well as its social application. Are we so anxious to assume the role of pulling the European chestnuts out of the fire that we will accept the singeing that is guaranteed and that is inevitable?

"Were the United States to enter this league it would soon become the most cordially hated nation in the world. Our very power would generate jealousies and envies; we would be severely criticized and condemned alike for what we would do or leave undone. For every failure we would be blamed, yet in every emergency we would be called on for money, men, or other resources. This tendency has already manifested itself with many of the powers; from suspicion, doubt, and fear it is but a short step to hate. If we throw ourselves headlong into this maze of intrigue, diplomacy and international problems we shall deserve all we get. As the separate points of this dissection and analysis of this covenant are studied, and when all the strong point made by others are considered, the question no longer is: 'What satisfactory reasons can be given why America should not go into this league?' but 'What one real satisfying reason can be given why she should go in?'"

A Great Remedy.

The merits of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy are well known and appreciated, but there is occasionally a man who had no acquaintance with them and should read the following, by F. H Dear, a hotel man of Dupuyer, Mont. "Four years ago I used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy with such wonderful results that I have since recommended it to my friends."

Discrimination In Buying

Every thoughtful housewife has long since learned the advisability of purchasing only standard goods of established merit.

She knows, for instance, that all advertised food products of national distribution must of necessity conform to pure food laws, not only those of her own State, but also must be in conformity with the Federal Food Laws.

In short, the label required by pure food laws has prevented fraudulent substitution and the use of unwholesome material, due to the fact that the intelligent American housewife reads the label.

Unfortunately, however, there are some food products now on the market in various sections of the country to which our protective labeling laws have not sufficiently applied, and in such cases the housewife is naturally left in the dark. Take for instance, so-called Self-Rising Flours; there are no laws requiring the label on these flours to name the ingredients. These are still bought blindly without knowledge of the ingredients, for the reason that these mixtures seem never to have been subjected to the same label requirements as other mixed food products. One is unable to determine from the label of any sack or package of Self Rising Flour what the quality of the flour is or what other ingredients are mixed in with it.

However, the housewife can easily become thoroughly informed about most products and, by a process of careful selection of such products, safeguard health and make pure food legislation effective.

DISAGREE WITH VIEW OF WAR DEPARTMENT

Republicans of Committee on Foreign Affairs Desire Return of Dead Soldiers.

Washington, Aug. 11.—It is the belief of Chairman Porter and other members of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, which has been investigating the question of bringing the American soldier dead back to this country for final burial, that with the return of the last American troop from France there should be no obstacle to bringing this about.

It has been the contention of the War Departments that since France was seeking to discourage all such movements, because of the long period of renewal gloom a wholesale disinterment of soldier remains would cast upon that country, The suggestion should not be encouraged in the United States. General March, chief of Staff, said that France had already declined to permit England and Italy and even its own citizens to remove their dead for a period of three years and that it would be embarassing to France if the United States should insist upon the privilege. It was developed, however, in the hearings, that France and the United States had agreed between themselves that no bodies should be returned to the United States "before the end of the war," and Chairman Porter has taken the position that this implies the right to do so after the war, and that other nations could not object to the United States removing its dead.

The war department officials informed the committee that about 70,000 nearest relatives of deceased soldiers had been asked as to their desires in the matter, and that 35,000 had requested the return of the remains, 10,000 had favored letting them rest in France, and the others had made no response.

In every home where there is a baby there should also be a bottle of McGEE'S BABY ELEXIR. It may be needed at any time to correct sour stomach, wind colic, diarrhoea or summer complaint. It is a wholesome remedy, contains no opium morphene or injurious drug of any kind. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

WEST CHILTON

J. S. Edwards, one of the old time Clanton lawyers—when a brick building in Clanton was not dreamed of—when the virgin pines were growing around where the handsome Banner office now stands; when if a man wanted office he had to hunt the voters up and tell them he was running for the office, no newspaper in Clanton then,—in defending a client in the western part of the county in the quiet times of 1879, said to the Jury after his opponent had delivered a lengthy address: "This opponent reminds me of the young man that wanted to marry a girl who could prepare a meal of nothing."

So, if we give the Banner readers anything of interest this week it will be out of nothing.

Manly and Eddie Atchison made an extended visit to Shelby last week.

Mrs. Mary Gibbons of Mississippi is visiting relatives here.

Mr. L. G. Posey has his home nicely lighted with carbide lights.

Cleveland Martin and Floyd Nix recently visited Golden Ridge. Floyd has just added a new buggy to his possessions.

Miss Jewel Hays is spending some time with the family of Lon Brown.

The cemetery at Macedonia was nicely cleaned off last week. It is an old burying ground dating from 1857.

Hardy and Bessie Waldrup, Misses Tempie and Bevie Smith, Miss Alice Posey and Cleveland Martin, attended singing at Mars Hill Sunday.

Miss Etha Nix is teaching a summer school at Macedonia.

Several of the young people attended church at Free Springs Sunday night.

Mr. N. Posey's little child has been quite sick but is now better.

It seems before we can have the league of nations certain reservations must be recognized and should be.

How about falling prices? We hear the distant rumbling of that event. Ah, we fear they will not let us down easy.

SOME NOTES ABOUT THE CHILTON CO. HIGH SCHOOL

Prof. C. V. Thompson, the new principal of the Chilton County High School has gotten his permanent location in Clanton all completed and is pushing the arrangements for opening of the school on Wednesday, September 3rd.

The following members of the faculty have been selected:

Mr. H. L. Holmes, teacher of Science, Manual Training and Athletics; Miss Georgia Williamson, teacher of Home Economics, Latin and Athletics; Miss Lucile McDaniel, piano; Prof. Thompson will teach mathematics. These teachers with others to be supplied later, will report here for duty in due time.

Entrance Examinations.

Monday and Tuesday, September 1 and 2 are set apart for the examination and classification of students. No class work will be done on these days. All students who expect to matriculate at the opening or later should present themselves for classification at this time. Examinations will be given on Monday to all students who do not hold valid certificates of promotion. These examinations can not be held at a later date. Students who enter later are almost sure to have trouble to enter desired grades if these examinations are neglected. Certificates must be presented to avoid the examinations. Students who do not have to take the examinations should come on one of these days to discuss their record and secure classification. Parents are not desired on Monday and Tuesday, but Wednesday is special day for parents.

Wednesday, September 3 is for the general public. It is hoped that the auditorium will be full. Parents and all interested citizens should attend this exercise from 9 o'clock to 11 o'clock, a.m. There will be music, recitations and decorations. Prominent speakers will address the meeting, the teachers will be introduced and the new principal will set forth his policy.

Athletics.

Special coaches have been selected to direct the play activities of both boys and girls. They will be organized into athletic associations and drilled in team work preparatory to meeting other schools in match games etc. Upon entering these associations they will pledge themselves to be honorable and to abstain from tobacco, profanity and obscene language.

General.

1. All fees are payable in advance upon entrance, and are for the whole or any part of a semester. Under no condition are these fees to be refunded.

2. A report showing the standing and grade of each student will be sent to the parents at the close of each month.

3. All students will be given promotion certificates at commencement. Honors and medals for the session will also eb awarded at this time.

4. A student may be demoted at any time for failure to do the work required for the grade.

5. The schedule will be arranged to accommodate students who come on trains.

6. Music, art and elocution are the only subjects that will be given outside the regular course of study. Every student must take all the work for his grade.

7. Students will not be permitted to attempt to make up more than one condition.

8. A student who has two or more conditions has failed to pass off his grade.

9. No entrance examination will be given to pass off conditions unless the student has studied the subject under a coach since his original failure.

10. The course of study is planned to require 180 days for the normal student. Few can do the work in less time.

If your child is pale and sickly, picks at the nose, starts in the sleep and grinds the teeth while sleeping, it is a sure sign of worms. A remedy for these parasites will be found in WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE. It not only clears out the worms, but it restores health and cheerfulness. Is sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

REPUBLICANS PLAN FIGHT IN SEVENTH ALA. DISTRICT

Special Election to See Hot Battle For Congressional Seat.

Washington, August 9.—Encouraged by their success in electing their candidate for Congress in the Eighth District of Kentucky last week to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Representative Harvey Helm, members of the Republican National Committee, are understood to be extending all the aid possible to the Republican candidate in the Seventh Alabama District. In what shape this assistance is to be rendered is not divulged, but for some days it has been common talk among Republicans on Capitol Hill that they are hoping to defeat the Democratic candidate in the Seventh Alabama at the special election to be held to fill the vacancy in the House caused by the death of Representative John L. Burnett.

The Seventh is the only one of the Alabama districts in which the Republicans have in 20 years or more had even a slight chance of winning a congressional seat. Mr. Burnett carried the distract eleven successive times, but in two or three of the memorable contests he had with the Republicans it will be recalled that his majorities were too small to be comfortable.

Members of the Alabama delegation in the House do not appear to think the Republican candidate in the Seventh district can defeat the Democratic nominee, but it is understood they have been advising the local leaders to take no chances, for there is no telling what aid will be extended the opposition by the Republican and the Republican Congressional Committees, two rather resourceful organizations exceedingly anxious to capture another district in a Southern State.

The result in the Eighth Kentucky District has caused a lot of crowing among Republican senators and representatives. A hitherto reliable Democratic district for 25 years or more is to be represented in the House during the present congress by a Republican whose majority over the Democratic candidate was about 2,100. The late Representative Helm carried the distract at the November election last year by 1,650, which was much below the normal Democratic majority.

The keen disappointment for the Democrats is that King Swope, the soldier candidate, defeated for congress none other than Judge Hardin, chairman of the Kentucky State Democratic Committee. It has been supposed that Judge Hardin would have a walkover in a district that was represented for many years in the House by the late James B. McCreary, twice governor of the state, and who also served a full term in the United States Senate.

Swope was a private soldier in France and returned from overseas service only a few months ago. He made opposition to the proposed league of nations the main issue in his campaign. Swope is only 27 years old and will be the "kid" member in this Congress.

CULP - POOLE WEDDING

An occasion of much interest last Sunday afternoon was the uniting in matrimony of two distinguished young people of the Shiloh Community. The groom was Mr. Sam Culp, son of Enoch Culp who lives near Mt. Nebo, and the beautiful bride was Miss Mae Poole, daughter of Mr. John Poole.

The sacred bonds were carefully and appropriately administered by Rev. Will Cox at the home of the bride. Quite a number of the relatives and friends of the happy couple were present to share with them in their blissful occasion, which was carried out very nicely.

We join with hosts of others in wishing them joy and happiness unstinted.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

W. M. Merchant of Jemison was a visitor toC lanton on Tuesday.

E. D. Hand of Route 2 was in Clanton Tuesday.

Jim Parrish of Birmingham spent Sunday in Clanton.

Miss Bettie Morris Gardner, Southern Bell Telephone Operator at Clanton spent Sunday with her parents at Verbena.

W. E. Robinson of Birmingham spent a few days this week on a visit to relatives near Clanton. Mr. Robinson is a clerk in the Birmingham postoffice.

Will DeShazo brought the Union-Banner another watermelon Tuesday, but we are not going to say anything about it. He may get tired of having his name in the paper so much.

Architect Lockwood was in Clanton Monday on business connected with the building of the court house.

W. J. Headley of Route 5 visited The Union-Banner Saturday.

James Baker of Route 2 was in Clanton Saturday after a load of brick. He got his brick from the Jones Hardware Company and subscribed to the Union-Banner for another year.

T. C. Jones of Mulberry decided Saturday that he had one tooth too many. He visited Dr. Crumpton's and had the surplus one removed.

LOST—Blue Serge Coat, between Clanton and Green Foshee's; finder please return to J. W. WOOD, Clanton, Route 6, and get reward.

Prof. J. L. Johnson and Hon. J. B. Atkinson are in charge of a large crowd of young boys of Clanton on a camp at Mineral Springs this week. We predict a grand time for the party.

Rev. M. J. Parrish was in Clanton Saturday. He says he keeps busy now holding protracted meetings at his churches. This time of the year is the busy season with our country preachers. Protracted meetings work quite a strain on them through the hot summer months and our people should appreciate their work more than they do.

According to Tax Assessor J. N. Dennis, Mr. J. M. Grant of the County Equalization Board can raise other things besides taxes. And the editor can testify the truthfulness of that decision. Mr. Grant can raise watermelons too. He brought to Clanton Saturday one of the finest Mitchells we ever saw. It was sliced in the tax office and provided a fill for half a dozen of Mr. Grant's friends. But you know it is always the biggest fish that gets away. Mr. Grant said he had some at home bigger than the one he brought to Clanton.

PATRIOTIC APPEAL FOR COUNTY ROADS

A WORTH-WHILE LETTER TO THE PEOPLE FROM MR. F. A. GULLEDGE OF VERBENA.

I write once more in the interest of good people, good government, and at this time especially for good roads.

In these parts, and I hear it is so all over Chilton County, all sorts of excuses and objections are offered against our present county road law. Why this? Why not let us all join in, take our road tools, good teams and good time, go out early and work dilligently all day or days, till all our roads are in good fix; then keep on in their up-keep?

It appears Judge Reynolds and our County Board have done all they could. They have no money. We can all do without anything better than good roads. Duty to public roads is one all should feel vitally interested in; and why? Men of all classes should join the forces willingly, whether subject to road duty or not. If I considered myself so and wanted to be called a citizen, I would not ask exemption from road duty. From 14 to 45 I escaped two workings only—one the day my second child was born, the other from a rhumatic attack in 1880.

I still work or have it done. Since I came to Chilton County I have purchased more than $100 worth of tools to my tenants. I have kept up one piece of road (hard to keep up) 3-4 of a mile long, for 25 years with just a little help on the side.

Come men, with your teams, men and money, and let us build good roads then keep them so. Stop your bickerings. Let all assume and do their full duty, and they will soon see their reward. A man who is able and does hard work for himself or for others has no legal or moral right to exemption from road duty. And the county examing board should base their decision on this fact and not on the petty excuses offered for exemption. The Judge of Probate, as I understand, Section 6 of our road law, has the last say so, and he too should stand right up to his duty to the public. Then each hand or boy-citizen has a duty to perform, viz: to help list all who are subject: then help look after the time put in on the road, and finally, the character of work done.

It is everybody's business to see the roads are properly worked that our time and efforts may be conserved.

Yours truly,
F. A. GULLEDGE.

Verbena, Ala., Aug. 12, 1919.

Mr. Albert Thomas, a prominent citizen of Coosa County, has been in Clanton this week looking for a farm location that suits him. He has sold out his property holdings in Coosa County and contemplates locating near Clanton in order to take advantage of our school facilities for his children. Mr. Thomas, like many others of our citizens who have come from Coosa, is a splendid man. We would be mighty glad to have him live in our county. He would be a very valuable asset to any community.

To Our Customers & Friends:

You, Mothers and Fathers, know how hard Children are on shoes; and yet, very often, the child is blamed for wearing out the shoes too quickly, when the shoes themselves are really too poor to stand the wear an active child will give them.

You would not spend your money for some shoes if you could cut them open and see what is inside of them. A solid leather sole, if properly made, wears longer, holds its shape longer and in every way is a better shoe than one in which substitutes for leather are used. Do not buy shoes without having an opportunity to see the shoes themselves; and then study their quality and construction.

When you buy "Star Brand" Shoes from us, you not only see the shoes but can also see a shoe that has been cut open.

"Star Brand" Shoes for children are attractive in appearance and made to permit the proper development of the child's feet. Best of all they are right in price.

You will need more shoes very soon. Come in and examine our full line of children's shoes.

Is Relieved of an Awful Backache

This Mobile Man had bad Kidney Effection, which made him get up Five or Six times every night.

Knee joints swollen.

"My knee joints were swollen up, and the pain was almost unbearable, and I believe I had thumatism in every joint," writes Mr. Henry Schulte of 550 Franklin St., Mobile, Ala.

"My kidneys caused much trouble, as I'd have to get up every night five and six times. All this has been stopped since I took Dreco.

Sometimes my back ached so bad it felt like I was being bent over backwards; I was so bilious that my head ached. I'd get dizzy and had a foul taste in my mouth every morning.

Dreco sure did get after my sickness in a hurry; for I'm entirely relieved now; never have a pain in my back; the swelling in my knees is all gone; no more dizzy spells to bother me; in fact, I call myself entirely over the trouble. What Dreco can do for me, it can do for others, so I strongly advise sufferers to give Dreco a chance."

Dreco is made from the juices of twelve different herbs, roots, barks and berries, which act directly on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder, and tend to relieve constipation, head aches, rhumatism, catarrh, biliousness dizzy spells, heart fluttering, gas on the stomach and other troubles.

All good druggists now sell Dreco, and it is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

MARS HILL

Editor Union-Banner.

Please allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words in regards to this community.

Health here at this place is just fine, everybody seeming to have a pleasant time. Sunday School and Singing not improving like we would like for it to. Come on all you Sunday School workers, let's begin to cheer up old Mars Hill again.

Our Revival Meeting begins here at this place the Fourth Sunday in this month. We expect some good behaviour and good preaching.

The singing at this place Sunday afternoon was very good considering the congregation.

Mr. Yymon Foshee came from Brompton, the latter part of last week.

We must have good behavior during our meeting. Hope we will have a great success.

School at this place is getting along fine with the two teachers.

Miss Almeda Clayton, one of our teachers, came out to church Sunday. Come everybody that will, and let's have a glorious meeting.

With many wishes to the Union-Banner.

ALRED-HIGGINS WEDDING

Marriage license were issued in Montgomery this week to D. C. Alred and Hattie G. Higgins of Clanton, according to the Montgomery Advertiser of Wednesday. The contracting parties in the marriage are two very prominent people of our city. Their many friends here wish them a successful and happy married life.

William J. Billingsley of Thorsby was here Saturday. He handed us a notice to publish in regard to the revival services soon to be held at Thorsby Baptist Church. Mr. Billingsley stated that Rev. J. L. Hand of Newton will assist the pastor in the services. We wish to urge all who can to attend and hear Bro. Hand preach. We had him with us at Friendship last month. He is a fine preacher.

ALL DAY SINGING AT LIBERTY HILL CHURCH

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in the columns of your paper to say that there will be an all day singing at Liberty Hill Church, four miles west of Clanton. Everybody is invited to come and bring well filled baskets. Carols of Praise and Crowns of Love will be used.

Thought Three Children Needed a Mother's Care

"My stomach suffering was so severe that I could not have lasted very much longer. I did not care so much for myself but did not want to leave my three little children who needed a mother's love and care. A cousin in California wrote me about Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and I took a full course of it. I have since been entirely well." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation which is the cause of practically all stomach, liver and intestinal troubles, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

RECENT CONTESTS SHOW DEMOCRATS DOWN IN THE MOUTH

Results of Congressional Elections Sign Posts of Disaster.

PEOPLE TURN TO REPUBLICANS

Overturning of Democratic Majorities in South and West Significant.

Washington, August 18.—The recent Congressional election in the eighth district which resulted in the election of King Swope, Republican, by a large majority over his Democratic rival, to fill the unexpired term of a late Democratic member, indicacates, to Representative William Rodenberg, of Illinois, that the Democratic prospects for national success in 1920 are at a very low ebb. He said today:

"Taken together with the recent special Congressional election in St. Paul, where the Democrats failed to poll 20 per cent of the votes cast, the special election in Kentucky resulting in the election of a Republican from a district which has always been Democratic heretofore, it is certainly a sign that the Democrats are on the down road, and that they will continue on the road for a long time to come. These two elections are very significant of the trend of public favor toward the Republican party throughout the entire country."

The outcome of these two contests is the more striking in view of the fact that it coincides with the gloomy reports that national chairman Cummings on his return from his trip through the country laid before the president.

ENFORCE THE LAW.

Representative Edmund Platt of New York believes that if the provision in the food control act prohibiting the wilful destruction or deterioration of food stuffs were enforced a long step would be taken toward reducing the high cost of living. To his mind the cold storage of great quantities of food is not of itself a great evil unless its owners hold it until spoiled rather than put it on the market at lower prices.

NOTICE

There will be a Conference Meeting at Union Point Church on the Fifth Sunday in August, at 11:00 o'clock. All come.

SILENCE

Can anyone tell us the time and place when President Wilson ever used the expression, "America, first, last, and all the time?"

Sallow complexion comes from bilious impurities in the blood and the fault lies with the liver and bowels:—they are torpid. The medicine that gives results in such cases is HERBINE. It is fine liver stimulant and bowel regulator. Sold by Upchurch Drug Company.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH NOW WITHOUT A PASTOR

At the regular monthly conference of the Clanton Baptist Church last Sunday the resignation of the pastor, Rev. J. F. Gable was accepted and the church now is without a pastor.

Mr. J. J. Pickens was chosen moderator of the conference in the absence of Rev. Gable, who is away from the city on a month's vacation granted him by the church. The resignation was read in conference by the senior deacon, Mr. John A. Thomas, and accepted by motion duly placed before the body.

Rev. Gable's Resignation.

By request of Rev. Gable, we publish his resignation as read before the conference, as follows:

To the Faithful Members of Clanton Baptist Church, in Regular Conference Assembled, Aug. 17.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

Inasmuch as it seems to be impracticable, with me as your pastor, to carry out the movements planned for the well being and progress of the church when I was called to your pastorate something over two years ago, I therefore, hereby place my resignation of the office before you. As your By-Laws require that 30 days notice be given the church when such action is contemplated by the pastor, I ask that the resignation take effect on the last of September or the first of October, now approaching.

Some very pleasant and cordial personal relations have been established during the period in which we have worked together in the Master's vineyard, and we shall ever recall with gratitude the kindnesses which have been showered upon both my family and myself.

To the Deacons and officers of the Church and Sunday School, I wish also to express my heartfelt appreciation of their fidelity. Real work and noble has been done, sometimes in difficult situations, in meeting financial obligations, but they have practically all been met.

As an assurance to the Church and its officers that their support of the church and its work has not been entirely in vain, so far as the pastor is concerned, I offer herewith a statement of my visible activities during the two years and two months in which I have occupied the office, also some of the results:

Sermons preached in Clanton	178
Sermons preached elsewhere,	82
Total sermons preached,	260
Revival meetings conducted,	7
Converts baptized,	63
Prayer meeting and addresses,	217
Funerals attended,	26
New members, Clanton Church,	92
Received in other places assisted,	61
Total members received,	153

Respetfully Submitted,

JNO. F. GABLE.

After considering other business before the church the question of electing another pastor was raised. A committee of five was appointed to entertain propositions for a pastor and report the same at an adjourned session of the body on next Sunday week. The committee on the matter of the new pastor are, Dr. V. J. Gragg, Chairman; J. Watts Moore, A. N. Miner, D. C. Alred and G. C. Harris.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

Woodrow Wilson, with an immense aggregation of specialists, statisticans and advisers, etc., took months, in cooperation with the repreentatives of other nations, to formulate the treaty of peace. The President has seen fit to withhold from the Senate information regarding the negotiations by which the terms of the treaty were reached. Why, then, expect the Senate, groping in the dark, to determine hastily what course it shall pursue in performing its constitutional duty of ratifying, amending or rejecting?

A. Z. Bean of Route 8 was in the Banner office last Saturday. He said he wanted Will DeShazo to meet him here next Saturday and pay him the "set up" which he promised some time ago.

REPUBLICANISM vs. INTERNATIONALISM

Washington, August 19.—A few people have asserted that the Republican Publicity Association had no authority for the aggressive stand it has taken in opposition to the League of Nations, and, particularly, that it had no authority to assert that the league is a party issue. That criticism of the Publicity Association was based upon the assumption that the party has not spoken on the subject of internationalism. But the party has spoken on the subject of internationalism. The first plank in the National Platform of 1916—the most recent declaration of the party—reads as follows:

"In 1861 the Republican party stood for the Union. As it stood for the union of the States, it now stands for a united people, true to American ideals, loyal to American traditions, knowing no allegiance except to the constitution, to the government, and to the flag of the United States. We believe in American policies at home and abroad."

President Wilson, leader of the Democratic party and chief proponent or the league of nations, admits that the league covenant would require the "supreme sacrifice." This, he says, we must make "at whatever cost of independence."

There is direct conflict between the Republican platform and the declaration of President Wilson. American ideals and American traditions include, if they include anything, avoidance of entangling alliances, maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine, unimpaired continued exercise of our right to control immigration, and unquestioned power to impose import duties. If those are not American ideals and American traditions, then we have no ideals and traditions.

But the platform further declared against any allegiance except to the constitution, or to any government except our own. In that particular also, the league of nations conflicts with the plain utterance of the Republican platform. How can we now "know no allegiance except to the constitution" if we bind ourselves to the obligations of a world-league? How can we "know no allegiance except to the government," if we bind ourselves to accept the decisions of a league in which Great Britain has six votes to our one?

Without apology or excuse, the Republican Publicity Association stands squarely and firmly upon the above quoted plank of the Republican platform, without reservations or amendments. And, when the official leader of the Democratic party assails that plank and tries to involve this nation in surrender of American ideals and traditions, we believe and assert that the controversy becomes a party issue, unless the Republican party stands ready to reverse the attitude it deliberately took in 1916. That there is no prospect of reversal of the Republican policy indicated by the fact that 39 Republican Senators signed a "round robin" on March 4, last, declaring their opposition to the league of nations and their determination that it shall be eliminated from the peace treaty and considered upon its own merits.

The Republican Publicity Association proposes to continue to the Republican platform, and, therefore and thereby, loyal to the American constitution, loyal to the American government, loyal to American ideals, loyal to American traditions.

"Let those desert who will."

MEXICO UNMASKED.

By unanimous vote the Senate has authorized the foreign relations committee to investigate the situation in Mexico. Acting under the authority Chairman Lodge has appointed a subcommittee, consisting of Senators Fall, Brandegee and Smith of Arizona, to conduct the inquiry. The resolution of the Senate gives the committee full power to investigate "any and all acts of the government of Mexico and its citizens in derogation of the rights of the United States or of its citizens." It is probable that the committee will postpone most of its activities until after the German treaty and the league of nations are disposed of in the Senate, but when that time arrives it is the intention to go to the border and gather information at first hand of conditions as they are. No other man in the Senate has the intimate knowledge of Mexican conditions that is possessed by Senator Fall of New Mexico, who will head the committee. Senator Brandegee is a trained investigator and cross-examiner, and Senator Smith, although a Democrat, has for a long time been disgusted with the Mexican policy of the administration that has resulted in the death of citizens of his own state and the destruction of their property. The country can rest assured that the coming inquiry will be exhaustive, and the recommendations the committee will submit will be those best suited to put a stop to the present intolerable conditions.

RUGGED AMERICANISM.

Opponents of the league of nations heard with much satisfaction the report of the interview between Senator Fernald and the President. It is understood that Mr. Wilson told the Senator that he counted on at least sixty men in the Senate who would take a world view of the present crisis. "Exactly so," replied Mr. Fernald, "but at least sixty men in the Senate in their world view include in its scope the United States of America." It is significant that shortly after Senator Fernald's call at the White House the daily interviews that Mr. Wilson had been conducting with individual senators were suddenly discontinued, and the President left the topic of the league to turn his attention to the high cost of living, a subject that has been before the eyes of the ordinary citizen for months, but which Mr. Wilson has just discerned.

ROCKY MOUNT

There will be a public working at Rockymount Cemetery, Saturday, August 30th, for the purpose of cleaning off and fixing fence around the cemetery. All interested will come and bring your dinner and tools to work with. J.B. NORTHCUTT.

Now is Clanton's Golden Opportunity! Shall We Accept It or Not?

We notice in a recent issue of the Industrial Index that the Alabama Power Company has acquired the Selma Light and Power Company, and that a transmission line is to be built from Lock 12 to the city to supply current for its wheels of industry.

If this is true, and we have no reason to doubt the statement, that places the question of Clanton's future development squarely up to us. What shall we do about it?

Will we allow the Alabama Power Company to build that line from Lock 12 to Selma without same passing through Clanton and giving us the untold advantage of their current? Will we not put up the fight that is necessary to get it?

If we don't do something to grasp this opportunity, and put Clanton on the map as a city with some life and vigor, we ought to have to go back to the primitive methods of plowing a bull yearling for a living, and eating roasted hoe-cake for supper by the meagre light of a pine knot fire.

If there is any life in Clanton, let it assert itself now. And if we are dead, let's have the funeral and be done with it. The outside world should know which way we are going.

REPUBLICAN RECORD DURING PAST TEN WEEKS REMARKABLE FOR WISDOM AND EFFICIENCY

Washington, Aug. 19.—Representative Madden of Illinois, a member of the Republican steering committee of the House, has issued the following review of the legislative work accomplished by that body since it was called into session last May:

"In ten weeks the House of Representatives has passed appropriation bills for the conduct of the Government amounting to $3,500,000,000, at the same time effecting a saving of public funds amounting to $1,600,000,000.

"It has passed legislation reducing the army to a peace basis.

"It has returned the telegraph wire to its owners, with the result that one company has made a substantial reduction in the rates formerly charged the public by Postmaster General Burleson, thereby saving millions of dollars to the public.

"It has passed legislation repealing the unpopular soda water tax, and has reduced the tax on refreshments made of fruit juices.

"It has repealed the wartime law permitting foreign ships to engage in coastwise trade, thereby returning this trade to the American merchant marine.

"It has created a special committee composed of experienced men to form legislation to establish the budget system.

"It has provided $14,000,000 for the vocational soldiers, and made it possible for thousands of these soldiers not included in the original legislation to participate in this training.

"It has passed a resoluton forcing the Secretary of War to sell to the public millions of pounds of surplus food which he had withheld at the request of the producers.

"In addition to this impressive list of legislative accomplishment, many of the House committees have been energetically considering such questions as the return of the railroads the merchant marine, and the tariff, and many of them will be ready within a few weeks to present comprehensive measures for action by House.

"I think the work of the House during the past ten weeks has been the most remarkable in legislative history. There has been no such record previously, and the efficiency and experience of the Republicans made the present record possible."

JUDGE REYNOLDS ON VACATION TOUR THRU FLORIDA AND MISS.

The Union-Banner received a card Tuesday from Judge Reynolds written from Biloxi, Miss. Here is what he says:

"The first thing I want to do after I get home is to apologize to the people of Chilton County for ever criticizing our roads. Florida and Mississippi have nothing but mud and water. Am leaving today for Mobile; may have to go by Pensacola to get back."

We hope the Judge has been having a fine time on his vacation. He was much in need of the rest.

LET THE BALLOT DECIDE

Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor says that the Railroad Brotherhoods will get what they want from this Congress or they will elect a Congress that will yield to their demands. That makes the issue clear. Now, let's hear from the farmers, the manufacturers, the miners, and the consumers in general, who are expected to pay the increased wages demanded by the Brotherhoods. Let's all take a hand in electing Congressmen.

POLITICAL GLOOM STALKS ON HEELS OF MR. CUMMINGS TRIP

Administration Shocked by Revelations o f Extreme Dissatisfaction.

DEMOCRATS CONGRESS WORRY

Apprehensivenes to 1920 Outlook Increase- Scout's Report.

Circuit Clerk, 1 Jan 16

Washington, August 18.—Reports come from outside circles of late date that the Administration has been shocked by the advices which Democratic National Chairman Homer H. Cummings has conveyed to the president and administration leaders since Mr. Cummings made his tour of the country.

Mr. Cummings went through many States, to the Pacific Coast and back, and held meetings at state capitals and elsewhere with the original purpose of perfecting organization and mobilizing the enthusiasm for the Wilson Administration which he was expected to discover. Instead of this Mr. Cummings seems to have found himself a sort of receiver for all sorts of stories of dissatisfaction among the people concerning the conduct of the present administration. It has been his not entirely pleasant mission to return to Washington and lay before the president, members of the cabinet and the chief aides of the president the facts. Since then there has been an atmosphere of deepened gloom in administration quarters. As for the democrats in Congress, who have long had apprehensions about 1920, their apprehensions has been increased.

In a general way, it appears that the president took up with international affairs including the covenant for the league of nations in the expectation that the attenion of the American people would be divered from the Administration's blunders and its shortcomings of the war-time period. There are those who have not ceased to believe it was the intention of Mr. Wilson to run for President again on the strength of achievements at Paris. But the reports brought back by Mr. Cummings reveal that public mind, althoungh for a time it was diverted by the spectacle of the president's voyage into internationalism, is now certaining by far the larger share of its attention to matters at home. The matters president Wilson has given practically no attention for about 7 months. A set of cabinet officials who to speak mildly cannot be regarded as supermen have more or less diligently assisted in getting things muddled up. The public doesn't like it and a large share of it is saying so and the echoes have been caught by Mr. Cummings as he has been swinging about the circle. Even the president's warmest admirers have never accused him of liking to hear bad news and it may be imagined that there was little eagerness shown at the White House when the chief political ambassador made the report of his observations.

It is said however that in large measures as the result of the news brot to Washington by Mr. Cummings the president will now devote more notice to affairs relating to the United States.

As yet, speculation has not satisfied itself as to what will happen to Mr. Cummings for his rashness in telling the truth.

President Wilson's Tour Does Not Include "Solid South."

The following interesting announcement is sent out from our National Capital:

"Because he regards the South as being solidly behind the League of Nations and the Peace Treaty, President Wilson will not speak there during his tour of the country. The President thinks that such a trip would be waste of precious time. It is believed that a greater part of his time will be spent in the West counteracting the influence of Senator Borah and Senator Johnson."

Now, don't that take the rag off the bush? Go back over it and read it again in the meantime remembering the glowing terms in which the Democratic Campaign spell-binders refer to the "Solid South."

Such stuff as Mr. Wilson is handing us in the above quotation does not particularly concern Republicans of the South. They are of course against the League, against Wilson, and against that arch-enemy of our country, the "Solid South." The fellows who we want to point to this fitting declaration of Mr. Wilson are those Democrats in the South who have got sense enough to see the fallacy of the solid Democratic machine down here, but who have not got guts enough to buck the game and oppose the unfruitful and likewise oppressive political methods that are fastened upon the southern states by this one-sided political machine.

Why does Mr. Wilson regard the South as "solidly behind the League of Nations?" And is his conclusion in this respect borne out by the actual attitude of our people down here?

One of the main reasons he believes the people down here are for the league is because of the wholesale misrepresentation of the facts of the case that is indulged in every day by our rotten "solid" Democratic daily papers of the South. They spread the statements across their front pages that the people are in favor of the league when they know full well that such statements are anything but the truth.

Then, we suppose too, that Mr. Wilson must have gotten his copy of the resolutions that were passed by the Alabama Legislature and the Alabama Press Association and the Alabama Odd Fellows Convention and the Possum Ridge Pig Club, all endorsing "unanimously" the league of nations. And of course with such endorsements as these he is bound to know that every man in Alabama is for the league. And we suppose that similar resolutions went to him from the other "solid" Democratic states of the South.

In addition to all this falsifying stuff that has gone to the President from down south, we have the assurance also that our southern Senators and Congressmen have added their assurances at the White House that the South was as solid for the league as it has ever been for anything else that has the rubber stamp of the Democrats and the picture of the donkey on it.

We can scarcely imagine the heights of Mr. Wilson's gratification when he calls to his mind this universal assent of the people of the great southland to the wholesale delivery of the keys of his adminiseration over to the Catholics during the war. And now he chuckles to himself at our foolish sanction of his scheme to turn the other vultures of the world loose on us thru the league, so that Great Britain and Japan shall surely devour the few of us who have not already been skinned and eaten by the Pope of Rome.

Oh you apostles of the Great and Mighty Dictator; you worthy and well-tried advocates of the solid south; you faithful ones who have always barked when the Democrats pulled your chain; you who know the great political curse that rests upon your heads, but have not backbone enough to demand your rights of political freedom; you who are in a political slavery as oppressive as the slavery that held the black men of the South under the rod of oppression in the sixties; we ask you to think of your condition. Think of the condition of your Southland, the fairest spot in this union of once free States. What rights have you under this measly excuse for a political system that calls itself the "solid south" and stalks abroad in open daylight, the avowed enemy of our freedom and boldly taking away from you that which no man nor no agency nor power under God has the right to deny you.

The President thinks that it would be a waste of precious time to come to the South and try to enlighten us on the league. So it is with every activity that concerns this country at the City of Washington. They no more would consult us about our wishes and our desires about this government than would the plantation owner of 1960 have gone to his slaves for advice about the management of his farm.

What is our trouble, then? What is our grievance? We are, instead of being represented in the government by men and agencies that bring us to our political independence, on the other hand, misrepresented through this damnable curse, the "solid south" so that we are all looked on at Washington as the red-headed step child of Uncle Sam. The powers there have come to the conclusion that we will be perfectly contented with the scraps that fall from the table, therefore, they do not see why they should give us the good things that are on the table.

The South is never considered because she will vote "solid Democratic" is the excuse we hear them offer.

They say there is a mile of road down in Lowndes County that is so bad that it is "hanted" at night. If all the bad roads in Chilton County were "hanted" it would take an awful number of them to go round. And what makes it most "scary" is when we think that many of them would be right under the electric lights on the streets of Clanton.

Look at your map. You will see that Clanton is right on a dead line between Lock 12 and Selma. But you must also remember that Clanton was and is the nearest railroad station to Lock 12. Yet the railroad was not built from here to the construction works in 1912. Why? The answer is just because Clanton did not care enough about the railroad to go after it and induce the power company to build it out from here. So it will be with the power line to Selma. If Clanton don't go after it the company will take it that we don't want it and they will build it some other route. What shall we do now, citizens? Who will make the motion?

General Pershing will be home from France in a few weeks. Maybe he will get here in time to go down into Mexico again and see if he can locate Villa.

When you get right in behind the Catholics about their tratorious practices, one of the first things you will hear is that they brag of their loyalty during the war. We say they ought to have been loyal for the Democratic administration gave them everything in the world to try to keep them loyal. No telling what the rascals would have done if Wilson had not given them all the favors.

Now, that the war is over, we are going to give the Catholics what they deserve for their conduct during the war, and if we are not mistaken the people of the United States will put a quietus on the political activities of Woodrow Wilson for the conspicuous part he played and for the dance he danced while the Pope of Rome Fiddled.—Collinsville Courier.

While the war was on the Catholics could do anything or get anything they wanted. They kept the Masons, Odd Fellows and every other secret order away from the camps through their big cat's paw, Woodrow. Through his administration they kept all the protestant denominations away from the U. S. army in France. Yet the Odd Fellows now see fit to endorse what Wilson did.

President Wilson has found the key to the situation of unrest in the U. S. A. He says the people want the League of Nations adopted without reservations, and the country will not get settled until that is done. Yes, Woodrow, the people want this league and are crying for it just like a five-year-old boy cries for his dose of Castor Oil every night before he goes to bed.

House Committee Favors Mondell Land Provision.

The report of the House Committee on Public Lands in favor of the adoption of the Mondell plan for "Farms for Soldiers," expresses some interesting views on the returned-soldier problem. It says in part:

"Broadly, the problem is how to absorb them into our national life on terms which shall be satisfactory to them and profitable to the Nation. Specifically, the prablem as presented in all of the bills referred to the committee is how to furnish them with immediate employment and to open the way to self-sustaining homes on the land, and how to furnish them with necessary capital.

"There are two considerations to be borne in mind: The first is the welfare of the soldier himself. It is incumbent upon Congress to see that no man who offered his life to protect the nation in time of war shall come to want in time of peace. Every soldier who needs employment should have employment. The second consideration to be observed is, of course, the welfare of the nation.

LOCAL ATTORNEY LAUNCHES ATTACK AGAINST ONE FAMILY RULE IN CHILTON

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 15, 1919.

To the Editor of The Union-Banner:

At the last session of the County Commissioners' Court I made application to write the fire insurance on the new court house. I represent a strong American company, and offered to write the insurance for the county as cheaply as anyone could legitimately write it. It seems, however, because I had the temerity to ask for this business—this patronage—from the county, I have incurred the displeasure of the gods.

The fact is, Mr. Editor, when I made application to write the insurance for the county, I felt that I was as much entitled to this business as anyone. I am a citizen and tax payer of the county; have always voted the Republican ticket and have a real interest in Chilton county as a whole and would like to see a clean Republican administration of the county affairs in particular.

I have known for some time that Mr. L. C. Reynolds (Claud) the Judge's son, wrote the insurance on the old court house about two years ago, and that a warrant for the premium was drawn against the county funds for something like $800.00. I knew too, of course, that he obtained the fire insurance agency for the sole purpose of writing the county's fire insurance business and thereby make tbout two hundred dollars. I have known for some time too that when Mr. L. C. Reynolds left Clanton he transferred his agency to Mr. Grady Reynolds, who is now County Treasurer. A month or so ago I asked Mr. Grady Reynolds if he intended to write the fire insurance on the new court house and he advised me that he did. While I said nothing at the time, it struck me as being against the law for an officer of the county to profit in or derive a benefit from a county contract; and some time later through Mr. M. D. Foshee I advised that an officer of the county could not legally write the insurance. Mr. Foshee agreed to see Grady, and I am advised that he did see him, and that Grady agreed not to write the insurance, in view of the fact that it is a violation of the statute law of the state, and that he would assist me in getting the busines.

One day last week, after the matter had rocked along for some time, I asked Grady what about the insurance. Whereupon he replied that he had transferred his agency back to Claud, and that the county felt that it should give the business to the same company!

All of which was, of course, done to keep the teat of the county cow in the mouth of a Reynolds!

Therefore, believing that the Commissioners are honest, straight-forward men who believe in doing the right thing, I decided to make application, and I was assured by some of them that I should have a fair deal. I believe now, as I did then, and as hundreds of good republicans in this county believe, that this county has been a one-family county long enough. We have in this county the spectcable of one member of the family being Probate Judge, another Representative in the Legislature, another County Treasurer and Special Attorney for the County in litigation against the county, and still another wanting to write the county's insurance and to act as chauffeur on one of the army trucks!

For every vacancy there is a relative!

Now, since I have been in Chilton county, I have attended strictly to my own affairs. Have never tried to push myself forward in politics, but have been contented to run along in the ranks of the party and on election day vote my choice of the candidates. And I say without fear of contradiction, that no one can truthfully say that my conduct as a man and as a lawyer since being in Clanton has been anything other than good. Therefore the gods of Chilton can find very little with which to "argue" me out of some consideration in the dispensation of patronage!

But I am advised that they "think" I did one grievous wrong—that I had some connection with the visit of Mr. Doggrell, the Special Agent of the Department of Justice about a year ago, at which time the Special agent is alleged, some how or other, to have "scared" the Judge.

I did have a conversation with Mr. Doggrell when he was here, and I told him the truth as I knew it. The statement I made to him was very favorable to Judge Reynolds, and he should be obliged to me for making it, instead of charging it against me.

The Doggrell matter is not what is "eating" on the Judge and his County Treasurer. The idea with them is to carry their point. They have nothing else to bring forward, so they are, I am advised, busy with that "argument." They want the business to go to their son and brother. If he cannot get it, then they want it to go to someone who has never been suspected of being connected with a "wicked" scheme to "scare" them.

If they have anything else against me it is because I am a Republican. It was very "wicked" of another Republican lawyer and myself to locate at Clanton—"wicked" because by practicing law here we each get some of the Republican law practice that cannot be "drummed" for the Judge's son and County Treasurer.

The Judge, as everybody knows, is a past master in cunning and inuendo. He has the gift of makink white look black. No doubt before the insurance matter is settled he will have the word quietly passed around that I am either a Democrat or Bolsheviki and there will be fools to believe it. So cunning is the Judge, and so adroit is he in assuming a position, he uses the Republican party of the county as a "dummy," and every time a political enemy, or one of his own political party who has been ex-communicated or ostracised by the Judge launches an attack against him personally or officially, he dodges behind the "dummy" and tells the bewildered onlookers, "Look at that fellow trying to destroy the Republican party!"

And there are those who believe he is sincere!

I do not know whether the people approve of the Judge's administration or not; but I verily believe the people are against his nepotism—against permitting the relatives of the Judge having all the patronage and holding all the places of preferment when there are deserving Republicans more entitled thereto.

Either people approve the one-family rule in Chilton County or they oppose it as I do. If they oppose it, let's take such measures as will eradicate it. Otherwise the Republican party in Chilton county is going to be destroyed upon the shoals of family selfishness and greed. But whatever measures are taken to eradicate the evil, remember the fight therefor must be within our own party.

If the people approve of my position, I promise to be in the fight and with them even unto the end.

Wishing The Union-Banner and the Republican party success, I am,

Yours very truly,

F. B. COLLIER

LET GEORGE DO IT

In reply to the president's letter requesting a postponment of the House recess Speaker Gillett took occasion to administer a dignified but pointed rebuke to Mr. Wilson. "As to railroad legislation," said he, "I supposed by an act of Congress you had now full authority." Which of course, is the exact fact. Heretofore Mr. Wilson has not hesitated to raise railway wages whenever they were demanded. Seeing the condition of general unrest that he has created by that course, and the great rise in the cost of living that it has brought about, the president knows that whatever is done will meet with disfavor either from the public or the brotherhood, and undertakes to unload the whole unsavory mess on to congress. "Mr. Wilson made his bed, and now he should lie on it," say the Republicans.

A Traveling Man's Experience.

You may learn something from the following by W. H. Ireland, a traveling salesman of Louisville, Ky. "In the summer of 1888 I had a severe attack of cholera morbus. I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and to take no substitute. I took a double dose of it according to the directions and went to sleep. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next stopping place, a well man."

We Vouch for Them

Of all the tires that are made,—why do you suppose we prefer to sell United States Tires?

Because they are made by the biggest rubber company in the world. And they know how to build good tires.

They have choice of materials,—they have immense facilities,—they employ many exclusive methods.

They can go to greater lengths in testing, improving and perfecting the things that make good tires.

We find it good business to sell United States Tires.

And—you will find it good business to buy them. They are here—a tire for every need.

United States Tires are Good Tires

We know United States Tires are Good Tires. That's why we sell them.

ON THE SCAFFOLD EAST LAKE MAN ALMOST FAINTS

Declares it's a Ticklish Job to Climb up High When you are subject to Vertigo and Dizzy Spells.

"One day I almost fainted while on a high scaffold, painting a house, and it sure did scare me," declared Mr. A. R. Deckard, the well-known painter and controctor of East Lake, Birmingham, Ala.

"I often suffered from vertigo, and I got to where I almost quit my work on account of these spells, I knew it come from biliousness and a sluggish liver, but I couldn't find any medicine to relieve me. When the dizzy spells hit me, I'd have to stop right where I was.

"I also had sick stomach and back ache; that nauseated, half-sick feeling around the stomach, was disagreeable and in the extreme. I really can't half tell how proud I am of the relief I've gotten by taking Dreco. It eased my stomach with the first few doses; did away with the nausea; my backache is all gone; and my liver acts fine. I mount the scaffold just like any one else now, and never fear vertigo for I haven't had an attack for weeks. Dreco did all this for me and I'm not ashamed to tell about it."

Dreco acts on the liver and overcomes biliousness, vertigo, dizziness, spots before the eyes and nervous headache, trengthen weak kidneys, overcomes constipation, produces a sound sleep, creates a healthy appetite, fills the system full of vim, vigor and vitality, and makes you glad you are living.

All good druggists now sell Dreco and it is recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

SOUTHERN OPINION IS AGAINST WILSON

Washington, August 18.—In order to determine southern opinion with regard to the nomination of President Wilson for a third term the Nashville Tennesseean addressed a series of questions to leading newspapers in the South. Only 20 per cent of the newspapers express the belief the president should be renominated, 60 per cent are flatly against it, 5 per cent doubtful, 10 per cent give no expression on the subject, and 5 per cent say it is dependent upon the Senate's action.

Sixty per cent of the newspapers which were interrogated however, believe Mr. Wilson could be renominated if he became a candidate.

As to the question whether the president could be re-elected if nominated only 30 per cent of the southern newspapers who were questioned by the Tennesseean believe his election possible.

As to who is the most eligible candidate for the Democrats in the event of the elimination of Mr. Wilson, there is much division.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENTS

State of Alabama, Chilton County.
E. J. Vinson and P. T. Hinkle, Plaintiffs, vs. G. E. Fitzgerald, Defendant. Before J. W. E. Gulledge, a Justice of the Peace for said County.

Before me, J. W. E. Gulledge, Justice of the Peace, this the 19th day of August, 1919, came G. C. Walker, attorney for the plaintiffs in the above entitled causes, and it appearing that certain property of the said defendant has been levied upon, to-wit, one bay mare, by virtue of two attachments issued from my office returnable the 6th day of September, 1919; and that the said defendant is a non-resident of this State: It is, therefore, ordered that said notice of attachment and the return thereof be given to the said G. E. Fitzgerald, by publication once a week for three consecutive weeks before the 6th day of September, 1919 in the Union-Banner, a newspaper published in said county; and a copy thereof mailed to the said defendant, at his place of residence, when known.

Given under my hand, this the 19th day of August, 1919.

CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL TO OPEN MONDAY, SEPT. 1

Prof. J. L. Johnson asks us to announce that the Clanton Grammar School will open its 1919-'20 session on next Monday week, September 1. A grand time is expected for the patrons and children at the first day, as Miss Rosa Strickland of the Powell School, Birmingham, will deliver an address.

The faculty this year will be the same as last with the exception of Mrs. F. B. Collier, who is a new addition to the corps.

Dr. Amzi Gowan of Dothan is in Clanton this week.

DUBIOUS PARENTAGE

Senator Owen: "Do not slay the covenant as President Wilson's child. He is not the real father, but only an honest physician who presided over the accouchement."

OLD RESIDENT GIVEN UP BY PHYSICIANS

"Given up by five doctors, my only hope an operation. I rebelled on cutting me open, as I am 75 years old. A neighbor advised me trying Mayr's Wonderful Remedy for stomach trouble. I got relief right away. I had not eaten for 10 days and was as yellow as a gold piece. I could have lived only a few days but for this medicine." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation which causes practically all stomach trouble, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince, or money refunded. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

An Old Fault Finder.

An irritale and fault-finding disposition is often caused by indigestion. A man with good digestion and bowels that act regularly is usually good natured. When troubled with indigestion or constipation take Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. They also cause a gentle movement of the bowels.

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE

The State of Alabama, Chilton County, Probate Court, August 16th, 1919. In the matter of the Estate of J. H. Roberts, Deceased.

Letters Testamentary as Executor of the Will of J. H. Roberts, deceased, having been granted to the undersigned on the 16th day of August, 1919, by the Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate of Said County, notice is hereby given that all persons having claims against said estate are hereby required to present the same within the time allowed by law, or the same will be barred.

GUY H. ROBERTS,
8-21-3t. Executor.

FAMILY RIFT

President Wilson's brother-in-law is president of the Commercial National Bank of Washington. A poll of the execuaives and employees of that institution on the league of nations shows eight favor ratification without reservations, eight are for ratification with reservations and fifteen oppose the covenant in any form.

Surgeons agree thati n cases of cuts, burns, bruises and wounds, the FIRST TREATMENT is most important. When an EFFICIENT antiseptic is applied promptly, there is no danger of infection and the wound begins to heal at once. For use on man or beast, BOROZONE is the IDEAL ANTISEPTIC and HEALING AGENT. Buy it now and be ready for an emergency. Sold by Upchurch Drug Company.

ONE REASON

Reports from the Department of Agriculture show that on July 15th there were in cold storage 108,352,000 pounds of butter and 7,670,000 cases of eggs, both figures far in excess of the conditions of a year ago. With similar situation in other food supplies it is not difficult to trace at least part of the cause of the high cost of living.

THORSBY ITEMS

Revival services are in progress at the Thorsby Baptist Church. The pastor, Rev. Lowery, is conducting the meetings, assisted by the Rev. J. L. Hand, of Newton.

Mrs. G. Berlin left Thorsby last week for a month's visit to relatives and friends in Chicago.

Miss Mae Stoddard and Miss Stella McCain are spending a few days in Seman, Ala.

Friends of Fred Carter, who has been in the United States for over a year, are glad to welcome his home for a thirty days furlough.

A marriage of interest in Thorsby was that of Miss Melvie Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hayes, to Mr. Monroe Benson. The wedding took place on Sunday, the 10th, in Clanton.

Miss Agnes Gerald is visiting her brother, Mr. Lawrence F. Gerald, in Clanton. Miss Gerald has been spending the summer with home folks in Thorsby, but will return to Demorest, Ga., early in September, where she has spent the last two years as a student in Piedmont College.

Mayor Bosworth is visiting his son in Indiana.

Rev. E. W. Butler returned last week from a two week's visit to relatives and friends in Illinois.

Mrs. Mattie Wyatt, who is to be matron of the boarding department of Thorsby Institute the coming year. and teach domestic science, arrived in Thorsby last Friday. Mrs. Wyatt comes from Grandview, Tenn., where she has been for several years connected with the Grandview Normal School.

Miss Ida F. Lockwood returned on Monday from Tallassee, Ala., where she has been attending a district association of the Congregational Church in the interest of Thorsby Institute.

Mrs. Randall Rogers, of Birmingham, remains the guest of Rev. and Mrs. C. T. Rogers.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

Camel

18 cents a package

CAMELS are in a class by themselves—easily the most refreshing, the most likable cigarette you ever smoked. You can prove that! Simply compare Camels puff-by-puff with any cigarette in the world at any price! Put quality, flavor and cigarette satisfaction to the utmost test!

Made to meet your taste, Camels never tire it, no matter how liberally you smoke them! The expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos makes Camels delightful—so full-bodied, yet so fascinatingly smooth and mellow-mild. Every time you light one you get new and keener enjoyment!

Freedom from any unpleasant cigaretty after taste or any unpleasant cigaretty odor makes Camels as unusual as they are enjoyable.

In fact, Camels appeal to the most fastidious smoker in so many new ways you never will miss the absence of coupons, premiums or gifts. You'll prefer Camel Quality!

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages of 20 cigarettes or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-paper-covered carton. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

Circuit Court in Equity.

Rosa Brooks, Complainant; Lewis Brooks, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of G.C. Walker, Solicitor for Complainant, that the Defendant is a non-resident and that his place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of aid affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said Lewis Brooks, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 20th day of September, 1919, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this, the 20th day of August, 1919.

READY TO JUMP

Sometimes we think we can read between the lines of Democratic editorials a vague apprehension that the administration is about to back-track on the league of nations. Recalling the numerous instances in which the president has reversed himself on other important subjects, it is no wonder that the Democratic editors feel a little insecure in their present position.

YOUR CATARRH MAY LEAD TO CONSUMPTION

Dangerous to Use Treatment for Only Temporary Relief.

There is a more serious stage of Catarrh than the annoyance caused by the stopped-up air passages, and other distasteful features.

The real danger comes from the tendency of the disease to continue its course downward until the lungs become affected, and then dreaded consumption is on your path. Your own experience has taught you that the disease cannot be cured by sprays, inhalers, atomizers, jellies and other local applications.

S. S. S. has proven a most satisfactory remedy for Catarrh because it goes direct to its source, and removes the germs of the disease from the blood. Get a bottle today, begin the only logical treatment that gives real results. For free medical advice write Medical Director, 47 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

WAGONS BUGGIES HARNESS

THE LONG LIFE OF A GOOD WAGON

We bought our two Studebakers from your agent, Moses Logan, 37 years ago.

Our neighbors have worn out three or four wagons of other makes since we bought ours.

We have never broken anything on the wagons and the hubs are perfect yet.

One is a lumber wagon, the other a spring wagon. Both are good for years of work yet.

Arthur Martin,
Sandy Lake, Pa.

Studebaker 37 years old—hubs perfect yet

Not strange for the Studebaker—because the hubs are of fine, close grain—tough, strong and treated with a secret sealing solution that is weather resisting.

Notice the hubs on the next Studebaker you pass on the road—you'll find they are not split or checked like the ordinary wagon.

And in these hubs are set the famous Studebaker slope shoulder spokes.

The Studebaker Farm Wagon Wheel is best made.

We sell the Studebaker because we believe it is the biggest wagon value on the market.

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady. Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Prine, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child...I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time...

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. ——about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble', so he got me 5 bottles...After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved...before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it. E 74

SENATE READY

There were two declarations in the "Round Robin" signed by the 39 patriotic and courageous Senators on March 4th, 1919. One was that the league of nations covenant, in the form proposed, should not be accepted by the Senate. The other was that peace with Germany should be consummated first and then the question of a league of nations taken up for consideration. He insisted that the league covenant must be accepted in the form proposed, and that it must be adopted as a part of the treaty of peace. The Senate has been ready for months to approve any conceivable treaty of peace. If there has been delay in attaining peace the responsibility rests upon President Wilson and upon him alone. The Senate has been ready for months to consider a league of nations covenant, but insisted that a matter of such vital concern to the future of this nation must be considered solely upon is own merits and not interwoven with the question of restoration of peace. The Senate has been absolutely right in both particulars, and the President as clearly wrong. History will so record the story of President Wilson's attempt to subjugate this nation to a super-state in which Great Britain would have six votes to our one.

TO PALE PEOPLE— YOUR BLOOD MAY BE STARVING FOR IRON!

If Your Blood Needs Iron, It Needs ZIRON, the New Compound of Iron, Which Acts as a Strengthening Tonic, Enriching the Blood and Building up the System.

When your blood lacks the proper proportion of red corpuscles to give your complexion the "rosy hue of health" and your complexion is pale, "pasty-looking", perhaps even greenish-tinged, you are probably of an anemic or chlorotic nature, and your blood needs Ziron, to bring back the rich, red flush of health.

Ziron, the new compound of iron, the hypophosphites of lime and soda, and other tonic, strengthening ingredients, has been found of great value in conditions of simple anemia, chlorosis, debility, nervousness, lack of ambition, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, etc. It is a valuable reconstructive tonic, in cases of weakness, and helps build up the constitution after severe illness.

Mrs. Mae Belle Perkins, of Adairsville, Ga., writes: "About two months ago I got to feeling badly. My back hurt me badly, and my legs and arms hurt too, and I didn't have any appetite at all to eat. About two weeks ago I commenced taking Ziron, according to directions on the bottle . . . By the time I had taken the medicine for a week, I could see it was doing me good. I had been weak and nervous, and it made me feel stronger, and I'm not a bit nervous now. My back is all right, and my arms and legs do not ache. And my appetite is good again.

Before I started using Ziron I wouldn't rest at night, I was so tired feeling and felt worn out. I have used nearly the whole bottle and now I sleep fine every night. It sure is a fine medicine, and I am glad I tried it."

Ziron is non-alcoholic, contains no habit-forming drugs, acts gently, has no bad after-effects, is good for men, women and children. It is a medicine of genuine merit, composed of ingredients prescribed by eminent physicians. Try it.

SPECIAL OFFER: Buy a bottle of ZIRON, today, at your druggist's and give it a fair trial, according to directions on the label. After using up one bottle, if you find it has not benefited you, take it back to the druggist and he will refund what you paid him for it. We repay him, so there is no reason why he should not repay you. This offer only applies to the first trial bottle. (Z. A. L)

BAD WRECK OF FREIGHT TRAIN AT COOPERS STA.

Twenty-Two Cars Hurled Off Embankment into Creek. Two Negroes Killed.

One of the ugliest wrecks that has ever happened around here occurred at Coopers early Tuesday morning when a heavily loaded fast south bound freight train left the track and twenty-two cars plunged down an embankment into the swollen waters of Chestnut Creek. At the place where the wreck occurred the creek runs alongside the railroad for a considerable distance. Nearly all the cars that were wrecked plunged into the creek after they had all been more or less demolished.

So far as is known only two negro hoboes lost their lives in the accident. two soldiers who were riding the train were caught in the wreck. Each of them crawled out from under the cars after they plunged into the creek with both legs broken and other serious bodily injuries. It was they who told of the two negroes who are supposed to be buried under the debris in the creek.

The cause of the wreck seems to have been a defective car, some part of which had dropped down and was dragging on the cross ties. When this particular was was wrecked it tore up the track and all the cars behind it were derailed as they plunged in behind it.

Among the twenty-two cars that were smashed up there were piled up in the creek a car load of shoes, a car load of flour, and car load of shorts, a car load of hay.

Wrecking crews came to the scene from Birmingham and Montgomery, and by eleven o'clock Tuesday the track had been put back in condition for trains to pass.

EXTREME OF RECKLESSNESS

The million or more men who are included in the railroad organizations have always been considered as of a high standard of intelligence. As one Senator expresses it they have always been "regarded as the very elite of organized labor, men of property, men of standing, men of character, men of education." They have contributed as much as any other class of our citizens to the success of the war against Germany. In order to prevent the death of the American Nation through German oppression, they have given themselves, their sons, and their money to insure the success of the cause.

Having contributed so substantially to saving the country from foreign aggression, are those very individuals now to combine among themselves to bring about a domestic upheaval, the consequences of which if unchecked would mean disaster more complete than anything Germany could have inflicted upon us? It is unthinkable. Those men are intelligent enough to realize the extent of such a catastrophe. They know it would mean the actual starvation and death of thousands of innocent people, the shooting and wounding of untold numbers of others in the rioting that would certainly ensue, and the complete paralysis of every productive energy in the country with all its attendent evils. A moment's thought will convince them that the American nation would come to an end if the threats of their so-called leaders now in Washington were to be carried to their logical conclusion. Are we to believe that those men, forming the very highest type of American labor, are unionists first and Americans afterwards.

The chief spokesman for the railway brotherhoods defiantly declares that "the railroads will be tied up so tight they will never run again" if Congress fails to comply with his demands. How much of that bold statement has the sentiment of the railway employees behind it, and how much is impudent assumption? Naturally the men would like to have higher pay, and a directing voice and profit-sharing interest in the roads. Who would not? But they know that there is a way provided in our form of goverment for peaceably gaining these ends. All they have to do is to elect men to the national congress who will vote for legislation of that character. Meantime they are aware that the fact that their increases in wages already granted have more than kept with the mounting cost of living, and that their condition is actually better than it ever hes been before.

Those men are not going voluntarily to substitute riot, hunger and bloodshed in order to enforce their desires. They know that such a rash course would descend upon their heads just as quickly as upon the heads of the rest of the public. The country has been treated before to threats of individuals claiming complete control over thousands of their fellows, but when the test came they were found to stand practically alone. A recent case in point was the threatened telegraphers' strike, which failed completely to tie up the country's wire communications or even to hinder them seriously. There can be no doubt that a similar result will follow a determined stand by congress against the insolent demands of the brotherhood leaders. At any rate we may as well be killed for a sheep as a lamb. The American nation will come to an end when five per cent of the population can dominate the other ninety-five per cent, or, failing in its bluff, can succeed in wrecking our transportation system.

Beware of the Something for Nothing Fakir

You can put this down as an infallible rule—there is no such thing as something for nothing. If you keep that principle in mind you will be buying real food value with your dollars, which, of course, means a conservation and a saving.

When you see anything offered for sale "cheap," beware. Something is wrong somewhere. In the long run you get just about what you pay for and if you try to get something for nothing you will generally get less than you pay for.

Some thoughtless housewives believe they effect a saving by using self rising flour. In most cases they are buying an inferior food and paying far more than the article is actually worth. So the housewife who thinks she is getting her baking powder for nothing is mistaken. She is paying dearly for it and instead of getting a pure, plain flour and baking powder added, in the majority of cases is getting a poor grade of flour, a cheap grade of powder containing calcium sulphate or plaster of paris.

H. L. Eckery, Food Commissioner of the State of Tennessee, in a recent address at Atlantic City, said:

"I would not tolerate flour products like some of the 'self rising flour' sold in a large part of the South, the concomitants of which are alike unknown and not to be ascertained by the consumer and whose purity in the matter of phosphate is open to serious question as a deceptive agency."

Buy a pure, plain flour and a standard baking powder and you will know just what you are buying and you will be getting more for your money.

THE UNION-BANNER

VOLUME VIII — CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., AUGUST 28, 1919. — NUMBER 22.

ARTICLE X WILSON'S OWN IDEA IN LEAGUE

Undert his Reguirement American Troops Were to Serve Anywhere.

VAST, DANGEROUS OBLIGATION

Original Draft by Wilson Also Quite Overlooked Monroe Doctrine.

Washington, August 25.—It now develops that Article X of the covenant for the league of nations was in substance in the original plan of the president for the league. This is the article under which, as it now stands, American troops, guns, and ships can be sent to the four corners of the earth to maintain territorial boundaries of league nations. The president is thus put in the light of being practically responsible for this article with its vast and undefined and dangerous obligations.

The fact has been disclosed through the transmission to the Senate of his original league proposal. The president sent this to the Senate committee on foreign relations after months of delay but at the same time shut down still more tightly the lid of secrecy on "open covenants" by refusing to give the etter of General Bliss protesting for himself and Henry White and Secretary Lansing against the Shantung decision, and by withholding the other data asked for by the committee about the inside of things at the conference.

One of the astounding revelations contained in the American draft of the league plan is that it contained no reference to the Monroe Doctrine. The administration is thereby put in the position of either being willing to scuttle it or of being ignorant of the vast importance of specifically preserving it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION AT WALNUT CREEK SUCCESS

Prof. J. L. Johnson reports to us that the Sunday School Convention at Walnut Creek last Sunday was a decided success. The personnell of the speakers and workers was the best that our county afford, and the co-operation of the people of the community in the exercises was the most commendable.

Miss Della Williams of Verbena made an interesting talk on "The Importance of Co-operating with the National Sunday School Work." Miss Williams is one of the best Sunday School workers in our County, and she gave good proof of her knowledge and observations of Sunday School work.

"The Necessity of Adults Attending Sunday School," was the subject of a well-rendered address by Col. J. B. Atkinson of Clanton. Mr. W. I. Mullins spoke on "The need of Better Equipment."

A splendid dinner was provided by the citizens of the community. Mr. Johnnie Baker and J. J. Johnson are especially mentioned as doing a great service in the cause by seeing that the visitors and workers were well cared for.

STATE FAIR AT BIRMINGHAM TO BE HELD OCTOBER 6 TO 11

The premium list has been issued for the Alabama State Fair, to be held at Birmingham, October 6 to 11. A copy of same may be obtained by writing to J. L. Dent, Secretary, Birmingham. The book is an interesting compilation of many details regarding the fair, the attractions, premiums, etc., that are offered visitors and exhibitors. We hope that Chilton County will have an exhibit there. We can get a prize this year as we have done before if we will just go after it.

TRUST IN LEAGUE BUT ALWAYS KEEP YOUR POWDER DRY

Washington, Aug. 25.—A strange commentary on the covenant for the league of nations as viewed in high quarters in Great Britain is contained in accounts by cable of the addresses of Admiral Viscount Jellicoe in Australia. The admiral is visiting there to advise the Australian government concerning British naval policy.

Admiral Jellicoe spoke out in advocacy of preparedness for war and said the British Empire depended now more than ever on naval supremacy. He referred to the deadly risks of the last five years and urged sufficient provisions by the mother country and oversea dominions "to insure the impossibility of defeat of the British navy."

In view of the position of authority of Admiral Jellicoe, the only inference to be drawn is that the British government does not intend to have its power to defent itself limited in the slightest degree by the action of the Paris Conference, or any other outside authority. How far the new super-government at Geneva will get in trying to define a policy for the British Navy is not difficult to conjecture after reading Admiral Jellicoe and reflecting on what happened to the "freedom of the seas" at Versailles.

However, the insistence of high British officials on complete preparedness and an invincible navy, it has to be admitted, is as consistent with the belief that the league of nations is going to safeguard world peace as is the demand of Secretary Daniels for a greater navy and the bill sent to Congress lately by Secretary Baker for a standing army of 510,000, capable of expansion to 1,250,000, plus universal training. After all, it looks as if Admiral Jellicoe took about the same view of the real efficiency of the league of nations as a preventative of war as does President Wilson.

OVER-EDUCATED

A correspondent of Harvey's Weekly describes the president as follows: "The president has constituted him a law unto himself. He is an autocrat—self-created out of a schoolmaster—an ordinary man, over-educated, whose mind has been carried by his untoward fortune and a diseased imagination beyond the bounds alike of political integrity and common sense. Seeing what has happened the last ten years, he loses the sense of reasonable perspective, and reaches after what may happen the next two years, recking not the warning glance of Washington and the reproving hand of Lincoln."

WHY NOT A NEW TREATY?

The Democrats continue to hold before Republicans of the Senate the bugaboo of a resumption of peace negotiations if they persist in their intention of amending the treaty. In the sense that amendment of the league covenant or its separation from the treaty would mean the reconvening of the entire peace conference, and the undoing of everything that has been accomplished, there is no truth whatever in the repeated statements of the league supporters. When they attached their signatures to the peace treaty the allies were completely eliminated from the transaction so far as the United States was concerned. Whatever action the Senate may take involves only this country and Germany.

It is a misnomer to say that the Senate ratifies a treaty. It merely advises and consents to the ratification by the President. In other words the document, ratification of which is exchanged between the President and a foreign power must first have received the stamp of approval from the Senate. In the present instance the proceeding will be about as follows: The Senate may accept the treaty as it stands, in which event the president will exchange ratifications with Germany, and the matter will be closed. But if the Senate amends the treaty by the insertion of reservations, then the President can either consign it to his waste basket, or, if he approves it in its amended form, submit it to Germany for her approval or rejection. If Germany approves ratifications are exchanged and the treaty becomes a law. There is no doubt that Germany, after signing the original treaty with the allies, would also endorse the treaty with the United States after it had been changed by the Senate. Such amendments as the Senate might make in the document would not be considered of any importance to Germany.

But suppose Germany should reject the altered treaty, then the entire thing could be thrown into the discard and the state of war speedily terminated by joint resolutions of Congress declaring that the objects for which we went to war had been attained. Or a new treaty between the United States and Germany might be drawn up, eliminating practically all of the treaty in its present form, with most of the provisions of which America has no possible concern. What we primarily went to war for, and what we want to guarantee in the treaty of peace, is the right of neutrals to travel upon the high seas without improper molestation from belligerents. All of the other so-called issues of the war, evolved from time to time in the brain of Mr. Wilson to fit into his schemes for the reformation of the world, have no basis in history or fact, and should find no place in a treaty between Germany and us.

The Senate is not going to be scared into acquiescense in the peace treaty by the threat that war will be interminably prolonged otherwise. They know that a peace status can be brought about without delay merely by the passage of a Congressional resolution, or by the negotiation of a simple peace treaty, containing not a hundredth part of the language in the treaty we have before us. Secure in that knowledge Republican Senators intend to look at the treaty and the league covenant that it contains, solely in the light of their effect on the future welfare of the United States.

LEAGUE CONTROVERSY MAY COST HIM HIS SEAT

Wilsonian Policies Working Havoc Among Democratic Political Aspirants.

Washington, August 24.—The Republicans may have a surprise for the public late in September in the election of a Republican to Congress from the Seventh District of Alabama, now vacant through the death of Representative Burnett, Democrat.

Reports current in political circles at the capital today are to the effect that the Democratic candidate for this seat has wired to Washington that he is greatly in danger of losing the election because of the League of Nations, and urgently requesting assistance. It was this same issue that recently sent a Republican to Congress from a Kentucky district that had been Democratic for over thirty years.

Republican congressional managers have long been acquainted with the situation in this Alabama district. The late Democratic member carried it by only a 500 majority at the last general election. Many Republicans are confident that Alabama is about to send a Republican to Congress.

SCATHING INDICTMENT

When Senator Miles Poindexter was a prosecuting attorney out in the State of Washington, he never introduced evidence more conclusive in the conviction of a defendant than he did as a Senator, when, on August 11, 1919, he placed before the Senate and country the complete evidence showing the encouragment President Wilson has given the Bolshevists in Russia, in the United States, and throughout the world. It is a large amount of explicit and authorative evidence, chiefly from the president's own utterances, too voluminous to be presented in these columns. Every American citizen who believes it his right to pass judgment upon the official actions of his public servants should get and read a copy of the Poindexter speech.

Charley Foshee of Billingsley was in Clanton Tuesday.

PLEASANT READING

It is a nice thing for the American people to think about, that men of the United States army had to raise in a hustle the $15,000 ransom demanded by the capturers of those two American army aviators. Contrast that with what happened when the bandit, Raisuli, captured Perdicardis, an American citizen of Greek extracation. T. R. sent his famous cablegram, "Perdicardis alive or Raisuli dead," and the former was returned safe and sound in a hurry. There was no "watchful waiting" in those days, and Morocco was considerably over the "3,000 miles away" which Secretary of war Newt Baker regards as our margin of safety. If the Administration had any shame remaining it would go down in its jeans and reimburse the army officers who paid the ransom of the aviators, even if it had to hock some of the presents received from European royalty.

WAKING UP

Department of Justice Attorneys are convicting themselves every time they convict a profiteer. The profiteering has been going on for months. If they can convict the guilty persons now, they could have convicted them months ago. There has been no recent change in either the law or the facts. Mr. Palmer would do well to check up the efficiency record of some of his subordinates. Also president Wilson would do well to check up the efficiency record of his department of Justice.

PROCRASTINATION

One trouble with government ownership is that all government operations proceed or lag, rather, under the general rule, "Always put off until tomorrow what you are not compelled to do to-day."

In every home where there is a baby there should also be a bottle of McGEE'S BABY ELEXIR. It may be needed at any time to correct sour stomach, wind colic, diarrhoea or summer complaint. It is a wholesome remedy, contains no opium morphene or injurious drug of any kind. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

BILL MIMS CAUGHT WITH WHISKEY AND ARRESTED SATURDAY

Deputies Culp and Curlee last Saturday added one more of the old heads in the whiskey game to their list of arrests. As Bill Mims came across Coosa River late in the evening during a very heavy shower of rain and landed his boat at the same spot where Tom Hinton and George Traywick were caught with the goods, the deputies stepped out from behind the bushes and took charge of Bill his gallon of mountain corn juice. The jug was concealed in the middle of a sack of "roasting ears" which he had brought along as camouflage for the whiskey.

After Bill had showed the deputies what a big fine pocket knife he had offering to show them how it would cut; and the deputies had in turn displayed some of their artillery, they all loaded up (in a Ford) and come on to town. Uncle Bill was placed in the county jail. He was released Saturday night on bond, to await the verdict of the courts in regard to his case. The three men who have been caught at this spot with whiskey, Tom Hinton, George Traywick and Bill Mims, are said to be a band of old heads that have been engaged for a long time in bringing whiskey to this county from across the river and disposing of it. But it is all up for them a while. Traywick and Hinton are at present serving a sentence of hard labor for their part, and it is very probable that Uncle Bill will be with them soon.

CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL TO OPEN MONDAY, SEPT. 1

Prof. J. L. Johnson asks us to announce that the Clanton Grammar School will open its 1919-'20 session on next Monday, September 1, 1919. A grand time is expected for the patrons and children at the first day, as Miss Rosa Strickland of the Powell School, Birmingham, will deliver an address.

The faculty this year will be the same as last, with the exception of Mrs. F. B. Collier, who is a new addition to the corps.

No tuition will be charged for the pupils in District No. 65. Those who do not live in this district will be required to pay in incidental fee of five dollars per pupil for the entire scholastic year.

All children who are now seven years old or who will become seven years of age before December 31st, 1919, may enter at the opening of school. Those who will become seven years of age between January 1, 1920 and May 17, 1920, may enter school January 1, 1920.

These regulations are going to be strictly adhered to.

All patrons are urged to come to the Grammar School building Monday morning and bring their children.

UPROAR IN SENATE GREETS MR. LODGE

His Opposition to Certain Features of Treaty is Wildly Cheered.

HEROIC COMPLIMENTARY DEMONSTRATION

Unprecedented Scene Evidence of National Sentiment for Clear Reservations

Washington, Aug. 25.—The greatest political significance is attached to the unprecedented demonstration of approval which followed the recent speech of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, on the treaty of peace and the league of nations, that was led in the galeries of the Senate by groups of members—members of the famed fourth brigade—who had just that morning passed in parade before President Wilson at the White House. Republican leaders have been unanimous in expressing the opinion that such a demonstration, coming so spontaniously, can only mean that Senator Lodge's policy of opposition to certain features of the league of nations and other phases of the peace treaty, which have been under attack by the Republicans ever since the president presented the treaty to the Senate, has the unqualified approval of those soldiers who have seen the real fighting overseas, and a large part of the public.

"I believe that the apparent change of sentiment throughout the country in favor of material amendments to the treaty and the league of nations is, without doubt, the result of the opinions being expressed by the returning soldiers, similar to those who led the recent Senate demonstration," said Representative Rodenberg, of Illinois, today: "None of those boys had less than two overseas stripes, and their cheering and hissing was the best evidence of the way the older boys feel about the matter."

"Nothing like it was ever known in the Senate." This is the prevailing comment everywhere on the patriotic demonstration.

The crowds that filled the galleries broke loose in wild applause, cheering and waving hats and handkerchiefs. Marines who fought at Chateau Thierry, waved their helmets and beat the seats with them. Yells, whistles and whoopes resounded. For five minutes the demonstration lasted. It astounded and chagrined administration senators. Senator Williams growing bitterly personal, replied to Senator Lodge and was hissed. The Vice President rebuked the occupants of the galleries for their outbreak of enthusiasm. The demonstration was a spontaneous outburst of American sentiment from men and women in all walks of life and was made the more noteworthy by the participation of the marines, heroes of the Second Division just back from France where they covered themselves with glory.

Like the returned soldiers, the marines say of European entanglements: "We ought to get out of Europe and Stay out."

CHILTON COUNTY POLITICS

We have always regretted to see a difficulty of any kind brewing between our friends. Likewise, we regret to see any developments that tend toward a controversy in politics in our county. Both these regrettable tendencies are evidenced in the Reynolds-Collier controversy now pending, and we are sorry that The Union-Banner happens to be the very means of airing the matter to the public. We had much rather all parties could have gone on in peace and harmony; but since the matter has acquired the aspect which it has, we are in duty bound to all concerned to allow them free expression of their own arguments through the paper. And we want to assert again that our interest in the matter is none other than as mere publishers of what each one may write. We have not, nor shall henceforth foster any preference toward either side of the controversy. We wish to caution those who may be interested in either side of the controversy to be careful and not overstep the line of propriety, so that the best interests of the Republican party in the future in Chilton County may not be placed in jeopardy. The welfare of the party in the future demands a certain degree of wisdom in the exercise of our county officials and our citizens in general. We urge gentlemen, officials and citizens, to guard yourselves diligently in deed and word that it may be charged against no one that he brought reproach to the cause of the people through the perpetration of misguided and incendiary motives.

TO ORGANIZE FOOD BOARD FOR CHILTON COUNTY.

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 25, 1919.

Editor Union-Banner:—I have been requested to organize a food board at once for Chilton county. This Board will have the control of prices in this county, and it is important that all interests be represented on this board.

I therefore call a mass meeting at the Hayes Hotel for Friday night at 8 P. M. and I want everybody to be there that possibly can. It is very important that merchants, farmers, laborers, lawyers, in fact all classes be represented, and I want all parts of the county represented. It is especially urged that all the war organizations be represented.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
County Food Administrator.

NOTICE TO SCHOOL OFFICIALS & PATRONS

Notice is hereby given that I have employed Prof. H. L. Foshee, the incoming superintendent of education, to begin work as the county superintendent of education on September 1st, 1919, and all correspondence relative to future school matters should be addresed to him at Clanton, and all correspondence relative to schools now in session or the past schools should be addresed to me. Prof. Foshee will be in his office every Saturday after the first of September, and will have full charge of all school matters relating to future schools after that date.

A Traveling Man's Experience.

You may learn something from the following by W. H. Ireland, a traveling salesman of Louisville, Ky. "In the summer of 1888 I had a severe attack of cholera morbus. I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and to take no substitute. I took a double dose of it according to the directions and went to sleep. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next stopping place, a well man."

GRADY REYNOLDS WRITES IN ANSWER TO COLLIER

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 26, 1919.

Editor Union-Banner:

My attention was called to a letter published in your paper of August 21st, 1919, signed by one F. B. Collier. At the time this letter was published I was away on my vacation, and I did not return until Sunday.

Last December when bids were opened for the position for County Treasurer, both Collier and myself were applicants, and my bid being the lowest I was selected by the Commissioners Court to serve for one year, at a salary of $43.75 per month. Mr. Bice, my predecessor in office, received a salary of $878.00 net, per year. This represents a saving of about $30.00 per month over 1918, in the Treasurer's salary alone. In addition to this I have maintained my office without expense to the county except for the necessary books and stationery. In addition to my duties as County Treasurer I have prepared contracts for the Commissioners Court, defended suits against the county and advised them in various matters at every term of Court, for which they have paid me the total sum of $17.50. During this term six suits have been pending against the county, and I have made as many as two trips to Montgomery relative to one of the suits for which I have never receiyed one cent. If any reprobable attorney will make an affidafit that my charges against the County for legal services or salary as treasurer have been excessive or that the county has not received value for all they have paid me, I will refund any excess with pleasure. On the other hand, a reasonable charge for the same services to any client, for legal services alone would have exceeded the total of my salary as treasurer.

My duties as treasurer do not require me to insure the county property, and no one can truthfully say that I have attempted to exercise any such authority. When my brother, L. C. Reynolds, moved from Clanton to Birmingham about July 1918, he left all of his business, including the agency for The Great American Fire Insurance Company, in my hands. My property and my father's property were insured in this company, and after my brother left the company's representative persuaded me to accept the agency during my brother's absence. My brother returned from Birminyham about two months ago and the agency was transferred back to him. The fact is, for the last five years my father, my brother or myself, have represented some insurance company so that we could insure our own property.

If Mr. Collier can show that the County lost one penny by reason of my brother writing the Insurance on the courthouse, which was burned, I will gladly refund the sum. Any man of ordinary intelligence knows that the rates of all standard Fire Insurance Companies are the same, as they are fixed by the Alabama Inspection and Rating Bureau.

Mr. Marion Foshee spoke to me some time ago about helping Collier get the insurance on the new courthouse, and said Collier would divide the premium with me. I told Mr. Foshee that I thought they would give the insurance to the same company that paid up the insurance when the courthouse was burned last September. About ten days ago Mr. Collier spoke to me in front of the post office about writing the insurance on the new courthouse and I told him that I did not represent any Insurance company, and that soon after my brother returned from Birmingham I transferred the agency back to him. I am sure each member of the Commissioners Court will make an affidavit that I have never mentioned to them one word about insuring the courthouse. I am not in the Insurance business, and have made no application to insure the courthouse as Collier has, and I am advised by my brother that he has made none. I did not know Collier had made an application until I read his letter. I am practicing law for a living and am not looking for "pie" in order to get along.

I understand Collier admits that he got up the records upon which State Examiner Craig based his report to try to indict the Commissioners at the Sept. term of Court in 1918. Did Mr. Collier have the interest of the Republican Party at heart when he searched out these records? I understand his excuse was that he did it as an attorney for me. Does this lessen the offense? In my estimation the wrong is greater.

Collier states that he probably did a grievous wrong when he located in Clanton to practice law, because by practicing here he gets some of the Republican law practice. I do not try to control the Republican law practice in Chilton County, and I get enough legitimate practice to make a living out of and am not hunting for "pie" as Collier seems to be. If Collier has divided our law practice we had not noticed it. An inspection of the dockets of Chilton County will bear me out in this statement.

Mr. Editor, I had no idea to reply to this letter would consume so much of your valuable space, for after reading the letter carefully I could hear nothing but the "wailing of a hungry wolf," "Pie! Pie!" Mr. Editor, the answer is in the letter itself.

Wishing you and the Union-Banner much success, I am, Yours very truly

FIRE
TEN PER CENT CUT

The Fire Insurance Companies of America, on September 1st, will drop back to the old pre-war rate, by cutting off the 10 per cent increase in premiums which was put on to meet war taxes and extra expenses when the war began.

If you are not insured, you should attend to it at once, and many of my customers should take out additional Insurance, as they are not insured for three-fourths the value of their property.

THORSBY ITEMS

The revival services at the Baptist Church closed last Thursday night. Rev. Hand preached splendid sermons both morning and evening during the series of meetings. Several new members were added to the church. The attendance and interest was very good in spite of the rainy weather. The young people of the church took charge of the music under the direction of Mr. Herbert Lowery.

A masonic meeting was held in Thorsby Wednesday and Thursday of last week. The business session was held each day at the Maonic Hall, but both days a bountiful dinner was served by the ladies of the Eastern Star on the campus of Thorsby Institute. Quite a number of Masons from neighboring towns were here for the meeting.

Mrs. Carl Peterson and little daughter, Dorothy, of La Porte, Ind., are in Thorsby for a month's visit with relatives and friends. Mrs. Peterson was formerly Augusta Turnquist.

The Ladies Guild of the Congressional Church will meet Thursday of this week with Mrs. Robert Johnson. Everyone is invited—rain or shine.

Mr. and Mrs. Ned Bentley of Birmingham are the guests of Mrs. Bentley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Robinson, this week.

Miss Hazel Woolley, who is taking a business course at Massey Business College in Birmingham, spent lat Saturday and Sunday in Thorby.

Mrs. C. T. Rogers and Miss Dorothy Rogers are in Birmingham this week visiting Mr. and Mrs. Randall Rogers, and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Rogers.

Mrs. Vera Hoskins and baby, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Peterson, returned to their home in Birmingham Saturday, accompanied by Miss Ruth Peterson.

Mrs. M. Larsen has sold her property here and expects to leave soon for Chicago. Her son, Olaf, and daughter, Miss Dagmar, will remain in Thorsby to continue their studies at the Institute.

Prof. J. L. Johnson was in Thorsby two days last week attending the Masonic meeting.

Don't Forget the County Sunday School Convention to be held with the Mulberry Church on Friday of this week. A good program for morning, afternoon, and evening sessions. Basket dinner and supper on ground. Everyone intereted in Sunday School work should attend this meeting.

Sgt. John B. Husby, 25 M.M. Co., 103 Bn., M.P.C., who has been for several months on active police duty in Tours, France, returned to Thorsby last Thursday. He is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Charles Howard.

THORSBY INSTITUTE

Thorsby Institute will open Wednesday, September 10th.

During the summer a new water tank has been erected, and repairs have been made on both the boys' and girls' dormitories, so that good accommodations for fifty boarding students are now available.

Mrs. Mattie Wyatt of Grandview, Tennessee, who has been secured as Matron for the Boarding Department arrived August 15th, and will oversee the work of getting the dormitories ready for occupancy.

Miss Ida F. Lockwood, of Mt. City Business College, Chattanooga, Tenn. will be head of the business department of the school for another year. She will teach beginning and advanced shorthand and typewriting. The strength of this department speaks for itself in the positions opened to those who took this course last year. Two years of high school credit is granted for this work in the regular high school course. Rates are normal and any interested should apply at once.

Other courses offered are College Preparatory, Normal, Music, Home Economics, the Seventh and Eighth grades.

All girls and boys in the boarding department are under careful supervision, and it is the aim of the school always to maintain a home-like atmosphere.

Young people not living near a high school who wish to avail themselves of a good home while attending high school will be interested in the Institute boarding department. Rates are low. Catalogue and full information will be forwarded upon request.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Blackmon have gone to Pensacola, Fla., for a few days pleasure trip. They will return the latter part of this week.

ALABAMA STATE SACRED HARP CONVENTION

The writer had the pleasure of attending the great gathering of the Sacred Harp singers of Alabama, at Birmingham, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Sessions of first two days were held in the Court house, third day in the Fraternal Hall.

Officers elected, as follows: President, A. A. Jackson of Birmingham; Vice-President, Mr. Phillips of Birmingham; Secretary - Treasurer, Miss Bettie Jackson, Birmingham; Chaplain, Rev. Mr. Whitsworth, Bessemer. The whole convention was quite harmonious, — not a discordant word Deep spirituality abounded.

We would like to note the good features of each director, but time and space forbids, but we can not pass by the fine directing of Attorney Blanton Riggins, on the first day. He knows how to stir a music class. On the second day when Miss Bettie Jackson was called to the floor we never saw a convention so moved, as she sang such beautiful poetry, "When Suns shall Rise and Set no More," portraying the grandeur of the approaching kingdom; closing with, "Don't Grieve your Mother,"—noted composition of F. M. Graham, author of "Songs for Jesus." Her reputation as a director is known in more than one southern state, All Chilton County should feel proud of her as she was formerly a Chilton County girl.

The Chaplain is a young Baptist Minister, the most enthusiastic worker for the Harp music we ever saw. He publicly declared he could accomplish more in one Sunday singing than a week of protracted meeting, because Sacred music would draw and hold the people. Many ministers could learn an important lesson from this young man.

Prof. McClusky of Gadsden swept the convention off its feet with his skillful directing. Other fine workers were the Shirley Brothers of Shelby, Prof. Hendon, and others too numerous to mention.

Among the noted visitors was Prof. White of Atlanta. Visitore were there from Texas, Georgia and Louisiana.

The building of a fine Sacred Harp music hall in Birmingham is well under way. It is expected to be ready by the next convention.

Chilton County was quite liberally represented, some of her best music talent being there. The President of the Convention, Mr. A. A. Jackson, is a most indefatagable worker. The success of the convention was largely due to his efforts. It was indeed a memorable occasion.

POLITICAL PARAGRAFS

"We are told that we shall 'break the heart of the world' if we do not take the league as it stands," says Senator Lodge. "I fear the hearts of the vast majority of mankind would beat on strongly and steadily and without any quickening if the league were to perish altogether. If it should be effectively and beneficially changed, the people who would lie awake in sorrow for a single night could be easily gathered in one not very large room, but those who would draw a long breath of relief would reach to millions."

Apropos of the President, Senator Lodge says: "We hear much of visions and I trust we shall continue to have visions and dream of a fairer future for the race. But visions are one thing and visionaries are another, and the mechanical appliances of the rhetorical designed to give a picture of a present which does not exist and of a future which no man can predict are as unreal and shortlived as the steam or canvas clouds, the angels suspended on wires and the artificial lights of the stage. They pass with the moment of effect and are shabby and tawdry in the daylight. Let us at least be real. Washington's entire honesty of mind and his fearless look into the fact of all the facts are qualities which can never go out of fashion and which we should do well to imitate."

The reason for the president's solicitude for Article X of the League of Nations covenant, which in perpetuity upholds the integrity of the British and other empires, now develops. We wrote it himself and incorporated it in the American plan, the remainder of which was rejected for the British plan. The British, controlling a third of the globe, accepted with relish a stand-pat world.

Senator Borah: "I have in my desk perhaps the most brilliant defense that has been made in America of late years of the policy of isolation, so called, and of the maintenance of Washington's policy and of the Monroe Doctrine, a defense made four years ago by the President of the United States. He stated, with his usual capacity for expression, that our great object was to maintain a situation wherein America could live her own life. He contended with great earnestness that we should keep out of entangling alliances with European powers. With force and clearness, with fullness and breadth, he covered and defended the non-entangling policy as the only true and safe policy of this Republic."

"I have determined upon a course from which I have not deviated and, God being my help, I am not going to deviate from it for any possible reason that can be suggested in the Senate or any influence that can be exerted elsewhere. I do not say that I rely upon my own judgment in the matter but when I gather together in my mind's vision that body of men coming down from Woshington and Jefferson and Madison and Monroe and Jackson and Lincoln and Grant and McKinley and Roosevelt and Wilson, until four years ago, I reach the conclusion that I must remain in that company. Where in all the annals of government do you find such another group of men so distinguished for wisdom and courage and patriotism? Their company is safe enough for me."—Senator Borah.

Mr. Robinson, of Kentucky: "At the time the president was asking for more power under war regulations the other day did he not meet with applause on the Democratic side?"

Mr. Fess, of Ohio: "It certainly did, as everything he says meets with outward applause over there, no matter what may be the common ranks in the cloakroom later. There are bitter enemies and there are the toadiest of toadies, who no matter what is said in public or done at home or abroad declare that it is all right, because we live in a time when certain people have abdicated individual opinions and bank upon the easy going practices of following a leader who cannot make or think of a mistake."

Where Can I Find Relief From Itching, Terrifying Eczema?

Question on Lips Afflicted.

There is a harrassing discomfort caused by Eczema that almost becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source, which is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S., for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. Get a bottle today, and you will see results from the right treatment. Medical advice free. Address Medical Director, 48 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Judge Reynolds' Reply to Letter of Mr. F. B. Collier Published last Week.

Editor Union-Banner:

I ask permission to reply to a letter that appeared in your paper last week, and which was signed by F. B. Collier. I do not think that the letter needs any answer as it explains itself and is only inspired because he has tried to get something and failed.

Col. Collier does not take the position to help the people in this county, but to put his sore toe forward. Now, it must be humiliating for a young man to prepare himself for some special work in life and make a failure. I am indeed sorry of Col. Collier's failure, but I do not know when I accepted the responsibility of guaranteeing him that he would make a success at his profession, and I do not consider it fair for him to charge his failures to me, as I do not think his first failure was made here. If I remember correctly, he trained for an officer during the recent war and failed to get a commission, and I am sure the "Reynolds family" had nothing to do with his failure in this effort, and perhaps this is not the only failure he has made outside of Chilton County.

He says that he made application to write the insurance on the new courthouse; his application is on file but so far is I know the rate has never been fixed and his application has been laid over. He says in speaking of the "Reynolds family" that my son, Claude Reynolds, wrote the insurance the last time; this is correct, and it makes no difference who writes the next insurance, the price will be the same. Mr. Collier says that he would write the insurance as cheap as anyone. He must be a very poor lawyer if he does not know that it makes no difference who writes the insurance the premium will be exactly the same. As evidence that the other courthouse was insured in a good company, and according to law, when the courthouse was burned, the company paid the policy, $14,000.00, without it costing the county one cent. We did not even have to get Col. Collier, or any other person, to write them about it.

He complains that W. A. Reynolds is Representative and Grady Reynolds County Treasurer: Let's see about W. A. Reynolds being in the Legislature. How came him there, etc? When he was nominated, he was not even at the mass meeting; he did not know that there was a mass meeting at that time to nominate a Representative. They sent out and asked him to come before the meeting. He came and accepted the nomination. I was not in the meeting when he was nominated, but was there when the first ballot was taken between all the candidates, and voted for Mr. J. M. Mims of Collins Chapel; just at this time my clerk came for me to attend to some business in the office, so I did not get back until after the nomination had been made. Mr. Collier was in the meeting and nominated Mr. W. M. Wyatt, but I do not know how he voted on the last ballot between Mr. George Edwards and W. A. Reynolds; he can tell you this himself. But you see, he was more responsible for W. A. Reynolds being a member of the Legislature than I, for he was there and I was not.

I will give $100.00 to any reliable man that will prove that I ever asked a single man to vote for W. A. Reynolds. I advised him not to accept the nomination, but after I saw the condition the matter was in I did not insist further on him declining the nomination.

The Commissioners Court has had a hard time for the last two years trying to keep the county affairs together and they have had to reduce many expenses. Let's see what they have saved on the salary of the County Treasurer: They were paying $1,000.00 per year and by advertising, they are now saving the county $350.00. Mr. Collier bid $540.00 per year, the county to pay the premium on the required bond, and Grady Reynolds bid $525.00, the county to pay the premium on the required bond. Mr. Collier stated in his application, "It would seem that it would be an advantage to the county to have a treasurer who is a lawyer; it would likewise be an advantage to me to have the office, as it will not conflict with my practice of the law, when I return to Clanton." The Commissioners thought it would be an advantage to have a Treasurer who is a lawyer, and as Grady Reynolds' bid was the lower, and as he was qualified, they gave the appointment to him.

It seems from Mr. Collier's letter that the whole trouble with him is that he has not received any pie. He seems to want to join the Reynolds family. I'll admit the Reynolds family has been very liberal in its membership; but we must draw the line somewhere, as we cannot afford to take in just anything that comes along. We have enough failures already.

He says that the "Gods" have but very little with which to argue him out of the consideration of the patronage of the Republican party,—this seems to be all of his trouble. Now, I do not know how the Republicans of Chilton County could prove him a Republican, how many times he has voted the Republican ticket. I am sure I do not know, but I do know that he has had a good chance to let the people know where he stood, as there have been some warm political struggles in the county recently, and if he was ever out on the firing line I failed to see him. I know that he had invitations to go out and refused them; one time I persuaded him to say a few words in the courthouse, but it was very much against his will.

He said I think he did a grievous wrong when he was with Mr. Doggerel in his investigation; I have never charged him with having anything to do with this matter but since he mentioned it I do remember that he came to me twice and tried to get me to use my influence in trying to get the Draft Board to put Mr. B. Guy Smith in the first class, which I refused to do, and afterwards this man Doggerel tried to get up some charge against me for interfering with the Draft Board. I did not give Mr. Collier the credit for this as I thought another person was at the head of it, but he asked me to do the very thing and, as I stated above, I refused, that I was reported to the Government for doing. I do know the plot was laid and sent to some one twice and tried to get me to violate the law, but whether he was connected with the plot I do no know.

He says I was a little scared at the investigation made by Mr. Doggerel. I want to say to Mr. Collier that I was not scared then, neither am I scared now; but I do admit that I had a crowd after me that would have done anything on earth that was mean and low down,—yes, that crowd would steal a nickel off the eyes of a dead negro if left alone and no one was looking—a crowd that had my house searched like they did, go there when I was not at home, no one there except my wife and daughter, and go to try to embarass them, make use of the U. S. Government Officials when the country was at war, and while I was giving almost my entire time as a County Food Administrator. I just wish I could have the language to express my exact views of every one that was connected with this act, but as I cannot express them I will say that they are dirty, low down, cowards, thieves and robbers, and if they will come to my face and tell me that they had it done, they will not think I am scared, neither will Col. Collier think I am scared.

I quote part of a letter from Thos. D. Sanford, U. S. Attorney, which shows that the U. S. Government has disclaimed any knowledge or any authority of having my home searched, and which shows that it was done by a few people to embarass me:

"I am requested by the Department of Justice to state to you that the Department regrets this incident, which was the result of an error in judgment on the part of Special Agent Doggerel, who acted entirely on his initiative in the matter."

Col. Collier admitted to me, after I had been informed of the facts, that he was the person who got up the reports for Mr. Craig to make his "wonderful examination," which he made and which the readers are familiar with. I am sure the Commissioners have not forgotten how unfair this report was, which went back for many years and picked out the Republican Commissioners' acts and left out every Democratic transaction. After I was informed that Mr. Collier got up the records I asked him about it and he said he did, but was hired to do so as a lawyer, and that the parties that had it done were as dirty as H——. Two of the present Commissioners were criticized in that report and now he comes to them for work.

Mr. Collier says that I want the business to go to my son; yes, for if I did not, I would not be true father. The scripture says: "He that provideth not for his household is worse than an infidel." But I defy any man, even with Col. Collier's records, to show where I ever cost the county one penny by helping my sons. He refers to hiring my son as a lawyer. We did hire him in two cases. The county was sued for the payment of some felt, $36.00, which the county never got any benefit of at all. The bill showed that it was bought by the Equalization Board, and in the case it developed that the felt was on some tables which were in Mr. Collier's office; however, it was said that the tables had belonged to the county but had been sold to Mr. Collier; but the County gained the suit and saved paying this unjust bill. The Commisisoners Court paid Grady Reynolds $10.00 to defend this suit, and if Mr. Collier will say as a lawyer that it was too much and that he would have taken the case cheaper, and could have done better for the county I will pay him $10.00 myself.

We were sued by Mr. Joe Foshee for a bill for nightwatching at the jail eleven nights at $2.00 per night, $22.00, and we hired Grady Reynolds to defend the county in this case and paid him $7.50, and I will make the same statement that I made in the other case, if Mr. Collier says it is too much I will pay it myself, as he is the attorney on the other side. What does this case mean to Chilton County? It means that if we lose that the Sheriff can and will hire a night watchman at the jail, which will cost the county at least $60.00 per month, or $720.00 per year; and it is no use in the world for a guard at our jail, as we have one of the best jails in the state. It could no tbe fired from the outside nor inside. The Sheriff lives within a few feet of it, and think of our county paying $720.00 per year for a night watchman, when it cannot pay the bills that it has to meet; and too, to the best of my knowledge, this is the first watchman that has ever been hired for our jail.

He refers to Claud Reynolds having in his application to drive a truck; he also refers to another Republican that wants pie. I suggest to Mr. Collier and his other friend that they make application to drive these trucks and if he fails in landing this job and if they cannot make a living practicing law I suggest that they make application to the alms house if they feel like the county is entitled to keep them up.

I feel like Mr. Collier is wrong in criticizing the Commissioners Court for not giving him something, for they are not responsible for him not being able to make a living at his profession. Col. Collier says some fools will think this wonderful letter of his is inspired by Democrats. I wonder why he mentioned this. "The guilty fleeth when no man pursueth." But Republicans, let me tell you one thing: There is a movement now on foot to repeat what happened in 1910. Some are now trying to get up a contested delegation to the next Convention. Their plans have already been laid to stir up all the prejudice they can to get the Republicans mad, and the voters confused so that our ticket will be defeated at the next election.

If the people will just look and listen, they can see the connection and the same crowd that was at the botton in 1910 is on their job now. Some of the same crowd said over two weeks ago, before this famous letter came out, that Collier had the goods and something was going to drop. Some folks, whom many believe to have the good of the party at heart, have been doing all they could to stir up strife, and if you will watch you need not take any person's word for you can see the connection — the needle will point true. You may shake it around, but when it settles it will point to the enemies.

There are many reports being circulated that are not true. It is being told that the Commissioners Court has paid Mr. Dobson, the contractor, over $80,000.00 on the courthouse. The court has paid Mr. Dobson, exactly $41,481.19; and the courthouse is nearly finished. We are building a good house we think, and we are doing the very best we can, but material is high and labor scarce. As I have just stated, the Commissioners Court is doing the very best it can.

I have no axe to grind. I have been so busy of late that I have not had time to think of politics as it has taken almost my entire time to do my official duties; but I would like to see our people stay together, as I have always stood for the rule of the people while I was in office and out of office. I have never refused to go out to work for you and I want to show you that I appreciate every favor you have shown me, and when you do not like my official acts I shall be glad for you to come and tell me, for I will never be too busy to listen to you.

Collier knows that I will not be a candidate next year; he knows there will be a primary to nominate a ticket; and he knows the Republicans will all have a chance to vote for their choice. He knows the results of strife in the party and he knows he will not hurt me, for I will not be a candidate. Then, in the name of common sense, why does he want to stir up strife in the party if he is a real Republican?

Just one word in defense of the Commissioners Court. Mr. Collier lays everything they do to me; he slanders them when he says that I do everything; he slanders the people of this county when he accuses me of running the politics of the County. There were never more honest and independent people on earth than the Republicans of Chilton County, and you have a good Commissioners Court one that is trying to do the best it can for the people.

He refers to the Republican party as being a dummy. I want to say that if it is a dummy it has been a very lively one for the last twenty years, and if he considers it a dummy and wants to run up against it he will find that it is very much alive. For the last twenty years just such fights have been made as this one and what has become of those who participated in them?

I want to call attention to another condition that exists in our County: There are already a number of candidates grooming themselves for office, grabbing at every issue, sometimes riding a tick and sometimes walking, taking up every issue trying to get in favor with the people. Voters, you will have a long time to nominate a ticket, and you ought to right now nip in the bud any effort on the part of any one to stir up strife among the people.

We have parties now pointing out the next officers of your county, some trying to pull others down in order that they can be lifted up themselves and some threatening to go out and take charge of your party. You have the party in your hands and you had better keep it there; you have for many years run your own affairs and no party or set of men has ever prospered by abusing their opponents. You can only succeed by standing for the right and standing together. This thing of trying to prejudice your officers by crying one man's party has been practiced for many years in this county, and if you will go back and look up the letters which appeared in 1910, you will see that some of the sentences have been copied. Do you have any idea what this great pretense in 1910 cost the tax payers? Debts and burdens have been placed on you that you will not be able to settle in the next fifty years.

I will conclude by saying that any one who wants an office only for the fees and salary he will receive from it and not with the intention of helping the people, will make a mighty poor officer, and any party man that is only with the party for pie will mack a very poor voter, and if every Republican in the County votes our ticket is voting for pie, and is going to kick if he does not get it, there will be some kick coming.

All I ask, is for the Republicans to look up the records of those who made such fights in the past, and if they were not in the Democratic party, see if they did not land there. Do you remember the Thorsby fight? Do you remember the true-blue Republicans? Go back and read their articles and the date is about all the difference you see in their articles and the one of Mr. Collier's.

When the Republicans hold a primary, then will be the time for all Republicans to vote for the man of their choice and nominate the best men for officers. You had a fight like this in your last election; where did the people land that made it?

What happened when the true-blue Republicans ran a ticket in 1910. The head of the ticket lived at Coopers, and the true-blue ticket never got a single vote, the question was raised, the ballots were examined at the request of the head of the ticket, and he voted a straight Democratic ticket; and yet was going over the county hollering for the "true-blue Republican party."

Men that have the good of their party at heart do not work with the opposition in trying to destroy it. The people can always tell when any one is working for the party or when they are working for some office, or working to destroy the party.

Respectfully,

L. H. REYNOLDS.

LOOK AT YOUR TONGUE!
IS IT BROAD, WHITE, FLABBY?
—YOUR BLOOD NEEDS ZIRON!

When Your Tongue Is White and Flabby, It Is a Sign That You Are Anemic and That Your Blood Needs Ziron Iron Tonic, For the Benefit of Your Weakened System.

Look at your tongue in the mirror!

It ought to be pointed, pink, clean and firm.

If it is broad, white, coated, flabby, it is probably a sign that you are anemic, that your blood lacks red corpuscles, that you are not in good health, that your system needs iron to bring it up to proper condition.

When your blood needs iron, take Ziron, the new Iron Tonic, which contains also the hypophosphites of lime and soda and other valuable tonic ingredients prescribed by the best physicians for this form of trouble.

When you feel tired and miserable, lack ambition, suffer from indigestion, rheumatic pains, gastric catarrh, depression of spirits and a general feeling of being "under the weather", why not try Ziron to help you back to health.

Ziron, the new compound of Iron, contains no habit-forming drugs. It is a safe, reliable tonic remedy—good for men, women and children.

Mr. R. L. Poston, of Lillie, La., writes: "Some weeks ago I was suffering with something like dumb chills. I just ached all over, my skin would feel clammy. I ached worse from my knees down. I didn't rest well nights, and my appetite wasn't good. I was afraid I would get down in bed and so much to do in the Spring of the year. I began to look around for something to help me and decided to try Ziron...I had not taken one third of a bottle until I felt much better. I grew stronger, began to get hungry and did not have any more of the chills. I think Ziron is a splendid tonic."

SPECIAL OFFER: Buy a bottle of ZIRON, today, at your druggist's and give it a fair trial, according to directions on the bottle. If, after using up one bottle, you find it has not benefited you, take the empty bottle back to the druggist and he will refund what you paid him for it. We repay him, so there is no reason why he should not repay you. This offer only applies to the first trial bottle. (ZA 3)

ANOTHER ATTACK AGAINST ONE FAMILY RULE IN CHILTON

To the Editor of Union-Banner:

Since writing the article against one family rule in Chilton County and protesting against placing all the positions of honor and trust in the hands of one family and giving all the patronage to this family, Judge Reynolds has seen me and has attempted to raise a personal controversy.

The fact is, Mr. Editor, the Judge and the county treasurer are both public officials, and if they do not desire to be criticized they should not aspire to hold public offices; and so long as they aspire to hold public office, and do hold public office, it is my purpose to criticize them whenever I think the facts justify criticism. I shall leave it to the people as to whether the criticism is just.

I think, and many other Republicans of the County likewise think, that whenever one family gets all the county afafirs by the "tail" with a "down-hill pull," and the county is made the "goat" for the convenience of that family, it is time for criticism, time for action by the people, time for that family to cease to hamper the county's progress and the welfare of the party that placed them in power.

Only the little kings and great judges brook no criticism!

The Judge raises the point with me personally that it is none of his business to "feed" me, and I thoroughly agree with him. There are several reasons why he shouldn't feed me: 1st, I am capable of feeding myself; 2nd, I have always refused to "eat out of the hand" of the Judge; 3rd, the Judge is too busy "feeding" his own "chillun" from the county crib to have the time to assist in feeding me.

And when I say that the Judge has been busy in "feeding" his own "chillun" from the county crib, I mean to say that since the Judge assumed office in 1917, he has never let an opportunity go by to assist them to draw funds from the county, either one way or another. You will remember I stated in my last week's article that one of his sons wrote the insurance on the old court house, out of which he made for himself about $200. I now tell you that his other son, the county treasurer, has been closely allied with the county's affairs since the Judge assumed office. In 1917 his firm drew $250; in 1918 likewise a large amount was drawn, and in 1919 he draws $525 salary as treasurer and has received or will receive several large fees for representing the county in litigation. In fact, the services of his son, is absolutely indispensable to the Judge—but the tax payers, the people, pay the bills.

It might be of interest to the staunch and stalwart Republicans of Chilton County to know that while the Judge's son is "chief" counsel in all the litigation for or against the County, in one suit the arch enemy of the Republican party—the veteran Democrat leader—has been associated by the Judge and his son to assist the latter in unraveling the intricate principles of law involved in the case!

But, Mr. Editor, the "easiest" money that this son has drawn from the coffers of the county was the $150 drawn for "copying" the road law, that another county of the State had enacted. Of course a slight change was made here and there in the law, and perhaps a few new paragraphs were added, but likewise many paragraphs were left out. It was what I call "a veritable snap."

The State law on the subject of exemption from road duty provides who shall be exempt from road duty, naming certain clases of people, their condition, etc., and further providing exemption to "all persons, who by nature or disease, are rendered incapable of hard labor, who shall procure a certificate of such incapacity from the county board of health or from two reputable practicing physicians."

But the "author" of the County Road Law sets out therein that "such certificate shall be filed with the probate Judge, who shall pass on the validity of the same," etc.

Even the lame and the halt shall be brought before the Judge, that his name may be glorified in the land of Chilton!

Not only is such a provision of the road law involved, but it is absolutely in line with the one famliy rule in Chilton County. The Judge places himself in a position to pass upon the validity of the certificate, when the State law sets forth that "the certificate o f such incapacity from two reputable practicing physicians shall be sufficient" even though the Judge of Probate may not think the certificate is valid. So thoroughly convinced I am of its nugatory effect, I am constrained to say that ony one charged with a violation of that section will be defended by me without charge, and if the Supreme Court upholds a conviction thereunder, I will serve the time or pay the fine of the offender.

But the most pronounced effect of one family rule in Chilton County is seen in the operation of the County and Probate Court. If one has never seen the County Court, on a Monday morning, operate, it is worth the time to visit this institution. The Judge will mount the bench; the solicitor will read the charge, and the Judge's son will plead for the defendant.

Mr. Editor, of you want to witness something sure-enough - to - goodness "funny", go down to the county court and listen to the Judge's son plead with his pa to turn his client loose!

There on the bench the Judge sits and passes upon facts involving the guilt or innocence of his son's client—acting as a juror, if you please. But Mr. Editor, if you were a lawyer, your father could not be a juror in the Circuit Court to pass upon the guilt or innocence of your client. It is a rotten system that permits such a practice in the County Court.

A man in trouble is not altogether devoid of the every-day "horse sense" Generally speaking he knows how best to get out of trouble. Any man would know that if a lawyer's pa is on the bench, the thing to do is to get that lawyer to represent him and "ax" pa to let him loose; knowing that if pa, the Judge, could be made soft hearted at all his son could do it best. Many times I have had prospective clients to ask me if it wouldn't be best to get the Judge's son to represent them before the Judge,—and I have consistently stated to them that they had the right idea.

And frequently they have stated to me that the Judge himself had suggested that they employ his son.

In the articles which I have asked you to publish, I have endeavored to portray the true conditions in Chilton County; how one family is sapping the life-blood of thhe things that are good, that are sacred, that it may be benefitted, looked up to and honored. It is a serious matter—a matter that should be talked, that it may be remembered. The sun light of publicity is a panacea, if not a cure, for the evil. And while the evil may not be cured for a number of years, I feel that the people should know, and do know, that the system, the selfishness and the greed that prompt it are rotten,—a stench in the nostrils of good people of the County.

Mr. Editor, in conclusion, I desire to thank you sincerely for your fairness in this controversy, and I also desire to thank the many Republicans who have spoken to and written me commending the fairness and timeliness of the article published last week. Yours very truly,

F. B. COLLIER.

We understand that Ed Wagoner has bought a home in the Gowan Addition, and intends to remove his family here from Montgomery in the near future. We are glad to have this good man and his splendid family back in Clanton.

Mr. J. H. Ray, one of our subscribers on Route 2, has the best potato record we have seen this year so far as producing the champion potato in individual size. Last Saturday he brought a couple of Porto Rico Yams to the Union-Banner office, one of which was nineteen inches long and one fourteen. We exhibited them at the office where many persons saw them with much interest. But the best part of the fun came in when the editor went home to dinner one day and found them baked nicely and fixed up for eating. You know the proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof. Those potatoes proved by the eating that they were right up to the standard of excellence.

Food Value Determines the Value of Food

It should be the food value that determines the value of foods. Take self rising flour, for instance. This product is of varying grades, much of it selling for the same or even less than the plain flour, which in itself is evidence of the fact that it is of inferior quality. Naturally, then, its food value is less than that of a pure plain flour.

In the long run it really costs more and represents a waste. There is no real economy in it. Some housewives are under the impression that it saves them a little effort, but in this they are mistaken. Self rising flour must often be sifted as it is inclined to get lumpy. The food value of a prepared flour is considerably less than a good grade of pure plain flour which is made from better wheat and contains no cheap leavening agent or calcium sulphate, commonly called plaster of paris, often contained in the ingredients used in self rising flours in order to cheapen the product.

Thus the flour question serves as a very good illustration of what I mean by saying the value of foods should be determined by their food value. And likewise the economy of using various foods should be determined in a similar manner. It isn't always the cheapest that is best. In fact, the opposite is often the case.

BIGGER BUSINESS AT WILEY LITTLEJOHN'S

Do you want to buy goods at lower prices than the present high market? If so, it will pay you to go see what Wiley Littlejohn can do for you. He has bought out the stock of Roper, Williams and Co., in the old Reynolds Building over on the corner, and has moved all his stock up there. His stock is large, in fact, larger than he can afford to carry. The way he bought them and the fact that he has so many on hand causes him to offer them to his customers at bargain prices. Now, this is no joke. If you don't believe he can save you money. just go try him and see. He specially invites the ladies to come and see his line of millinery which department is in charge of Mrs. J. H. Williams. Read his advertisement in this paper and call on him and see if he is telling you the truth.

SPLENDID OPENING OF CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL HERE

PLANS LAID AND READY NOW FOR A MOST SUCCESSFUL YEARS WORK UNDER MR. THOMPSON.

The formal opening of the Chilton County High School for its 1919-20 session was formally held on Wednesday morning under most auspicious circumstances. A goodly number of citizens ofClanton and Chilton county were present to witness the starting off of the school and to bid the new principal and his teachers good wishes for success. But we beg to state parenthetically right here that there were not half as many of our citizens there as should have been present.

Prof. Thompson, the new Principal, of the school indulged at length in an interesting outline of his policies to be followed in the administration of the affairs of the school. His plans as outlined indicate that he will pursue his duties in a vigorous and business like manner as befits a man of his broad school experience. We predict a splendid school under his management, and his past record also bears out our expectations that we shall be pleased with his work.

At the close of his remarks Mr. Thompson introduced the members of his faculty one by one. We got the impression that his assistants are going to measure up well to the standard of efficiency that is required of teachers in their capacity.

Prof. W. L. Holmes of Dothan, a young man, graduate of Auburn, is to have charge of the departments of science and manual training and athletics in the school.

Miss Inez Preston of Andalusia, a graduate of Judson College and the University of Alabama, will teach English and Mathematics and direct the Literary Societies of the school.

Miss Georgia Williamson of Demopolis, graduate of Montevalo, will teach Home Economics and Athletics for girls.

Miss Daisy Gillis of Grove Hill, a talented musician with a long list of successful accomplishments to her credit, will have charge of the department of music.

The Principal, in introducing the members of the faculty, gave lengthy and detailed accounts of the preparation and experience of each of them, making everybody feel asured that he has selected a corps of assistants teachers that are above the average.

Talks were made by a number of citizens in regard to the future of the school. We endeavored to make it as impressive as possible on the new Principal and teachers that the community and town and county is solid behind them in the furtherance of those things that will produce the widest and most substantial accomplishments for the school in this years work and for all future time.

It was indeed an auspicious opening. About 150 students have already enrolled, and there will be more to come in the next few days.

LITTLEJOHN SCHOOLHOUSE

Our school closes Friday, September 5th, with an all-day Educational Rally; dinner on the ground. We are expecting quite a number of our patrons and friends to spend the day with us.

Besides the work of the pupils that day we will have several good talks or lectures by such men as Hon, J. B. Atkinson, Supt. Howard Foshee, Prof. Howard Roper, and very likely Prof. Thompson, of the Chilton High School will be with us too. So if you wish to spend a pleasant and profitable day, come. We will be so glad to have you with us.

ARLEDGE DENIES COMPLICITY IN WILD-CAT STILL OPERATION

Pate Arledge, who was arrested by Sheriff Gore a few weeks ago, charged with connection with the operation of a wild-cat still in Stumps Hills, was in Clanton Monday. His preliminary trial was held in the county court before Judge Reynolds. The defendant was bound over under bond to await the sitting of the county grand jury.

While here Mr. Arledge called on The Union-Banner and denied some statements that were made in this paper the week following his arrest. In giving to the paper the report of the arrest of Mr. Arledge and the capture of the still, the officers made use of the following statements:

"Arledge, the man who was captured, was acting as sentinel for the others and was walking around the still at a distance of about two hundred yards with a shot gun. His purpose was to prevent officers from disturbing the operation."

Mr. Arledge requested us to state that he emphatically denies the above statements as given out by the officers and published in the paper. He states that he was not acting as sentinel for others who are alleged to have been at the still. He asserts that he was merely passing through the woods with his shot gun hunting for some cattle, and that he knew nothing about the still being nearby nor of any persons operating one there. He contends that he had no such purpose as preventing officers from finding a still.

The Union-Banner, in making the original report of the arrest and capture of the still, did so on the information given us by the officers. The things which we said were an essential story of the very facts as represented by the officers. Now, since Mr. Arledge has denied that those were the facts in the case, we are glad to give to our readers his own version of the case.

MR. J. A. SKAGGS VISITOR

Mr. J. A. Skaggs of Jemison was a visitor to Clanton last Tuesday. Mr. Skaggs is getting rather old and feeble, but he takes an interest in the progress and advancement of things generally. He is especially wide awake on the Catholic question and sees that great danger from the right angle. He says he hopes to live to see the time when we are prepared to meet the Catholics at the ballot box and forever defeat their purposes. Mr. Skaggs, like many other gallant old patriots we could mention, is getting old and may not live to see the issue come to a test. But young men who will live to see it should draw a lesson from the wisdom and foresight of these old people, and begin now to prepare for the ordeal. We must meet the Catholics with the same preparation they have for us. We cannot remain asleep on the job and be successful in the end .

THE UNEASY SOUTH

The split in the Democratic party in Texas is merely significant of the feeling of the whole South—it is dissatisfied with Wilson and is anxious to throw off his yoke. His socialistic tendencies and his "internationalism" are entirely too much for the southern spirit, which inclines toward industry, and as a consequence the spirit of rebellion is rife. It is not too much to say that nowhere in the country is Wilson so heartily damned today as in the southern states and that the damners-in-chief are members of his own political household. Naturally, these men refuse to carry their dislike to the extreme of going over to the Republican party—that would be unthinkable—so they seek sanctuary in the creation of a new Democratic party. Possibly nothing will come of this rebellion, but of this we may not be so sure. Let Wilson be renominated on a platform setting forth his governmental heresies and a great deal may come of it. Indeed, so much may come of it that the solidarity of the "solid south" may be shot to pieces.—Fort Wayne News.

LITTLE VIEWER.

PRESIDENT OVERLOOKED ONE IMPORTANT POINT

Bottom Knocked Out of the Best Argument by Senator's Pointed Query.

Washington, Aug. 1.—President Wilson's argument that no reservations should be attached to the resolution of the peace treaty for the reason that the assent of the German Assembly would have to be obtained to them and he would be reluctant to approach the German Assembly on this matter has fallen to the ground so far as reservations relating to the covenant of the league of nations are concerned.

The President used this argument in the formal statement which he put out at the opening of the recent White House conference with Senators of the Foreign Relations Committee. Moreover, it has been used at various times by his lieutenants.

Senator Fall of New Mexico pointed out to the President that Germany was out of the league and that any amendment proposed by any member of the league prior to her coming into the league would not be submitted to her for the simple reason that she was not a member. Senator Fall asked the President if this were not true.

"I will admit," said the President, "that that point had not occurred to me. No, she would not."

NEW HOPE SCHOOL

Dear Editor:

Please allow us space in your paper to say a few words.

REPUBLICANS ACT TO STOP HOARDING AND HIGH PRICES

Administration will Now Have no Excuse for its Failure To Function.

His Charge That Failure to Act on Peace Treaty Causes High Prices Unustifiable.

Washington, August 1.–The House has amended the Lever Food Control Act in accordance with the request of the President and the Attorney General, extending to the executive department the same power to detect and punish hoarding and profiteering in wearing apparel that it has previously had in connection with the food supply, and providing fine and imprisonment for violation of the act.

In adopting these amendments 3 days after the appearance of the Attorney General before the Agriculture Committee to explain the exact desire of the Administration, the House has given striking evidence of its willingness and porpose to meet any reaonable request for additional legislation with which to combat the high cost of living. The Republican leaders of the Senate have now taken the measure in hand and it is planned to accord it is prompt action in that body as it has received in the House.

The amendment provides authority to prosecute all profiteering retailers or hoarders. Extension of the drastic wartime regulations to all wearing apparel, food containers and fertilizers. It also contains provisions for a fine of $5,000 and imprisonment for two years as a punishment for all violations.

The measure was passed by the House exactly as it was reported from the Agricultural Committee. It grants specific exemptions to farmers and farm organizations from Federal regulation.

This action marks the first step in the Republican Congress's campaign to reduce the high cost of living and places in the hands of the Administration sufficient authority to proceed against retailers who, according to Attorney General Palmer, are now maintaining high price levels. The Attorney General can now proceed against all those dealing in necessaries who attempt to sell their products at more than a fair price. Republican leaders believe the Senate will adopt the bill practically in the same form in which it passed the House.

During the course of the five-hour debate in the House on price conditions Republican members arraigned the president and charged that there would have been no necessity for the amended food bill if the administration had applied laws already in force against food profiteers. Reference was also made to the unjustifiable inference of the president in his address to Congress that the failure of the Senate to ratify the peace treaty speedily was the cause of the high cost of living. Referring to the president's inference regarding the treaty, Representative Rodenburg of Illinois said: "During the last six years there has not been a single solitary attempt made by the Democratic Department of Justice to bring a single solitary food profiteer to the bar of justice."

While the question of rent profiteering is not included on the present bill it is believed that this will be dealt with later in the specific law.

GONE TO REST

A very sad death has recently occurred in this community. Mrs. Liza Coker, wife of Mr. Arthur Coker, died Friday about noon. She leaves a husband, mother, brother and six small children.

She was buried in Poplar Springs Cemetery on Saturday morning.

B. E. Collum, a merchant and bisiness man of Jemison, was in Clanton a while on Monday afternoon.

J. L. Smith of Route 3 was in Clanton last Thursday.

MANY WHISKEY CASES BEFORE COUNTY COURT ON MONDAY

Eight of the eleven cases brought before Judge Reynolds in the County Court on Monday, September 1st, were for violations of the prohibition laws of Alabama. This seems to bear out various other evidences that may be seen to show that the wild cat whikey business in this county is asuming proportions somewhat above the average.

Ed Johnson, charged with Sunday gaming; fined $10 and cost.

Pate Arledge, charged with violating prohibition laws; defendant plead not guilty to the charge and bound over to grand jury; bond fixed at $1,000.00.

J. R. Busby, Jr., charged with violating prohibition laws; continued to October term of county court.

Bill Mims, charged with violating prohibition laws; continued to October term of County Court, at which court the defendant agrees to plead guilty.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY THE COUNTY MASONIC CONFERENCE

The Masonic Conference of Chilton County in session at Thorsby last week passed the following resolutions which we publish by request of the body:

Resolutions Committee.

Committee on Resolutions wish to make the following report:

1. We can hardly find words adequate to express our heartfelt thanks to the sisters af the Thorsby Eastern Star and ladies there for their hospitality and services rendered to this conference by the refreshments served.

2. We commend the good ladies of Thorsby Eastern Star as having but few equals and no superiors.

3. We extend our sincere thanks to the Thorsby Lodge A. F. and A. M. for the fine Fraternal spirit shown us while being entertained and instructed in their midst, also to the faculty of the Thorsby Institute for the privileges enjoyed on their grounds. We cheerfully commend to all of our lodges the well-known scripture, "Go thou and do likewise."

4. We deeply appreciate the honest, conscientious, devoted and very able services rendered this conference and masonic fraternity by our able instructor Brother J. M. Pearson. We know that we express the sentiment of this conference when we say that we have never received any instructions superior to what we have had this time.

5. We trust that all the brethren present on the evening of August 20 heard and caught the great lessons taught in the third degree lecture so ably given by Brother Pearson.

(Adopted) J. L. JOHNSON,
J. S. JONES,
W. I. MULLINS.

Memorial Committee.

We, your committee on Memorials, submit the following report:

1. We find that the All-Wise Creator in His Infinite Wisdom has seen proper to visit Amand Lodge No. 250 and Clanton Ladge No. 423, and removed from our midst to the "Celestial Lodge" above the following brethren: H. J. Taylor, and J. H. Duncan of the above Lodges respectively.

2. We realize that in the death of these brethren the Masonic Fraternity has lost two of is most honored and beloved members, and the county two of its best and truest citizens. The lives of these brethren were examples of which we can with pride point to and truthfully say that "An honest man is the Noblest work of God."

3. We recommend that a copy of this report be published in the county paper; and a copy be mailed to the family of each of the deceased brothers.

Respectfully,
H. A. HARRIS,
H. O. BEAN,
T. J. GRIFFIN.

WE MUST PARTICIPATE IN NEXT WAR

Senator McCormick Pictures Our Own Young Men Dying to Defend Alien Territory.

Washington, August 2.—In an eloquent address in the Senate, Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois took the position that the United States by consenting to the guarantee of territories under the covenant for the league of nations, more especially Article X, will plead "guilty" if "against conscience and judgment" to participate in the war which the treaty of Versailles foreboades.

Referring to the "moral abasement which characterized the conduct of the great Christian powers in Asia before and during the war," Senator McCormick said President Wilson put his name to an agreement which betrayed an ally and friend.

In forceful language, he depicted the wrongs done China and Korea by Japan and declared that Japan's present promises about getting out of Shantung are worthless measured by her performances in the past.

He showed how the fact the covenant and the treaty tied the United States up to the holding of subject peoples under the dominions of Japan and England and France.

"If ever those subject peoples rose" he said, "and the Chinese of the Russian trike hands with them, that will constitute 'external aggression' under the covenant. Then our young men must march by thousands to drive the invader back from the Yalu, the Ganges, the Tigris or the Euphrates."

COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION AT MULBERRY

The annual meeting of the Chilton County Sunday School Convention was held at Mulberry church on Aug. 29th. Much weight was added to the work of the Convention by the presence of several of the prominent state Sunday School workers.

Capt. W. C. Blassingame rendered valuable assistance to the work and did much for the success of the meeting. Miss Beane, another of the State workers contributed her efforts toward making the occasion one of great value and a decided success.

Prof. C. V. Thompson, principal of the Chilton County High School, was present and took active part in the deliberations. He made a highly inspiring address on Sunday School work.

Reports came to us that the dinner which was served at noon was a decided treat to those who were fortunate in being present. It was a very pleasant satisfaction to their good appetites.

The following officers of the convention were elected:

President, D. J. Flummer, Thorsby; Vice-President, J. B. Northcutt, Jemison; Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Della Williams, Verbena; Assistant Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Mary Carr Gibson, Verbena; Superintendent of the Adult Department, Col. J. B. Atkinson, Clanton; Teen-age Department, Prof. J. L. Johnson, Clanton; Elementary Department, Mrs. B. M. Roberts, Clanton.

District Presidents:—1, Howard Roper, Jemison; 2, Felix Eiland, Thorsby; 3, Miss Esther Nix, Maplesville; 4, H. A. Harris, Clanton; 5, W. A. Calloway, Verbena; 6, Howard Oden, Maplesville.

Executive Committee—G. C. Harris, Clanton; C. V. Thompson, Clanton; W. T. White, Maplesville.

Joe Maddox has bought the Farmers Union Warehouse, located adjacent to his gin and will operate the same this season. He is a well-known gin man in this section and his many friends will be glad to know that he has acquired the management and ownership of the warehouse.

Ed Teel of Birmingham is visiting friends and relatives in Clanton for a few weeks, taking his vacation.

G. D. Edwards of Thorsby was in Clanton Monday.

MR. G. W. EDWARDS WRITES

August 31st, 1919.

Editor Union-Banner:

May I have space in your paper to reply to an assault made last week through your paper by Judge Reynolds on the true-blue Republicans.

First, I will say that I am not in any way connected with the Reynolds and Collier controversy. I thought Reynolds and Collier were close political friends till I saw their first letters in your paper. Now, I am very sorry that the Judge while stammering through dark valleys of ignorance hunting for straw to cover his sins, saw fit to drag the true-blue Republicans into such undesirable controversy againstt heir will. I don't know the Judge's motive for this, but I can't see any other purpose but to create prejudice between the Bull-Moose and true-blue Republicans. He well knows that the Bull Moose have a majority in Chilton County, and as long as he can keep them divided he can controle the Bull Moose and run the politics in the county just as he wants to.

I think the people have seen the judge as he is, after so long a time, and are going to get together and bury the rotten politics of the past and place politics on a high plane in Chilton County. The judge says that what happened when the true-blue Republicans ran a ticket in 1910? The head of the ticket lived at Coopers and the true-blue ticket never got a single vote. Every kinky-head in the county should be well-enough informed to know that the true-blue Republicans never ran a ticket in 1910. Not wanting any division, we lay as meek as lambs and let the Reynolds crowd and the Democrats fight it out. If the judge was honest in making that false statement he is too ignorant to advise the heathens of Africa.

I have not said one-fourth as much as I want to say, but I am sure you will be crowded this week and I don't want to ask for much space.

I just hope the people will open their eyes before the blind lead them into another ditch as they did in 1912.

Thanking you in advance for your valuable space.

G. W. EDWARDS.

Atty. F.B. Collier Writes About One-Family Rule

Clanton, Ala., August 30, 1919.

To the Editor of the Union-Banner:

Judge Reynolds in his reply to my letters recently published in the county paper, says that my letter needs no reply, as it explains itself. Yet, notwithstanding that statement, he laboriously endeavors to further "explain" the letter, and consumes quite a lot of space when no necessity therefor was apparent. Some of his deductions are rather amusing. In one place he doubts my Republicanism; in another he, in a way, accuses me of having something to do with nominating "brother Bill" for the Legislature. It would seem to most people that, if I could take part in a Republican Convention, and urge and support the nomination of such a man as the Editor, or even the Judge's brother, that that would be pretty good evidence that I am a Republican. In other words, if I were to take such part in a Democratic convention, urge and support some Democrat, in the open, and the Republicans should find it out, I would then think that the "had the goods on me."

Records of Collier and Reynolds are Compared.

About the most unfair thing I have ever known the Judge to do is to attempt to belittle my efforts to become an officer in the army of the United States. But I am not altogether surprised at him for doing this knowing that in the beginning of the war he was only luke-warm in its support, and knowing how he felt towards those who gave up office and home to fight for and sustain the flag under which he lives. And while my service in the army may be, and perhaps was, small, yet it was a service gladly and ungrudgingly given. The sum total of all the acts and efforts, however, large or small, of all the patriots in this land was VICTORY, and I am proud that I assisted in sustaining the flag under which I live.

As to my failure to get commission at the officers' training camp, I will say that I did my utmost to make good. It is not every one who can become an efficient line officer in the United States army. Men are fitted for different and varying careers. I realized after I went to the training camp, that I was not adapted to make an efficient infantry officer. But I am glad to say that even though I could not measure up to what was required of an officer, I never hesitated as to what was my duty nor faltered in performing it. I am likewise proud that when I found I was not fitted for an officer's insignia, I was not too proud to don the garb of a private. And while my record may not be known to the Judge, the people of Clanton and Chilton County, know that I went to the army twice when I might have stayed at home. It is only fair to say that after entering the army the second time, within less than three months, I was recommended for a commission by my superior officer, in whose office I was assigned to duty, and who had reason to know my qualification, in which recommendation it was stated:

1. I recommend that Private, first class, Frank B. Collier, now on duty in this office, be commissioned First Lieutenant, Judge Advocate, and assigned to duty as Assistant Camp Judge Advocate, Camp Sheridan, Alabama.

2. During his service in this office he has demonstrated marked ability as a lawyer, pleasing personality and keen interest in the work of this department. I believe him fully qualified for the of fice."

The reason I was not commissioned, as recommended, was because the war department ceased to issue commissions after the signing of the armistice, except in cases where the applicant had been recommended prior thereto.

My record in the army is not conspicuous, but it is like the record of most of the men who left Chilton County to do what they could for their flag and homeland. None of us perhaps desired to go, and all would have preferred to remain at home, but when duty called, it was answered in the language of a patriot. None were in doubt as to their duty, and none failed in the full performance thereof.

But where, oh where, were the Judge's sons? Were they in the army, Mr. Editor? No, they were at home, in Chilton County, busy as ever, sucking the teat of the old County cow.

And yet, what a fault it was when I failed to get a commission!

I say that it is better to have loved my country and failed than never to have loved her at all!

Talk About Failures.

I have made an excellent living since I began the practice of law, and upon my own merits as a lawyer. It has never been necessary for me to hang around the pie counter operated by my pa to catch the crumbs that fall therefrom; nor has it been necessary for me to practice in home-made, family - brewed, jerk - water courts. And as to whether I am a failure in my profession as a lawyer, I am willing to submit the matter to the Members of the Bar of Alabama, to the Judges who sit upon the courts in which I practice, and to the long list of satisfied clients.

I would not mention the question of "failures" but for the fact that the judge refers to me as a failure in a professional way, and hereby endeavors to injure me in my profession. But, as the question is up, I would like to ask the judge how many failures there are in the Reynolds family—I mean financial failures, where the matters were aired in the bankruptcy courts. Mr. Editor, you will remember he said here were several failures. He knows the number, I do not, and I ask him, in confidence, to open up and tell us. I concede to him the right to ask me as to the financial failures in the Collier family; and in anticipaton of the queston, I answer that there were none.

A to the Craig Matter.

I desire to state that I have never at any time admitted to the Judge, or to anyone else, that I got up records and figures upon which Examiner Craig made an investigation. I did make a statement to the Judge that certain figures and records were gotten up by me for a party, who stated to me that his attorney in Birmingham was going to file a suit to invalidate certain bonds and warrants, if the records of the County showed that the Constitutional debt limit had been exceeded, and that when the figures and records were turned over to him, they were subsequently used for other purposes than for which they were gotten up. No other admission was made by me. The Judge never asked me about the matter, but at or about the time the Grand Jury was in session last September, I voluntarily went to the Judge and stated to him that in case I could assist him any way I would be glad to do so; that I felt there was nothing to the Craig examination, and that it was being carried too far. I really sympathized with the Judge and the commissioners and was glad that the grand jury viewed the matter as I did—that though they had, perhaps technically violated the letter of the law, no harm was done the county by their action.

The records that I got up embraced the assessed value of the county, which at that time, to-wit, January, 8th, 1918, was at or about $5,588,298.00, according to the certificate of the Board of Equalization. Records showing that $178,000 in bonds and $44,000 in time warrants had been issued and were then outstanding. That there was some $7,000 or $8,000 in warrants issued but not registered, making a total indebtedness of the county something like $229,000.00. I called the attention of this party to the fact that Secion 155 of the Code of Alabama provides that a county shall not become indebted to an amount greater than three and one-half per cent of the assessed value of the property therein, which would limit the county debt to about $196,000, and that the Constitutional debt limit had then been exceeded many hous-and dollars. I further showed that in the spring of 1917, a few months after the Judge had assumed office, the County Commissioners passed a resolution in which it was stated that the county had at that time exceeded the constitutional debt limit. However, notwithstanding this the Judge and the Commissioners continued to spend money.

I was advised later that when the party for whom the records and figures were gotten up showed the report to his attorney in Birmingham, the attorney stated that it was an impeachable offense for the Judge and County Commissioners to knowingly and willuflly exceed the Constitutional debt limit, as admitted in the resolution passed some time in the spring of 1917. As to this, however, I do not say, because I have not looked into the matter and am not interested in the point raised. It would seem, however, that if the Judge and County Commissioners could, at their own pleasure, exceed the Constitutional debt limit, as provided by law, then there would be no use for such a law. I will say this, that the law is clear as to the amount of indebtedness a county may incur; and, in this connection, I venture to suggest, that it would be interesting to know how much the county's outstanding indebtedness is at this time, even though that indebtedness was saddled upon the county by a Democratic regime.

The above constitutes all I have done upon which to base an "admission." What was done was done in the capacity of an attorney. It took me four hours to get up the data. I received $10.00 for getting the information.

In this connection, however, I desire to say that Examiner Craig had been in Clanton for many weeks before I knew he was here—and before I made any investigation for anyone. All the time he was here I never spoke to him, except perhaps to pass the greetings of the day; never furnished him any information directly or through another and had nothing whatever to do with his examination. I say this, however, not because I desire to deny a connection with it, but because it is true.

I give the Judge the benefit of the doubt and do not accuse him of intentionally misrepresenting me when he says that I admitted having a connection with the Craig affair. Our conversation was brief, voluntary on my part and without solicitation or interrogation on the part of Judge. But when he says that he already had ascertained that I had a connection, to-wit, that I furnished records and figures upon which the Craig investigation was made, I have to part company with him and say that if he obtains such information, it was false. I challenge him to show anything other than as here stated.

Thus it was I spoke to the Judge and made the famous "admisison".

About the County Treasurer's Job And the Insurance.

I was an applicant for county treasurer and I did not get the job. No one has ever heard me bitterly to complain, because of that "failure." Had Mr. Bice, Mr. Littlejohn or Mr. Harris received the job, I would never have said anything at all. I did not think the Judge's son was entitled to the place, for the reason that his father is Probate Judge and his uncle is a member of the Legislature. I have never doubted that he is qualified, and I assume that he will make a good treasurer. I think by reason of being an attorney, he is in position to be a better treasurer. The point with me is: I do not believe it party expediency to fill all the places of honor and trust with the members of one family. It may be all right, and if it suits the people for such matters to be done, I can stand what the majority want. Mr. M. D. Foshee, the friend of the Judge, knows better than anyone else whether I am sore. He has stated to me that he doesn't think I am sore on that account, and as he is the only person with whom I have talked at length concerning the treasurer's job, I am willing to leave it to him. Mr. Foshee suggested that I apply for the ob—while I was in the army—and I applied somewhat against my better judgment. I understood that the Judge's son would be an applicant and I reasonad with Mr. Foshee concerning the matter, thusly: "Grady will not apply for the ob unless the Judge is willing for him to have it. If he is willing for him to have it, the Judge can arrange for him to get it." I do not think the people of the county believe I was mistaken in either the hypothesis or the conclusion.

I feel the same way about the insurance. If I don't get the insurance, I am not going to be mad or sore. I can easily get along without the business. I see no immediate necessity for making arrangement to move to the "Huckabee Hotel." If there is another Republican who wants to write the insurance, I hope the commissioners will give him as much consideration as they have given me. I am not more entitled to the business than other Republicans. I do think, in view of all the facts, the Judge's son is not entitled to the business. He has done no more for the Republican party than some of us less conspicuous members; beside that he has heretofore written it once, and the members of his family are pretty well otherwise taken care of.

Republicanism and Pie.

I don't think I am a pie hunter. My appetite therefor has not been conspicuously in evidence at least since being in Chilton County. My family before me were not "pie eaters", but always voted the Republican ticket. My father had the distinction of having voted for every Republican presidentail candidate since Lincoln. He was well known in State Republican politics in the day. The Judge was acquainted with him and so were the Republican leaders of the State. Likewise, the Judge and Republican leaders of the State know me. We have never been in the pie business, but have held some places of trust and honor. But if there is any family in Chilton County who has eaten more "pie" for the past four years—since I have been in Chilton County,—than the Judge's sons, I would like to see the color of the eye of the "daddy" of the family. In fact the Judge and his sons have eaten so much pie people are beginning to suspect that they are affected with "tape worms."

I want it understood here and now that I want no office. I am not even laying any plans to be elected a delegate to any convention. In fact, I do not care for any political preferment, as I have a business in which I am making a living, and am fairly well contented with the prospect.

I do like to see real fairness in our party and consideration given to every Republican. I shall always stand for equal rights to all members of the party, and will always fight one-family rule.

Every loyal Republican in Chiton County stood by the Judge in his last campaign. How I stood was well-known to the judge. On election day I accompanied him in visitinb various polling places, and he expressed to me then his appreciation for my work and influence in his behalf, and he promised that he would be fair to everybody and would not use his office as a sword against his enemies or as a lever with which to prye for his family. The people know whether he has abided by those promises. It is true I did not make any speeches for the Judge. I was not requested to do so, but attended many meetings in his behalf, and at various time wrote and submitted resolutions to be passed by the convention or meetings. I felt that he had abler speakers to defend his record and to castigate that of his opponents. I have never declined an invitation to speak work, or otherwise assist my party in the time of need. I do know that I have contributed to the campaign fund, and only recently I contributed to a fund to send to the 7th Congressional District. The question is now raised for the first time, and for a purpose. It would certainly seem to fair-minded men that if my loyalty had ever been questioned, it would have been brought out long ago. The reason I took no part in the last campaign is very obvious to those who were concerned in the welfare of their country. I was in the army and it was against the policy of the War Department to permit its soldiery to engage in political discusions.

As to the "Dummy."

The Judge says there is no "dummy," but I insist that there is. I know well enough that the Republican party is virile and active, but I, likewise, know that the Judge hides behind the party when somebody gets after him. As to evidence of this, read his recent letter. He accuses me of stirring up party strife. I believe that I am telling the people the truth. His acts nor the acts of his sons are not the acts of the Republican party. They are not the Republican party, but only members thereof—just like myself and the other Republicans of the county. The truth should be known against office-holders, and I intend to tell the people as to the operation of the Judge's office. I submit that the Judge's sons, according to the "admission" of the Judge, have been "feeding" out of the public "crib." His only excuses therefor is that his sons take no more than some one else would take. I submit it to the fair-minded men of the county as to whether I am at fault, in exposing the matter, of they who "feed" from the public "crib."

If the Judge and his sons will cease to "feed" out of the public "crib" I will cease to mention the matter. Not only will I do this, but I will promise never to ask for any county patronage, will withdraw my application to write the fire insurance, and will co-operate in every manner possible with the Judge in doing what I can for the welfare of the county. It seems that I am more than meeting the Judge half-way, and if party harmony is desired, it is as much the Judge's duty to assist in bringing it about as it is mine.

I don't know what success the Judge has had in the past in forcing those who oppose him out of the party. I do say that I do not intend to be forced out of the party. I promise to adhere to its principles, be loyal to its traditions and steadfast in its support. It is my purpose, however, to continue to fight one family rule, but any fight I have to make will be made in the party. If his "nannie" can be gotten, and his sons driven away from the public "crib" it is my purpose to do so. If I fail, there will be another failure, but I will still be in the party. I see no more reason for quitting the Republican party because of personal and political differences than there is for quitting the Baptist Church because Deacon Jones is not likable. I, therefore, decline to leave the party on the invitation of those who would most like to see me go.

Collier not in League with Anyone.

I don't know what the issues were in 1910, as I was in the State of Tennessee most of that year. I do kknow I am in no wise connected with anyone carrying on that fight. I don't know anything about the Thorsby meeting, nor the true-blue party, nor its leaders. No one has suggested that I write the "famous letter"—as referred to by the Judge. I am the legitimate "daddy" of them—wrote them by my lone self, and have no apologies to make therefor. I desire it understood, too, that I am espousing the cause of no prospective condidate, and am not in league with any man or set of men; but am acting on my own initiative, and will continue to act and spetk when I feel that the welfare of my county demands it.

Reynolds has never Denied Collier's Charges.

I have taken up quite a bit of space in answering the points raised by the Judge in his reply to my first letter. His reply is only a reply—it is not an answer. He virtually admits all I have said. He fails to stick to the points raised by me, but strikes below the belt by referring to me as a failure as a lawyer, a failure in the army, and a man nursing a sore toe. If I am a failure in any line, that is no argument for turning the county over to the Judge and his sons, to be used for themselves as they see fit. The judge would not allow a witness in his court to evade or equivocate on the witness stand, yet he does that very thing when I place him on the stand. The jury—the people—know that he has not answered me, but has raised points not involved in the discussion. Have you ever noticed that the Judge won't talk about what you are talking about, especially when his side of the controversy looks a little muddy?

I think the Judge is capable of making an efficient official if he would shake off the shackles of family favoritism that now bind him.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for publishing this, I am, with good wishes,

Yours very tryly,
F. B. COLLIER.

DESERVED RECOGNITION

Washington, Sept. 2.—(Special)—A bill to give Gen. Crowder the rank of lieutenant general when he goes on the retired list has been introduced by Senator Knox. The measure recites Crowder's "conspicuous services as Provost Marshal General" in the adminitration of the selective service law, and states that the promotion is due to his efficient work in that connection.

CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL OPENED ON LAST MONDAY

The Clanton Grammar School opened Monday morning under very promising circumstances. There were more than 230 pupils enrolled. Quite a large number of citizens and patrons were present at the opening.

Prof. C. V. Thompson of the High School made an interesting talk to the audience at the opening. His expressions were full of logic and good advice, and gives us sufficient reason to believe that our county High School has at its head a man who is both willing and capable of keeping the educational progress of Chilton County on the up grade.

Dr. Ernest C. Maye, the beloved pastor of the Clanton Methodist Church, graced the opening of the school with his presence, and as is always his custom, lent encouragment to the pupils and patrons of the school by a short address that was timely and well-taken.

With two exceptions the faculty of the school is the same this year as it was last. Prof. J. L. Johnson, the popular principal is there again, beginning his fourth year with this school. Miss Mary Timmerman of Prattville has charge of the Firth Grade and part of the Sixth. Miss Bessie Thomas of Clanton has charge of the Fourth and part of the Third grade. Mrs. F. B. Collier of Clanton has charge of the Second and part of the Third grade. Miss Icelo Williams has the first grade. Mrs. B. M. Roberts of Clanton is in charge of the music department.

The school is free to all children inside of Clanton District.

GIVE FARMER A CHANCE

Senator S. C. Page of Vermont has received a letter from the Commissioner of Agriculture of that State strongly remonstrating against the re-establishment of the Food Administration. The writer recommends that the price of food be allowed to rise to a point where the farmer can hire sufficient labor to produce those commodities. When that is done he thinks increased production will solve the food problem. The letter has been referred to the Agricultural Committee with the suggestion that its author be subpoenaed and asked to testify on his remedies for the high cost of living.

Uncle Mose Robinson of Beat 16 was in Clanton a few days this week visiting at the home of his son, J. E. Robinson.

Democratic Party Torn Asunder By Wilson-ism

Washington Correspondent Sees Disintegration Approaching.

POLITICAL SKY UNPROPITIOUS

Signs and Portents of Sombre Omen Foretell Disruption Before Coming Campaign.

That the Democratic party is headed for a disastrous split over the Wilsonian policies and that the split is bound to manifest itself in the near future is the opinion of the Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Sun expressed in a special dispatch to that newspaper.

According to the Evening Sun's correspondent the split is bound to come sooner than most people at the present anticipate and it will be of a violence that will shake the party to its foundations and make absolutely impossible the election of any Democratic candidate in 1920.

The Democratic managers are alive to the seething discontent with their party which is manifesting itself in all sections of the country and they are today frantically endeavoring to find means for checking this and overriding the growing opposition to Wilson and all things Democratic.

While there is apparent calm in some Democratic strongholds it is the dead and sullen calm before the storm and it does not lighten the lowering clouds which are sweeping over the administration from every part of the land.

In Massachusetts the most prominent Democrats in the State have openly repudiated Wilson and, it is said, that many of them will even vote the Republican ticket to show their disapproval of some of his policies.

In Missouri, Senator James A. Reed, the most powerful Democrat in the State, is revolting against the President and has virtually been read out of the party by the Democratic State Committee.

The displeasure with which Kentuckians view the Administration is indicated by the election of a Republican to Congress from a district that is normally Democratic by 3,000 majority.

The frantic efforts of the Democrats of Alabama to retain for their party the seat in Congress formerly held by the late John Burnett indicate that the Republicans' claim that they will carry the Seventh District is well founded.

There are many Democrats in both the Senate and House who are ready to abandon Wilson, and in Texas former Senator Bailey is attempting to from a new Democratic party in opposition to Mr. Wilson's personally conducted Democratic party.

Senator Pomerene of Ohio, a Democrat, charges the President with cowardice in dealing with the railroad situation and defies him to pass the buck on the Brotherhood denamnds to Congress.

Throughout the North there is a campaign of denunciation to the president's stand on the Irish question while in all sections of the country business men in the Democratic party are chafing at the president's tendencies to put all business under government control.

As further evidence of the growing dissatisfaction with the Democratic party the country as a whole, has an idea that profiteering and the high cost of living might have been abated months ago had the president stayed at home and attended to domestic questions instead of spending his time in the clouds with his League of Nations ideal.

As an evidence of the feeling against Mr. Wilson within his own party, it is stated that almost all of the Southern Democrats in the Senate and House cordially despise the Wilson principles. They are for States right they assert, and they are opposed to seeing the entire government turned over to the president.

These are the signs, according to the Sun's correspondent, that are plain to every politician in Washington and they indicate implacably the coming chaos in the Democrat party.

GROVER HARRIS SELECTED TEMPORARY POSTMASTER

The postoffice department has granted to Grover C. Harris, carrier on Rural Route 3 from Clanton, leave of absence from his duties on the rural route, to look after the duties of postmaster at Clanton, pending the outcome of the matter of appointment of one of the applicants for the job. Grady Harris has been acting postmaster since the death of Mr. Robinson. He has resumed his duties as carrier on Route No. 1.

Railroading the Treaty

Washington, Aug. 25.—Having exhausted his imagination in conjuring up defenses for the league of nations, Senator Hitchcock is now busying himself in berating the Foreign Relations Committee for what he chooses to term its lack of action on the treaty. "A new issue was raised," modestly declares the Wilson spokesman, "when I asked the Chairman of the Foreign Relation Committee and majority members when they proposed to get action." That was indeed a 'new issue' for nobody else has exhibited any impatience over the time consumed by the committee in studying and gathering information on the treaty for submission to the Senate.

"For five weeks," continues the indignant Mr. Hitchcock, "the treaty has been in cold storage without a vote or any other action." Evidently he would have the country believe that the impressive document was tucked away in a pigeon hole while committee members disported themselves at golf or at the seashore. But the opposite is the truth. Almost daily meetings of the committee have been held, at which have appeared Secretary Lansing, Mr. Baruch, Mr. Norman Davis, Mr. Bradley Palmer, and other gentlemen intimately connected with the framing of the technical provisions of the treaty. They have explained the reasons for the language used, and further expert testimony is expected on other phases of the document. This is the only method at the command of the committee for extracting its information. Soon after the treaty was given to the Senate a resolution was adopted requesting the president to submit the famous Bliss letter on the Shantung settlement, the discarded American draft of the league covenant, all the proceedings, debates, etc., of the special commission that framed the league, and, in general, "all data bearing upon or used in connection with the treaty of peace with Germany now pending."

The president could have materially expedited the report of the committee by promptly replying to its request. Instead of doing so, however, he waited for over three weeks and then said that he was unable to supply anything that the committee did not already know except the American draft of the covenant. Meanwhile Col. House, who, next to the president, has a closer knowledge of the deliberations of the conference than any other man stays in England.

The country vividly remembers that Mr. Wilson spent seven long monhs, with the aid of more than a thousand experts, in preparing the treaty. Now, Mr. Hitchcock would have the Senate, co-equal with if not superior to the president in the treaty-making power, pass upon he undertaking at once, scarcely giving time for a single intelligent reading of its involved provisions, and with no attempt to acquaint themselves with the considerations that controlled the actions of the American delegation.

Senator Hitchcock and the league forces whose mouthpiece he is, are acutely aware of the fact that in public ignorance lies the only thread of hope for the success of their schemes to submarine American popular government. They know that every day that sheds more light on the real meaning of the league and treaty and the devious methods employed by the president and his colleagues in writing them, means a further waning of their cause in the minds of the people. Just as the uresident sought to deny to Americans, through the censored cables, all knowledge of what he was doing in Paris, so his friends now seek to railroad the treaty thru the Senate before the people have a chance to be informed of its terms.

Second grade—Akins Collins, Clanton Route 4; Irene Jones, Clanton; Roscoe Maddox, Jemison, Route 1; Emma Rawlinson, Pletcher; Wm. M. Rogers, Thorsby.

Third Grade—Charlie D. Hughes, Verbena, Route 2; Stanley N. Davis, Clanton, Route 6.

WORKING CAMPAIGN AT FRIENDSHIP CHURCH

Friendship Baptist Church in East Clanton is going to put on a working campaign all next week, beginning on Sunday night. Rev. W. P. Lowery will preach every night; during days appeals will be carried from the church right into the homes of the community in the interest of better support to the church and more consecrated religious devotion. This is not a protracted revival, as that was held a few weeks ago, but it is merely to awaken interest among the members of the neighborhood.

We invite all Baptist people to come and be with us and help us in our efforts to render a better and more effective service in the great cause of the Master.

COMMITTEE INSPECTS OUR COUNTY POOR HOUSE

David Childress and N. A. Kicker, two of the committee of the Chilton County Grand Jury, appointed by Judge McCord at the regular February term of the Circuit Court, to inspect the county poor house visited said institution on the 15th of August, according to their duties prescribed in their appointment. Their report rendered to the Probate Judge on September 1st, states that they found the alms house and conditions surrounding the same in fairly good shape. They state that the inmates have plenty to eat and are otherwise fairly well cared for and pravided for. The inmates told the committee, according to the report, that they were receiving good, kind treatment.

The above report is in keeping with the record that has always been made by Mr. W. A. Huckabee ever since he has been in charge of the county poor farm. We are glad that the county has such a man to look after its poor and needy old people.

SELL COTTON SLOWLY

There will not be a big cotton crop made this year. On July 25 the department of Agriculture estimated it at 11,016,000 bales, and because of heavy rains and unprecedented boll weevil activity, it may fall well under this figure. The shipping situation is getting better, and at an early date Continental European mills will probably be taking large quantities of cotton.

All this means that if cotton prices break to unprofitably now levels it will be the cotton growers' fault; for he has the market in his own hands, to make or mar. Even with a small crop, by dumping it all on the market as fast as it is picked, prices may be forced so low that there will be no profit to the grower. On the other hand, if farmers adopt the plan of gradual marketing, feeding the market each month only so much as it will take at good prices, the market will be stabilized and the grower assured of a fair return for his year's work.

Prices of cotton goods are so high that the spinner can pay even 50 or 60 cents a pound for raw cotton and make a fair profit. We are convinced that growers, on an average, must get at least 40 cents for cotton to make any profit, and thousands and thousands of farmers in the flood and weevil-stricken sections must get even more if they break even on their year's work.

STAND FIRM; SELL SLOWLY; AND DON'T SELL A POUND FOR LESS THAN COST OF PRODUCTION PLUS A FAIR PROFIT. ON AN AVERAGE, THIS MEANS 40 CENTS.—Progressive Farmer.

LAW MUST BE CHANGED

In the administration of the so-called Mann white-slave law frequent complaints have been heard that the act was taken advantage of by unscrupulous persons for blackmailing unsuspected men and women. Recently a grand jury in Florida went to the extent of adopting resolutions asking Congress to make needed amendments to the law. The suggested changes have been placed in the hands of Congressman Volstead, the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, for his consideration. It is understood that Representative Mann never thought the courts would interpret the law as they have, nor was it the intention of Congress to have it so construed.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT

State of Alabama, Chilton County. Circuit Court in Equity.

Rosa Brooks, Complainant; Lewis Brooks, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of G.C. Walker, Solicitor for Complainant, that the Defendant is a non-resident and that his place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of aid affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said Lewis Brooks, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 20th day of September, 1919, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this, the 20th day of August, 1919.

VERBENA MAY GET BANK

D. F. Green, state superintendent of banks, was in conference Monday morning with parties from Verbena, relative to establishing a banking institution at that place. It is the desire of the people of Verbena to organize a bank with a capital of $15,000, and begin operation of this agricultural section. The graphite business near Verbena has also grown to such proportions that a bank there would greatly facilitate this industry.

Be Strong

Strength of body, strength of nerves, strength of mind, depend very largely on whether you have enough iron in your blood. The world makes way for the strong people and they generally get what they want, out of life. Pale, weak, sickly, nervous, peevish, thin, dyspeptic individuals, need iron to build them up.

ZIRON IRON TONIC

will put iron into your blood and help restore your health and strength. Eminent physicians agree as to the vital need of iron by the run-down system. ZIRON will give it to you.

J. E. Clifton, R. F. D. 3, Lyons, Ga., writes: "Last summer I had typhoid fever and had hemorrhages . . . and my health was wretched. I seemed to be unable to get my strength back. I had no appetite. I had no energy. I didn't think I was ever going to get well. My knees were weak, my flesh felt clammy. I was in a pretty bad condition. I heard of ZIRON and what a good tonic and strengthener it was and I sent for it at once. It helped me, I began to improve, and soon felt much better and stronger. My nerves were strengthened and I felt like doing something. We have nothing but words of praise for ZIRON". Try ZIRON.

COST OF UNPREPAREDNESS

Investigation of ordinance expenditures in the War Department by a sub-committee of the House has revealed the fact that only 481 guns were delivered in France after expending $1,181,182,850. Only 72 American-made guns reached the front. This would mean that from the standpoint of results, for results could only be counted by the number of guns actually engaged in the fighting, each one of these guns cost the government about $15,000,000. Out of the total of 20,000 guns of all descriptions contracted for only 4,082 were finished at the signing of the armistice, only 181 had been shipped to France and but 72 reached the front. It was also shown by the departments own figures that the result of the $2,173,054,546, expended for munitions was actual delivery of just enough shells to last a little more than a day's artillery preparation for a big battle

BACK ACHE ALL THE TIME SAYS WELL KNOWN MAN

Kidneys did not Act freely, and Rhumatism Attacked Him—Tells How Dreco, the Herbal Remedy, Gave Quick Relief.

To all kho are troubled with the twisting, dragging pains of rhumatism, or the distresing, painful symptoms of kidney disorders, here is a message from a fellow-ufferer that will carry its own lesson.

This is what Mr. W. I. Morgan, foreman Woodstock Cotton Mills, Anniston, Ala., says:

"For a number of years I have suffered from rhumatism and awful pain in my back and limbs. Sometimes it seemed I could not keep at work for these terrible pains. My appetite fell off and I didn't sleep well, and was bothered with constipation very much. Recently my oints and hands began to swell up and were very painful, and my muscles ached. I had about decided that I couldn't get straight again, as everything I had tried had failed. A friend asked me one day why I didn't give Dreco a trial, as it was working wonders with many people. I bought a bottle, and it helped me so much I got the second and it is truly wonderful the good it has done me. The swelling is all gone and the pains have left me. My appetite has returned; I sleep sound, and am entirely relieved of constipation. Dreco has surely helped me when other things have failed, and I don't hesitate to speak a good word for it."

Dreco is a combination of juices and extracts of many different roots, herbs, barks and beries, which act directly upon the liver, kidneys, bladder, stomach and blood, and banishes from the system many ailments, such as rhumatism, catarrh, biliousness, nrvousness, headaches, los of appetite, indigetion, gas on the stomach, eczema, skin eruptions, gout, epilepsy, and constipation, when given a fair trial.

Dreco is sold by all druggists, and is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

Tom McKee, a good Democrat, who lives on Route 5 subscribed for the Union-Banner one day last week. He said he didn't like our politics, but wanted the paper for the county's news. That's all right, Tom. We believe in a fellow being what he is all the time all over the world. So you can ust read the county news in the Banner every week and leave off the political readin'—if you want to. But it is all mighty good for sinners who will take the medicine. We believe it is never too late for a fellow to see the error of his way, make repentance and land safely on the banks of sweet deliverance.

You Can't Cure Rheumatism With Liniments and Lotions

If you are afflicted with Rheumatism, why waste time with liniments, lotions and other local applications that never did cure Rheumatism, and never will?

Do not try to rub the pain away, for you will never succeed. Try the sensible plan of finding the cause of the pain. Remove the cause, and there can be no pain.

You will never be rid of Rheumatism until you cleanse your blood of the germs that cause the disease. S. S. S. has no equal as a blood purifier, scores of sufferers say that it has cleansed their blood of Rheumatism, and removed all trace of the disease from their system.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at your drug store and get on the right treatment to-day. If you want special medical advice, address Medical Director, 49 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

MR. J. G. GRIMES COMMENTS ON ODD-FELLOWS' ACTION

Dora, Ala., August 28, 1919.

Dear Editor:

Your valuable paper fell into my hands—a copy of the 14th inst., handed to me by on Odd Fellow. I saw an article headed "Odd-Fellows Fall Into A Snare." I must take off my hat to the writer of this article. And to start with, I want to say that I don't believe there is an Odd Fellow in the State of Alabama that believes in bringing political business into the Grand Lodge. I want it understood further that the writer of this article, while a member of the Grand Lodge and also an officer of the same, that I did not vote on this question nor did I vote against it, for it was brought before that august body when a number of us were absent. I was not a representative from my Lodge, but a representative from an adjacent Lodge—Wyatt Lodge No. 94. The Lodge did not say a word to me about adopting the League of Nations, neither did my Lodge intend for its representatives, Bro. D. D. Harper, to vote for or against the League of Nations. I understand that this resolution was drafted and presented to the Grand Lodge by one of the State Grand Lodge Officers of the I.O. O.F. And I wish to say just here that any Odd Fellow that will bring a resolution to adopt the League of Nations or any other matter, political or religious, either in the sub-ordinate or Grand Lodge of Alabama, is no more fit to be an officer of the Grand Lodge than a billy goat has to be toast master at a Sunday School picnic.

I want to state further that the Grand Lodge of Alabama has been too heavy with politics for a number of years until the Hon. Palmer Daugette's administration. And this is one of the reasons that we lost one thousand members every year. Under Bro. Daugette's administration we gained membership. We gained in finance, we gained in knowledge. I have been contented with Bro. Daugette for a long time; have met him in several lodges and conventions. But he never mentioned the League of Nations in or out of the Lodge.

In conclusion, Bro. Odd Fellow, let us vote for Grand Lodge officers that will send resolutions of political nature through a political channel and not through the I. O. O. F.

Yours truly,

J. G. GRIMES, Grand Conductor.

L. P. MARTIN ENDORSES OUR EDITORIAL ON ODD-FELLOWS

Dora, Ala., August 27, 1919.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to what was said in last week's paper about the Odd Fellows of Alabama endorsing the League of Nations

I hereby endorse everything that was said in your paper against that. I was certainly glad to know that you Mr. Editor, had the nerve and backbone to tell the people of Chilton County that the Odd Fellows,—real true Odd Fellows, do not believe that this resolution should have been passed in the Grand Lodge, and as I am now not a citizen of Chilton County, but I am with a live bunch of Odd Fellows in Walker County, that are doing some real work in Odd Fellowship. I have shown this issue of your paper to a number of people over here and they all endorse what was said about the resolution being passed, that it should not have been done. And they also compliment both you and your paper and thank you for the stand you have taken in this matter.

I say this does not met the approval of, I'll say, one-tenth of the Odd Fellows of Alabama, and I say that it should be changed or repealed some way. I am speaking the sentiment of some of the best true Odd Fellows I ever saw.

This being my first time in life to try to write to any paper for publication, I will close for fear this goes to the waste basket.

Wishing the Union-Banner and its many readers much happiness and success.

THORSBY ITEMS

Thorsby Institute will open September 10, Wednesday of next week. A good attendance is expected.

Mr. D. J. Flummer, and daughter, Miss Gladys, Mr. Felix Eiland, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Pyper, Mr. W. M. McCain, and Miss Ida Lockwood, were delegates from the Thorsby Sunday Schools to the County Convention held at Mulberry on August 29th.

The Clanton Association of Congregational Churches will meet in annual session with the Stony Point Church, two miles west of Deatsville, Friday of this week. There will be three sessions daily, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Robert Johnson has just returned from a combined business and pleasure trip in the West. He was accompanied home by his daughter, Mrs. Edward Burgess, and her little son and daughter, of Venango, Neb.

Mr. Albert Peterson, who has been in the service of the U. S. Navy for several years, surprised his friends by bringing home a bride last week. The happy couple are guests of Mr. Peterson's parents in Thorsby, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Peterson. Mrs. Peterson was formerly Miss Loretta Flynn of New York City.

Miss Agnes Leary is expected home this week from a two-month's visit with relatives and friends in Mobile.

Rev. A. J. Holman of Seman is in Thorsby looking for a place to locate his family, as he wishes his boys and girls to get the benefit of the good school opportunities here.

Mrs. Gerald and daughters, Misses Agnes and Mary Ella, spent the week end with friends near Calera.

Farmers are making much of the few days sunshine and are very busy pulling fodder and getting in hay. Cotton is opening and will soon be ready for the first picking.

Miss Helen Jenkins, principal of the Institute, who has been spending the summer vacation with her parents in Demorest, Ga., will return to Thorsby this week.

Rev. E. W. Butler and Miss May Stoddard will attend the Clanton Association near Deatsville this week.

Dr. Howard Junkerman is in Cincinnati on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hansen, of Hugo, Okla., who have been the guests for several weeks of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Peterson, returned home last week.

Miss Jola Gerald returned Monday from a visit with her brother and family in Clanton.

Regular preaching services at the Baptist and Congregational churches next Sunday. Young Peoples Societies will meet at all three churches at the usual hour.

Mrs. Chas. Howard has had as her guests this week her brother and sister, Mr. John and Miss Clara Husby, both former students at the Institute. Mr. Husby has just returned from nearly two years of active overseas service. Miss Clara has been spending her summer vacation visiting friend in New York State. They left Thorsby Monday for their home in St. Elmo, Ala.

Miss Rachel Peterson, who has been spending the summer with her grandmother, Mrs. Carl Peterson, will return to Cullman this week to enter school.

Mrs. L. C. Robinson entertained the Baptist Ladies Aid at her home last Wednesday. After the business sesion an hour was spent socially. Delightful refrehments were served. The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Pyper.

Mr. J. L. Winslow left Sunday morning for a business and pleasure trip in Indiana. He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Luella, who will enter Earlham College, Earlham, Ind., after a short visit with relatives and friends enroute.

Thanks to our genial and industrious Street Commissioner, Mr. J. H. Goddard, Thorsby streets are being well looked after. What Mr. Goddard cannot succeed in getting done otherwise, he does himself, and as a result of recent labors with scythe and other implements of warfare against weeds and briers, Mr. Goddard is the happy possessor of several blisters which he is produly displaying to his friends. It is hoped that others will emulate his worthy example.

KNOX SEES A FUTURE CONFLICT HIDDEN IN THE PRESENT PEACE

Believes it Possible to Avoid Centuries of Blood Letting.

PEOPLE AWAKENING TO ISSUES

Little by Little Facts About Versailles Conference are Being Brought to Light.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Asserting that the pending treaty will lay the foundation "for centuries of blood letting," Senator Knox criticized features of the treaty in severe terms. He held the United States should refuse to become a party to the settlement and should make a separate peace with Germany. "I see no reason," said Senator Knox, "Why we should be parties to imposing upon Germany a treaty whose terms, our negotiators say, she will not be able to meet; a treaty that robs our ancient friend, China, in a way disapproved by o ur own negotiators; a treaty that lays the foundation for centuries of blood letting into which we should not be drawn; a treaty, that, contrary to our own judgment fails to fix the amount of indemnity to be paid, leaving that vast question to the whim of a majority of a commission on reparations; a treaty predicted upon the assertion that a stricken and helpless world requires our counsel and our support, but leaves to the beneficiaries the decision as to the measure and character of the benefactions they are to receive; a treaty that with ominous words presages our involvement in the eruption of suppressed volcanic world conditions; a treaty that would require us to underwrite all the regional understandings between nations recognized by the league, most of which are based upon oppression of weaker nations, many of which are as yet secret and undisclosed, and when disclosed, might drive us to acts of injustice similar to that in which the President himself were waking to the true purports the facts about the Versailles negotiations leaked out. "Little by little," continued Senator Knox, "they are bringing divulgence of the facts connected with the treaty and there may new hope finally to see the whole of the great gaunt tragedy into view those whom they have charged with protecting them were about to betray them." What i s it about these things that the people cannot know? What is there to hide from them? Must we take this thing, as the German people must take it, unsight and unseen? Are we to be no more adventured than our fallen enemy?

WHY BE PARTICEPS CRIMINIS?

Friends of the peace treaty in the Senate contend that it would avail nothing if the United States amended the treaty so as to provide for the return of Shantung to China instead of to Japan. They claim that when the treaty is ratified by three powers it becomes operative, and that the United States would have no authority to compel a change in its terms relating to the disposition of foreign territory. Very well, then, why not strike out all reference to Shantung? We have sympathy for China in being robbed of possessions rightly hers but the American people would scarcely want to go to war with Japan to make her relinquish her Shantung claims, particularly when she is supported in them by England, France, Italy, and other nations. Neither does America want to give assent to the transaction by ratifying the treaty as it stands. The only logical course for the senate to pursue is to wipe the whole section from the treaty and put upon other nations the responsibility for whatever action is taken.

Clanton Mercantile Company invites you to come to their Fall Opening on Wednesday, September 17. They will have something interesting for you.

ALABAMA SOLDIER'S MEMORIAL CAMPAIGN IN CHILTON COUNTY

If Chilton County is going to subscribe anything toward the Alabama Soldiers Memorial Building to be erected on the Capital grounds in Montgomery, it must be done and done right away. The time will soon be out and it is necessary for us to do what we are going to do now.

County Superintendent of Education Howard L. Foshee, is in charge of the campaign to raise the Chilton County quota, and he has set the date of the campaign September 15 to September 20th. During these dates the several District chairmen throughout the county will accept subscriptions to the Memorial fund. Chilton County had 771 men in the service during the recent war, and we are expected to pay into the memorial fund six dollars for each of these men. This will make our part of the amount be $4,626.00.

The campaign has been thoroughly organized by the chairman with a local chairman of the drive in each school district in the county. Anyone who desires to subscribe to the fund may do so in his own school district by getting in touch with his district chairman.

Remember this is the last chance and if Chilton County is going to have a part in the erection of the soldiers memorial it must be done now. This campaign was due to have been put on the week of June 27 to July 4th. Owing to the misfit in the plans in this county it was delayed until this time.

CONFERENCE MEETING AT UNION POINT CHURCH

There will be a Conference Meeting at Union Point Church, near Coosa River, next Sunday, September 14, services to begin at 11:00 o'clock. Everybody interested has a cordial invitation.

JOHNNIE MINER.

NOT PRACTICING HIS PRECHING

With full authority to act in reducing the high cost of living, Mr. Wilson made the House of Representatives remain in session after all plans had been arranged for a vacation, on the plea that more legislation might be needed. Now, he himself is on a 25-day trip, conveniently forgetful of the fact that in him alone rests the power to put into effect the acts passed by Congress for the control of the food supply, exports of necessities, price fixing, and all other considerations that enter into the cost of living.

Miss Sammie Caton is spending a week with Mrs. Maggie Edwards this week.

NOTICE BANK ORGANIZATION

Notice is hereby given of the intention to organize and incorporate a Bank for the purpose of engaging in the banking business under the laws of the State of Alabama.

The names of the proposed incorporators and stockholders are as follows: D. I. Deramus; S. L. Gibson; H. B. Oliver; W. A. Gulledge; H. T. Williams, and associates. The name of the corporation is as follows: "Bank of Verbena;" the place where said corporation proposes to do business is Verbena, Chilton County, State of Alabama; the amount of capital paid in with which the said bank will commence business is Fifteen thousand ($15,000.00) Dollars.

This, the 6th day of Sept., 1919.

ANOTHER FOURTEEN POINTS

Here are fourteen points against the ratification of the Peace Treaty:

1. The Shantung provision is international piracy, bringing dishonor to any nation party to it.

2. Great Britain is given six votes to America's one, without justification in reason.

3. By entering the League America would abandon her traditional policy on non-interference in European affairs.

4. The Monroe Doctrine would be subject to interpretation by the League Council, as asserted by British officials without contradiction.

5. The United States would be bound to maintain armies in Europe to regulate purely European affairs.

6. Our constitutional provisions that Congress shall have power to raise armies would be violated.

7. Domestic questions, such a immigration, tariff, and coastwise trade will come within the jurisdiction of the League if the foreign council so decides.

8. Insignificant nations, like Liberia, Hedjaz, etc., would have voting power in the assembly equal with the United States.

9. The United States would be bound to preserve the territorial integrity and political independence of every member of the league, many of them monarchies.

10. By bringing the charge that it involves a threat of war, any nation could require the United States to submit any quesion to the League for decision.

11. Article 23 requiring free transit and equitable treatment of commerce could be construed to forbid protective tariffs.

12. America, industrially and financially strong, would become the burden-bearer of the world.

13. The league covenant obligates the United States to give full and frank information concerning industries adaptable to war-like purposes, thus putting American industry at a disadvantage, since most important industries are of such character.

14. America has nothing to gain and much to lose by entering the league.

Prof. F. B. Williams, teacher of the Littlejohn School was a callelr at the Union-Banner office last Saturday. He stated that his school had closed and expressed very high praise and commendation for the people of that community for the pleasant and valuable co-operation they have given in his work there this summer.

Robert Bean brought the Union-Banner a potato Tuesday that weighed two pounds and ten ounces.

We call attention of our readers to the advertisement of J. R. Broadhead and Sons in this issue of the Union-Banner. This firm is in shape to offer their trade some attractive bargains this fall. It will pay you to see them when you are in town.

Dr. Middleton S. Barnwell, Dr. Henry M. Edmonds, Judge Sam D. Murphy, Rabbi Morris Newfield (in uniform), well known directors of Alabama Children's Aid Society.

"Alabama's Charity for Alabama's Own"

An announcement of much interest has just been made to the effect that four very prominent Alabamians have pledged themselves to tour the state in the interest of Alabama's childhood. These men, Dr. Middleton S. Barnwell, Dr. Henry M. Edmonds, Judge Samuel D. Murphy and Rabbi Morris Newfield, have donated their services to this much needed work and will carry their messages to the people all over the state. The work is under the auspices of the Alabama Children's Aid Society, an organization of noble men and women working to reduce the debris on the sea of human life at that time in life when such work may be most effective—the period of childhood. The work is in connection with the campaign undertaken by the Society to raise $30,000 to carry on its endeavors and it goes without saying that the people of Alabama will respond as Alabamians always have.

Dr. Barnwell's itinerary is Northern Alabama, embracing the counties Lamar, Fayette, Walker, Blount, St. Clair, Talladega, Cleburne and all counties north of that line. Dr. Edmonds, Dr. Newfield and Judge Murphy will cover the principal towns and cities in Central and Southern Alabama. Engagements have already been closed for Dallas, Tuscaloosa, Pickens, Marengo, Pike, Houston, Barbour, Conecuh, Escambia, Butler, Mobile, Montgomery and Shelby.

The Alabama Childrens Aid Society is an interdenominational association, state-wide in its scope, thorough in its work and vital in its essentials. "They do for the appealing, innocent, helpless children of Alabama what you would do if you had the time."

The society is supported entirely by voluntary contributions and during its existence has helped hundreds of homeless babies to find permanent, happy homes. The work is not confined to infants alone, but dependent, despairing childhood of all ages are sought out, cared for and prepared for the battle of life. It is confidently expected that thoughtful Alabamians will rally to the support of this most worthy institution and that the sum asked for will be speedily and easily raised.

LETTER FROM MR. B. E. COLLUM

Union-Banner:

Please give me space in the Union-Banner to express my understanding. I have been asked by many people as to the Grand Lodge of I.O.O.F., which met in Birmingham on August 5 and 6, as to their adopting the League of Nations.

In the afternoon of the first day I answered the roll called until it adjourned, and I failed to hear the League of Nations adopted. I did understand this: The Grand Lodge asked the Lodge to adopt the administration of our president by a vote of I's and No's, and declared the I's have it, in which was correct according to the votes of the Lodge.

We believe our I.O.O.F. Lodge is made up of good honest people who look before they step and think before they speak as the all-seeing eye is ever upon us. I want to say that we cannot adopt something that we do not understand. The League of Nations may be for our good but this we do not know, and it is against our order to bring political subjects into it. And should the Grand Lodge adopt the League of Nations it would have been a political move and not complying with the order, and is also a violation of the order; so Brothers, let us be careful as to what we say and adopt.

As we have give our blood, talent and money, and everything that has been asked for, in order that we may be free, let us understand what the League of Nations stand for before adopting it. Talk about freedom since the war was declared against Germany, I.m afraid to attend to my own business. There has never been a time in our history that we had as many laws to comply with as we have today. We Odd Fellows stand for great and noble things and when we adopt anything we want it to be not only for the good of our order but for all mankind; and when I read Bro. J. G. Grimes' letter followed by Bro. L. P. Martin of Dora, Ala., It makes me feel good to know that there are other Odd Fellows that felt and understood things as I did at the Grand Lodge.

Now, Brother Odd Fellows, let us get pep enough in us to burn out the things which sometimes come in our order and cultivate things which make men social and humane. Now brothers, let us stay inside of our order and not bring things in it that our laws forbid, that united we stand and divided we fall—that in union there is strength. Now, boys, we have fought a good fight and let us keep the faith of our order.

I am thankful for other things in our order and that is we have a way of letting our ladies share with us, and the greatest of all, look at the home prepared and filled with the orphans of Odd Fellows.

In conclusion, I must say that when you read the I.O.O.F. which is an independent order of Odd Fellows it means all it stands for.

Now, Mr. Editor, if Bro. Reynolds and Bro. Collier are through shooting you may load the gun with this empty shell. With best wishes to the Union-Banner and its readers, I am,

Very sincerely,
B. E. COLLUM.

"I have been bad off with stomach and liver trouble and bloating for many years. No doctors or medicine helped me. On the advice of my druggist I bought a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy(and I don't want to miss a single dose. It has given me more benefit than all the medicine I have ever taken. I feel I am doing good to recommend it to others." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

WILL MANTLE OF MR. WILSON FALL UPON SON IN LAW McADOO?

Widespread in Capital That Enormous Campaign Fund is to Help McAdoo.

NEPOTISM WOULD JOLT MANY

If President Throws Influ[illegible] Relative Prospects [illegible] Grow [illegible]

Washing[illegible] ept. 9.—Is it the huge cam[illegible] fund of $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 which the Democratic National Committee intends to raise to be used, along with whatever machinery is at the National Committees command, to bring about the nomination of William G. McAdoo?

This question has been raised here by a story published in a pro-Administration newspaper to the effect that National Chairman Cummings who has been going the rounds of the States with a corps of organizers, has really been seeking to impress upon party leaders the idea that Mr. McAdoo is the man for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1920. Mr. Cummings and his aides have been touring the land at the expense of the national committee.

The gossip has gained added interest from the fact that Mr. McAdoo paid a visit to Washington this week and had a long conference with President Wilson, has father-in-law.

It has been well understood here for some time that many of the strong influences within the Democratic organization were favorable to Mr. McAdoo provided the President did not seek a third term, in which case, of Course, the President would control the machinery. It goes without saying that the story about the National Committee activity will be interesting if no pleasant reading for such aspirants for White House honors as Attorney General Palmer, Secretary Baker, Secretary Deniels, Governor Cox of Ohio, Senator Owen of Oklahoma, Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, Senator Pomerene of Ohio, and other candidates.

Is it possible the "double cross" is being utilized in this manner right in the very inner circles of the administration?

What seems to be needed is to have Mr. Burleson or some disinterested party establish a mandatory over that $10,000,000.

WAGONS BUGGIES HARNESS

THE LONG LIFE OF A GOOD WAGON

We bought our two Studebakers from your agent, Moses Logan, 37 years ago.

Our neighbors have worn out three or four wagons of other makes since we bought ours.

We have never broken anything on the wagons and the hubs are perfect yet.

One is a lumber wagon, the other a spring wagon. Both are good for years of work yet.

Arthur Martin,
Sandy Lake, Pa.

Studebaker 37 years old—hubs perfect yet

Not strange for the Studebaker—because the hubs are of fine, close grain—tough, strong and treated with a secret sealing solution that is weather resisting.

Notice the hubs on the next Studebaker you pass on the road—you'll find they are not split or checked like the ordinary wagon.

And in these hubs are set the famous Studebaker slope shoulder spokes.

The Studebaker Farm Wagon Wheel is best made.

We sell the Studebaker because we believe it is the biggest wagon value on the market.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

During all the years the Ford Model T one-ton Truck has been on the market, we have never had one complaint of rear axle trouble. We have no coplaints of motor trouble. As the motor and the rear axle are the vital fundamentals in a motor truck, we have the right to conclude that the Ford one-ton Truck has not only met the demands of business, but has done so in a satisfactory and economic way. There is no other evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Ford one-ton Trucks are serving along all industrial and commercial lines. You will find them everywhere. If these statements were not facts, the demand for the Ford one-ton Truck would not be as large as it is, because people are not buying trucks which do not give service. Coupled with the dependability of the Ford one-ton Truck in all classes of usage, comes the economy in operation and maintenance. On the farm, in factory delivery, for the merchant, manufacturer, and constructor, in these days of modern business methods, this worm-drive one-ton Ford Truck has become an actual necessity. THORSBY ITEMS

The public school will open Thursday. The teachers for this year are Prof. Crumpton, Mrs. Hattie Gerald, and Miss Bertha Littleton.

Revs. Chas. T. Rogers, James W. Davenport, and E. W. Butler have returned from Stony Point Church, near Deatsville, where they have been attending the Clanton Association of Congregational Churches.

Thorsby Institute has been fortunate in securing the services of Lawrence W. Wild of Averille, Vt., as athletic director and teacher of mathematics. Mr. Wild is a graduate of Middlebury College, and has recently returned from seven months service in France. Previous to his entrance into the army he was head of the English Department at Stamford Military Academy. Mr. Wild has had marked success with boys and it is with pleasure that the Institute announces his coming.

Miss Agnes Gerald left Saturday morning for Demorest, Ga., to enter Piedmont College for her second year work. Miss Gerald spent Sunday in Birmingham with Miss Olga Soberg.

Mrs. M. H. Nottage, teacher of voice and French in the Institute, arrived in Thorsby Sunday morning. Mrs. Nottage spent the greater part of the Summer vacation at her home in Goshen, Mass.

Misses Margaret Rutherford, of Laurelton, Pa., and Mabel Craig, of Belfast, Maine, will arrive in Thorsby some time Tuesday. Miss Rutherford will teach science, English and domestic art, and Miss Craig will teach Instrumental Music and mathematics in the Institute.

Miss Clara Peterson of Atlanta is visiting her parents this week. She will return to Atlanta Saturday.

Miss Agnes Leary returned to her home Monday after a pleasant visit with relatives in Mobile. She was accompanied to her home by her cousin, Miss Allison Saltman of Mobile, who will spend the winter in Thorsby and attend the Institute.

Mrs. Hattie Gerald and Miss Ruth spent Saturday and Sunday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. S. Howard have as their guests Mrs. Howard's parents Mr. and Mrs. Iver Husby of St. Elmo.

Sgt. John W. Ford, Jr., of Gallion, stopped over in Thorsby on his way to Auburn, where he will enter the State Agricultural School this fall. Sgt. Ford received his discharge from the army in July, after a little more than two years service in this country and overseas. He was a student at Thorsby Institute at time of his enlistment early in May, 1917. John says he feels more like he is back in the States now since he has visited Thorsby.

The Ladies Guild, as usual at the beginning of the school year, will give a reception on Friday evening of this week at Bates Hall to the Faculty of Thorsby Institute, the trustees and their wives, the students and their parents and also those who have contributed to the support of the school during the past year.

HUNTERS SHOULD NOTICE THE CHANGES IN THE GAME LAWS

Some changes were made in the Game laws of Alabama at the first session of the legislature this year, and from the way we hear big guns in the swamps around Clanton every morning about daylight, it seems it might be advisable for some hunters to take notice of these changes and maybe prevent themselves being entangled with the law.

Now the open season on squirrels is from November 1st to February 1.

Open season on partridges is from November 1 to March 1; on doves from October 16 to January 31.

Possum hunting and the capture or taking of possums is unlawful, except between the dates of October 15th and March 15th.

Persons engaged in trapping cannot do so under any circumstances except between November 1 and March 1, and then they cannot engage in trapping unless they pay a license fee of $10 to the Probate Judge of the county. No one can trap on the land of another without the written consent of the owner of the land.

LIBERTY HILL SINGING SOCIETY

The Liberty Hill Singing Society met in regular session Sunday afternoon. Colled to order by President with song. Directors were T. J. Littleohn, J. M. Smith, J. W. Lowery, Elbert Littlejohn and Glover Smith. A quartet was sung by J. M. Smith, J. W. Lowery, Glover Smith and L. V. Riggins.

Organists were Misses Zelma Lowery, Toy Littlejohn, Lillie Smith and Prof. W. G. Culp.

We were glad to have several visiting singers from Concord community.

IN PRAISE OF SHERIFF GORE.

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 22.

Editor Union-Banner:—While in Montgomery a few days ago, I was in conversation with a high official who is in position to know, and who does know, and he stated to me that John Gore was one of the best and most efficient sheriffs in the State of Alabama.

I was delighted to hear this, as I am always glad to hear good things of my friends, and I wanted the people of Chilton county to know what this high official thought and said of their splendid sheriff.

Yours very truly,

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev J. F. Gable, the pastor, has returned from his vacation, and occupied his pulpit last Sunday, being met by two good congregations. All departments of the church are moving along in fine shape. The pastor was in three protracted meetings preaching consecutively 41 sermons and receiving 41 additions to the churches.

On next Sunday morning he will produce a chemical experiment which illustrates the saying, "The Blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all Sin." This is largely for the benefit of the children, but is impressive to grown people also.

The Ministers and Deacons meeting of Chilton County and Unity Associations was held last Monday. For various reasons the attendance was not as lardge as usual; but several new faces appeared. Rev. W. P. Lowery was elected Moderator pro tem. The morning session was taken up with reports of their work by various pastors and the discussion of problems and difficulties which were met with in the churches.

In the afternoon a proposed interdenominational movement was discussed, which is headed by the "Inter-Church Movement of North America." This makes an appeal for an all denominational lump sum for general missions and for a united program of work both at home and abroad according to the directions of the interchurch committee. The discussions brought forth this from the Baptist Ministers and Deacons Meeting:

"Resolved, that this body asserts its belief in the independence of the churches, which are Baptist churches and recommends that we avoid all organizations which seek to control us from an interdenominational stand point."

SURGEONS agree that in case of Cuts, Burns, Bruises and Wounds, the FIRST TREATMENT is most important. HIS EAR TO THE GROUND

The president's course in dealing with the labor unions indicates that if the people of the country want a square deal from Wilson they must demand it in tones loud and long. The President heard from the country before he replied to the labor unions.

The president criticized Congress for proposing three-day recesses, and now takes a three-weeks tour himself.

DOVE HUNTERS ARE WARNED BY FEDERAL ATT'Y SAMFORD

Thomas D. Samford, United States District Attorney, wishes to call the attention of the public generally, and the sporting fraternity in particular to the Federal Migratory Game Bird Law, with special reference to the season for shooting doves. "It is a violation of the Federal law to shoot doves before October 16 and after January 31. Regardless of whether we approve or disapprove of this law, it is the duty of every good citizen to see that the law is obeyed," says Attorney Samford.

Mr. Samford further stated that he desired the newspapers throughout the district to publish this warning for the benefit of the public generally, who may be ignorant of the law.

It will be remembered that some months ago a special representative of the Department of Agriculture at Washington was in this district, and at his instance a large number of prosecutions were instituted for the violation of this migratory bird law.

CAN'T REMEMBER WHEN I'VE FELT QUITE SO WELL

Am Full of Energy and Vitality; Have Fine Appetite; Sleep Sound; Constipation Overcome; Stomach Right Again, Since Taking Dreco.

When a person has been half sick, feeling dull, tired and "no account," then gets a medicine that puts new energy and vim into his every-day life, he feels like letting others know about it. That's how this man feels. He is Mr. D. T. Carter of 405 Pine street, Anniston, Ala.

"For years I've suffered awful pains in my back from deranged kidneys. Sometimes I'd have to get up five or six times during the night. I also had headaches and was badly constipated, and my food seemed to ferment in my stomach and form sour gas, which caused much uneasiness and distress. I was very dizzy at times and had about lost my appetite. I had tried many different medicines, but none helped me, and I'd given up all hope of ever getting well again. I heard so much about Dreco I bought a bottle, and right from the start it did me good. It soothed my stomach and stopped the gas; put a stop to the constipation and headaches, also the dizziness, and my appetite got better every day. The pains in my back and kidneys have been entirely relieved, and now I go to bed and sleep all night long, and never have to get up during the night as I formerly did."

Dreco is made of the juices and extracts of many herbal plants, which act on the kidneys, liver, bladder, stomach and blood, and corrects many troubles, such as gas on the stomach, constipation, weakness, poor appetite, nervousness, headaches, biliousness, catarrh, rheumatism, and such blood disorders as eczema, pimples, blotches, boils and eruptions. The first bottle usually shows splendid results, and a full treatment brings permanent results.

Dreco is sold by all druggists and is highly recommended in this city by

FORCED PROFITEERING

Undoubtedly, there is much truth in the assertion that the Wilson administration has ruined many otherwise promising youths by paying them $10 a day whereas their pre-war compensation was $15 a week. Some of them now insist upon remaining idle rather than work for less than the $10 per.

Clanton, Ala.

PITTS-REYNOLDS.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Reynolds of Clanton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Myrtle, to Mr. Percy M. Pitts, of Columbiana, the wedding to take place at the home of the bride November 5, 1919.

The wedding program is as follows: Mrs. Grady Reynolds, Matron of Honor; Misses Lessie and Annie Reynolds, sisters of the bride, will be respectively maid of honor and brides maid; Jack Pitts, brother of groom, best man; groomsmen to be selected; little Miss Jane Roberts will be the flower girl; Rev. E. C. Maye will perform the ceremony; Mr. Edwin Cook of Birmingham will sing, "All for You," and "Because;" pianist and violinist yet to be selected.

The above announcement will be read with much interest over the entire state by many friends of this popular young couple.

Miss Maude Mullins last Wednesday afternoon "let the cat out of the bag," and thus surprised a large concourse of friends who had assembled to spend a social hour with Mrs. Reynolds and her daughters.

Mother nature had provided a beautiful carpet and had decorated with shrubbery, the front lawn of the hand some colonial home. Elaborations in tones of white and pea-green ribbons were skilfully made in the decorations; the color scheme also prevailed in the refreshments. Beside the punch boll, presided over by Miss Willie Belle Sartor, was placed a vase of the time-revered roses of Sharon.

It seemed but fitting that the guests on this auspicious occasion should be assembled in this favored retreat, seated picturesquely in one grand circle that this should be the propitious time for the announcement of such an interesting event. Opportunity was given the guests for inscribing wishes for the benefit of the bride; some of these were witty, others beautiful; all were conducive to her life-long happiness. Upon departing the guests verbally showered the bride-elect with wishes.

For some years Myrtle Reynolds has made Clanton her home; her childhood was spent in Jemison. Possessing many lovable traits of character, and being highly accomplished she has become endeared to many and is universally admired by all with whom she comes in contact. It is gratifying to the home folks that it is a neighboring town that will enjoy her citizenship.

Mr. Percy Pitts was graduated at the State University in the law class of 1913; he immediately began the practice of law in Columbiana, his home town and had attained a flattering degree of deserved success; and then came his country's call. He received his commission at Fort McPherson; eleven months were spent in France.

The out-of-town guests were Mrs. J. C. Pitts, Columbiana; Mrs. W. P. C hristine, Columbiana; Mrs. Robert Holcombe, Calera; Mrs. Sid Gibson, Verbena; Mrs. Billie Barton, Auburn; Miss Mattie Hand. Jemison; Miss Elizabeth McNeill, Jemison; Miss Bertha Johnson, Jemison.

PETITION AGAINST THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

The great number of people in Chilton County who are opposed to the League of Nations as submitted to the Senate for ratification, now have an opportunity to register their opposition to same. Mr. M. F. Lett of Highland was in Clanton last Saturday and had half a dozen petitions against the legue prepared, which he will have circulated in different parts of the county. When the signatures of the people are attached to the petitions Mr. Lett intends to send them to one of the Republican Senators at Washington and have it put on record in the proceedings of that body.

MRS. ROSA EASTERLING

Mrs. Rosa Easterlilng, the devoted wife of Mr. Johnnie E. Easterling, died at the family home on the third day of September. She had been sick a couple of weeks before her death. The deceased was the mother of five children, three of whom are living and two dead. About nine years ago Mr. and Mrs. Easterling were married and since that time have lived in their home community about four miles northeast of Clanton. Their many friends are grieved at the sadness that has been visited on the family by the death of the loving wife and mother, and all join in extending sympathy to Mr. Easterling and his little children who are left to mourn in this sad hour of their greatest loss.

AGGRESSIVE IN TRADE AS IN DIPLOMACY

Exports from Great Britain for the first seven months of this year totaled $1,950,000,000 in value, compared with $1,450,000,000 for the first seven months of 1918, when the war was in progress. This increase of $50,000,000 in British export trade over a period of seven months is a pretty good indication that Great Britain is to be a competitor to reckon with in the markets of the world.

NEW HOPE SCHOOL

The following pupils were on the Honor Roll last week for their regular attendance and good work and behavior in school:

Grady Sammons, Luther Sammons, Holly Mims, Henry Mims, Forest Mims, Jimmie Ellison, Grady Ellison, Ernest Ray.

Several others missed only one day. We had a very interesting week in school and the pupils gave very interesting program Friday P.M., consisting of speeches, a geography match, and some very interesting little games played by the primer and first grades. All those present seemed to enjoy themselves.

We invite all the patrons and others to come and be with us any time you can. DAISIE ROBINSON.

Wiley Littlejohn wishes to remind his friends that they can find him on the Reynolds corner, ready to sell them anything they want in the way of Shoes, Clothing, Dry Goods, Millinery, etc. Go see him.

People Tell us Our Store is Different

Of course it's different!

Because it's service grocery. It's not just a store where groceries are sold.

It's a place where everything is done to make buying groceries a real pleasure.

A big stock of good things to eat; courteous, intelligent clerks who understand their business thoroughly; prompt deliveries.

A telephone that is always open to you.

A place where you can have a charge account.

A store that sells quality goods which it can recommend without the slightest fear or hesitation. To illustrate what we mean, just consider he question of baking powder. It's only a small part of our entire business but we consider it a most important feature.

Because baking powder plays such a vital part in the preparation of food in your home. If it isn't good it can ruin a great amount of good material. Therefore the baking powder we recommend must be good—so good that we won't have the slightest chance of displeasing a customer.

Pyzon is such a baking powder. It's pure, it's always uniform, always efficient and it will do anything any other baking powder will do. It's priced fairly and honestly, too, 40 cents per tin.

MR. GUY H. DESHAZO WRITES IN FAVOR OF REYNOLDSES

Maplesville, Ala.

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to say a few words in reply to some letters that appeared in the last few issues of the Union, written or at least signed by one Mr. F. B. Collier.

Mr. Collier seems to have his "dander up" considerably because three of the Reynolds family were either elected or appointed to office in the county. Now, if Mr. Collier does not fancy the idea of the Reynolds family having these offices, why does ne not get in the race for them and get himself elected to one of these offices that he seems to be so mad about because a Reynolds holds it. If he could manage to get in and get some "pie" I think that he would hear no more of him, he is hungry for "pie" and can't get it, is all that is the matter with Mr. Collier.

In regard to the judge feeding him, Mr. Collier says first: "I am capable of feeding myself." Now, if Mr. Collier's capability along that line is so strong, why is it that he is so mad because the county has not given the Insurance business, and let him get the two hundred this time? I wonder what he wants with that two hundred dollars any way. Do you suppose that he would turn about and give it to someone else should he be so fortunate as to get it? No, of course he would not. He would keep it to buy something to eat. I don't suppose that Mr. Collier would consider that as being fed by anyone, but I will say that the county at large would be helping to feed him should he get this money. I see very plainly why he does not want the judge to feed him—he wants all the folks over the county to have a hand in the job.

Mr. Collier gets as "mad as a wet hen" when it is intimated to him that the commissioners think that they ought to give the new business to the same company that had to pay for the old court house, and because Mr. L. C. Reynolds was that company's representative and wrote the insurance on the old court house, and is their representative at the present time. Mr. Collier gets up on his "hinder parts" and paws up the earth about the Reynolds family controlling the county's financial affairs. Simply because one Reynolds is Probate Judge, another county treasurer, and a third county Representative in the State Legislature, does not substantiate Mr. Collier in his statement that the Reynolds family have the county affairs "by the tail with a down-hill pull." We have in this county a board of commissioners whose duty it is to manage the county's business, and the fact that Hon. L. H. Reynolds is the Judge of Probate is no sign that he runs that court his way altogether, for the commissioners have heads of their own and they usually "butt" with them, and the Judge only has a chance when a tie in the vote occurs. As Mr. Collier is a lawyer he should know better than to say that the Probate Judge has the thing by the tail and a down hill pull, for as a lawyer he knows that the Judge only has a say when a tie occurs.

Mr. Collier thinks that he has hit the "high key" on the organ of criticism when he says that the "arch enemy"—"the Democratic leader," was employed by the Judge and his son in a recent case against the county. Well, now, Mr. Collier knows that the Judge nor his son neither can employ counsel for the county. That power lies with the commissioners court only. And besides thae, when anyone employs counsel they usually get the man that they think is the better qualified for the work that will come before him in their particular case. They want a man that has sense enough to do what has to be done and do it to the best advantage of the client.

Mr. Collier gets "down on his hunkers" because Mr. Grady Reynolds copied the road law. He claims that Mr. Reynolds changed the road law so as to be in conflict with the State law. He also says that he will defend anyone free of charge who violates that section, and if Supreme Court should uphold conviction that he will pay the fine or serve the sentence. From this, one can see very plain what Mr. Collier is trying to do. He says he will defend such persons free and pay fine. So what other effect could that have other than to encourage people to break the road law, knowing as they do that there is a lawyer standing ready to defend them free and pay their fine. And then, too, who ever heard of a lawyer advertising for business? According to my information that is against the policy of the profession.

Now, who is this man Collier, any way,—who has took upon himself the duty of trying to paddle the canoe of the Republican party of Chilton County. I would like to know by what right he has become in possession of the rudder.

Mr. Collier says "one family rule" is "most pronounced" in the county court. He says the Judge's son gets up and "axe's his pa" to turn his client loose. Judge Reynolds nor his son are to blame because Mr. Collier's "pa" was not a judge and juror so that he could get up and plead with HIS "pa" to turn his clients loose. If the system that allows one man to be the Judge and the juror and the son the defending attorney is so rotten, why does Mr. Collier jump on the man and his son?—why does he not get after the ones who made the system? Mr. Collier says that he has told prospective clients that it would be best for them to employ the judge's son as counsel. Now, if Mr. Collier had been a good lawyer he would have held this business for himself and then he would not have had to be "busting" all the buttons off his cloths about a little insurance premium.

Mr. Collier, in conclusion, says that the "sunlight of publicity is a panacea if not a cure for the evil." The sunlight of publicity may burn the "panacea" or "pancake" until the "panacea man" may rot also, as well as the prompt and greed that he speaks off.

Now, in conclusion, Mr. Editor, I wish to thank you for your kind attention, and to wish you and the Union-Banner the best of success, and that we all may stand pat behind the true-blue Republicans of the county and nation in the coming elections,—that we may elect a full ticket from president to constable. I remain,

Yours for true-blue Republicanism,

GUY H. DeSHAZO.

MR. J. S. JONES REPLIES TO LETTER OF MR. EDWARDS

Cooper, Ala., Sept. 9, 1919.

Editor Union-Banner,

Clanton, Ala.

My attention has been called to some correspondence in your paper by Mr. G. W. Edwards and others, and I thought it was nothing but fair that the people know some facts that I am in possession of. I make this statement alone in the interest of the Republican party:

In 1908 I was a manager at the general election at Cooper, Ala., Beat 10, and the true-blues as they termed themselves,, had in independent ticket. Mr. G. W. Edwards was a candidate on this true-blue independent ticket for tax assessor, and was a voter at Cooper, and did vote in the election; and the count shows that he did not receive a single vote at Cooper, neither any other candidate on the true-blue Republican ticket received a vote.

Mr. G. W. Edwards' ticket showed that G. W. Edwards voted a Democratic ticket. I think the people that are honest and want to see the Republican party succeed should take notice, and ought to know who the parties are in this county, that are trying to divide the people and stir up strife. Just such correspondence as has been going on is nothing else and was started for nothing else but for the purpose of dividing our people. We can look back on the past and we have just such kicks as is being made now, and where are the parties that made them?

I hope our people will stay together and not let a few designing men mislead them. All we have to do is to watch the strawss omoithe.Aug.—C watch which way the straws point to see where the wind is blowing.

Yours very truly,

J. S. JONES.

The Wonder Medicine Of the Age

Positively Marvelous Results Follow the Use of Sulferro-Sol In Cases of Rheumatism, Indigestion, Eczema, and Other Skin Troubles.

People call Sulferro-Sol "The Wonder Medicine." It produces most surprising results in Rheumatism, Indigestion, Eczema and other skin and blood troubles.

"It makes you all over again," is one comment from a lady who won her fight for health by taking it. Sulferro-Sol is Nature's own remedy. It comes right out of the earth—a solution of sulphur and iron with other minerals and salts that are beneficial to the system. Thousands have used it and many have testified under oath that it has wonderful healing power. It contains no alcohol or dope, and therefore gives no artificial stimulation. If you suffer with any of the diseases named, or if you feel generally run down or weak, try Sulferro-Sol and find out what it will quickly do in improving your condition. Your druggist can supply you. Refuse any substitute. There is no medicine like Sulferro-Sol—nothing "just as good."

Penny Pinching Not Always True Economy

The housewife — schooled in really scientific domestic economy—no longer throws away a nickel to save a penny.

A good way to illustrate this would be through a comparison of the wholesomeness, efficiency and economy of a plain flour and a standard baking powder and a so-called self-rising flour. It doesn't pay to buy self-rising flour. Most of it is made of low grade materials. It causes many bake-day failures and a great loss of expensive baking ingredients.

The housewife will throw out in wasted materials many times the amount she hopes to save. Beside, self rising flour has a tendency to get lumpy and that's another waste. But what is most important, the housewife gets less in return as far as food value is concerned than if she purchased a plain flour and a standard baking powder.

True economy in baking powder demands the highest quality at the lowest price. A Baking Powder made only of the highest class ingredients obtainable, so skillfully and accurately proportioned that it not only produces the maximum of leavening power but conserves that power, retains its strength and is unfailing in results, is economical in cost and use. The housewife saves when she buys it. She saves when she uses it — and she saves the materials with which it is used. That is economy in its highest form—the only kind of economy the housewife should attempt to practice.

ARE THESE THE WILSON TYPE?

Woodrow Wilson is the absolute dictator of the Democratic party. By his wishes, Homer Cummings remains as Chairman of the National Committee and Scott Ferris as Chairman of the Congressional Committee. Cummings is the man who was quoted in press dispatches as referring to Senators as "imbeciles" who would have to use step ladders to get up high enough to look into the subcellar of Woodrow Wilsons' mind. Mr. Ferris is the man who denounced as "rediculous" the motion to amend the draft bill by raising the pay of soldiers to $30 per month. The retention of Cummings and Ferris in their present positions is an insult to every voter who cast his ballot for one of the Senators called "imbeciles" and an affront to every "buck private" who served in the army that is now being disbanded. It is up to Woodrow Wilson.

Our courthouse will be completed in a short while now. The seats for the big court room have already been shipped, and the work on the Judge's stand is in progress. It will not be many more weeks till the building will be ready to accommodate the Circuit Court. All the county officials have moved into their new offices, except the County Superintendent of Education.

Mrs. John T. McElvaine, formerly Miss Etta Headley, has arrived from Avon-by-the-Sea, N. J., to spent several weeks with her mother.

COMING TO CLANTON

The Associated Doctors Specialists Specialists will be at the Wilson Hotel, Saturday, Sept. 20, for One Day Only. Offer Services Free of Any Charge.

Convincing Evidence for the Sick—How Chronic Sufferers are Being Restored to Health thru Associated Doctors System of Treatment.

The Associated Doctors, Specialists, licensed by the State of Alabama, and who have met with such phenominal success throughout the entire Southeast, will be in Clanton on Saturday, September 20, for one day only to demonstrate their new system of treatment of chronic diseases cases. These regular, reputable physicians believe that the combined skill of several well trained specialists in chronic disease cases can accomplish more than one doctor alone—in other words, in unity there is strength.

The offer to treat all who call on this visit absolutely free, is their original method of getting their system of treatment before the public quicker, and no one, rich or poor, white or colored, should neglect to take advantage of their very liberal offer—absolutely frraillleasek ero. H te,emb ABSOLUTELY FREE (medicine excepted). No cutting—No Knife.

It makes no difference how many doctors you have consulted or how many patent medicines you have taken, you cannot afford to miss this opportunity of acsertaining your exact condition and be honestly advised. No one should require further evidence of the skill of these specialists than the following

Testimony:

Squire Cheatham, Bollling, Ala., writes: "I had rhumatism for over two years and walked with a stick. After taking the first dose of your medicine I threw away my stick. Your remedy has done the work and I am now a well man, thanks to the Associated Doctors."

Irt Craig, Greenville, Ala., writes: "I am doing very well. My foot is healing, although I am compelled to walk on it."

J. L. Redding, Saginaw, Ala., writes: "I am free from rhumatic pain since commencing your treatment."

Thomas Marshall, Chapman, Ala. writes: "I can truthfully say I am a new man. I feel I don't need the full eight weeks you prescribed."

Mrs. Margaret W. Rogers, Georgiana, Ala., writes: "I have been using your remedies prescribetd near three weeks and am feeling muche better."

Now, that you know the truth, you have only yourself to blame if you continue to suffer from Piles, Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Discharges, Bed Wetting, Blood Poison, Skin Eruptions, Rhumatism, Epilepsy, Uric Acid Poisoning, Paralysis, Nervous Troubles and Debility, Neuralgia, Stomach and Liver Troubles, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Pleuricy, Tumors Indigestion, Constipation, Gall Stones, Ovarian and Female Troubles, Enlarged Glands and reflex condition of the nervous system, and those diseases about which most people dislike to consult the general practitioner.

Bear in mind that this will likely be the last visit when the specialists extend their services FREE.

Hundreds have been restored to their perfect good health, with rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes—so may you. The specialists are too well known throughout the State to require further mention.

Married women should be accompanied by their husbands and children by their parents.

Remember the hotel, day and date—one day only.

SELECTION AND CARE OF PEANUTS FOR SEED

From Auburn Extensin Service

The peanut production of Alabama will be much less this season than last season, due largely to the use of bad planting seed. If Alabama is to maintain a maximum production of peanuts on the acreage planted the utmost care will have to be exercised in selecting, harvesting and storing the seed peanuts.

Peanuts which have been prepared for the regular market are not desirable for seed for several reasons. When peanuts are plowed up and stacked for seed peanuts they do not receive the particular attention necessary for seed peanuts nor is there any process for selection of desirable plants. Thrashed peanuts are most undesirable for seed because a large amount of the nuts are injured by being shelled out and hulls and skins are broken.

Tests made at the Alabama Experiment Station have shown that peanuts with broken skins and peanuts shelled for a long time, have a very low germinating power and are unfit for seed. Storing peanuts in large quantities is liable to destroy their germinating power, due to heating and attack of molds. The shelling machines destroy the germinating power of a large percentage of the nuts, rendering them very undesirable for seed purposes.

The following process is recommended for obtaining seed peanuts of high yielding and high germinating power. When the peanut plants are plowed up ready to be stacked, go over the field carefully and pick out the plants having the largest number of sound, mature nuts, free from all disease. Enough of these selected plants for planting the next year's crop are stacked in small stacks off to themselves. These stacks should be well capped and allowed to cure in the best condition. It would be wise to have one stack composed of the choicest plants to be used for planting a seed patch the following year.

When these special seed stacks have cured well the nuts should be picked from the vines by hand if possible, (not on a thrashing machine), and then stored loosely in a dry place. One or two months before planting the seed peanuts should be shelled by hand and all undesirable nuts removed. By undesirable nuts is meant those that are shriveled, immature or diseased and nuts of other varieties.

This process of caring for the seed peanuts may mean an increase of from five to fifteen bushels per acre, which would well repay the trouble.

KENYON DENOUNCES WILSON AND FLAYS THE PEACE COVENANT

Says the Peace Treaty Has Put the Whole World in Mess and a Muddle.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Declaring that a vote for the league of nations in its present form would be "close to treason to my country," Senator Kenyon yesterday in a speech to the senate answered President Wilson's DesMoines speech.

Replying to the Preident's' charge that the senate's delay in ratifying the treaty is in part responsible for the high cost of living, Kenyon said: "Now we are hearing that the high cost of living is due to the senate delay; also that bolshevism is beginning to start as a result of the senate delay. I suppose of there is a drouth Texas it will be due to this delay. The great delay has been in the peace conference and the senate is not responsible for that. Nonsense, even if uttered by a president, is still nonsense."

Kenyon said the intertwining of the treaty and the league have put the world "in a mess and a muddle," and now has the United States in the same mess and muddle.

Kenyon served notice that the senate "is not going to be bulldozed." He came out for a program of reservations on withdrawal, article 10, the Monroe Doctrine and domestic questions.

The president, Kenyon said, may ride through the country in his luxe train at the expense of the public and tell the people that section 10 does not mean attempting to send the boys of this country to fight for some boundary line in the Balkans or repel an invasion of the kingdom of the Hedjaz, but the people are perfectly able to read section 10 and able to understand what territorial integrity and existing political independence, and external aggression means.

"And mark it, presidential word or not, these men who have something to say about their own life, will not be coerced into fighting other nations battles. 'Our men,' as the president calls them, are not merely awaiting around to be told to go hither and thither wherever some foreign ruler may think it desirable."

Kenyon declared that those standing for reservations are not "contemptible quitters."

"They are trying to Americanize this league. They may reply to presidential billingsgate, to the charge of 'contemptible quitters' that the most contemptible quitters in the history of the world were those who assembled with high ideals at the Paris conference and permitted Japan to take over Shantung in violation of some of the 14 points and in violation of the doctrine of self-determination, and in violation of God's eternal justice."

To the president's "gibbeting" threat, Kenyon declared that "there will have to be a very large number of gibbets erected."

"Have we really reached the one man power in this country? Are the people really to be awed by such a presence of greatness? Possibly a few of them but not many. To deliberately put the situation in the condition it now is and then tell the senate what they must do, and go out to the country with provate trains at public expense to star a backfire upon senators does not sound like good Americanism. Nor do the speeches now being made by the president in the west indicate that calm deliberation that should characterize one in such exalted position. They indicate rather that wrath has taken the place of sound judgment on the throne of his mind."

WILSON'S TRIP HANDICAPS EFFORT OF LEGISLATORS

President Lectures About the League While Congress Works for People.

MIGRATORY HABITS INJURIOUS

Washington, Sept. 16.—Representative Rodenburg, of Illinois, author of the resolution urging President Wilson to postpone his tour of the country took occasion, upon the eve of the president's departure, to call his resolution to the attention of the House. Mr. Rodenburg commented upon the president's renewed absence from the capital, and the consequent retarding of the present campaign to lower the cost of living. Referring to the president's letter asking Congress to give immediate consideration to this subject, Mr. Rodenberg said:

"The situation, gentlemen, has not changed since that letter was written. Condtiions are even more critical today than they were on the first day of August. Thousands of railroad shopmen are out of employment, have quit their job, and there is a general feeling of unrest permeating every branch of that important service. And added to this there looms on the horizon the possibility of a very great strike in the steel mills of the country. While there is chaos and confusion in the industrial world, the cost of living continues to soar.

And, now in the face of this critical, this serious, and, may I not say, this desperate situation, the president starts out on a political tour, and the expenes of that tour are to be paid out of the Federal treasury at a time when he admonishes us to practice the most rigid economy. He intends to absent himself for another month from the nation's capital, where his responsibilities and duties are centered.

"Now, gentlemen, in the hope—vain though it be—of directing the attention of the president, whose migratory habits are proving not only an embarassment, but a positive injury to the best interests of the nation, to the serious mistake that he is making, I have introduced the resolution that is before you."

AMERICA'S BEST BAND TO PLAY AT STATE FAIR

Seventy-first Regiment Organization Booked For Concerts at Alabama's Big Show.

The musical program is always one of the big features of the Alabama State Fair, which is scheduled to begin in Birmingham Oct. 6, running for a week. This year the musical program is to surpass anything ever attempted by this amusement organization before.

In fact it might be stated that the management has contracted for its music by the wholesale this Fall, and the idea is to have continuous free concerts throughout the day, and into the night until closing time.

This year, the topliner in a musical way, is the 71st Regiment Band of New York City with Lieut. Lambert L. Eden, the world renowned director in charge of the baton. The 71st regiment band is not only known throughout the length and breadth of America, but has gained fame in the European countries, as well, and is justly billed as "the hit of the musical world.

Lieutenant Eben is recognized now as the peer of American directors. Under his masterful hand these celebrated musicians, gathered from the earth's four corners, have been combined into the most perfect band organization ever introduced to the American public. Besides Lieutenant Eben and his 35 talented musicians the organization also has one lady vocalist who sings "to beat the band."

The management made a ten strike when it arranged to have the 71st Regiment Band at the fair this Fall, and when announcement went forth that the band had really signed a contract to come south, Alabamians were surprised, as it had been figured that no offer would be enting enough to take them away from their concert work in the metropolis.

But having signed the best available band, the state fair management did not stop. It went after another as well to insure the fair patronage that there would be music at all times upon the grounds throughout the week.

McKay's Scotch Revue was also booked for the Fair. This organization is made up of a jazz, bagpipe and drum band, and is hailed by the press as a production of class and originality. It is absolutely new in conception, replete with terpsichorean effects and novelties, and jazz music on bagpipes and drums is served with a real Scotch flavor. This band furnishes comedy, singing and dancing.

With this band to assist the 71st Regiment band in entertaining the thousands that will flock to Birmingham beginning Oct. 6, and the bands from Johnny J. Jones Exposition shows, to help out also, the Alabama State Fair is assured more music this Fall than it has ever had before.

JUDGE REYNOLDS MAKES RED HOT ANSWER TO HIS CRITICS

Proves Good Record of County Court and Makes Explanation of Bill to Raise his Salary. Asserts Determination to Stand by Party.

Clanton, Ala., Sept. 16, 1919.

Editor Union-Banner:

Several articles have apeparad in your paper recently, mostly about me. I wrote an article which explained my position to the people as best I could, and I have not got the time to be answering letters every day. The parties that are doing the writing have nothing to lose—they have nothing to do, they have no friends to loose, hence, they can afford to write every day. Why, they would write two letters a week before I had time to answer one, and they would never miss the time from their business.

I will say this, that I can think of no higher compliment that could be paid to me, than for those that have tried in the past to destroy the Republican party to be always jumping on me. Of course, they feel sore because I have always stood ready to fight for my party and help defeat what they were trying to do, and they will not now stop my feeble efforts in whatever I can do to keep the people together. They have openly here in Clanton said that if enough would jump on me to make me quit fighting for the party, they they could destroy it.

People of the county have been good to me, and I have tried in return to give them the best there was in me, politically, and officially, and if any Republican that has ever done any thing for the party were to kick I would feel bad, but so long as only those kock that want to destroy the party, it makes no difference with me, as I have said I consider it a compliment for those that want to destroy the party to first jump on me.

Some folks are so sorry I do not feel called on to even mention their names, but F. B. Collier is growling about a bill that has just passed the Legislature. I will explain it, as he has said he was through and was not going to write any more, or at least I have been informed he said this, he also said the first day after he wrote his first article, that fifty men had come to him and said they approved of his course. I reckon they number by thousands by now. He said he had the names of every one of them. I wish he would publish them. I will pay the expense of the publication and then some to see them published. The bill that is now before the Senate and has passed raises my salary to $1,200 per year as the County Court Judge. They are talking it on the streets that this is the only County that has been raised; they know this is a lie. Shelby has been raised, Macon County, and many others I could mention.

They are telling that I now get over three hundred dollars per month clear as Judge of Probate; they know this is a lie. The fees in the office have fallen off nearly one-third, the recording of mortgages has been reduced considerably, but this is a good thing for the people.

Collier and a few followers (but they always stay in the dark) are trying to make it appear that the bill is being kept a secret. W. A. Reynolds told a crowd from Clanton a few days ago that the bill had passed the House,—no one has been trying to keep it a secret. It was duscussed in my office last winter in the presence of several people. I have not tried to keep it a secret, and anyone that states that I have lies like a dog and they know it.

The Commissioners Court transferred July 22, 1918 from the fine and forfeiture fund to the road fund $1,500.00, and September 2, 1918 $500.00. There is now in the fine and forfeiture fund $2,690.72, and thec lerk has now on hand to report to the treasurer $410.00. This makes a total of $3,100.72 to the credit of the fine and forfeiture fund. The Circuit Court has only put into the fine and forfeiture fund last year and this year $565.000 and has drawn out over twice that much in expense, and perhaps three times as much, which the county court had to take care of. The county judges' salaries are not the same as fixed by the law in 1915, and any lawyer that does not know this ought to be sent back to school. While I got $300.00 under the same bill some county judges got as much as $1,200, some $600 and some as high as $900.

Collier raves about how the County Court is managed. I will pay all his expenses if he will find another County Court in the State that has done as well as this county court has done. This is a broad offer, as we have some mighty smart men as judges of some of the County Courts in Ala.

Collier complains of his practice in the County Court. If anyone will go to Mr. M. D. Foshee and see the records in the Circuit Court, they will find out his practice is just about as good as it is in my court. I wonder who is to blame for him not getting any practice up there—surely not me.

I hold county court every first Monday in each month, and I would be glad for every citizen of the county to come and see how it is held. If anyone that is tried in my court is not satisfied they can apepal to the Circuit Court and be tried by a Jury.

The Commissioners have already agreed to transfer $2,500.00 or $3,000.00 into the general fund at their next meeting to help pay the debts of the county. You had $2,000 transferred into the road fund to help you work your roads last year. All this comes from your county court, and yet your "new boss" does not like the management of it.

I have wondered whether Collier would call the Republican Executive Committee together to take charge of the party, or would just take charge and dismiss the committee.

All I ask is for the people to investigate for themselves and they can find out what the trouble is. If any one doubts, watch the connections. At the right time I will be glad to tell the people some things that have happened in connection with this attack on me, who started it, who has been advised with, who was in sympathy with it at the start, but now who would run if anyone were to see them talking to Collier. If he should go in at their front door they would jump out at the back window for fear someone would see them talking to him.

I beg pardon for this letter, but as it was being talked on the streets, I thought I would explain the bill raising my salary. Why don't they jump on the Democratic counties that have had their salaries raised? What about Shelby County right at us. Show one county that has done better than this county court has done.

Read Collier's letter in which he offers to defend any road hand who will not work the public roads. He offers to pay all cost if the case is lost. What does this mean? It invites every road hand in the county not to work the public roads. What would be the condition if all hands were to quit working the public roads? Is the offer made in the interest of the good of the county? Who ever heard of a lawyer advertising for cases, and proposing to take them for nothing, just to help destroy the public roads?

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

CIRCUIT COURT TO BE HELD SEPTEMBER 29.

The announcement has been made by Mr. M. D. Foshee, Clerk of the Circuit Court, that the next term of the Court for Chilton County will be held at the new courthouse, beginning Monday, September 29th, 1919.

This will be a Jury term of the Court, and the county Grand Jury will also sit in its deliberations.

The court has been delayed on account of the courthouse not being completed and there is quite a large docket of business accumulated.

NOTICE BANK ORGANIZATION

Notice is hereby given of the intention to organize and incorporate a Bank for the purpose of engaging in the banking business under the laws of the State of Alabama.

The names of the proposed incorporators and stockholders are as follows: D. I. Deramus; S. L. Gibson; H. B. Oliver; W. A. Gulledge; H. T. Williams, and associates. The name of the corporation is as follows: "Bank of Verbena;" the place where said corporation proposes to do business is Verbena, Chilton County, State of Alabama; the amount of capital paid in with which the said bank will commence business is Fifteen thousand ($15,000.00) Dollars.

This, the 6th day of Sept., 1919.

Tom Rockett of Cooper was in Clanton on Monday morning attending to some business maters.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK TO OPEN IN CLANTON SOON.

We are pleased to carry to our readers this week the gratifying news that Clanton is soon to have a National Bank opened here for business with our farmers and merchants. The Institution is to be under the management of the Grimsley interests associated with some of Clanton's best local business people.

Mr. Grimsley was here one day this week and stated that he intends to build up an institution here that will stand back of our farmers, promoting better agricultural conditions. He says he wants to help the farmers to build in Clanton a monument to the boll weevil.

Mr. Grimsley will also establish banks at Maplesville and Thorsby. Chilton County will be the recipient of untold advantage by the coming of these financial institutions.

JAPAN WINS AMERICA'S TRADE

To those who think that there is no need to fear trade rivalry following the war, and that the United States may safely pursue a watchful waiting policy the latest statistics of trade with the Orient are respectfully referred. These figures indicate that Japanis not only vigilant in international politics but in international trade. And she has not neglected her opportunities offered in America under the Democratic tariff law.

In June last, we imported from Japan goods to the value of $29,000,000 and in July to the amount of $39,000,000. In the same month we suffered a loss of exports to Japan to the amount of $19,000,000, showing a total change in Japan's favor to the extent of $29,000,000 to balance the account for the month of July. Manifestly, American producers cannot compete on even terms with the Japanese.

But that is not all. In our trade with China and India we suffered similar reverses, with the result that our total debt to the Orient on account of trade balances for July was $70,000,000. If that trend of affairs shall keep up, we shall soon have an adverse trade balance with the Orient of more than $100,000,000 per month, which would mean that every man, woman and child in America would, on an average, send a dollar a month to the Orient to pay the difference between our imports and our exports to that portion of the world.

League or no league, if Japan can keep up the July record, we shall not break her heart, however badly we may treat the "heart of the world."

MAMMOTH LIVE STOCK SHOW WILL BE GIVEN

This Year's Exhibits at Alabama State Fair to Eclipse All Past Achievements.

Visitors to the Alabama State Fair the past few years have seen some wonderful live stock shows and exhibits but they are to see the most splendid live stock show ever held in the state when the Alabama State Fair is opened to the public beginning October 6, for the management has arranged for the most gigantic exhibit of live stock ever held in this state, or any other state in Dixie.

The live stock feature this year will lay anything ever attempted before in the shade, and the directors are all smiles over the mammoth live stock show that this year's program calls for.

Frank Curtis, Hamlin L. Brown and G. P. Walls have been placed in charge of this department for 1919 and they have moved heaven and earth in an attempt to make this year's live stock eclipse all past achievements. Secretary J. L. Dent, who has looked over their program admits that they have succeeded.

The live stock program for the entire week of the Fair will be as follows:

Judging to begin each morning at 11:00 o'clock and continue until the program for the day is completed.

Monday, October 6th.
Swine—Berkshire.

ALFRED BAKER NOW AHEAD IN POTATO CHAMPIONSHIP RACE

His Exhibit Weighed Eight Lbs. and Six Ounces When Presented last Saturday.

Our potato contest, which started a week or two ago has taken on a very interesting aspect. Robert Bean started it off with one that weighed two pounds and ten ounces. Uncle Moses Robinson saw what Bob had produced and when he found one in his patch that looked like it might possess some champion qualities he sent it to us. This one weighed three and one-quarter pound.

Now, Mr. Alfred Baker, seeing he interest that was growing in our potato race went out to his patch and was greeted by a big Porto Rico Yam which he thought big enough to show Bob and Uncle Mose what a sure-enough potato looked like. Mr. Baker's exhibit was brought to The Union-Banner Saturday and weighed 8 pounds and 6 ounces when he got here with it. He stated that it weighed nine and a quarter when he first took it out of the ground.

But that is not all of the story. Mr. Baker says his wife dug the potato which he brought us, and that there were two others about the same size in the same hill.

So far as we know now this potato brought by Mr. Baker is the champion Union-Banner will be glad to have reports from anyone who has a champion potato. We will decide the con- of the county this season. The Untest with only one condition—that the editor have the privilege of eating all potatoes that are entered in the race.

When the contest closes, we will give a year's subscription to the person who has produced the biggest potato.

"GREATER THAN THE GOVERNMENT."

The cause of the league of nations is "greater than the government," say the president. We always thought the league would overshadow the government if it ever got started, so we are rather anxious to have its limits carefully prescribed before it gets going. And perhaps, we'd better take more time to study its limitations, and in order to do so, eliminate it from the peace treaty and take it up as a separate subject.

The Railroad Brotherhoods had to back dawn on their threat to strike when the public gave notice of its intention to strike back.

LOOKING BACK

At Columbus, Ohio, President Wilson asked if anyone believed that Germany would have gone to war if she had known that Great Britain would fight; and he added that certainly Germany would not have started the war if she had believed that America would fight. This was used as an argument for the league of nations backed by force, while at the same time the President is telling others that there is none other than moral force behind it. The truth of the mattes is that Germany learned Great Britain would fight. Lord Grey made that plain. Yet Germany went in. The first public utterance that can be found on the part of Mr. Wilson concerning America's attitude toward the war was in an address to Congress about four months after the war would begin, in which he boasted that "we are at peace with all the world. . . We mean to live our own lives as we will; but we mean also to let live." And a month later he murmured to the good people of Indianauolis: "Only America is at peace! Among all the great powers of the world only America saving her power for her own people!" Germany must have got sort of idea that America didn't have the nerve to go to war after that sort of talk, and more especially so, when one week after the sinking of the Lusitania, Germany was informed we were "too proud to fight." It will be curious to learn, as reports filter through the mass of press agent material now being hurled into the administration newspaper columns, just how far the American people of today permitted themselves to be blarneyed by a gentleman who has twice fooled them to the limit of the ridiculous. But we will lay odds that Lincoln was right and that this time Barnum's assertion will not prove itself.

Roman Catholics Seeking to Capture the Boy Scout Movement in America.

What would be the ultimate consequence to the movement of the Boy Scout organization of America, if the same should come under the control and dictation of the Roman Catholic Church?

This is one of the most burning questions of the present day, and one that should interest every parent in our country; and especially the ones who have boys enrolled in the Scout movement.

It has for some time been the opinion of the writer that such a scheme was being contemplated if not actually laid by the Catholics. We are now ready to assert that we see clearly that such a design is being planned. Our reasons for believing such will be found in the following quotations from an article entitled, "Catholics Heartily Endorse Scout Program," published in 'Scouing,' a weekly publication gotten out at National Headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America.

Scouting is being brought to thousands of Catholic boys throughout the country, and the aim of the National Catholic War Council, in cooperation with the National Council of Boy Scouts of America is to increase the number of troops in Roman Catholic Churches to at least 1,000 within a year. There are now approximately 300 Catholic troops, the achievement of six years.

The Catholic War Council, finding in the Boy Scout movement an excellent reconstruction method, has set aside sufficientfunds to put fifteen men in the field for one year or more to devote themselves exclusively to the organization of Catholic troops throughout the country. These men will work in cooperaion with our own organized field force and the chartered councils.

The Catholic Church now has 500 or more units and it intends to organize immediately a troop for each existing unit and for every Catholic parish in the country. There are now 587 troops under the leadership of Roman Catholic scoutmasters, but only a few more than 300 are specifically recorded as connected with churches.

A statement from the Council says:"There is no reason why the number of troops in Roman Catholic churches should not be doubled, not only for the sake of our boys themselves, but because, by its program and methods, the movement offers a channel for patriotic activities on the part of our Catholic youth."

The officials of the Scout movement seem to take it as a compliment to the work that it recives the endorsement of the Catholics. But they should reflect upon the designs of the Catholics here a bit and see what may be deducted. Do the Catholics heartily endorse the Scout movement alone for what the Scout movement within itself offers its boys in training and education? We venture to assert that they do not. On the other hand, we charge that the Catholics are preparing this great drive in the Scout movement to control it and dictate its activities in the interest of the Catholic supremacy in this country. The reason we apprehend such on the part of the Catholics in regard to the Boy Scout movement is because that is their avowed purpose in every activity they engage in. They have never engaged in a movement of any kind where there were protestants without scheming to eliminate Protestants and get all the favor for the Catholics. They would not support a school, a lodge, the Boy Scouts, nor even a government unless it be controlled, owned and operated by the Catholic influence. As an attest to this principle we cite you to the way they have strangled the government of our great country with their death grip. Also we recall the manner in which our army was dominated during the war and made subservient to the whims and undemocratic notions of Catholic influence.

Perhaps the greatest stride toward controlling this country was made by the Roman Catholics when they accomplished their porposes of controlling our military organization. The Boy Scout movement savors of the military spirit, and in keeping with the designs of the Catholics they desire to have it controlled by their power.

The Scout movement is purported as nonsectarian. Now we ask how do the Catholics feel about it in this respect? The plan is to increase the number of troops in Roman Catholic churches to at least one thousand within a year. The intention is further stated to organize a troop for each existing unit (Catholic unit) and for every Catholic parish in the country. What will be the procedure where the Catholics take over the organization of a Scout troop under auspices of the Catholic church? Will it be upon non-sectarian lines? Will they go to the homes of Baptist and Methodist parents and invite their boys into the formation of the troops with the assurance that the administration of maters in the work shall be done without regard to religious inclinations? Do the Catholics have a record of doing things in that way? No, they do not. They go along and do things in their own way and behind closed doors until they have got the hold they want. Then they do not invite other people to join them. They go to the people with on open and brazen demand for what they want done.

We can see clearly, and have seen for a long time, that the Catholic way of doing things will not mix with the ideas of plain old everyday American principles. Their methods are alien and foreign to America in every application of their activities. Their religion is foreign; their schools are foreign; they are not American in a single idea we ever saw them advance.

We see the ultimate disruption of the splendid Boy Scout movement in its control by the Catholics. The movement has become a powerful force in designing the lives of our future men and hence the reason why the Catholics desire to control it. The program of Rome is to make America Catholic; and in their hearty endorsement of the Scout Program we see another effort they are making toward the final consummation of their purposes to control this country.

A FEW PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

We went to war because "the Imperial German government has committed repeated acts of war against the Government and the people of the United States of America." as sated in the war declaration itself. We were associates but never allies of the nations at war against Germany. In view of that fact

Why is the United States embroiled in a controversy between Japan and China over the disposition of a portion of the latter's territory?

Just why should America be a party to the formation of the new Czecho-Slovak State, appoint a commissioner for tracing its boundaries on the ground, etc?

In spite of our love for the music of President Paderewski, would Americans lose any sleep if the boundaries of Poland did not follow the line Kreise of Leobschutz, Katscher, Ratibor, Oderberg railway, and Kranowitz?

What interest have we in the establishment of the Free City of Danzig, and do more than one per cent of our people know where it is or care why it is to be free?

Of what interest is it to America that Germany should give to England its former property at Shameen at Canton?

Although we have unbounded sympathy for Belgium why should it take the form of guaranteeing that she shall receive "200 stallions, 5,000 mares, 5,000 fillies, 2,000 bulls, 50,000 milch cows, 40,000 heifers, 200 rams, 20,000 sheep, 15,000 sows?"

Did we go to war in order to compel Germany to surrender her cables from the Straits of Dover to Fayal, from Dunkirk to Teneriffe, or from Constantinople to Constanza?

Do we particularly care whether or not the King of the Hedjaz recovers the original Koran of the Caliph Othman?

Is the final disposition of the skull of the Sultan Mkwawa of moment to America?

What business is it of ours where the triptych of the Mystic Lamb finds repose?

What advantage does America derive from compelling the Germans to fit their freight cars with apparatus so as to allow their inclusion in "good trains" of the allies?

Why should we guarantee the right of the Czecho-Slovak State to construct a railroad to Nachod from Schlauney—wherever that may be?

Yet, we are asked to become a party to a treaty that includes all of these maters—matters utterly foreign to our national welfare. The state of war is actually being prolonged while Senators wrangle over Shantung. Why not junk the whole unsavory mess, and either declare the war ended or write a separate German-American treaty that will include only the subjects in dispute between the two countries?

The Southern Democrat says that Mr. Kennamer in his Oneonta speech failed to state any constructive legislation that he will favor if elected to Congress, but that his policy seems to be to tear down what the Democrats have done. The Democrat is right for once. If Kennamer can knock out what the Democrats have done in the past six years, he will have accomplished a lot, especially the vicious, un-American legislation that has been put over by Woodrow Wilson and his gang of rubber-stamp statesmen.—Collinsville Courier.

THORSBY ITEMS

A mass meeting is to be held in Bates Hall Saturday evening, September 20th, at 8 o'clock in the interest of the Alabama Memorial Fund concerning which we are hearing so much these days. It is hoped that Prof. Howard L. Foshee, the County chairman of the Memorial Commission, will be present to present the cause. Rev. James W. Davenport will preside at the meeting. It is desired that every resident of the Thorsby school district shall make it a point to be present at this meeting if possible, and show his interest in the proposed Memorial to the soldiers and sailors of Chilton County and Ala.

Sgt. G. C. O'Kelley, recently visited his brother, J. H. O'Kelley. Sgt. O'Kelley was a member of the 6th Reg. Marine Corps and was overseas nearly two years. He participated in the battle at Chateau Hhierry, was taken prisoner by the Germans July 8, 1918. He was the only member of his company left alive. Sgt. O Kelly spent six months in a German prison. He stated that the prison fare was very poor, the food very scarce, but aside from this, he was treated very well. After getting back to the allied lines he was sent back to Germany with the army of occupation and remained in service there until August, 1919, when he received his discharge and returned to the United States. Sgt. O'Kelley was enroute to Birmingham to enter Howard College.

Miss Orra A. Angell of Greenville, R. I., former librarian at the Institute, returned to Thorsby Monday and will spend several months here. While in Thorsby Miss Angell will have charge of the library.

Mr. E. R. Pyper, has purchased the Stanley property and will move there some time this month.

Mrs. Anna Villadsen is having a neat little bungalow builded near her residence. When completed, it will be occupied by Mr. Goodgame and family of Birmingham.

Zell Pope of Greenville, Ala., a former student of Thorsby Institute, was here on Monday of this week. He has just been discharged from the navy and was enroute home to spend a few days with his folks. He plans to return to Thorsby next week to resume his studies at the Institute.

The Institute opened Monday morning at 9:30 with an enrollment of sixty young man and women. Miss May Stoddard presided over the opening exercises. Splendid talks were made by Rev. Davenport and Prof. Lawrence Wild. Several new students have come in during the week.

The public school opened on the morning of the 11th with a good enrollment. Prof. Crumpton, the principal, is to move his family to Thorsby at an early date.

MR. G. W. EDWARDS COMES BACK REPLYING TO MR. J. S. JONES

September 12, 1919.

Editor Union-Banner:

You were so kind to give me space week-before-last, I will ask for a little more this week, to reply to one J. S. Jones who has bobbed up to bear the Judge's cross through the dark valley of ignorance.

First, we want to know who J. S. Jones is. Is he the same J. S. Jones that lay in the Montgomery jail for making licker till he lost his senses and then fell in company with the Socialists, Populists, Bullmoose, Republicans? Is he that same fellow that we saw following the above named crowd in 1908 slapping his hands and hollering his throat sore when the speakers were demoralizing the Republican party for the benefit of the leading socialist in the county—a man who hated the Republicans so bad that he would not let his name go in a Republican primary? Did we see him again in 1912 with the same old crowd slapping and squalling when his boss would tell the people that the Republican party was as black as h——itself, and the only hope for this country was the success of the Bullmoose?

To sum it up in a nutshell, isn't he the same J. S. Jones that has been barking around the Reynolds cesspool ever since he got out of jail and gets a little whay off of the political clabber, such as being appointed election manager and such like?

But it don't make any difference whether its that J. S. Jones or one raised from the bottomless pit for the express purpose of raising h—— among the Republicans. His own letter is the proof that he has no respect for truth or honor.

Now, we want to analyze a little of Mr. Jones' letter and see if I am not right. He says that Mr. G. W. Edwards' ticket showed that G. W. Edwards voted a Democratic ticket. Mr. Jones was a manager at that time and took the oath of a manager. Now how does Mr. Jones know what my ticket showed unless he swore a falsehood and violated the law? Then if Mr. Jones went that far to get the facts that he claims to be in possession of, he must have them facts now as ge got them. He knows the people can't take his word for anything after getting said facts the way he did. We all know that an honest man will not destroy the real evidence and wait twelve years for the verbal evidence to pass away and then bob up.

Now, Mr. Jones, if you have the ticket that I voted in 1908, bring it to Clanton and if it don't say that I did get a vote at Coopers, I will pay you one hundred dollars. Bring the ticket and get the cash, or tuck your tail and go under the house. I want the people to know the truth. If I had voted a Democratic ticket in 1908, I am a free man and had as much right to vote that way as Mr. Jones ever had to vote for the Socialist, Populist, and Bullmoose. I am willing to examine all the elections for thirty years past, and if I have not voted more Republican tickets than J. S. Jones, I will never bob up again.

I agree with Mr. Jones when he says that just such correspondence as has been going on was started for nothing else but for the purpose of dividing our people. And if Mr. Jones wants harmony in the party, why did he take it up after the starter went as far as he could shut up. We know the tree by its fruit. Why was this controversy raised with the true-blue Republicans? We were not troubling anybody and were not thinking of anything but harmony when we were attacked by Reynolds.

Now, I am willing to leave it with the people to say who is right.

G. W. EDWARDS.

The Birmingham News tells its readers that the Republicans in the Seventh District are actually , brazenly opposing the league of nations and criticizing the administration in their attempt to elect a congressman" You know it! You certainly don't think they would endorse this un-American monstrisity, which was hatched up maybe in the Vatican at Rome, do you? You certainly ought to give the Republicans credit for having too much sense to delegate the right to declare war to a comglomeration of Wops, Huns, Frogs, Chinks, Japs, Bohunks, and Niggers when the constitution gives the power only to congress, do you? That doctrine may suit Woodrow Wilson and a few idol worshipping Democrats, but sonny, no red-blooded American follower of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Roosevelt will swallow it. You have not yet seen the fight on those un-American policies started. Wait a time with patience until the campaign of 1920 opens up and then you will see the fur fly. It will look like where a hawk had caught a rabbit.-Collinsville Courier.

COLLIER STRONGLY AGAINST INCREASING REYNOLDS' SALARY

Says County is Bankrupted, and Now is Time to Preach and Practice Economy.

Clanton, Ala., Sept. 13, 1919.
Editor of the Union-Banner:

I desire to call the attention of the people of Chilton County to a Bill recently introduced in the Legislature of Alabama, by our Representative, Hon. W. A. Reynolds, which fixes the salary of the Judge of Probate, while acting as Judge of the County Court, at $1200.00 per annum—an increase over the present salary of $900.

I have reference to House Bill No. 762, which has already passed the House of Representatives and will be up for consideration before the Senate at an early date. This bill, I am advised, applies only to Chilton County, but it is being put through as a General Bill. A special bill or a bill relating to only one county ordinarily has to be advertised for a certain time, in order that the people of the county affected thereby may be advised as to the proposed measure. But the promoters of this bill, apparently, did not desire the people of this county to know about it, and, therefore, did not advertise the bill as a special bill, but got around the law by making the bill a general bill affecting all counties having the same population as Chilton has. But no other county in the state has the same population as Chilton County, hence it is a bill that applies to Chilton County alone. This is quite a shrewd trick—though one often resorted to by those who are well versed in political trickery.

I believe the people of the county are against increasing Judge Reynolds' salary at this time. I also believe they are against the methods employed to keep the people in the dark, and thereby keep down opposition to the bill, until it is assured of passage by both Houses of the Legislature. I call upon the people of the county, regardless of political affiliation, to use their best efforts in defeating this bill.

Judge Reynolds is no more entitled to an increase in salary than the other probate judges of the State. The present salary of $300.00 per annum for holding the County Court is ample for the work done. Only one or two days of each month are devoted to County Court work. The judge's fees as Probate Judge continue just the same. I dare say the Judge's fees will amount to more than $300 per month, and during these hard times, when the county is afflicted with the worst kind of financial ailments, $300 to $350 per month is enough for the judge. For the past several years $300 per year has been the salary for performing the work of the County Court, including the work now done by the Clerk of the Court. Only recently the Judge and other Probate Judges of the State were relieved of the work now falling on the clerk of the County Court. The judge has less work to do than ever before, yet he wants more pay.

It seems to me that now, of all time, is the time to preach and practice economy. Judge Reynolds has preached economy—and has frequently told the people what a hard time he and the Commissioners have had in financing the County, and many people thought he was in dead earnest about wanting to save the county. But now we find him busy at Montgomery, trying to put one over the people, by the aid of his brother in the Legislature, in slipping a bill through the House that increases his salary $75.000 per month. I say to the people that it is not only extremely inconsistent on the part of the Judge to ask for this increase, but the method used to get the bill thru and to keep down opposition is an out-rage, pure and simple.

If the salary should be increased, is the county able to pay it? I say that the county is now bankrupted. The constitutional debt limit has allready been exceeded many thousand dollars, and there is no money in the treasury with which to take care of any of the obligations of the county. It is my honest opinion that the warrants now being issued by the Judge and County Commissioners are absolutely worthless and void. If any one doubts what I say, go to the records of the county and ascertain the assessed valuation of the property of the county, multiply it by three and one-half per cent, and then subtract the result from the county's outstanding indebtedness, and you will find that the county is now in the hole many thousand dollars beyond that which Section 224 of the Constitution and Section 155 of the Code provide as a limit of indebtedness a county may incur.

Mr. Editor, the old county cow is about dry. The "milk" is not flowing as it once flowed. But it seems that "Bro. Will" and the Judge have made a valiant effort to devise ways and means to increase the flow of "milk" and apparently they have decided to let "Bro. Will" "hunch" the Legislature, to see if the old cow won't let more "milk" down.

I predict, Mr. Editor, that the old cow, "aint" going to give no more "milk."

As to Mr. Guy DeShazo.

In passing, it will suffice to say that I have no controversy with this young advocate of one family rule. It is very natural for him to feel kindly towards the Judge and the county treasurer. He was given a job Monday morning running one of the county trucks at about $4.50 per day. His father is tick inspector and draws down a salary of about $75 per month. You, see, it is ntural and human for all the members of the "Teat Suckers Union" to stand together.

Yours very truly,
F. B. COLLIER.

P.S.—Below is a copy of the Bill referred to above:

The Bill:

House Bill No. 762.
By Mr. Reynolds.
Referred Finance and Taxation.

AN ACT

To fix the salary of the judge of the county court in all counties having a population of not less than twenty-three thousand one hundred and fifty (23,150) and not more than twenty-three thousand two hundred and fifty (23,250) according to the Federal census of 1910 and provide for the payment of the same.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. That all counties having a population of not less than 23,150 and not more than 23,250 according to the Federal Census of 1910, there shall be paid of the county treasury to the Judge of the county court of such counties, an annual salary in equal monthly installments, twelve hundred dollars ($1200); the payment of such salary to be by warrant of such judge drawn of the treasury of the county.

STATE FAIR TO ECLIPSE ALL PAST EFFORTS THIS YEAR

Greatest Program Ever Assembled To Be Offered Patrons of Alabama's Great Show Beginning October 6.

The Alabama State Fair throws open its doors in Birmingham Oct. 6, for the start of what will be the biggest week Birmingham and Alabama has ever seen. On that date the biggest exposition the South has ever seen, will get going in Birmingham and due to the fact of the greatness of the attraction and also because low rates have been granted on all railroads, it is safe to predict that the crowd record for all time at Alabama State Fairs will have been shattered before the week is over.

Every department at the State Fair has been increased this year, many new departments have been added on, the amusement program has been doubled, the race cards have been increased in both quantity and quality, the fireworks displayes augumented, more musical attractions booked than ever before; more exhibits contracted for industrially, agriculturally, in live-stock and other exhibit departments. In fact it is safe to say that this year's fair will eclipse anything ever attempted in the state before in the way of an amusement or educational enterprise.

So, Monday morning October 6, the gates will be thrown open amid the blare of trumpets and the hub-bub of thousands of eager voices who are eager to swarm through the gates to get a first glimpse of Alabama's phenomenal show for 1919.

Circus day is always a pretty big episode, but circus day can never compare to fair week. The Alabama State Fair is so much bigger than any two circuses in existence, that there is no comparison whatever, the Fair furnishing educational and inspirational knowledge as well as amusement to the visiting thousands.

They're going to have some of the world's best automobile race drivers at the Fair this Fall. They're also going to have some of the country's best race horses to compete in the daily events. Then, too, there are the motorcycle races between America's most daring speed fiends.

In the free attraction Lieutenant Locklear, who changes airplanes while in mid-air, going 80 miles an hour, is a big feature. With auto polo another thriller, again booked this year, and dozens of free acts in front of the grand stand, coming direct from the Hippodrome in New York. The free acts and amusement end of the fair has for this year, never been equaled before.

Then there are the live-stock exhibits, which will crown all past achievements, the swine show, the cattle show, the poultry show, the woman's department, the educational department, and a thousand and one wonders and attractions and exhibits that cramped space will not allow one to mention.

In the fireworks display this year, scenes from the world war will be given and the people back home will be shown in the blazing rockets and burst of amunition how our boys stormed through Chateau Thierry and how they smashed the Huns in the Argonne. The fireworks display this year is the most spectacular ever attempted.

One can't go into detail over the many attractions at Alabama's Big Show this year. It would take a book to enumerate on all the wonderful attractions and amusement and educational devices that will be brought to Birmingham. Suffice it to say that those who have visited the Alabama State Fairs in past years may rest assured that on their past visits they did not see anything like the stupendous show that will be given, starting Oct. 6.

It's to be an eventful week for Alabama, and every true and patriotic Alabamian should show his true colors by taking in his state's own show in order to demonstrate to his state that he's behind old "Here We Rest" for a Bigger and better Alabama. The State Fair has done more for progress in Alabama since its organization than any other one institution.

AUTO AND TURF FANS WILL HAVE GREAT WEEK AT THE ALABAMA STATE FAIR

Famous Dare-Devils of Dirt Tracks And Star Horses of Turfdom Are To Compete.

Attendance at the Spring automobile races and baseball games, indicates that the "army that remained at home, buying bonds, and doing their bit in many other ways," is just as anxious as the soldier to forget the horrors of the war. At the San Monica road race in California in March, and at track events in Birmingham, Atlanta, Shreveport, Nashville and Ascot speedway, Los Angeles, thousands paid admission to see the gas-monarchs battle for the prize money, and the spectators were treated to greater speed and competition than in the last several years.

The turf program for the week and the purses offered follow:

Monday Oct. 6.

2:24—Trotting stake, closed with 24 entries; purse $1,000.
2:10—Pacing; purse $500.

"THE STATE! I AM THE STATE!"

It would seem that Mr. Wilson's enthusiasm for the league of nations has carried him beyond the point of sane, sound argument. To employ abuse, bitterness, and every trick known to the demagog, is unbecoming to the position of chief executive. "Have the American people quit electing presidents and begun to elect kings? asks Senator Sherman when severely criticizing the president for his statement that he would call the labor conference in Washington provided for by the treaty whether the treaty is ratified or not. "Public officials," added the Senator, "have been impeached for less flagrant violations of the laws of their country than this." The president is being answered at every turn in his undignified fight for an ethereal hobby. Abuse never won an argument. It has never even won a point. The American is a true sportsman and wants to see the game played fairly. Mr. Wilson said he was making a trip through the country to tell what is in the treaty. We are still waiting to hear. More information and less abuse of his opponens and the matter will come nearer to settlement. At times it would almost appear that there is a hidden motive on the part of those strongest supporters to defeat the treaty themselves.

HARRIS - GRAVES

The following wedding announcement published in the Birmingham News of last Sunday, will be of much interest to people in Clanton:

"Mr. and Mrs. James D. Graves announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret, to Mr. Julius Leonard Harris, the wedding to take place October 23."

Both these young people formerly lived in Clanton, and they have many friends here who will learn of their engagement with much interest.

Despondency.

Sufferers from indigestion are apt to become discouraged and feel that complete recovery it not to be hoped for. No one could make a greater mistake. Hundreds have been permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Tablets and can now eat anything that they crave. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. If you have not tried them do so now.

Lieut. Locklear is shown in the above picture, doing one of the dangerous and death defying stunts he will stage at the Alabama State Fair.

WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS DARE-DEVIL ORMER LOCKLEAR WILL BE AT FAIR

The greatest flying show in the history of the amusement world will be given, starting Oct 6, at the Alabama State Fair, when Lieut. Ormer Locklear and his 3-ring aerial circus are scheduled to do all the amazing things known to the flying game, including the trick that not even France or England, with all their vaunted superiority in the flying sport has seen, Locklear's feat of changing airplanes a few hundred feet above the race track center.

Locklear will also present his aerobatic act of scampering from the seat of his plane to all other parts of the craft. No magician or juggler works with a quicker hand nor keener eye than does Locklear when he starts in to do his wonderful stunts.

Aerial Combat Promised.

The comes the aerial combat between Locklear's assistant pilots, Lieuts. Shirley Short and Milton Elliott. It was this pair which was with the peerless Locklear when he first pulled the plane-changing feat while they were all instructors at the Government field at Fort Worth, Texas.

They are the fellows who hold Locklear's life in their hands every time he essays his daring work. He declares they are more essential to the act than he himself. For Locklear is the only man in the world who ever changed planes and these two pilots are the only ones who ever flew his ships."

During the aerial combat the two pilots fly almost against each other before turning into a spinning nose dive, side slip, Immelman turn, upside down flight or other trick to avoid the rapid fire gun on the other machine. This act was termed by the New York Times aviation writer as the cleverest bit of "sky vaudeville" ever witnessed.

The two assistant pilots will make individual trick flights during the day, and if anyone in this section thinks he has seen real fancy flying before he will doubtless change his opinion after he witnesses these two air masters at work.

Silence Grips Spectators.

"Something doing every second" is the manner in which the flying end of the fair's program may be described.

Locklear's plane-changing feat requires about ten minutes time from the moment the machines begin to jockey for position until he is safe in the seat of the other airplane. During that time absolute silence prevails among the crowd, no matter how huge. It seems as though everyone holds his breath. As he makes the change the crowds bursts into a spontaneous cheer that does not die until the intrepid fellow is landed in front of the grandstand.

When the bowels feel uncomfortable and you miss the exhilarating feeling that always follows a copious morning operation a dose of HERBINE will set you right in a couple of hours. If taken at bedtime you get its benificial effect after breakfast next day Sold by Upchurch Drug Company.

Hand in Hand

One of the main reasons why there has been such a marked improvement in the wholesomeness and healthfulness in food products the last ten years has been on account of the co-operation between pure food officials and domestic science teachers. These two elements have been working toward a common end—our protection against unscrupulous manufacturers who have not based their claims to business on the quality, but rather on cheapness and who, in their endeavor to market their products on price or quantity, have often resorted to substitution and to the use of unwholesome material. Though progress has been made, yet much remains to be done.

Mr. Harry L. Eskew, Food Commissioner of Tennessee, has been very active in his efforts to safeguard the health of the people of his State. In the New York Journal of Commerce he has the following to say about so-called Self Rising Flour, which is used in certain sections:

"I would not tolerate flour products like some of the 'self-rising flour' sold in a large part of the South, the concomitants of which are alike unknown and not to be ascertained by the consumer and whose purity in the matter of phosphate is open to serious question as a deceptive agency."

When the need of improvement of certain food products is pointed out so definitely and at the same time is backed up by thousands of domestic science teachers throughout the country, it is quite natural that American housewives will gradually become schooled in the proper selection of food products, and at the same time demand proper labeling of all food products.

Maude Marie Costello

NOTE—Miss Costello is already well known to most of the ladies of our city. She is of the Domestic Science Branch of the University of Chicago, a graduate of Lewis Institute, Supervisor of Domestic Science in Public Schools, Special Lecturer on Domestic Arts and Economy, Special Lecturer to the Women's Clubs.

COMING TO CLANTON

The Associated Doctors Specialists Specialists will be at the Wilson Hotel, Saturday, Sept. 20, for One Day Only. Offer Services Free of Any Charge.

Convincing Evidence for the Sick—How Chronic Sufferers are Being Restored to Health thru Associated Doctors System of Treatment.

The Associated Doctors, Specialists, licensed by the State of Alabama, and who have met with such phenominal success throughout the entire Southeast, will be in Clanton on Saturday, September 20, for one day only to demonstrate their new system of treatment of chronic diseases cases. These regular, reputable physicians believe that the combined skill of several well trained specialists in chronic disease cases can accomplish more than one doctor alone—in other words, in unity there is strength.

The offer to treat all who call on this visit absolutely free, is their original method of getting their system of treatment before the public quicker, and no one, rich or poor, white or colored, should neglect to take advantage of their very liberal offer—absolutely frrailllcasek ero. H te,emb ABSOLUTELY FREE (medicine excepted). No cutting—No Knife.

It makes no difference how many doctors you have consulted or how many patent medicines you have taken, you cannot afford to miss this opportunity of acsertaining your exact condition and be honestly advised. No one should require further evidence of the skill of these specialists than the following

Testimony:

Squire Cheatham, Bollling, Ala., writes: "I had rhumatism for over two years and walked with a stick. After taking the first dose of your medicine I threw away my stick. Your remedy has done the work and I am now a well man, thanks to the Associated Doctors."

Irt Craig, Greenville, Ala., writes: "I am doing very well. My foot is healing, although I am compelled to walk on it."

J. L. Redding, Saginaw, Ala., writes: "I am free from rhumatic pain since commencing your treatment."

Thomas Marshall, Chapman, Ala., writes: "I can truthfully say I am a new man. I feel I don't need the full eight weeks you prescribed."

Mrs. Margaret W. Rogers, Georgiana, Ala., writes: "I have been using your remedies prescribetd near three weeks and am feeling muche better."

Now, that you know the truth, you have only yourself to blame if you continue to suffer from Piles, Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Discharges, Bed Wetting, Blood Poison, Skin Eruptions, Rhumatism, Epilepsy, Uric Acid Poisoning, Paralysis, Nervous Troubles and Debility, Neuralgia, Stomach and Liver Troubles, Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, Pleuricy, Tumors Indigestion, Constipation, Gall Stones, Ovarian and Female Troubles, Enlarged Glands and reflex condition of the nervous system, and those diseases about which most people dislike to consult the general practitioner.

Bear in mind that this will likely be the last visit when the specialists extend their services FREE.

Hundreds have been restored to their perfect good health, with rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes—so may you. The specialists are too well known throughout the State to require further mention.

Married women should be accompanied by their husbands and children by their parents.

Remember the hotel, day and date—one day only.

Hours 9:00, a.m. to 4:00, p.m.

Associated Doctors Specialists offices and Laboratories, 511 - 12 - 13, Lyric Building, Birmingham, Ala.

Just What She Needed.

"I used a bottle of Chamberlain's tablets some time ago and they proved to be just what I needed," writes Mrs. Volta Bankson, Chillichote, Mr. "They not only relieved me of indigestion but toned up my liver and rid me of backache and dizziness that I had been subject to for some time. They did me a world of good and I will always speak a good word for them."

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.— Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days ...I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go...I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle...I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui to my friends today. E 78

THE BEST FICTION EVER PUBLISHED BY A DAILY NEWSPAPER

The Birmingham News Will Print Complete Short Story By Master Writer Every Sunday For Year.

The Birmingham News, at enormous expense, has just obtained the rights to the biggest fiction "scoop" ever scored by American newspapers. Beginning Sunday, September 21, The News will print every Sunday for a year a complete short story by a master writer of American fiction. Each story will be brand new, never before published anywhere, and each will be beautifully illustrated by an artist of standing and reputation. Each story will be written by a man who has never before written for a newspaper. Newspapers have printed stories written by these men before, but they have all been stories that had appeared in magazines. All of these writers' first work has been published in the high-priced magazines, but The News, in conjunction with a limited list of the leading papers in America, has obtained the first publication rights to fifty-two stories, each one different from the others, each one a masterpiece.

The first story will be printed Sunday, September 21. It will be written by Will Payne, and its title will be "Providence." Some of the others now ready to be announced are:

Sept. 28, "The Voice In the Dark," by Holworthy Hall.

Oct. 5, "Sydney of Red Mountain," by Vingie E. Roe.

Oct. 12, "Now," by Frederick Orin Bartlett.

Oct. 19, "Identified," by Richard Washburn Child.

Oct. 26, "Arabella Dart, Man Hater," by Elizabeth Jordan.

Nov. 2, "The Bridge," by Jennette Lee.

Nov. 9, "Green Lanterns," by Mary Synon.

Nov. 16, "Levy," by Bruno Lessing.

Nov. 23, "The Curse of a Thousand Kisses," by Sax Rohmer.

Nov. 30, "Lover's Reckoning," by John Fleming Wilson.

Dec. 7, "Perdita," by Dana Gatlin.

Dec. 14, "You Can't Tell," by Clarence Buddington Kelland.

Dec. 21, "Her Only Husband," by Fanny Heaslip Lea.

Dec. 28, "The Legacy of Ebenezer Chance," by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

Jan. 4, "The Picture Maniac," by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

These and many others written by authors as famous, some of them even more famous than any of these, will make The Birmingham News the greatest fiction medium in all the South for the next year.

If you are not already a subscriber to The News, order it now either from your local newsdealer, or direct from the Circulation Department of The Birmingham News.

The News will be delivered to you by carrier seven days a week for 20 cents a week, in the territory served by carriers.

The mail subscription rate on rural routes and in towns where there is no carrier delivery service, daily and Sunday, one month 85c cents; three months, $2.25; six months, $4.50; one year, $9.00.

The Sunday edition only will be mailed you, single copy, 7 cents; three months, 75 cents; one year, $3.00.

All mail subscriptions payable in advance.—Adv.

FAIR PRICE COMMITTEE FOR CHILTON COUNTY

Judge L. H. Reynolds, the County Food Administrator for Chilton County, has addressed the following letter to the people of Chilton County in regard to the Fair Price Committee, and its work in Chilton County in regard to profiteering on food products:

He says the following: "Under the instructions of Hon. R. M. Hobbie, State Food Administrator, I have organized the following Fair Price Committee for Chilton County:

C. F. Jones, Chm., Clanton;
W. M. Wyatt, Secy., Clanton;
T. A. Curry, Clanton;
J. D. Collins, Clanton;
W. D. Driver, Clanton;
H. B. Oliver, Verbena;
J. H. Ramsey, Maplesville;
R. B. McNeill, Jemison;
C. M. Foshee, Maplesville.

"Any one having any complaint to make in regard to unreasonable and unfair prices on food products, will file such complaint with any member of the Committee; the committeemen will file the complaint with the Chairman or Secretary, whereupon a meeting of the whole committee will be called to consider the complaint. If it is decided upon investigation of the complaint that anyone has been profiteering, such party will be notified of the decision of the committee. If the violator then persists in further actions disregarding the protest of the committee then the case will be referred to the State Food Administrator, or to Hon. W. H. Samford District Attorney.

"L. H. REYNOLDS,
County Food Administrator.

SINGING CONVENTION

The county singing convention at Bethel Church Saturday and Sunday was a great success—one of the best, was largely attended. The kindness of the community was unbounded. A large number of directors were present. Among the finest directors were four young ladies, Miss Brown, Miss Scott and Misses Sanders.

The memorial service was conducted by Mr. J. W. Hays, T. C. Jackson and Miss Era Sanders. We never have noticed a service rendered more beautifully. The music of the convention was rendered nicely. A very nice collection in cash and subscriptions was secured for the new music hall in Birmingham.

Among the prominent people present we noticed the popular W. H. Gillespie, Ex-Sheriff Harris, Mr. J. W. Hays, Mr. Popwell and our Tax Collector and Assessor. Mr. J. N. Dennis and Mr. Popwell of Clanton are entitled to honorable mention for their great kindness to the visitors.

The convention is invited to the Soldiers Home next Sunday.

Robert Bean will have to take down his sign on the potato business or else produce something bigger than two pounds and ten ounces. J. E. Robinson brought us one from Uncle Mose's the other day that weighed three and a quarter pounds. Who can beat that? Alfred Baker.

Prof. Judson Strock of Verbena was in Clanton last Saturday.

MARS HILL

The singing Sunday p.m. was well attended. Behavior was excellent.

Sunday School announced for next Sunday a.m., 10:00 o'clock.

The literary school ends this month.

The many friends of Mr. John Cofer are more than glad to welcome him back home. He's the last of our boys in this vicinity to return.

Let everyone remember next Saturday, 20th is day for cleaning off the cemetery at this place. Those who are interested come or send some one to help, thereby showing proper respect for the dead.

Cotton picking and 'lasses making is order of the day.

Friends of Mrs. A. J. Scitt are glad to know she is recovering.

DR. O. C. McGEHEE,

The Presiding Elder of this District of the Alabama Conference, will occupy the pulpit of the First Methodist Church, Clanton, next Sunday, September 21st, at 11, a.m. and 8, p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all to come and worship with us.

Squire John S. Dennis of Beat 11 was a visitor to Clanton last Saturday.

Judge and Mrs. S. M. Adams spent last week with relatives and friends in Montgomery.

Misses Pearl and Ola Durbin left Saturday for Mobile, where they will be the guests of Miss Aileen Parker. Miss Ola has accepted a position as primary teacher in the Union School there.

COULD TALK FOR HOURS ABOUT IT

Declares Change is Marvelous Since Taking Dreco, the Great Root and Herb Remedy. Relieved Stomach and Liver Troubles, Also Constipation.

"Honestly, I thought I had the worst liver and stomach in the State," says Mrs. Fannie E. Norris of Route 5, Montgomery, Ala.

"It seemed like there was a big lump in my throat; my bowels were constipated, so I had to take something every night. I often had sick headache, and my liver was lazy. Pains in the small of my back and in my limbs caused me much suffering, and it seemed I could not sleep.

"I have been taking Dreco now for some time, and it sure has brought a change in my condition. My food digests as well as it ever did in my life, without any gas at all. I never have a headache nor pain in my back, and I lie down at night and go right off into a restful sleep. Dreco has done me a lot of good, and I could talk for hours about the good it did me, and then not tell half."

Many people are daily testing the merits of Dreco in cases of gastritis, pains in back and limbs, catarrh, headaches, rheumatism, constipation and general debility. It increases the appetite, soothes tired nerves, arouses sluggish liver and kidneys, and drives the impurities from the blood. Being made of juices of roots, herbs, barks and berries, it does not contain any mercury, potash, or other harmful minerals.

Dreco is sold by all druggists and is highly recommended in this city by Upchurch Drug Company.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By Luby Mahan.

Class No. 1.

The Senior Class was organized on September 4, 1919. Miss Preston acted as Chairman until the President was elected. The following officers were elected:

President, Johnnie Plier; Vice-President, Evans Edwards; Secy-Treas., Ara Owen; Historian, John Lee Thacker; Poet, Clara Millsap; Prophet, Margaret Hester; Critic, Zelie Robinson; Musician, Myrtle Roberts; Goat Frank Mullins; Editor, Luby Mahan; Flower, Rose; Colors, pink and green. A committee has been appointed to select Class Motto.

Class No. 2.

The Junior Class of the Chilton County High School was organized September 3. The following officers were elected: President, Annice Kemp; Vice-President, ————; Secy-Treas., Lucile Attoway; Treasurer, ————.

The manual training boys are going to make some boxes for our window and the girls are going to plant the flowers. We want to have our flowers in the class colors, which are yellow and white. We want the Junior Class to be the best class in school.

Class No. 3.

The Sophomore Class had its first meeting Monday, September 8th. The following officers were elected:

President, Jennye Robinson; Vice-President, Gladys Mae Nix; Secy-Treas., Gladys McCain; Goat, Alline Taylor; Class Reporter, Sallye Parrish.

Class No. 4.

TheFreshman Class was enrolled and organized September 8, with an enrollment of sixty-three. It took us several days to get used to the place, which was new to us; and especially our initiation, which was methodically performed. The following officers were elected: Eloise Kemp, President; Cecil Armstrong, Vice-President; Norma Attoway, Secretary; Louise Popwell, Treasurer; J. D. Collins, Goat.

With such a large class as ours, we cannot fail, and we are confident that we shall be in the front rank of everything in the year to come.

Boys Athletics.

The boys of the school met last Friday with Coach Helms, and organized the Athletic Association with a large enrollment. Two teams were organized, and we have been having some scrimmages every Friday afternoon. There will be a game between Varsity and Scrubs. Also a game was scheduled with Marbury High School for Friday, October 3. We ask the support of the town by coming and bringing somebody with you, if you are interested in the success of our school.

Girls Athletics.

On September 5th, the girls of the high school met with Miss Williamson and organized an Athletic Association. In this meeting we elected the following officers:

President, Myrtle Roberts; Vice-President, Zebie Robinson; Secretary and Treasurer, Annice Kemp. We hope the girls athletic association will become a branch of study, and will be a success. The girls are taking a great part in this organization and we are sure that we will have a team that will "lick 'em."

Miss Williamson reports that she wishes to see all the girls out in uniform ready for playing next week.

Literary Society.

The Literary Society, Philomathean of Chilton County High School, met with Miss Preston on September 16th to organize. The following officers were elected:

President, Herbert Davis; Vice-President, Warrene Spigener; Secretary, Lucile Attoway; Treasurer, Garland Foshee.

We want our society to be better than Society No. 1.

There can be no doubt that feed of every kind will be high priced throughout the ensuing winter and spring Therefore, winter and early spring pastures become of greater importance than usual.

One of the most reliable plants for winter pasturage is rye. This has the advantage over oats of being hardier, or practically proof against winter killing. Rye may be sown at any time from the latter part of August to the latter part of November. Only the earlier sowings produce satisfactory amounts of pasturage. Rye sown early on rich land may afford some pasturage even before Christmas.

A small plot of rye drilled on a rich lot for small-scale use may be cut even as early as December, just before heading, and may again be cut at least twice for feeding green to the family cow during January, February, and March.

The most important matter connected with sowing rye for pasturage is to sow early, and to obtain the proper kind of seed.

Tests of varieties of rye from different latitudes have been made by the Experiment Station at Auburn for more than twenty years. These invariably show that rye from the middle or southern parts of the cotton belt affords a much greater amount of pasturage, and usually also of grain, than does rye from the northern part of the Cotton Belt, and from still higher latitudes.

Abruzzi rye, introduced from Europe, is now the most popular rye, by reason of its earliness and reputed large yield of grain. From the Auburn experiments we conclude that native, fully acclimatized, rye, generally known as southern rye, is just as early in maturing, and about as productive of forage and grain as is Abruzzi rye. However, Abruzzi makes a more rapid and erect growth during its first few months of life, and hence affords somewhat earlier winter pasturage. This is counter-balanced by its being more tender towards frost, especially when it has reached the booting stage, than is Southern rye.

What is often sold as Tennessee rye, and sometimes as North Georgia rye, has usually proved inferior in amount of pasturage and in yield of grain.

Alabama farmers are advised to sow as early as practicable acclimatized Southern rye or Abruzzi. It will be worth while to give preference to these varieties, even if the seed should cost considerably more than rye grown in higher latitudes.

For production of grain there is needed about one bushel per acre, whether sowing be broadcast or with a grain drill. For affording the maximum amount of pasturage thicker sowing,—at least five to six pecks per acre,—is preferred.

In some parts of the South it is becoming customary to sow rye in cotton middles, drilling in about one-half bushel per acre at any convenient time in the fall. Where it is intended to utilize this for pasturage, farmers are urged to make this sowing in cotton fields immediately following the first picking. Preference should be given to those cotton fields where the soil is of fair or medium fertility. The full amount of pasturage per acre should not be expected from this scant seeding.

Dr. R. G. Stone of the Old Soldiers Home was in Clanton Tuesday. He says the Home is getting along fine, with plenty of visitors to sing for them every Sunday. All the old vets are looking forward with much pleasure to the singing next Sunday. Everybody is invited.

An item of general news interest at the home is the change of adjutant. Mr. George Israel succeeds Mr. Cleve Kicker in that position.

Has A Miraculous Escape.

"I was told by our family physician that I could not live without an operation, as my liver and gall sack were in such a condition. I set the day to go to the hospital, but then I saw the advertisement of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. Since taking it I am feeling like a two-year-old. I am sure I never could have survived an operation." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation which causes practically all stomach, liver nd intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.—Alred Drug Co.

DERIDES WILSON'S STATEMENT

In Sharp Criticism of Chief executive Says Nonsense is Always Nonsense.

Washington, Sept. 22. — Senator Kenyon of Iowa in a speech which stirred the Senate and moved the galleries to vigorous applause declared that a vote for the league of nations in its present form would be "close to treason to my country." Senator Kenyon announced his purpose to vote for reservations to the covenant for the league which would protect the rights of America and said that without reservations and these of a strong and positive character, that he would not support the covenant.

Moreover, Senator Kenyon announced that he would vote for an amendment to equalize the voting power of the United States and Great Britain, and this without sharing in any attempts to create a feeling in this country against Great Britain.

Senator Kenyon came out emphatically for the reservations endorsed by the Foreign Relations Committee either in their exact form or in substance.

Like the speech of Senator Spencer of Missouri, the address of Senator Kenyon was in part a reply to the President who recently spoke in Des Moines. Senator Kenyon was sharp in his criticism of the President and in this connection delivered a number of epigrams which will not soon be forgotten in the Senate.

Defending the Senate from charges of delay and the President's statements to the effect that such a delay is in part responsible for the high cost of living, Senator Kenyon said: "Now we are hearing that the high cost of living is due to the Senate delay; also that Bolshevism is beginning to start as a result of the Senate delay. I suppose if there is a drought in Texas it will be due to this delay, and an early frost on the corn certainly would be attributable to it if it should fit the particular locality in which the president happens to be speaking. The great delay has been in the peace conference and the Senate is not responsible for that. Nonsense even if uttered by a president is still nonsense."

Senator Kenyon denounced the Shantung trade as "infamous and unholy," called the American peace commissioners who went to Paris with the President "stool pigeons, sharing an extensive account," declared the Senate could not be "bulldozed," and asked since when it had been established that men were to be "gibbeted" who did not agree with the President.

"Whose men are these," asked Senator Kenyon, "that he talks about sending abroad to fight the battles of other peoples?"

CHILTON COUNTY ASSOCIATION

The Chilton County Association will meet with Bethsalem Church on October 15 to 16. Those who have reports to make at the association will please have them ready and be on hand with a good report. Here are the names of those who have reports to makke this time, as follows:

State Missions, Dr. G. E. Hyman, Jemison; Home Missions, F. W. C. Bice, Billingsley; Education, J.D. Collins, Clanton; Sunday Schools, Ed Giles; Temperance, W. P. Lowery, Thorsby; Orphans Home, R. N. Wilkins, Billingsley; Womans Work, Mrs. J. A. Cleckler, Jemison.

We especially request each church to be represented at this session of the county association. We want to make the meeting the best of all.

W. J. BILLINGSLEY,
Clerk and Treas.

ATTEMPT TO TERRORIZE PEOPLE IS RANK DECEIT

Senator Poindexter So Says of President's Assertions Regarding Shantung Settlement.

Washington, Sept. 22.—"If President Wilson has a promise from anyone," said Senator Poindexter, "that Shantung will be restored to China within any definite time known to man, will he advise the people whom he is addressing on that subject when that time will arrive? That particular time will never arrive because there is no particular time; it has not been designated, and the promise, if it were made, is perfectly worthless, in the first place, because the man who made it had no right to speak for the Japanese government, and in the second place, because the promise to do something when you do not fix a time for doing it amounts to nothing.

"The President asks, "Will we go to war with France and Great Britain for Shantung?" Does the President think we will have to go to war with France and Great Britain if we keep our fingers out of this dirty business? In other words, did the President sign the agreement to give part of China to Japan under compulsion, in order to keep the United States out of war with Japan, France and Great Britain? How could there be a war as long as we are going to have a league of nations to enforce peace? Was it for the same reason we gave Great Britain equal rights with ourselves in our own Panama Canal?

"The attempt to coerce and terrorize the public opinion of the United States on this great question by the false assertion that we are liable to have war with Japan or with France or with England if we do not join in the rape of China is a rank deceit attempted to be practiced upon the people. There is no such danger."

THE HIGH GIBBET FOR JEFFERSON, IF ALIVE

Would be in Class with Men Opposing Treaty Without Ample Reservations.

Washington, Sept. 22.—Americans, whether they are followers of Jefferson or otherwise, will find interest in examining today the views of this great American on the subject of foreign entanglements.

Senator Lodge recently put into the record in Congress a letter from Charles Stewart Davidson, a lawyer of New York, in which Mr. Davidson has brought together extracts from the writings of Jefferson.

These extracts make it quite plain that if Jefferson were alive today he would, at least, want to make some very pronounced reservations to the league of nations covenant as it is brought home from Paris by Mr. Wilson before he would be willing to accept it. In other words, Jefferson would probably be in the class of men who in administration eyes ought to be "gibbetted."

LIBERTY HILL SINGING SOCIETY

The Liberty Hill Singing Society met in regular session Sunday afternoon; called to order by president with song and prayer by Mr. Zack Lowery. Directors were Glover Smith and J. W. Lowery. Organists were Misses Toy Littlejohn and Zelma Lowery.

We urge all the members of the Society to get busy and invite all the singers to make the Society a greater success.

People Would Be Against Proposed League if they Knew What it Means Said Secretary Lansing when at Paris

Witness before the Senate Committee said Lansing Stated that these two Republican Leaders Would Understand the Treaty—Gen. Bliss and Mr. White also expressed Strong Objections to Treaty President is trying to Force on U. S.

Washington Sept. 22, Inside facts of an astonishing character with regard to the league of nations and the Paris negotiations were brought out before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in testimony of William C. Bullitt of Philadelphia, formerly attached to the American peace commission at Paris.

Mr. Bullit filed with the Committee President Wilson's original proposition on the league of nations, the copy having been presented to Mr. Bullitt by Colonel House and bearing an inscription of appreciation by the latter.

In answer to a question of Senator Knox, Mr. Bullitt said that in the final form of the covenant the only proposal by the President that remained intact was Article X. Article X, Mr. Bullet made plain, was the contribution of the President.

Mr. Bullitt declared that Secretary Lansing told him in Paris last May that if the Senate and the American people know what the treaty meant, it would be defeated."

"Mr. Lansing told me the day I resigned," said Mr. Bullitt, "that he was opposed to that part of the league covenant relating to a mandate for Armenia. He said he considered the Shantung award and the league of nations bad—that the league would be entirely useless; that the nations had arranged the world to suit themselves and that England and France got what they wanted."

Mr. Bullitt also quoted Secretary Lansing that he believed that Senator Knox and Senator Lodge would understand the treaty. He said further that Secretary Lansing, Henry White and General Bliss all expressed vigorous opinions about the treaty. Senator Lodge asked if their opinions were enthusiastic.

"I regret to say they were not," said Mr. Bullitt.

He asserted that is was no secret in Paris that Secretary Lansing, Mr. White and General Bliss objected strongly to numerous provisions by the treaty.

Mr. Bullitt was sent to Russia by Secretary Lansing in February to obtain from the Soviet Government a statement of terms on which it would agree to stop fighting. Before going Mr. Bullitt said he asked Colonel House a number of questions and House told him that if the Bolsheviki were ready to stop fighting and declare an armistice the United States would approve. Mr. Bullitt went to Russia and found Lenine and others associated with him ready to pay their foreign debts and make peace. Mr. Bullitt and Colonel House were in favor of making peace on the Soviet proposal and Lloyd George urged Mr. Bullitt to publish his report on Russia which gave first hand information of the situation under the Bolsheviki agreement. The President said he did not want it printed at that time. The President made an appointment with him, Mr. Bullit said, but canceled it because of a headache.

"Later Colonel House explained to me," said Mr. Bullitt, "that the President had a 'single track mind' and as he was dealing with Germany, he could not bother with Russia."

THORSBY ITEMS

Mrs. S. H. Herbert and two little boys left Thorsby last Thursday for Ft. Lyon, Colo., where Mr. Herbert is stationed as a worker in the American Red Cross Hospital. They were accompanied as far as Kansas City by Mrs. Herbert's mother, Mr. E. C. Dippery, where they will visit relatives for a few days. Mrs. Dippery will return to Washington, D.C. to be with her daughter, Miss Alma for the winter.

The Baptist Ladies Aid met at Mrs. Davenport's Thursday of last week. There was a good attendance and a very enjoyable meeting.

Mrs. J. P. Sorensen is in Chicago for a six-weeks visit with relatives and friends.

The Ladies Guild will meet Thursday afternoon of this week with Mrs. A. K. Horn. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend this meeting.

Mrs. Ola Gibbons has as her guests her son, Mr. Ivan Gibbons and his family from Leola, Ark.

Miss Alma Lefstead, who has been spending her summer vacation at her home, returned to Marengo County last week, where she will teach again this year.

CALLS PRESENT LEAGUE PERIL TO THE REPUBLIC

Senator Harding Demands That Covenant Be Freed From Menace To America.

Washington, Sept. 22.—Calling for the freeing of the covenant of the league of nations from the perils that menace American independence, Senator Harding of Ohio discussed the treaty and the league in the Senate.

He called the league of nations covenant in the form in which it is written "a peril to the republic."

"I can never vote to ratify without safeguards," said the senator, "and I mean to vote for the amendments proposed by the committee. If the President is correct in declaring the proposed reservations will send the treaty back, then amendments will not unduly delay. If the world is to be with a square deal. The treaty has not written it; the square deal was reserved for informal purposes.

Senator Harding said if Europe "will barter in territories and peoples we cannot hinder, but we need not approve and surely we need not guarantee."

"It is my deliberate conviction," he said, "that the league of nations covenant, as negotiated at Paris either creates a super-government of the nations which enter it or it will prove the colossal disappointment of the ages. I cannot believe this republic ought to sanction it in either case."

"It will not make the covenant right, or at least free from perils that would endanger American independence, but it were better to witness this rhetorical tragedy than destroy the soul of this great republic."

ROYAL SPLENDOR MARKS PRESIDENT'S JOURNEY

Palatial and Pretentiousu Are Trappings and Goings.

Washington, Sept. 22.—The President's train, on which he is touring the country, for the purpose, in part, of dealing with the high cost of living, is described by admiring chroniclers as the most pretentious" train that has left the Union Station in Washington for many years.

This is in harmony with the palatial character of the George Washington on which the President went to Europe and in keeping with the fact that the American peace mission at Paris consisted of 1,300 persons and and had an expense account which has dazed Congress. Likewise, it is in consonance with the fact the railroads of the country are now in control of the President and the railway deficit ascends while the cost of living does not diminish.

The Czar of all the Russias or the Potentate of India never aspired to the costly trappings that mark the progress of President Wilson about the world.

DECLARES SENATE WILL NOT RATIFY TREATY AS WRITTEN

Senator Spencer of Missouri in Eloquent Address Says Reservations Certain.

Washington, Sept. 22.—In an able and eloquent address, which compelled the congratulations of his colleagues and drew applause from the galleries, Senator Spencer of Missouri declared strongly for such reservations to the covenant for the league as will safeguard the essential rights of America.

"I say, with all the conviction in my power," said Senator Spencer, "that the treaty of peace as it is now written will never be ratified by the Senate of the United States, and that before it ever receives the sanction of the representatives of the people here assembled, reservations similar in effect to those which the Committee on Foreign Relations have already reported, must be inseparably interwoven with the ratification itself."

MR. WILSON'S VIEWS AS TO STANDING PAT

As on Many Other Subjects, He Shifts Ground with Airy Grace of Dancer.

(From N. Y. Herald.)

In his Des Moines speech Mr. Wilson said:

"I had heard of 'standing pat' before, but I never had before heard of standpatism going to the length of saying it is none of our business, and we do not care what happens to the rest of the world."

In his Indianapolis speech made January 15, talking about Mexico Wilson said:

"It is none of my business and it is none of yours how long they (the Mexicans) take in determining it. It is none of my business, it is none of yours, how long they go about the business. The country is theirs. The government is theirs. The liberty * * * is theirs. And so far as my influence goes while I am President nobody shall interfere with them."

In an address to the Daughters of the American Revolution in Washington on October 14, 1915, Mr. Wilson said:

"America has a heart and that heart throbs with all sorts of intense sympathies, but America has schooled its heart to love things that America believes in and it ought to devote itself only to what America believes in; and believing that America stands apart in its ideals, it ought not to allow itself to be drawn, as far as its heart is concerned, into anybody's quarrel. Is it America first, or is it not?'

In his third annual message to Congress, December 7, 1915, Mr. Wilson said:

"We have stood apart studiously neutral. It was manifestly our duty to do so. Not only did we have no part or interest in the policies which seem to have brought the conflict on," etc.

When did he change his mind as to what "standing pat" means and when it should be and should not be applied?

REV. H. G. WILLIAMS AT THE CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

We were delighted to listen last Sunday to two sermons at the Clanton Baptist Church, delivered by Rev. H. Greely Williams, who is now pastor of the Baptist Church at Hartselle, Ala.

Rev. Williams is a native Chilton County boy, reared here, and attended the Clanton Schools until a few years ago when he entered Howard College for education and training as a minister of the Gospel. He has a great many friends in Clanton who were indeed glad to have the privilege of hearing him preach here for the first time since he completed his course at Howard College.

Both his sermons were excellent, and filled with profoundest inspiration of spiritual truth. His delivery is simple, candid and thoughtful, always gripping the hearts of his listeners with a deep impression of the Bible teaching as revealed by his systematic study and his faithful research.

Everybody in Clanton is justly very proud of Rev. Williams, and we hold out the sincerest hopes that he may prosper in the work of the Master, reaping ample reward for his efforts. He enters the seminary at Louisville this session to complete his study.

FREE ACTS AT FAIR TO SURPASS ALL OTHERS

Great Outlay of Cash Expended To Assemble Famous Artists.

The Alabama State Fair, which opens in Birmingham, October 6, has always been famous for the free acts it stages in front of the grand stand. These acts make up a bigger and better program that is to be seen in the largest three-ring circuses of America.

No matter the collosal cost in assembling these attractions the Alabama State Fair management's policy has always been to go out and get the best. This year the policy has not only been to go out and get the quality attractions of the amusement world, but the quantity, too, has been increased, as will be noted by a review of the wonderful free acts that are to be seen by the multitudes which will start pouring Birminghamward Oct. 6, and which will continue their entrance into the Magic City throughout the week.

The following free attractions are to be offered fair patrons this year, with other added attractions to be announced later:

Seventy-First Regiment Band.—The hit of the musical world. Positively the biggest musical attraction on tour this fall.

Auto Polo.—This is the most thrilling, exciting and sensational sport the world has ever seen. Autos crash into each other, wheels are ripped off and players and drivers buried beneath the wreckage, but still the game continues.

Lieutenant Ormer Locklear.—Lieut. Locklear is the only man who has ever changed from one plane to another in mid air. The machines are going eighty miles an hour when he makes the change.

The Four Paldrens.—Executing the world's most marvelous balancing acts. The laws of gravitation are violated times without number.

The Choy Ling Hee Troupe.—Oriental marvels from the celestial empire with a score of stunts absolutely new to North America.

Leach La-Quilian Trio.—Stupenduous aerial wire exploits. More sensational than flying, for they are kept aloft only by their wits.

McKay's Scotch Revue—Jazz, Bagpipe and drum band. This is a production of class and originality and is the only band of its kind in existence.

Johannes Joseffson's Icelandie "Glima" Troupe.—Almost incredible in its sensationalism.

Motorcycle Races.—A splendid program has been arranged and well known riders from all over the country will participate.

Auto Races.—World's famous drivers of the dirt tracks in most costly speed chariots.

Fireworks.—The Battle of Chateau Thierry. Demonstrations of modern war. Bombardment of the historical city. Destruction of forts.

Johnny J. Jones Exposition.—With 25 attractions, five bands and five rides. The midway this year will be better than ever before.

No one can question the volume of the bankroll that it took to assemble these attractions for this year.

CIRCUIT COURT PUT OFF ANOTHER WEEK

The Circuit Court of Chilton County will convene on Monday, October 6th instead of September 29th, as announced last week. This delay of another week was caused by the fact that it was found impossible to have the new courthouse ready for next Monday. Judge McCord has already come here and drawn the jury. The witnesses are being summoned, and on the sixth of next month the wheels of justice will begin to grind out the portion that is allotted to those who have indulged a breach of the law in Chilton County recently.

Judge S. M. Adams went out to Mulberry Church last Sunday, and preached. This was Rev. Connell's regular appointment at Mulberry, but Judge Adams agreed to preach in his stead.

By D. J. Burleson, Agronomist for Extension.

There is no permanent pasture crops which furnish an abundance of grazing during the late fall and early winter. Burr clover is one of our best winter growing permanent pasture crops, but it rarely furnishes appreciable grazing before the latter part of winter. To have grazing in late fall and early winter, we must resort to some crop suitable for the production of temporary pasturage. Rye is well adapted to this purpose.

Rye may safely be planted through a longer period than either of the other small grains. When planted in the latter part of August or in September, it is one of our most dependable crops for furnishing fall and winter grazing. When the object is to supply grazing, rye should be planted early. It is also well to make a heavier seeding when the crop is to be used for grazing than when it is intended to produce seed. Five pecks per acre will give good results. For seed production smaller amounts should be planted.

An excellent place to plant rye for winter grazing is in cotton middles. Very little injury will be done the rye from tramping by the cotton pickers. An ordinary three-row one-horse drill is a satisfactory implement for planting, but the seed may be sowed by hand and covered with a cultivator.

Apart from the grazing furnished by rye and oats these crops protect the land from washing and leaching. Cover crops are much more needed in the South than in the North. Our winters are comparatively warm and our heavy winter rains leach out the dissolved plant food, if no crop is growing on the land to take up the food.

VICTORY SHOW WILL BE BIG FEATURE AT FAIR

Uncle Sam Joins Directors In Making Alabam Exposition Best Ever Held.

"Victory Show"—the name that has been unofficially conferred upon the combined United States Government exhibits to be shown at the Alabama State Fair beginning October 6—means all of that displays of the fighting Added to displays of the fighting equipment with which the army and navy did their full share in winning the war, will be displays of the improved farming methods, which enabled American farmers to work toward maximum food production, and which they are now using to help feed a large part of the world.

There will be displays, also, of other Government work, that tends toward the peaceful prosperity and well-being of Uncle Sam's hundred million sons and daughters and nephews and nieces. Altogether, the combined exhibits should give every person who sees them a new idea of the extent and the importance of the work being performed by various Government agencies. And there are few persons who can not find in such an exhibit ways in which he can call for and obtain the help that the Government offers free of charge to all American citizens.

The departments co-operating in the exhibits are: Agriculture, War, Navy, Commerce, Interior, and Labor.

Each exhibit requires approximately 8,000 square feet for its proper installation.

The object of the exhibits is to bring the general public into close contact with the work of the Government so that the public can make use of it and to do it in a way that will transmit valuable information without exhausting needed by visitors at the big expositions.

To give an itemized list of the exhibits would require much space. It is possible in this article only to mention some of the more outstanding displays:

Of transcendent interest will be an exhibit of war trophies captured by American soldiers on French battlefields. These trophies, which include hundreds of articles—from a big trench mortar to German mess kits—have just arrived in this country and have never before been on exhibition. The captured enemy equipment icludes machine guns, anti-tank guns, hand grenades, helmets of several kinds, trench periscopes, smoke pots, and many other articles used by the Germans in their losing fight to dominate the world.

By their side will be shown the tools used by the Americans in stopping their onslaught. This exhibit also includes hundreds of articles—for instance, field guns, machine guns, aircraft guns, rifles, trench helmets, live carrier pigeons which saw service on the firing line in France, wireless telephone apparatus, airplane equipment, gas masks, national and regimental colors, signal corps equipment and engineering equipment.

A remarkable set of 32 enlarged photographs will be shown by the War Department. They were selected as being the best of the 20,000 taken by the army photographers in France. The 20,000 were first culled to 200, and then 32 were chosen because of their outstanding excellence.

Prominent in the navy display will be complete exposition models of fighting ships of the navy, as well as five small models showing the application of camouflage. The exposition models were never out of Washington until last year, and this will be the first year of the display of the camouflage models

A YEAR LATE

"Every effort is being made," says Director General of Railroad Hines, "to speed up the construction of the 100,000 freight cars ordered last year." How typical of everything the administration has attempted—our war preparations, our entrance into the war, delayed intervention in Mexico, steps to check the high cost of living—everything has been delayed until a crisis was upon the country and action could be no longer postponed. With a coal shortage impending because of lack of cars, and with the movement of crops seriously impeded for the same reason, Mr. Hines tells the country that every effort is being made to build cars—one year after they were ordered.

Lady Overcomes Use of Morphine

"Troubled about ten years with what the doctors called gall stones, often I thought I would die before the doctor could get here,w hen he would give me a hypodermic of morphine and advise an operation. A neighbor told me about Mayr's Wonderful Remedy for stomach trouble, and since taking the first dose 2 years ago I have not had an attack nor needed a hypodermic." It is simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation which causes proctically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sold in Clanton by Alred Drug Co., and by all druggists everywhere.

DELIGHTED WITH WHAT DRECO DID

Suffered For Years With Stomach Trouble, Nervousness, Pains in Back and Limbs, Dizziness and Constipation. All Gone Now

"I have just finished taking a bottle of Dreco, and it has made me feel so much better and stronger that I can do all my own housework," said Mrs. M. Blair of Route 1, Huntsville, Ala.

"Before I began taking Dreco," she continued, "I was in a terribly run-down condition; couldn't eat anything, hardly, and didn't sleep much. My trouble started several years ago, and although I tried many different things, nothing prescribed for me seemed to do any good, and I was almost a physical wreck.

'After eating I would feel all bloated with sour gas, and my heart would beat so fast sometimes I would think it was going to jump out of my body. This made me very nervous and I was easy to get excited. I felt so bad that I couldn't take any interest in things. Nearly every day I would read in the newspapers about what Dreco had done for others, and many cases just fitted my symptoms exactly, so I talked the matter over with my husband, and we decided to give Dreco a trial. After a few days it began to brace me up, and I knew I had at last found the right thing my system needed.

"I am now so much better that I can eat most anything I want, and as much as I want, and do not feel any bad effects at all. My husband says I sleep like a log, and he can hardly wake me in the mornings. I never have a headache now and feel strong and well. I am delighted with what Dreco did for me."

When the liver, kidneys or bowels become inactive the system fails to throw off the poisons, and slowly, day by day, we are weakening our bodies till a breakdown comes. Sometimes it takes the form of the above case. Dreco causes the organs to carry off these toxins and waste matter and keep the system free of these poisons.

Dreco is sold by all druggists and is highly recommended in this city by

HOW MANY KINDS OF CORN BREAD CAN YOU MAKE?

By Helen Johnston, Assistant, State Home Demonstration Agent.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Here are recipes for six kinds:

Delicate Spoon Corn Bread.

One fourth cup corn meal.
1 teaspoon butter.
1 tablespoon sugar.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 eggs.
2 cups milk.

Mix the corn meal and milk and bring slowly to the boiling point and cook a few minutes. Add the butter, sugar, salt, and yolks of eggs. Lastly, fold in the whites of eggs beaten stiff. Bake in a hot oven 30 minutes. Serve in the dish in which it is cooked.

This serves six people.

Spider Corn Bread.

1½ cups corn meal.
2 cups sour milk.
1 teaspoon soda.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 eggs.
2 tablespoons butter.

Mix the dry ingredients. Add the eggs well beaten and the milk. Place the butter in a frying pan, melt it, and grease the pan well. Heat the pan and turn in the mixture. Place in a hot oven and cook 20 minutes.

This serves six people.

Corn-Meal Muffins.

One-half cup corn meal.
1 cup wheat flour.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
2 tablespoons sugar.
1 tablespoon melted butter.
1 teaspoon salt.
Three-fourths cup milk.
1 egg.

Mix and sift the dry ingredients; add the milk gradually, the egg well beaten and the melted butter; bake in a hot oven in buttered gem pans 25 minutes.

This serves four people.

Apple Corn Bread.

2 cups white corn meal.
2 tablespoons sugar.
Three-fourths teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon soda.
1 teaspoon cream of tartar.
1 2-3 cups milk.
3 tart apples, pared and sliced.

Mix the dry ingredients, add the milk, and beat thoroughly. Add the apples. Pour into a well-buttered shallow pan and bake 30 minutes or longer in hot oven to soften the apples.

This could be made with dried apricots cooked in the usual manner by soaking and cooking slowly and adding a little sugar. The juice may be used as sauce.

This serves six or eight people.

Crackling Bread.

1 quart corn meal.
1 pint cracklings.
3 teaspoons salt.
Boiling water.

Mix the corn meal and salt; pour over this mixture enough boiling water to moisten but not enough to make a mush. When the meal has cooled, work the cracklings into it with the fingers. Form the dough into cakes about 4 inches long, 2 inches wide, and 1 inch thick; bake for 30 minutes. This bread, because of its large percentage of fat, is eaten without butter, and should be served very hot.

Sour-Milk Corn Bread.

2 cups corn meal.
2 cups sour milk.
2 tablespoons butter.
2 tablespoons sugar, white or brown.
1½ teaspoons salt.
2 eggs.
1 teaspoon soda.
1 tablespoon cold water.

There are two ways of mixing this bread. By the first the meal, milk, salt, butter, and sugar are cooked in a double boiler for about 10 minutes. When the mixture is cool, the eggs are added well beaten and the soda dissolved in the water. By the other method all the dry ingredients, including the soda, are mixed together, and then the sour milk and eggs well beaten and the butter are added. If the second method is followed, the cold water is not needed. The bread should be baked in a shallow iron or granite pan for about 30 minutes.

CANNOT STAMPEDE PEOPLE

The president's scheme for artificially reducing the cost of living is meeting with poor success. The postmaster in the city of Washington, through whom sales to citizens of the Capital are being made by parcel post reports the sale is dragging. Discerning people are not going to abandon their usual sources of supplies merely to make an isolated purchase of any goods the quality of which they are not allowed to inspect and know only by hearsay. At best such relief is only temporary and does nothing at all to remove the basic faults responsible for high prices and defective methods of distribution. It is merely spectacular, and as such, was utilized by the President as a means of self advertisement.

Tom Heflin Still Trying to Fool the People.

Have you heard the latest gag? Tom Heflin is telling the people that if the League of Nations is ratified the price of cotton will at once go up $50.00 a bale; and if the League is rejected the price will go down to nothing. Have you ever heard a bigger mess spoken by one who claims to be as sensible as old Cotton Tom cracks himself up to be on the cotton question? We believe if the Senate would put that League of Wilson's in the waste basket where it belongs and declare the war between Germany and the United States ended, thus opening up the markets for cotton in Germany, then the price would go up $50.00 a bale. If Wilson would have let them do that eight months ago instead of trying to gag us on his League fake, the price would have gone to forty cents in time to save the millions of dollars that our farmers were forced to lose on the last year's crop. But go ahead, Tom, and tell them about it. You know the South votes her straight, even if it does mean cheap cotton, patched breeches and shoes run-down at the heels.

Alabama Laws Continue to Protect the Rich Tax-Dodgers.

The Senate of Alabama has refused to repeal the tax exemption statutes of 1907. This vexing feature of Alabama's undemocratic taxing system is to remain in force. It is a system that is altogether wrong and no one can offer any reasonable excuse for its existence. It is a camouflage behind which large money interests conceal their purposes of dodging taxation. It is as unjust as if our state were to come out openly and declare for class taxation wherein the poor manwould be taxed and the rich exempted.

Our present legislature has done nor undone anything that so disappoints the people of the State as much as their inactivity in dealing with this pernicious scheme of wealthy corporations to cheat the State out of tax money that they ought by all means to pay ino the public treasury. The people have been sorely wronged and utterly disappointed at the way our legislature has been controlled by the money interests that operate in our State. How long, oh how long, must the common man be ground in the dust under the oppressive heel of moneyed men.

Wilson is Biggest Democrat; Also A Mighty Little American.

The Birmingham Ledger says the reason the Senate Republicans center fire on President Wilson is because he is the biggest thing the Democratic party has. Right you are buddy. He is the biggest thing they have, but he can hold that distinction and yet be a mighty little light. The whole Democratic party, Wilson thrown in, is like the nigger's mule which he fattened on fodder. It is all swelled up to nothing. During the war the Democrats got so fed up on 'fodder' that they swelled up mighty big. But now since they have been punctured by the guns of the Senate Republicans, you see them chasing their shadows around over the country after this, that and the other, just empty old blatherskites that have had all the gaff knocked out of them by the staunch Americans of the Senate who dared to stand up and demand that this country get a square deal in the settlement of the questions involved by the war. When Wilson is handed a few more punches from the League opponents, he will be smaller than he is now.

No people ever had a more fitting opportunity to rebuke the sins of a merciless administration than the people of the Seventh District now have to hand it to Mr. Wilson and his layout of cut-throat political howlers who are trying to cram the League of Nations down the throats of those people on top of the gaff that has already been choked down them by the administration during the war. They deserve to get it in the Seventh Alabama just like Swope gave it to them in the Eighth Kentucky. Here's hoping hat Kennemar, by the aid of his staunch friends up there, may be able to turn the trick.

It is a regrettable thought, yet it looks like it is going to be a fact that the present legislature will adjourn without calling up the convent inspection bill for passage.

Went to Europe as a Messiah; Returned an Intruder.

One European newspaper has this to say about Mr. Wilson as he left Paris to return to Washington: "Seven months ago an immense halo of popularity surrounded President Wilson. Europe awaited him as the Messiah in a new era of history, now he leaves amidst almost general indifference, appearing as an intruder in our continental history, our European civilization and our sacred ideals."

Those folks over in Europe had heard so much of Wilson's gaff about making the world safe for democracy that they were expecting him to be a Democrat when he got over there. But the first thing they found him doing was going into secret with Pope Benedict, to get orders about how peace was to be made. The next thing they saw him do was to get behind the doors with Lloyd George and find out how the League of Nations should be made to take care of England's interests. Then he pulled a few more bones such as the Shantung and Fiume deals and everybody was disgusted with Wilson the first thing he knew. Instead of making the world safe for democracy and free people, they saw him doing things that would make the world slave to kings, emperors, popes and tyrants. Consequently when he left there he had got down to the same level as the people here recognize him, as one against the interests of the plain people rather than for them. Yet you still see some yaupers who persist in telling you that Woodrow is a political God.

Austria, for the first time in her history, is to have a navy. It will include, according to the present program laid down by Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, 8 modern battle cruisers, 24 destroyers, 12 submarines, and the necessary supply ships. The program calls for completion in 1923 at a cost of $25,000,000 annually. "The league of nations proposes to organize the nations of the world for peace whereas they have always heretofore been organized for war," declared Senator Hitchcock in his minority report on the peace treaty, in which he demanded ratification without reservation. Australia is a small sample. Was ever such hypocrisy as the world is now witnessing? And we would be parties to it if we accepted the Wilson league. Consider the recommendations of Secretary Baker for a huge army, and of Secretary Daniels for a super navy. England is building two warships where she built one before, and she is raising one million men for her standing army where she formerly had 100,000, and she is raising the million by conscription in time of peace! Organizing the nations of the world for peace?

There are yet at large a few small-brained fellows around here who have little enough sense to stand up and argue their rot about Woodrow Wilson being a political God. They have not got sense enough to realize that all informed people are amused at the way they expose their ignorance. For indeed, it is common knowledge nowadays that none but the simple minded are clinging to the great globe trotter in his wild cavorts to sift all the Americanism from the minds of the people and plant therein the germs of his new-born ideas of international socialism.

In Helena, Montana, Mr. Wilson condemned the action of the Boston police as "a crime against civilization," declaring a policeman to be "a public servant, not a private employee." Three days before that he wired Commissioner Brownlow of Washington, D.C., the nation's capital, to withhold action relative to the Washington police, until after the labor conference. Brownlow had refused to recognize the policemen's union, and they were threatened with dismissal. Just the usual line of inconsistency from the most vagrious president who ever sat in the White House.

The writer had the pleasure of a trip to Mineral Springs with Dr. Gragg Monday afternoon. And we were particularly impressed (and also bumped) by the bad roads over which we traveled. The heavy traffic over the roads out that way has completely worn the road out. Several big motor trucks are constantly engaged in hauling lumber over the road day and night. Since the road was never very extra good to begin with, it has now gone to the bad from the wear of the lumber traffic.

Why should the United States, the greatest of all the nations of the world, surrender its sovereignty to a job lot of foreign powers composed of dagoes and jew-talians, and fawn at the feet of kings, emperors and popes? We have never in the past had to do such things. And we have always been recognized as a nation that stood our hack so far as world matters were concerned, and we were never charged with being greedy or oppressive toward any other nation. Now, why do we need Wilson's league to make us take our part in the world's affairs? Truth is we don't need the darn mess. It's all a fake.

It remained for William C. Bullitt to shoot President Wilson's Americanism and "Democracy" full of holes.

SINGING AT THE OLD SOLDIERS HOME LAST SUNDAY WAS FINE

By the kindness of Uncle Tom and his faithful flivver, we were again accorded the very great pleasure of another visit to the Soldiers Home on last Sunday, to hear the old time singing. And together with the pleasure of hearing the singing we saw numbers of friends there, among them several of the old veterans of the Home. The other time we went to hear Mr. John Hays sing at Baker Schoolhouse we got into a very large and exceedingly wet rain. This time our trouble on the way was a puncture. Since everybody is well acquainted with Fords nowadays, and from the further fact that one does not get acquainted with Fords without also knowing some things about punctures, it is of no use for us to dwell on the subject of the puncture very lengthy. Suffice it to say that we arrived at the Home just as the singers were getting well under way after dinner.

As we entered the big auditorium, we saw the following singers in the class enjoying the singing themselves and also entertaining the congregation with their splendid rendition of the old familiar hymns: W. H. Conway, county farm agent, Frank Culpepper, the Standard oil man, J. Bice, ex-county treasurer, J. L. Johnson, principal of Clanton Grammar School, E. H. Lowe and John Hays, who if they enjoy anything as well as singing those old songs, it must be fishing. But we think they prefer to mix the two favorites for they go all over the country to singings on Sundays and fish through the week—and as they fish they also sing. Others besides those named above, we noticed Dolby Robinson, Tax Collector and Assessor Collins and Dennis, R. J. Downs, Jack Langston, Mr. Little, Jeff Baker, John Rogers, S. M. Yates, Jr., E. L. Jones, and last also least, but perhaps the greatest among the number were the two Sanders girls. We say the greatest because we think it will be readily conceded by everyone present that their splendid singing was nothing less than the wonder of the day.

Mr. Hays, by special request of the editor, led the class in singing that best of all songs which makes the touching heart appeal to the angels in these words: "Oh bear me away on your Snowy Wings." A greater appeal has never been uttered by human tongue than the words of the old melody. And as the blend of old and young voices rang out its notes in that big old hall we fancied we could almost hear the flapping of the angels' wings which will soon bear away the spirits of many of the good old hearts that then were engaged in the singing. We are indeed grateful to Mr. Hays and all the class for singing this song at our request. Following the rendition of this special request Miss Era Sanders astonished the congregation by taking the floor and leading "Easter Anthem." Those who claim to be expert in the modern methods of music would find themselves baffled in attempting what this sixteen-year old girl did with all ease. She deserves special mention and well-earned credit for her skill as a director.

At the close of the services in the auditorium the class went down to the hospital to sing for those old soldiers who were not physically able to be out. A few songs were sung for them and the program for the day was brought to a close. Everybody enjoyed the day and especially were the old soldiers delighted with the occasion.

After the singing was over we were guests for a short time at the room of Dr. Mack Stone in Moore Cottage. It was a delightful visit, and we greatly enjoyed the courtesy of this good old friend of ours. Dr. Stone os one of the most likable men we ever met and we are proud to number him among our friends. He especially expressed his great delight in the singing and in seeing his friends from over the county.

We missed Mr. Z. J. Jones of West Chilton. It was our hope that he might be there to enjoy the splendid songs and lend his voice to the concourse of notes which sounded so sweetly to us who did not sing.

While there we observed Dr. Eiland as he went about among the visitors and veterans looking after the comfort and conveniences of his charge. Dr. Eiland is loved by the old veterans and receives the friendly admiration of all the visitors who are accustomed to frequent the place.

VITAL FIGURES OF ALL WAR LOSSES ARE GIVEN OUT

Washington, Sept. 22.—Battle deaths in the American army on all the fronts including Russia and Siberia, to last September 1, were announced today by the war department at 50,327 while deaths from disease, accidents and other causes totalled 66,165. The number of soldiers wounded in combat was 205,590, bringing the total American casualties in the world war to 322,182.

NOTICE TO VAT INSPECTORS

Gentlemen:

I feel it an indispensible duty we owe to the people of Chilton County to make an effort to have the Federal quarantine removed from the cattle that are not now in special quarantine pastures.

I have decided to write Dr. Jackson a letter asking him to use his office and influence in getting the quarantine raised from the cattle that have been free from ticks since September 1, at the end of the fourteenth dipping.

I would like to have as many county inspectors as feel disposed to do so, to sign this letter or write for themselves.

If anyone wishes to sign it they may do so by seeing me or writing me authorizing me to sign for them by Saturday, Sept. 27th.

Yours truly,
J. Z. MIMS, Co. Inspector.

PARADOXICAL

The War Department has ordered the reparation of all prisoners of war. Approximately 1,350 of them are in the United States and will be deported at once. How does this square with the President's declaration that the United States remains in a state of war until the treaty is ratified by the Senate?

Miss Preston: "Chester, what is a circle?"

Chester: "A circle is a line that meets itself coming back.

A new principle in geometry has been shown. When the teacher asked about the sides of a triangle a certain pupil said that one leg equals to the other.

A new dance has been introduced known as the Thompson Glide.

"Germany is not crushed; her armies are defeated; her arms are laid down; but the Prussian spirit survives," declared Cardinal Mercier, of Belgium, in Baltimore recently. And Senator Hitchcock wants to hustle the day when we can trade with Germany by jamming through the treaty which would give her entree to the league of nations.

CURIOSITY

It is said that great throngs of women voters attend the President's speeches to view Mrs. Wilson's Paris hats. It might be added that throngs of men voters attend the meetings to see what type of man it is who can bronzly advocate the abandonment of a Constitution that he has taken a solemn oath to "preserve, protect, and defend."

N C FOUR WAS DRIVEN BY A FORD MOTOR

"Engines functioned perfectly,'" said Lieutenant Commander Read, who commanded big seaplane.

The Ford Motor Company has just received official advice from the navy department that it was four Ford liberty motors—all built in the Ford Motor Company's shops at Detroit,—which furnished the power that drove the N. C. Four to victory in its recent record breaking flight across the Atlantic from Trepassey, Newfoundland to Plymouth, England, a distance of 4,000 miles. They were regular stock motors built during the war as a part of the Ford Liberty Motor production.

Upon his arrival in Lisbon, Portugal, Lieutenant Comm. Read said "the engines functioned perfectly all the way from America to Portugal." And American naval officers who thoroughly inspected the N C Four upon its arrival at Plymouth, England, stated that the big seaplane was in even better condition than when it left America.

The N C Four flight, which has meant a triumph for American engineering skill, also adds another record to Ford achievement.

MICKIE SAYS

Mr. John Farley states that he has a proposition to make to the Peoples Telephone Company in regard to the upkeep of the lines of the company in Clanton and over the county. The matter is to be brought before the next meeting of the directors, and it might be well for the people to take the matter under consideration now in order that they may be prepared to act when the proper time arrives. If you are interested in it, speak to Mr. Farley about it and let him go over his plans with you. We need to hit on some scheme that will make our telephone system produce better results.

Paid $105.00 for a Studebaker wagon 38 years ago

IN 1876 Mr. R. F. Dewey of Millersburg, Ind., bought a Studebaker farm wagon for $105. Dividing $105 by 38 years it will be seen that Mr. Dewey's Studebaker cost him—to date—$2.77 a year.

—and, as the wagon is still giving good service, every additional year that Mr. Dewey uses his wagon still further reduces the cost per year.

You can't beat this for an investment.

We carry a line of Studebaker wagons just as strongly made, just as reliable, as the Studebaker wagon Mr. Dewey bought 38 years ago,

Come in and look them over. We will demonstrate to you that a Studebaker wagon is an investment that pays every time.

The Law Governing the Operation of Automobiles on Public Roads in Ala.

(Section 18, Acts 1911:)

Every motor vehicle operated or driven upon the public highways of this State shall be provided with adequate brakes in good working order, and sufficient to control such vehicle at all times when the same is in use, and a suitable and adequate bell, horn or other devise for signaling and shall during a period from one-half hour after sunset, to one-half hour before sun-rise, display at least two lighted lamps on the front and one on the rear of such vehicle, which shall also display a red light from the rear. The rays of such rear light shall shine upon the number plate carried on the rear of such vehicle in such a manner as to render the numerals visible at least fifty feet in the direction in which the motor vehicle is proceeding. Provided, that the lamp on such vehicle need not be lighted when the vehicle is standing under the rays of a light and can be plainly seen. Every person operating or driving a motor vehicle on the public highways of this State, shall also, when approaching a crass- road outside the limits of a city or incorporated village, slow down the speed of the same, and shall sound his bell, horn or other device for signaling, in such a manner as to give notice and warning of his approach.

Sec. 19.—A person operating or driving a motor vehicle shall on signal by raising the hand from a person riding, leading or driving a horse or horses or other draft animals, bring such motor vehicle immediately to a stop, and if traveling in the opposite direction, remain stationary so long as may be reasonable to allow such horse or animal to pass, and if traveling in the same direction, use reasonable caution in thereafter passing such horse or animal, provided that in case such horse or animal appears badly frightened or the person operating such motor vehicle is so signaled to do, such person shall cause the motor of such vehicle to cease running, so long as shall be reasonably necessary to prevent accident and insure the safety of others. In approaching or passing a car of a street railway, which has stopped to allow passengers to embark, the operator of every motor vehicle shall slow down, if it be necessary for the safety of the public, he shall bring said vehicle to a full stop. Upon approaching a pedestrian, who is upon the traveled part of any highway and not upon a sidewalk, and upon approaching an intersecting highwty, where the operator's view is obstructed, every person operating a motor vehicle, shall slow down and give timely signal with his bell, horn or other device for signaling.

Sec. 20.—Whenever a person operating a motor vehicle shall meet on a public highway, any other person riding or driving a horse or horses or other draft animals, or any other vehicle, the person so operating such motor vehicle shall reasonably turn the same to the right of the center of such highway, so as to pass with out interference.

Any person so operating a motor vehicle shall, on overtaking any such horse, draft animals, or any other vehicle, pass on the left side thereof, and the rider or driver of such horse draft animal, or other vehicle, shall, as soon as possible, turn to the right, so as to allow free passage on the left. Any such person operating a motor vehicle, shall, at the intersection of a public highway, keep to the right of the intersection of the center of such highway, when turning to the right, and pass to the right of such intersection when turning to the left.

Sec. 21.—No person shall operate a motor vehicle upon a public highways of this State recklessly, or at a speed that is greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the width, traffic and use of the highway or so as to endanger the property or life or limb of any person, provided that a rate of speed in excess of thirty miles per hour for the distance of a quarter of a mile, shall be presumed evidence of traveling at the rate of speed which is not careful and prudent.

Sec. 22—No person, neither the owner, chauffeur of other authorized driver of any motor vehicle shall operate any such vehicle upon the public highways of this state who is under the age of 16 years, unless accompanied by an adult person, and any person allowing such vehicle to be operated by any person under the age of sixteen years, shall, unless accompanied by such adult, be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred ($100.00) dollars.

Sec. 7745.—Any driver of any carriage or other vehicle, whether of burden or of pleasure using any public road who willfully and without good cause, fails to keep to the right hand when met or overtaken by another carriage or vehicle, so as to permit the carriage or vehicle so meeting or overtaking to pass freely and uninterruptedly, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars.

Season Book Tickets at $2.00 each are on sale for the Alabama State Fair, and will be taken off sale Saturday night, Oct. 4th. They will be mailed to anyone upon receipt of $2.00.

MASTER TOUCH APPLIED TO EXHIBITS AT THE FAIR

Greatest Array In History of Organization Promised When Curtain Rises October 6.

Never before in the history of the Alabama State Fair has so much time, care and attention been given to the exhibits as is evidenced this Fall and when the curtain is lifted on the wonderful exhibits at the State Fair, beginning Monday, October 6, those who see the wizardry of those in charge of exhibits will vote it the greatest array of talent ever shown in Alabama.

In agriculture and farm products, in horticulture, some wonderful exhibits have been prepared. Those interested in beef or dairy cattle will see a revelation in the exhibits offered to them this Fall. Special arrangements have been made for a bigger show of swine, sheep and goats than ever before and the same may be said for the poultry and pet stock departments. The woman's and floral departments will surpass anything ever attempted before in the way of individual or collective booths and displays.

The management announces that the educational display this year will be more thorough than ever before and that mines, minerals and industrial art displays have been augumented especially for the big show starting October 6.

The different department superintendents for this year's Fair have been carefully selected and a review of the list will convince all that a wise selection has been made. The superintendents for this year follow:

Department Superintendents

Agriculture, Vegetable and Farm Products—J. A. Wade.
Horticulture—C. E. Isbell.
Beef Cattle—Frank Curtis.
Dairy Cattle—Hamlin L. Brown.
Swine, Sheep and Goats—G. P. Walls.
Poultry and Pet stock—Jere C. King.
Woman's and Floral—Mrs. J. B Reid.
Mines, Minerals and Industrial Arts—N. G. Bradford.
Director of Amusements—E. F. Carruthers.
Gates and Admissions—H. G. Hubbard.
Girls' Canning Club—Miss Marion Walker.
Speed—R. W. McElroy.
2:17—Pace; purse $500.

From this list it can be seen that the Fair patronage is in for some great racing during Fair week. It has also been announced by those in charge of the racing that $100 will be paid the driver driving the fastest mile during the week.

PLAYING WITH FIRE

For six years President Wilson has been sowing to the winds. The country is reaping the whirlwind. The coddling of Bolshevism served only to increase the spirit of Bolshevism. Yielding to the brotherhoods in their inequitable demands in 1916 encouraged the framing of the Plumb plan in 1919. The President may hope to divert attention and escape responsibility, but the people will remember.

D. F. Jones of Clanton Raute 5, was here Saturday.

SOUTHERN BUR CLOVER FOR SOIL IMPROVEMENT AND EARLY SPRING PASTURE.

By E. F. Cauthen.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Southern bur clover should be grown on most farms for soil improvement, winter cover crop, and early spring pasture. During the fall and winter when the weather is warm, it makes considerable growth; masses of fine roots penetrate and hold the soil together during the heavy winter and spring rains; and it checks surface erosion and leeching. In the spring, the roots rapidly decay and put humus in the soil. A heavy crop of stubble and roots adds about 20 pounds of nitrogen or the equivalent of 133 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre.

In the spring when green vegetation is scarce, stock graze bur clover rather freely. It helps to tide the stock over until grass becomes abundant.

The time to plant bur clover is August or September. It may be planted later if the seed is treated with hot water to bring about quick germination. For method of treatment to hasten germination, see Circular No. 29 Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn.

When the burs with the litter gathered at harvesting are sown, no artificial inoculation is required. If inoculation is needed, mix 400 or 500 pounds of soil from bur clover, melilotus, or alfalfa fields and sow broadcast with the bur clover seed. Inoculation is necessary to secure a good healthy growth. Southern bur clover grows on almost any kind of well drained soil.

For cover crop or pasturage, sow from 2 to 6 bushels of seed (in burs) per acre. If planted on plowed land, the seed may be covered with harrow, heel scrape, or some shallow cultivating implement. If planted on a sod, the seed may be scattered in open furrows 4 or 5 feet apart made with a scooter plow, and covered lightly by dragging a brush or harrow across the furrows. Fairly good results have been secured by sowing seed broadcast on the sod leaving them for the the rain to wash into low places or pockets where they germinate and grow.

COULDN'T WALK TWO BLOCKS

Wonderful Recovery of Real Estate Man From Rheumatism After Taking Sulferro-Sol, "The Wonder Medicine."

"In the interests of my friends and mankind generally," writes Mr. James H. Stephens, Jacksonville, Fla., "I wish to state how much I have been benefited by Sulferro-Sol. For several years prior to 1915, I had suffered with stomach trouble, rheumatism and other complaints, being reduced in weight from 165 lbs. to 139 lbs., and so weak I could not walk two blocks without being exhausted. While on a visit to Mr. Stanley Stanton Stephens in September, 1915, at Ramer, Ala., he introduced your medicine. I took it and soon my troubles left me, my appetite became good. Being able to eat solid foods, I commenced to regain my weight, and on 15th of August, 1916, I tipped the scale at 1[illegible] lbs. Now, and for two years, I can walk from my home, 1714 Liberty street, to my office, 54 Buckman Building, one and one-quarter miles, without fatigue; notwithstanding the fact that I am seventy-six years young."

This is one of hundreds of letters that have been written in praise of Sulferro-Sol, Nature's medicine that has done so much good in the world. Take it for Rheumatism, Indigestion, Eczema or any other nerve or blood disease. You will not be disappointed. Druggists sell it.

J. A. MADDOX, Manager.

J. S. JONES POPS A FEW QUESTIONS TO MR. G. W. EDWARDS

Cooper, Ala., Sept. 22, 1919.

Editor Union-Banner:

I desire to write another letter in regard to the matters of past political happenings which are under controversy by Mr. G. W. Edwards. But I wish to assure you and your readers from the beginning that I will not use any words or make any assertions that are not perfectly becoming to a gentleman.

I will remind my readers first, that they can observe that it is and has ever been the policy of Mr. Edwards and those who are associated with him in his political manouvers under the cover, to pick up immaterial personalities and entirely dodge the question that are to be determined.

In regard to the vote of Mr. Edwards of Coopers in 1908 (when he himself was a candidate for Tax Assessor on the "true blue" ticket). I wish to reassert that neither Mr. Edwards nor any other candidate on his ticket got a single vote at Coopers which was Mr. Edwards' voting place; and Mr. Edwards voted at Coopers on that day. As to how I know that Mr. Edwards voted the Democratic ticket instead of voting the ticket which he was leading, that part is perfectly legitimate. When a man does a thing in front of your own eyes, have you not a right to look at him? That is what I did for Mr. Edwards when he voted. As he folded up his ticket in my plain view I saw his cross mark under the rooster. I am not the only man who saw this. The other managers of the election saw the same thing when I did.

As Mr. Edwards seems to want to conduct his argument along the line of asking questions, I will also meet him with the same weapons. I will answer questions by asking some myself:

Is it not a fact, Mr. Edwards, that you entered this controversy without your name having been called, and at the suggestion of some others who were being prompted by the Democrats in Clanton toward some evil design directed at the Republican party in this county? Isn't it a fact that there are at least three Democrats in Clanton whom you know to be backing you and other writers at this time in your efforts to cast a shadow of ridicule upon some of the county officials and their administration of the affairs of the county and thereby defeat the Republican party by disrupting its organization?

Is it not a fact that your motive and the motive of other writers now and in the past is and has been to tear up the Republican organization in this county? Were you not a candidate in the Republican primary in 1918 and voted a Democratic ticket in the general election? Did you not as a matter of fact vote the Democratic ticket in 1910, 1912, 1914, 1916 and 1918?

Did you or did you not, vote for W. A. Reynolds when he was nominated last year, and then vote for Mr. Parrish on the Democratic ticket in the general election?

If you are such a good Republican, having such a laudable record for party loyalty, won't you please answer the above questions?

In 1911 when the party was in a struggle, and had just suffered defeat, will you tell us who paid your railroad fare to Thorsby to get you to help the Democrats capture the organization? Isn't it a fact that Felix Dudley paid you a dollar a day to go to Thorsby to the convention to help a prominent Democratic lawyer of Clanton to capture the Republican organization?

Now, Mr. Edwards, I would like to know if your motive now is not the same as it has ever been?

When you answer these questions Mr. Edwards, I have some more questions to ask you in regard to your affiliation with a present existing secret organization centered in Clanton, having the purpose of defeating the Republican party.

Respectfully,
J. S. JONES.

AUTO POLO THAT DAZZLED WORLD WILL BE STAGED AT THE STATE FAIR

The triumph in the art of dare-devilry was reached, when some fearless genius invented the game of auto polo. The crest in amusements was reached when the Alabama State Fair, which opens October 6, booked this world's famous spectacular attraction for the fair this fall.

Auto Polo was first introduced to Alabama last year, when the speed-mad demons opened an engagement at the Fair grounds. All Alabama began to sit up and hold its breath over the weird and wonderful stunts displayed in this great and most perilous of all games. Then came the influenza scare after the men who laughed at death had held audiences breathless for two days.

But Secretary Dent was not disheartened. He again tried for this most expensive and most dazzling of all attractions this year, and by expending a huge sum of money he brings Auto Polo back to Birmingham and to the State Fair for a week's run starting October 6.

It is not necessary to stretch the truth in commenting on this wonderful attraction or the wizardry or fearlessness of the galaxy of dare-devils who compete in this, the most hazardous game of all time. Last year women turned their backs and fainted; strong men almost suffered nervous prostration as the lightning like game continued, which was full of thrills and spills.

Auto Polo is without a peer. It has no equal for sensationalism or hair-raising moments. The participants ride in automobiles, going at lightning speed, ducking, bucking, crashing into each other, causing cars to turn turtle while going at break-neck speed, tipping wheels from their mooring, smashing into fences, and burying at times the speed-mad drivers beneath the debris of a wrecked car.

All these things take place during the course of a game of auto polo, which is played in front of the grandstand and which is a feature free attraction at the Alabama State Fair.

This renowned thriller is only one of the many that will be staged at the State Fair Grounds, beginning October 6, when the greatest Fair the South has ever seen gets under way. They are going to flock into Birmingaam from all over the state to set auto polo, to see Lieutenant Locklear change planes in mid-air, to see the great auto and horse-racing cards, the wonderful exhibits, the great midway shows and the scores of other attractions that have been booked for the Alabama State Fair this fall.

Such a great array of amusements have been gathered together at such a voluminous outlay of cash that it is safe to predict that the attendance record for all previous fairs will have been smashed by the middle of the week. The people of Alabama know quality and class and they have a good enough idea of values to realize that the State Fair this year has the largest and most costly alaxy of attractions ever brought to Alabama for any occasion.

Dora, Ala., Sept. 18, 1919

Editor Union-Banner:

Dear Sir:

I would like to have space in your valuable paper to say a few words to the people of Chilton County in my behalf.

As I am sure of the fact that since leaving Chilton County I have past from death unto life, and I am now doing all I can for the Master's own cause and I am not ashamed for the world to know it. To say nothing about having that assurance of heaven when you die, it is nothing more than a matter of intelligence for a man or woman, boy or girl, to do the right thing in this world. Of course my past record in Chilton has been such that some people, no doubt, will have no confidence in this letter or me either for that matter.

But friends, when you have the love of God in your heart just right, it will make no difference with you what people may think about you. you will keep pressing forward in the Master's cause.

I cannot think of anything in this world that compares my past life more than that good old song, "I was once far away from my Savior and as vile as a sinner could be, but now unto others I am telling how he saved a poor sinner like me." If everybody could feel in their heart and actually know what the Lord has done for me, they would say yes, there is reality in the religion of the lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

The Lord has wonderfully blessed me all my life and to think how little I have done for him, it is enough to cause me to wonder why he let me live. It must have been the prayers of some good people in the world that were sent up for me that saved me, and now I feel like it is time for me to repay the debt. May the love of the Lord and Savior abide with you, Mr. Editor, and all the people of Chilton County, forever.

Yours in Christ,
L. P. MARTIN,
Box 169, Dora, Ala.

VOLUME VIII. CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., OCTOBER 2, 1919. NUMBER 27.

TWO NEGROES ARE LYNCHED BY MOB OF MONTGOMERY MEN

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 29.—Within a stone's throw of the State convict farm where negro prisoners were being worked by guards, Retious Phifer and Riobert Crosky, negro ex-soldier, were taken from three deputies by a small band of masked men and lynched at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon about four miles from Montgomery.

Phifer was dressed in the regulation uniform of the United States army.

Thirty minutes after the mob disbanded Crosky was taken to a hospital for treatment, but the name of the hospital was kept secret as the report was circulated the mob would take him from the optrating room to complete the job.

The lynching and shooting was the culmination of a series of attacks negroes have made on white women in Montgomery the past month. Phifer assaulted a white girl about a month ago, according to a confession he made from the witness chair on Monday, when he was arraigned after being brought from the county jail at Mobile at 3 o'clock in the morning.

Crosky, whose body was riddled with bullets and whose skull was fractured by the mob, also is said to have confessed to attacking an aged white woman a month ago.

Montgomery never before has witnessed such sensational happenings as those of the past week, when a telephone operator was attacked as she went to her work. The negro who is alleged to have attacked her is now said to be in the penitentiary for safe keeping. Street corner indignation meetings were held during the week and the newspapers received many calls from persons claiming to know that "there will be a lynching or two during the night."

Phifer and Crosky were arraigned in court Monday. Twenty special deputies guarded the courtroom as the trial was in progress. At 3:30 o'clock, when it was announced the negroes would be held for action by the grand jury, Governor Kilby was asked over the telephone what should be done with them.

Deputies Hear Shots.

He is said to have advised that they be taken to the penitentiary, about 12 miles from Montgomery. Deputies were carrying out the instructions of the chief executive when the masked band, at the point of pistols and shotguns demanded the negroes. While the deputies were covered with the guns, other members of the masked band dragged the negroes into a ravine about 100 feet away. The deputies could hear the pistol shots and the disorder as the mob clubbed the negroes with pieces of wood.

Phifer was dressed in a full uniform of the army. He is said to have served overseas. Crosky recently was released from service, having been in a training camp in the north.

Reports that a mob would stop the deputies came to the newspaper offices 15 minutes after the automobile with the prisoners left the courtroom. The newspaper men reached the scene shortly after the mob had disbanded.

Scores Visit Scene.

Within 30 minutes after the report scores of automobiles were soon on the road leading to the scene, only a few miles from the city.

The many friends of Rev. Bob Aldridge will be glad to learn that he is planning to remove his family to Clanton to live again. For the past few years he has been living in Birmingham where he was engaged in the garage business. For the past few months he has been doing some special work for a railroad in the East. Bob is a citizen of whom any community should be proud, and we are glad to welcame him back to Clanton, his old home.

MONTGOMERY POLICEMAN AND NEGRO KILL EACH OTHER IN A REVOLVER DUEL MONDY NIGHT

Montgomery, Sept. 29.—J. B. Barbaree, a member of the Montgomery police force, was shot and fatally wounded shortly after 11 o'clock tonight and Will Temple, a negro, charged with the crime, was mortally wounded by a bullet from the gun of the officer before he fell to the ground and died two and half hours later.

Patrolman Barbaree was carried to a local hospital where he died an hour later from four gunshot wounds, two bullets having penetrated the abdomen, a third passing into the right lung, while the fourth was through the thigh. Temple was shot through the head.

The shooting occurred in the southeastern section of the city and was the result of the officer arresting three negroes, Bert Asbury, Edna Leonard and Temple, it is said, were returning from a dance when Asbury met them and started and altercation which brought the policeman to the scene. He ordered all of them under arrest, but Asbury started to run, and when the officer called to him Temple opened fire. The policeman returned the fire before falling to the ground mortally wounded.

The negress was arrested by patrolmen in the same district and placed in the city prison, while a posse was formed and is now searching the negro quarters for Asbury.

NATION'S VOTERS WILL HEAR ISSUES IN HOMES

Republicans Plan to deliver Campaign Speeches Via Phonograph Records.

The Republican National Committee will make a campaign of direct appeal to the voting millions of the country through the agency of more than 2,000,000 standard tallking machines. Cooperating with the Committee is the Nation's Forum, founded by Guy Golterman, of St. Louis. During the war the Forum compiled the speeches and messages of great leaders on phonograph records which are preserved for the enlightenment of future generations.

Political meetings during the coming campaign will not only hear the local orators and national speakers who "swing around the circle" but will also listen to the voiced opinions of statesmen whose duties preclude their journeying over tremendous distances.

Beginning with a rousing talk by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, these five minute phonograph talks will bereleased at the rate of one each month and will comprise speeches by Senator Philander C. Knox, Speaker Gillette of the House of Representatives, former Senators Chauncey M. Depew and Elihu Root, Justice Hughes and many others whose messages of patriotism will be cerried directly to the people by means of the phonograph record.

Chairman Will H. Hays of the Republican National Committee has indicated his intention to make a record of a five minute on "Citizenship" epitomizing his trenchment views that have become familiar through more extended addresses on the subject.

Last Saturday afternoon the little six-year old son of Zed Mahan fell out of a tree and broke one of his arms. The injury was a very painful one. Drs. Gragg and Marcus were called in and administered surgical aid to him at once.

M. D. Foshee has sold his home on Ninth Street to Mr. B. L. Jones. Mr. Foshee has bought the Upchurch place, his former residence on Eighth Street, and will remove there.

C. B. Huett of Billingsley brought a bale of cotton to Clanton Tuesday. He came to the Union-Banner office and subscribed for his son who lives in Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Huett is one of our old faithful subscribers. He has been on our list ever since we can remember.

CONTEMPTIBLE QUITTER!

President Wilson's allusion to certain Senators as "contemptible quitters" because of their steadfast Americanism, makes it appropriate to call attention to fourteen points in his own quitting record:

He was elected on a pledge for free tolls for American coastwise shipping through the Panama Canal, but demanded repeal of the provision for reasons never disclosed. Contemptible quitter!

He pledged pitiless publicity regarding public affairs but no administration ever equalled his in secrecy. Contemptible quitter!

He assured the country that no legitimate business would be injured but his tariff legislation paralyzed American industry until war orders restored trade. Contemptible quitter!

He promised that merit rather than political service should govern Federal appointments, but has consistently violated the spirit of the Civil Service law. Contemptible quitter!

He promised that the rights of American citizens would be protected at home and abroad, but three hundred Americans have been murdered in Mexico while he watchfully waited. Contemptible quitter!

In his first campaign, reduction of the cost of living was the paramount issue, but there has not been a day since his election that the cost of living has been as low as before. Contemptible quitter!

He promised that there should be no "usurpation of governmental instrumentality by special interests," but he co-operated with the labor union interests which forced inequitable raising of wages through governmental instrumentality. Contemptible quitter.

He promised economy in govermental administration but no previous administration was so extravagant and inefficient. Contemptible quitter.

He was elected in a campaign in which his publicity agents assured the country of his "approachability," but no other President has been so secluded. Contemptible quitter!

He told Germany she would be held to "strict accountability" and then entered upon a series of note-writing which won contempt. Contemptible quitter!

Three days after the Lusitania was sunk, he told the world America was too proud to fight. Contemptible quitter!

In 1916 he insisted upon maintenance of the Washington policy of non-interference in European affairs. Contemptible quitter!

He stood first for self determination and then for the theft of Shantung. Contemptible quitter!

He promised "open covenants openly arrived at" and then was party to negotiations unprecedentedly secret. Contemptible quitter!

WE WANT HOG SALE DAYS FOR CHILTON COUNTY

Tax Collector J. D. Collins, who is also a profitable hog raiser, wants to get the people of Chilton County more interested in their oportunities to make money out of hogs. He has asked The Union-Banner to help him arouse the interest of the folks in this respect, and right here is where we start.

If anybody makes hogs pay, they must certainly have market advantages to dispose of their hogs. Other counties have put on organized hog sales days at some central point and have reaped a tremendous success from their efforts. Experienced experts tell us that the hog sale day for counties is the way to get money out of them and the best way to dispose of them.

Chilton County hog raisers should have an organized and systematic plan of marketing their hogs. What we want is to get the plans all laid for the sales here this fall and winter and have buyers here to buy the hogs.

Mr. Collins will furnish you with the details of the plan. And you will see more of it in The Union-Banner from time to time.

Let us all pull together and do for Chilton County what has been done for other counties. We can do it easily.

REPORT RAINEY ELECTED.

Early reports coming from the Seventh District through the Democratic daily papers of Alabama, say that Capt. Rainey, the Democratic candidate for Congress has been elected over Kennemar, the Republican. We are not going to believe it till we see it in the Collinsville Courier.

CONVENT INSPECTION BILL IS MADE INTO STATE LAW

There are many people in Chilton County who have been anxiously watching the progress of Senator West's Convent Inspection Bill in the Alabama Legislature. These people will be pleased to learn of the passage of that bill last Thursday. It was feared that the rush of other important legislation would crowd this bill out and cause it to die on the House Calendar. It had been passed by a vote of the Senate several weeks ago. But the House came to rescue on next to the last day of the session by calling up the bill and voting it favorably.

Circuit Clerk, 1 Jan 16

HOLLY SPRINGS, COOSA COUNTY

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give us space in your paper for a few words in regard to our singing here last Sunday.

We met and elected W. J. Honeycutt chairman. Committee on arrangement of program were W. H. Blankenship, Tom Liveoak and V. B. Joiner.

The leaders were G. W. Melton, J. W. Morris, W. S. Stanley, W. J. Brasher, W. B. Fowlelr, Lonnie Clifton, before noon; G. W. Melton was called to sing 280 in the Christian Harmony and we were dismissed for dinner. Penty of dinner and some to spare.

At one o'clock we were called back to the house by the chairman. Following lead lessons: G. W. Melton, W. J. Morris, W. S. Staney, W. J. Brasher; Recess 15 minutes.

Then the old folks gave way to the young folks to sing in the new books. W. J. Brasher, W. C. Fowlelr and G. W. Melton lead lessons.

Dismissed at 4:30.

ENTERPRISE—NOTICE

There will be a school meeting at Enterprise Schoolhouse on Friday, October 10th, at two O'clock, p.m. for the purpose of consolidating district 13 and a portion of Evergreen district and a portion of Eastview district. All who are interested please come. We are expecting Prof. W. T. Bean to be with us. Our aim is for better schools. -C. B. HUETT.

George Pok has rented the Ernest Mahan place in the Gowan Addition, where he will live for the next year.

Robert Bean started out in our potato contest with a specimen that weighed two pounds and ten ounces. He was topped right away by potatoes that weighed frm three to nine pounds. He says he don't intend to be bluffed clean out, so on Tuesday he brought along a sample that weighs five pounds. He says he is going to get the prize with the next one he brings.

50 ALLEGED OMAHA RIOTERS ARRESTED FOR VIOLENCE

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 1.—Fifty men and boys were under arrest today in connection with the rioting of last Sunday night, when a negro held for attacking a white girl was lynched, the Mayor dragged through the streets with a rope about his neck and the county courthouse badly damaged by fire, set by the mob.

Among the prisoners is Sol Francis, 12 years of age. All of those under arrest are held for either murder, inciting to riot, or assault to commit murder and wilful destruction of public property.

The physician attending Mayor Smith, who was seriously injured by the mob, stated this morning that his condition was such that he thought all danger past.

The negroes were arrested in Council Bluffs, Iowa, just across the river from here late yesterday when the discovery was made that they had a stock of guns and ammunition.

RETURNED LOADED WITH RICH GIFTS OF HIS BIG ROYAL PALS

Every Dollar of People's Money is Gone but Wilson's Present Chest Full.

IN RETURN HE EXALTS LEAGUE

Wash[illegible] Sept. 29.—Referring to [illegible]ormous expense account of President and his retinue at the peace conference and to the European gifts which were lavished upon the President by royalty and others, Senator Sherman of Illinois said:

"There has been filed a general expense account, which reminds me of the general prayer at the conclusion of a bill of chancery, and your orator prays such other and further relief as the court shall seem meet. There is not anything in the report that gives any information. Whose names are on the pay roll? Only rumor hath it so far, somewhat buttressed by a vigilant press. I understand that Col. House's brother-in-law is on the Commission; that his son-in-law has been present in Paris and also his son-in-law's partner. If there are any uncles and cousins and aunts their names have not yet been divulged, but I have no doubt that the ancient play of "Pianfore" will be rivaled when the truth is known.

"Whose names are on the pay roll? What is their compensation? What have they done? What were their qualifications when they undertook to perform the service? Were they experts? No doubt they were. This country swarms with fiat experts, made overnight by passing resolutions; but we wish to know whether they are real experts or whether they are those created by the breath of potentates or executives.

But the President returned to our shores—we are all agreed on this—with every dollar of the fund spent. He brought with him gifts presented him in Europe besides which the generosity and glory of Solomon and Croesus seem a beggar's pittance. The golden sands of Pactolus never poured down greater wealth for the sovereigns of an antique age than that given by the American Republic to its President. In return for all this he exalts this alien league exotic above the Government of his own country and swears allegiance to a hybrid power across the sea. If this be his conception of officiall duty, fortunate indeed would it have been for this Republic if he had never returned to his native shores but had remained in the arms of his foreign friends and associates."

J. P. Dykes of Dry Valley was in Clanton on Wednesday attending his duties as a member of the county board of education.

Tom Wyatt from Coosa County, was in Clanton Tuesday and Wednesday, looking out for a home in or near Clanton.

Work was begun on a big scale Wednesday morning clearing away the debris from around the court house. Commissioner A. P. Vinson with several men and teams and a county motor truck was in charge of the work.

J. Lee Yates has removed from Birmingham, and is now engaged in the saw mill business with Mr. Lambert west of Thorsby.

W. A. Kemp has occupied the extensive addition to his store. His space is almost doubled by the addition, and he is now able to give his customers the advantage in much better trading facilities.

Residence property in Clanton is going at a premium now, and many sales are being made. In the last week Mr. G. O. McKee, the meat market man has bought the property of D. C. Alred on Eighth Street north, and will live there in future. W. M. Wyatt also bought the Shivers place on the same street.

FOUND RELIEF FROM CATARRH

Nose and Head Stopped Up Every Morning. Drippings From Back of Nose Got Stomach Irritated. Dreco, the Great Herbal Remedy, Gave Relief.

A famous doctor, writing about catarrh, says: "When the nose is stopped up, as by a cold in the head, or when the bad habit of mouth-breathing is indulged in, the air we breathe is only partially warmed, moistened and otherwise prepared for contact with the deeper tissues; therefore, diseases of the throat, windpipe or lungs are very apt to develop."

"I have been a sufferer from catarrh for a long time," says Mrs. L. T. Bowen of 402 Eugene St., Montgomery, Ala.

"There seemed to be a constant dripping into my throat from the back of my nose. Upon rising in the morning my head and nose would be all stopped up, and it would take some time to get them cleared. My breath most of the time was foul, and my breathing was heavy and difficult. I knew of the benefits people were receiving from taking Dreco, so bought a bottle. At the end of the first bottle I felt that my condition was much improved. On rising I was not nearly so much stopped up; my breath was sweeter and the dripping much less. I am continuing the treatment and feel that I will get a permanent cure, and do not hesitate to recommend Dreco to anyone suffering as I was."

Dreco acts directly on catarrhal conditions of the nose, head, throat and stomach, as it is quickly absorbed by the blood and circulated to the affected parts, where its tonic action is soon felt, giving prompt benefit, and if the use is continued, often effects permanent relief.

Dreco is sold by all druggists and is highly recommended in this city by

MR. G. W. EDWARDS ANSWERS SOME OF JONES'S QUESTIONS

Mr. Editor:

By your kind permission, I will answer Mr. Jones' questions.

When I saw his first letter I thought he was full of information, but when the test came he seemed to be blank, and now wants me to advise him. I can't understand why Mr. Jones wants to mislead the people about what happened in 1908.

That is the year that Mr. Jones and his leaders quit the Republican party and nominated their ticket in a populist primary. The people that would not follow (called the true-blue Republicans) organized and nominated a ticket.

I was nominated for Tax Assessor on the ticket. After the Populist primary the old Republican Committee that voted in the Populist primary met and nominated the same ticket the Populists nominated. I learned that that ticket would go under the Republican emblem and our ticket would be as an independent ticket. I would not have that; so I gave notice in The Union that I was no longer a candidate. For some cause my name went on the ticket and I got some votes, but it was well known that I was not a candidate.

It is misleading to say that I was a candidate at that time. That independent ticket had no manager and their case was left at the mercy of the enemy.

As for the charge brought against me in that election, I am willing for the people to be the jury and just ask that they consider the source the evidence came from. In 1910 I voted a Democratic ticket and helped defeat L. H. Reynolds; and the greatest regret of my life is that I didn't do the same thing again in 1916. It would make a buzzard puke to hear Mr. Jones talk about me disrupting the Republican party. It is known that I stood by the Republican party when all but a few had fleld. When the crowd that is using Mr. Jones as a cat's paw was cussing the Republican party and all that would not follow them. In 1912 and 1914 and 1916 I voted the Republican ticket. In 1918 I was in Montgomery on the Federal Jury (not in jail) and didn't vote.

I answer these questions to let Mr. Jones know that I can vote a Democratic ticket when the good of the Republican party and common people demand it. His other questions are self-explaining and I will not comment on them.

Now, if Mr. Jone's bunch have the good of the Republican party or the good of the people at heart, why don't they jump on me about the things I stand for or against, that effect every man, woman and child in the county. Such as the amendment, the bond issue, the cow dipping, paying men and women salaries for work that was not worth anything to the common people out of the county treasury. It would be easy to show the peopde where I stand on such things as that. But when old sister tattler starts to raise confusion and strife in a party she starts something very insignificant that happened in some secret place where no one but her and brother Bill and sister Polly knew anything about it, and they can chew on that forever.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am not going to worry you over old sister tattler's 1908 lies any more. She must start a new one for me to notice it.

It is a fact that I entered this controversy without my name being called, but not at the suggestion of others. The true-blue Republican paray was attacked and when a party is attacked every member of that party is attacked. And the way L. H. Reynolds and J. S. Jones attacked that party is an insult to every Republican in the county.

It's not a fact that there are any Democrats backing me in any thing. It is not a fact that my motive is to tear up the Republican organization in this county.

I would be glad to reform it. I have never been to Thorsby to help the Democrats capture the organization. Mr. Dudley has never had me employed to do anything. My motive is the same now as it has ever been, that is, to perpetuate the principles in the county, state and nation; and dislodge the bunch that is in and out, and ready at any time to sacrifice the principles of the Republican party to satisfy their own political greed. Now, let us have the questions about that secret organization. I would ask Mr. Jones some questions, but I bursted his information box with my first letter and it would be like going to a dry pond for water to ask him questions.

I want to thank you, Mr. Editor, for giving both sides in this controversy.

I am as ever, yours for Republicanism, G. W. EDWARDS.

Now Is a Good Time To Drive Out Catarrh

The Trouble Is In the Blood.

Summer catarrh, with its nauseous discharge, stuffed up glands, difficult breathing, and summer colds, is bad enough, but the worst of it is yet to come if you neglect to check the growth that is forming to attack you with ten-fold greater power during the winter.

That's why it is so important to treat catarrhs and other blood disorders with S. S. S. during warm weather, and thus free the system from all impurities.

It is now an established fact that catarrh is in the blood and that lotions and salves do not give relief. The experience of others has proven that S. S. S. strikes at the very root of the trouble and eliminates it. Waste no time in this matter, for it is of the utmost importance. Write to our Medical Advisor about your case. PENITENT ACCOMPLICE

President Wilson now takes the attitude that he helped to drug and kidnap Shantung, but maybe, if the league of nations is adopted as written, the poor thing can be brought to life, and restored to its rightful parents. Therefore he asks the United States to compound the felony in the hope that his miserable league will effect the reform. But the kidnapper took the precaution to get the consent of at least three of the leading nations of the league, before the president was dragooned into acting as decoy. Even the courts look with suspicion at a purveyor of States evidence.

REV. GABLE BIDS US FAREWELL CLANTON

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

As retiring pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church, I wish to return my heartfelt thanks to the people of the Town for their universal courtesy during my stay of nearly two and a half years among them; but especially for the unnumbered kindnesses shown to my family am I sincerely grateful. The cost of all things has been extremely high and last winter was quite a trying period, but merchants and people have been accommodating and thoughtful in a high degree. However, at this wrinting I am not conscious of owing any man a dollar.

To the members of the Clanton Church and their friends who have so faithfully sustained my efforts, and to the Union-Banner for continued courtesies, I wish again to publicly express my appreciation. Lifelong affection has been engendered in the hearts of myself and family for a goodly number of the people, and the period of our residence in Clanton will never be forgotten.

Sincerely and fraternally,
JNO. F. GABLE.
Ex-Pastor.

HAL'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

Master Hal Broadhead celebrated his third birthday on last Thursday afternoon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Broadhead.

The house was elaborately decorated with ferns and cut flowers. The color scheme of pink and white being carried out.

After a number of games the little guests were invited into the dining room where everything was aglow with candles. The table was centered with a large cake embossed in pink roses and buds with three small candles. Pink and white ribbons were strung from the chandelier to the table. An ice course and bon-bons were served. A whistle was given the boys for a favor while the girls received a dainty little doll in pink and white.

About twenty-five little ones enjoyed this hospitality.

MIXING BREEDS OF HOGS

If one travels the state of Alabama and discusses swine problems with the farmers he will find great difference of opinion as regards the advisability of crossing pure breeds of hogs.

Many do not hesitate to indicate the exact cross that has been most successful. Such a one insists that he gets increased vigor and growth by crossing breeds. Pure breds may be all right, in his opinion, for the rich man who follows the shows and sells breeding stock, but the common farmer should cross them.

Others argue with equal zeal for pure breeds even for pork production. The advocate of the pure bred sees little force in the argument that crossing adds vigor. Of course, cross breeds are pretty good hogs and he has seen some of them that were outstanding individuals, but he would just like for somebody to show him a herd that will average as good for their age and chance as his pure bred beauties. Then such lack of uniformity! Some are big and some are little, some one color and some another. If he is going to raise hogs he wants something he will not be ashamed for his neighbors to see—no cross bred is for him!

In this connection it will be of interest to study the results secured by the pig club boys of Alabama. There are three phases of the club work: the raising of a meat hog, the raising of a gilt for a brood sow and the raising of a litter of pigs. In each phase of this work, the best record was made by a pure bred, notwithstanding the fact that only 27 per cent of the members raised pure breds. Some most excellent records were made with grades and crossbreds, but in no case were they able to take the lead. That crossing does at times give increased vigor and growth cannot be denied by the best hog raisers. Why is it that pure breds are sometimes more vigorous and sometimes less vigorous than crossbreds?

There seem to be two main reasons. One is that many people do not realize that there may be a difference between pure bred hogs and good hogs. Some pure breds are very inferior individuals, lacking in constitution and capacity for rapid development. If two such animals are mated, the offspring will be less worthy than if either of them had been mated with a better individual of another breed. It takes good parents to produce good offsprings. The fact that they are pure bred, or even registered, is not enough.

The other reason for lack of growth in pure breds is that they are frequently inbred till their vigor is seriously impaired. If animals have been injured by inbreeding, new blood, whether from another breed or from the same breed, will give increased vigor, sometimes to a very striking degree.

For the production of meat hogs there can be no particular objection except lack of uniformity, to the first cross between two breeds. The gilts from such a cross may be safely used for brood sows if they are mated with pure breds of either of the original breeds. The big trouble with using cross breds for breeding purposes is that the stock "runs out" rapidly so that the animals soon resemble the old scrub stock.

Probably the best policy for a period of several years is to stick to pure breds of one breed, selecting only the most growthy for breeding purposes and avoiding inbreeding entirely.

BUY FEED AND OTHER PRODUCTS THAT ARE GROWN AT HOME

Human nature is the same in every age. Centuries ago when his message was rejected in Nazareth, his boyhood home, Jesus Christ uttered a truism in saying "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country." As of people, so of things, and today this thought is expressed in the phrase "Distance lends enchantment." To make a material application, Alabama today is sending vast sums of money into Western and Northern States for the purchase of feeds which are no better or even inferior to those being produced right at home.

In cottonseed meal, peanut meal and velvet bean meal the South has feed for dairy stock, cattle and hogs that no other one section can rival. For years the merits of cottonseed meal as a cow feed has been recognized in its large exportation to Holland, Denmark and dairy sections of France and England. Peanut meal, though a newer product, is also gaining a strong foothold in Europe as witnessed by the purchase of many thousand tons of both meal and cake within the past month for export trade. Foreign feeders have been studying this matter of feeds for generations and have reduced it to a science. With a world wide choice permitted them, they are preferring Southern grown products.

And yet in spite of this convincing testimony from a recognized authority, carload after carload of wheat products, shorts, bran and mixed feeds are being shipped every day into all sections of Alabama and the South for feeding to dairy and beef stock. This transaction sends out of the South vast sums of money which we never see again; stimulates a trade with which our own products are in direct competition and builds up and prospers a far distant section.

Again we must more generally purchase pork produced from peanut-fed hogs. If we propose to continue to market a large portion of this valuable feeding crop through the hog as an intermediary we must stand ready to purchase the pork so produced and establish for the packers the ready market desired. If this is more generally done, we will again be beneficiaries in keeping at home for local use and demands, thousands and thousands of dollars sent West and North for corn fed pork.

KEEP UP THE MILK FLOW DURING LATE SUMMER.

By W. H. Eaton, Assistant, Dairy Husbandman.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

During the early spring and summer months Mother Nature is kind to the dairy cow in supplying green pasturage and other green crops to stimulate the milk flow. With the approach of late summer the average pastures begin to fail, due to dry weather and other conditions, and the dairy farmer should begin now to plan to hold the milk flow up as the pastures go down.

The dairy cow should be well fed in the fall for three reasons:

1st. When the cow falls in milk production for a few weeks it is difficult to get her back to a maximum flow by any system of feeding.

2nd. Dairy products advance in the fall and winter. Produce milk when the demand for it is heavy.

3rd. Feed the cow well in the late summer and fall in order to have her go into winter quarters in the best possible condition.

The following grain mixtures are being used by successful dairy farmers of Alabama:

Grain Mixtures.

No. 1—
100 pounds cottonseed meal.
300 pounds velvet beans.

No. 2—
100 pounds cottonseed meal.
100 pounds corn and cob meal.
200 pounds velvet beans.

No. 3—
100 pounds cottonseed meal.
100 pounds wheat bran.
200 pounds velvet beans.

No. 4—
100 pounds cottonseed meal.
100 pounds peanut meal.
200 pounds velvet beans.

Feed the cow one pound of grain mixture for every three or four pounds of milk produced, and all the roughage she will consume.

THE DAIRY COW.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The Dairy Cow is a thing of charm; she lifts the mortgage from the farm she makes the farmer's life more sweet, and sets him down on easy street. Where'er the dairy cow is queen, a prosperous country may be seen, and Dairymen in joyful ranks are packing money to the banks. Why plug along the old sad way, producing cotton and no hay, and putting up a bankrupt wail if one year's crop should chance to fail? There is a better method now, the method of the dairy cow; this critter always earns her keep, and piles up riches while you sleep, and pays the taxes and the rents; and here in Alabama, Genis, we have the climate, as you know, to make the dairy business go; we have the grass and other feeds, and all conditions dairying needs. So let us boost the Jersey cow, which beats the old breech-loaded plow; the Guernsey and the Holstein too, as smooth as any cows in view. Let's take up Daries, Milk and Cream, the safest money-making scheme.

GOT WILSON'S GOAT

President Wilson has made another flash in the pan and gone home playing off sick. The truth of the business is that his goat has been "got" and he has found it out. The people have put it up to him straight that they are not going to fall in with him on his League of Nations ideas, and it has knocked the old boy into a cocked hat; one of these cocked hats with which Billiam Jennings Bryan is so familiar.

Wilson stood the racket with the Republican Senators in Washington as long as he could. He saw they were going to run him to the tall timber on his league proposition. He then conceived the idea that he would take a swing around the country and get a dip in the great gulf of consolation which the daily papers had led him into believing the people were holding ready for him. So here he goes out through Ohio and Indiana, Illinois, Misouri, Nebraska and across the Rockies into the Pacific Coast States, and lo, and behold, he finds nothing that has the color of consolation to his blurred and weary eyes. Instead of extending him the hand of sympathy and consolation the people have shown him to his face that they are everything besides sympathetic and favorable to the league. They have shown him that the daily papers and press agents who have been crying aloud that people were clamoring for the league have been deliberately falsifying and coloring the real situation.

Seeing his dream of consolation from the people gone glimemring, Mr. Wilson decided that it was useless to argue further with them. Then rather than admit the truth of the matter he puts up a tale as being seriously sick and forced to cancel all his other engagements.

Now, he goes back to the capital disillusioned as to the country's attitude with regard to the existing covenant of the league. He has now found out how the people of America estimate his abandonment of Americanism for internationalism. He has as he returns to the cover of some isolated retreat to recover his shock, the realization that he has failed completely to revive the fortunes of the league.

If the president hoped to sweep the country with enthusiasm on the league of nations, he must be a sorely disappointed man. He must look for a new issue if he would gain a hold on the minds of people of this country.

It will be interesting to see what he will grasp at next when he regains his composure from the shock he received on his recent tour.

WHEN THE TIDE TURNS

Nearly a million and a quarter immigrants came to America in the year before the war, and ten millions of immigrants came during the decade before the war.

With the countries of the Old World in turmoil, the tide will turn again to our shores, and yet more millions will come to us for refuge.

There are more Irish in the United States than in Ireland, and fifteen times as many Jews in New York City as in Palestine. We have some 8,000,000 immigrants from Great Britain and 6,000,000 from Germany. Our Italians would fill a city five times as large as Rome. We have twice as many Greeks as Athens, more Poles than Warsaw and more Scandanavians than Stockholm.

There are in use today in this country seventy-seven languages and dialects.

This is not Americanism!

As long ago as 1894, Theodore Roosevelt said: "Where immigrants or the sons of immigrants do not heartily and in good faith throw in their lot with us, but cling to the speech, the customs, the ways of life and the habits of thought of the Old World which they have left, they thereby harm both themselves and us. If any remain alien elements, unassimilated, and with interests separate from ours, they are mere obstructions to the current of our national life, and, moreover, can get no good from it themselves.

With the exception of the North Italians, no group of immigrants with a period of residence of five to nine years has as yet naturalized as much as ten per cent of its number.

This is no Americanism!

Who is the blame?

At least half, and more than half, is our own.

What then, must we do to absolve America to the charge that the men and women who come to her from foreign countries do not receive from us what they should receive?

To begin with, assimilation works both ways. We must take the immigrant out of the slums. The worst part of every city is given over to the foreign element, and it is to his racial group that the newcomer is inevitably drawn. We must put them where they can have decent surroundings and where, above all, they can mix with real Americans; where they can see the advantages of their new country, and where their own interest will make them learn the language and the customs of the people by whom they are surrounded.

Second, the huddling together of racial groups must be discouraged; no city should have a Little Italy, or a Ghetto. This last is as necessary as the first. If there is to be assimilation, there must be contact; there must be sympthy instead of indifference. In the "Streneous life" Roosevelt said, "Fellow feeling, sympathy in the broadest sense, is the most important factor in proudcing a healthy political and social life. Neither our national nor our local civic life can be what it should be unless it is marked by the fellow-feeling, the mutual kindness, the mutual respect, the sense of common duties and common interests, which arise when men take the trouble to understand one another, and to associate together for a common object."

No one more than Theodore Roosevelt was gifted with this "fellow-feeling that makes us wondrous kind.' What the immigrant needs from us, and what we owe him, Roosevelt preached.

The nation-wide campaign of the Roosevelt memorial Association for the spreading of his staunch Americanism, and for memorials that will perpetuate the ideals Roosevelt stood for, will fill the week of October 20 to 27. This very campaign is in the nature of things a plea for the American immigrant. And those of us who revere the memory of a great man can serve that memory no better than by bearing in mind the needs of those who seek refuge on our shores and our obligations to them.

IGNORING THE ALMIGHTY

Did you know that the recent peace conference at Versailles did not reverence the power of the supreme being enough to open its deliberations with prayer. Imagine a document like the proposed League of Nations being as they tell it, a law unto the world that will keep down all the future conflicts of mankind in the world and that same document framed and fostered by a council of men, some of them pagan worshipers, who never one time called upon the Almighty God to guide and direct and bless the work which they were doing. It is no wonder that such a thing is producing turmoil in the world even at the thought of its becoming a law of the nations. If God has been left out of its formation, He will surely not rush in to surpervise its effects after it is put to work. And the result will be, instead of universal peace to the world, a ceaseless turmoil, profane in the sight of God and cursed by the souls of men who must groan under its yoke.

Come Take a Stroll With Me Thru Our Fine New County Court House.

As the Circuit Court of Chilton County will convene at Clanton in the new court house next Monday it will, no doubt, be of interest to the many people who will come here to know just where they can find the various offices in the new building. Well, now, if you will come with us for a stroll through the building we will point out the most important things you should know about it.

As we pass up the big stone steps in the front and between the stately marble columns, we enter thru the big door into a spacious hall from which leads up two stairways, one on the left and the other on the right. But we will not follow the stairways just now. First we shall see what we may find on the first floor. In a conspicuous place on the wall there is a large directory, serving as an index to the various parts of the building. We note that it tells us the number of each officer's quarters, and further observance proves that the same number given on the directory appears on the transom over each door, together with words that give the officer's title.

For example, right here to our left is the room of the Commissioners Court. Here is where the Commissioners sit in their deliberations and wrestle with problems of the county's finance, public road matters, cattle dipping and the thousand and one other things with which they are constantly confronted. As we enter we find it is a spacious well arranged room that will accommodate quite a number of spectators upon the court.

Proceeding back into the hall and immediately across from the Commissioners Court room we find the Circuit Clerk, Room No. 2. Here the affable and efficient Clerk, Mr. M. D. Foshee, assisted by his studious clerk, Miss Dewey Branch, keep the records and attend the manifold buties of the Circuit Court business. Mr. Foshee is also the Clerk of the County Court.

Now, we will go back out into the hall. The second door down to the left, Room No. 3 is the private office fice of the Probate Judge. The third door on the same side, Room No. 5, is the public office of the same official. In all the quarters of the Probate Judge include a private office, a public office, and the vault containing county records. Here we find Judge Reynolds with his coat off busily engaged dictating letters and giving instructions that cover perhaps everything from building a culvert across Hog Creek to the selling of twenty-five thousand dollars worth of county bonds in New York City. He is ably assisted by Miss Gertrude Popwell, who has been Chief Clerk in the office for quite a long time. And if Judge Reynolds happens to be called away from his office for a day or a week Miss Popwell sees that the office is taken care of in the proper way.

Right across the hall here we will drop in at Room No. 4, and have a look at our Tax Assessor, Mr. J. N. Dennis. We find a mass of tax records all about us and possibly a number of farm magazines on his desk. For in addition to being Tax Assessor Mr. Dennis is well known over the county as a most successful farmer. He will not admit being a successful farmer if you accuse him of it; but if you don't believe it just run down to his farm a mile south of town and you can readily see that he is a success in that line. Miss Mollie Murrah is the potent clerk in Mr. Dennis's office. We say potent because it certainly requires much patience to sit for days and weeks and months and copy endless pages of the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter, and so forth and so on, till all the work of the tax assessor is completed ready for the Equalization Board to come along and change all up again.

Down at the next door on the right Room No. 6, we peep in and see Tax Collector J. D. Collins all ready and fixed up ready to start out on his rounds of collecting taxes again. If you go in he will greet you heartily enough and about the second thing he will tell you is some one of his pet reasons why the Red Jersey is a better hog than the Poland China. Dudley is the best success we have had in some time both at collecting taxes and raising hogs. He is right now interested in getting up a hog sale day for the farmers of the county. When he comes around to collect your taxes ask him about it. We want it put through.

The next door down on the right of the hall we find the sheriff's office, Room No. 8. Mr. Johnnie Gore is boss of that department now, most ably assisted by Mr. W. G. Culp. John and Will have made mighty good records in past years as singers, but right now they are engaged in making themselves a good record as Sheriff and Deputy Sheriff. They are makinkg a decent success at the job too.

On down the right side of the hall to Room No. 10 we find Major Simpson, whose title is Register of Circuit Court in Equity, alias, Register in Chancery, alias, Clerk of the Town of Clanton, or otherwise known to the Grand Jury. Hugh is one of the most likable fellows in the Courthouse, and if we had Dick Jones with us we would go in and hear them match yarns on the fishing subject for a while. But we must hurry on.

Down the hall a step or further and across to the other side is another room that is not labeled nor numbered. They tell us it is Howard Foshee's office as County Supt. of Education, but he denies the charge. It is a snug little office all right, though it may be a little small for the Supt., it is true. If Howard can not use it, we venture it would be an ideal place for Judge Gulledge, the Justice of the Peace.

A smaller hall leads us out from the left side of the main toward the street where we notice the Ladies Rest Room, No. 7. This is a valuable addition to the new court house as conveniences for ladies are very much needed in such a public building.

Now, we will go back up to the front end of the hall and proceed up stairs to see what we may find of interest. Both the stairways lead us up into a beautiful corridor which adjoins the main court room.

Before we enter the court room we will go in the door to the right, Room No. 12, which is the office of County Treasurer Grady Reynolds, Mr. Reynolds, in addition to looking after Chilton County's finances also practices law for a side line; or maybe it is just the reverse. Assisting him in his office we find his capable and efficient stenographer, Miss Cuba Keith.

Across the corridor to the left of the entrance to the court room is tslthe Grand Jury, Room No. 11. Now remember where this place is for it will possibly be a popular hangout for some of us in the next few days. Don't you forget that the Grand Jury this time will be up stairs to the left at the front of the main court room.

Straight ahead now from the corridor we enter the court room which is now being furnished into shape for court next week. The seating has been put in and is of comfortable opera chairs instead of the old hard benches. At the rear end of the court room will be the Judge's rostrum in the centre as it was before while there are jury boxes on both the left and right. For each of the jury boxes there are separate witness and jury rooms further on in the rear. The court room is much better than it was in the old building, as indeed the whole of the new structure is far ahead of the old one.

The entire building is to be heated with a hot water radiator system. A modern heating plant has been erected in a small but adequate annex at the rear of the building.

As a whole it a thoroughly modern structure, exemplifying a high class of workmanship and comparing favorably with any court house in the State of Alabama.

How About an Old Line 20-Payment Special?

With Disability Clause, providing monthly payments of $10.00 for each 1,000.00 for life in case of total disability, with no further premiums to be made, and the full face of Policy at death, which case only

At age of 16, for each $1,000,	$23.17
At age of 20, for each $1,000,	24.49
At age of 30, for each $1,000,	28.72
At age of 40, for each $1,000,	35.74
At age of 50, for each $1,000,	48.52

Premiums vary according to age.

These policies also pa ydouble in case of accidental death to all classes "ordinary" and above.

The ordinary life policies, that is to pay all your life, comes much cheaper, and those I would recommend after reaching the age of fifty, for at this age, if in good health, you have only about twenty years to live, according to the American experience table of mortality.

These policies are issued by a regular Old Line Company, and is backed up by many hundred millions of assets, and surplus.

Sub-agents wanted in every Beat in this County.

ge orchard, visited last comprising about sixty acres of seedling trees, did not show an average production on each acre of sixty trees as great as each tree should have produced if they had been standard budded varieties.

The writer was asked a few days ago to name all of the arguments for and against seedling pecans. The following is a list against the seedling pecan:

First: The trees are no more hardy than standard trees and probably not as hardy if one considers such trees as Stewart in comparing with general seedlings.

Second: They are not as disease resistant in general as our most disease resistant standard varieties.

Third: They are not as beautiful on the average as our best varieties of standard trees.

Fourth: They often prove sterile, thus discouraging the planting of pecans of any sort.

Fifth: If they do prove productive, the quality of nuts may be so poor as to discourage anyone purchasing improved sorts on the markets.

Sixth: Varieties of high quality nuts, especially adapted to northern territory, are being developed and we want to leave the field open to such a horticultural movement. Therefore, seedling trees should not be grown for shipment to any territory.

Seventh: They are not sold at prices cheaper than growers are willing to sell first-class budded varieties.

The arguments for seedling pecan trees were summed up as follows:

"In fact, there is not one atom of argument in favor of permitting the sale of seedling pecans. Therefore, I am not able to give you any argument on the other side. Probably you will not agree with me that it is such a one-sided question but my mind, after three years residence in Alabama, is very decidedly made up."

A strong effort is being made to persuade the Southern Nurserymen's Association to out-law seedling fruit and nut trees. It is hoped that the measure will be adopted by this association at its meeting to be held in Atlanta soon. The same general arguments that are quoted above against seedling pecans applies with practically equal force against seedling peach, apple and other fruits.

In other words, when the fruit tree agent comes to your place purchase from him only standard varieties of fruits and nuts. If you do not have a list of these, write the Department of Horticulture, Auburn, Alabama, and a list will be forwarded to you at once.

The success of any orchard depends on the nursery stock that is purchased. The most excellent care cannot make an inferior variety produce good fruit. Any one who plants a tree should make absolutely sure that he has purchased the very best stock obtainable. Having obtained this first-class stock, the orchardist has an incentive to give the trees the best of care for he is ignorant of the results. If trees are bought from an unreliable nursery or agent, fruit growing becomes a most hazardous proposition for after years of hard work and expense you may find your trees to be worthless seedlings. Stock should only be purchased from a reliable nursery which is using bearing trees of known merit for propagation stock.

Standard varieties of proven worth, that are adapted to your section, or your particular soil, should be selected. Valuable information on this point can often be gathered by observing varieties that are growing in your neighborhood. The reliable nurseryman can also help you along this line, but make absolutely sure that his reputation is beyond reproach.

Only trees that are free from fungous and insect injury should be accepted for planting. Injury from these sources are often permanent or may kill the tree after being planted.

The Fall planting of your stock will give the better results in the long run. The trees have a good chance to become established before Spring growth begins, and a young tree does not receive the set-back in transplanting that takes place in moving an older tree. The possible higher price of the best trees should not influence the grower to purchase the cheaper stock for in this case the best is the cheapest. If a large commercial orchard is to be planted, the orchardist should visit the nursery, see the stock and meet the nurseryman, so that he will know in advance what he is getting.

There are four points one should keep in mind in purchasing nursery stock:

1. Trees from certified stock.
2. Trees free from fungous or insect injury.
3 Trees of standard varieties adapted to your section.
4. Trees that are young and thrifty and to be planted in the Fall.

The Alabama Extension Service, Horticulture Department, Auburn, Alabama, is especially anxious to increase the planting of orchards throughout the state and stands waiting to help the fruit grower in every possible way.

Dr. T. T. TAYLOR, Optometrist,

Fall plowing is not recommended for all soils and climates, but as a general proposition it pays, and should be more generally practiced. Deep fall plowing will increase the seed bed as well as improve the soil texture and structure, which improves the water holding capacity. It also assists in combating grubworms, cutworms and corn-root worms which are often very destructive to corn.

The fall of the year is the logical time for deep plowing and, if necessary, subsoiling. At this season the land is, unlike spring, usually dry and will not puddle or be otherwise injured from deep plowing.

Those who are planning and working for a big profitable yield next year should select an acre that will be cleared of crops early in the fall and break it deep. Eight inches or more is considered deep plowing but if a turning plow is used it should not go more than two inches below the previous seed bed. That is, land that has been plowed four inches will not stand over six inches this year with a turning plow, eight next year, and so on for fall plowing. Greater depths may be reached with a disk or any plow that does not bring the subsoil to the top.

Not only is fall a good season for seed bed preparation, but it is an excellent time for working into the land organic matter which is so badly needed by most Alabama soils. Corn stalks, cowpea and velvet bean vines, and other litter if turned under early in the fall will be rotten by spring.

Just before the fall plowing ten or more two-horse loads of manure to the acre should be broadcasted. Applied at this time manure will be thoroughly decayed by spring and ready for plant use.

The last step in fall preparation is a winter cover crop. Rye is the safest and surest one and will do well on nearly any kind of land. A fresh deeply broken seed bed is not best for rye or other small grains, but in spite of this, rye will make a good spring pasture and much green organic matter to turn under. It may be sowed from the middle of summer to late October. Oats and vetch are also good cover crops, but not so sure as rye. They do well together.

REED APOTHEMS

Asserting that the league will bring universal peace, the president yet demands a standing army of a half million men.

Insisting that war will be no more, he urges the doctrine of universal military training.

Proclaiming that the day has come when swords are to be beaten into plowshares, he demands millions for the navy.

He advocates freedom of the seas, but consents that England shall remain mistress of the waters of the world.

He chafes at being kept at his presidential duties in Washington and he has been in this country only 60 days in the past nine months.

He makes a speech declaring his own opinions and the next day asserts that his own speech is a solemn instruction by the people which he is dutifully carrying into effect.

He hears the echo of his own words, and the next day proclaims them the voice of God.

He denounces secret treaties, yet seeks to engage his country in a contract ratifying and confirming secret and cruel treaties by which our own allies have been despoiled.

He preaches upon covenants, openly arrived at, yet goes into secret conclaves and seizes cable lines and permits a censorship of European news.

He refuses to inform the Senate concerning his vote on racial equality, pleading that he would thereby disclose secrets which would cause international embarassment, although the public statement of Japanese statesmen Barton Goto that Wilson and Mr. House had both voted with Japon on racial equality has for weeks gone unchallenged and undisputed. I shall insert that interview as a part of my remarks.

Because the members of the Senate have not in answer to his dictation immediately approved the treaty he has in substance charged them with treasonable practices by intimating that they are now conspiring with Germany, a country with which we are still technically at war.

The statement is as false as it is infamous.

He goes about the country denouncing the Senate for the delay in passing upon the treaty, yet he refused to give to the Senate the practically completed draft of the treaty, although is was in the possession of all the chancelleries of Europe and was being sold upon the streets of Berlin and authenticated copies of it were in the hands of the great bankers of New York City.

He complains of delay, yet his adherents in the Senate conducted a filibuster to prevent the publication in the Congressional Record and to the country of an advance copy of the treaty.

He complains of delay, yet he withheld from the Senate the French treaty, which by express terms was to be laid before the Senate at the same time the German treaty was submitted.

He complains of delay, yet he even now withholds documents important to the proper understanding of the treaties pending before the Senate.

The president talks much of "duty of sacrifice," but even while he speaks he at government expense, rides on special trains; sails upon magnificent ships fitted with special glass pavilions; lives in the palaces of princes; receives presents from foreign nobility worth hundreds of thousands of dollars; commandeers entire hotels; summonses armies of retainers; creates diplomats without law; and he wages war without authority.

Out of the public funds he provides the keep of his retainers. He compels the American taxpayers to furnish their food and to wash their dirty linen. He talks of sacrifices, but the sacrifices are to be made by American boys who perish in the snows of Siberia of who are yet to die beneath the suns of the Equator.

The time has come when we will determine whether the Senate of the United States is a part of the government set up by the people of the United States, and whether it shall proceed to exercise its functions without fear or favor, without coercion, and without abuse.

TO SCHOOL PATRONS TEACHERS AND THE TRUSTEES

The county board of education at its meeting Wednesday agreed that all public schools of the county that are supplied with teachers shall begin not later than October 15th. All schools that are now in sesison shall begin October 6th, to enforce the compulsory attendance law. And all schools opening from this time on shall enforce compulsory attendance from date of opening, on.

The new law names the compulsory attendance period cover the entire term of 120 days and the board has no power to reduce the number of days requird below that amount.

Mr. G. C. Walker, Clanton, Ala., has been appointed attendance officer for the county, and all teachers should report all delinquent pupils to him. I will announce through the paper and by letter to the teachers the details of the new law relative to attendance next week.

MIDDLETON MAKES MEMORIAL ADDRESS

CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY OF ADMIRAL SEMMES

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 29.—The celebration given by the Electra Semmes Colston Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, in honor of the birthday of Admiral Raphael Semmes at the Cawthon Hotel last night was largely attended. The room where the meeting was held was tastefully decorated with Confederate and United States flags. The large flag of the Raphael Semmes Camp, United Confederate Veterans, was displayed next to a large flag of the United States. The members of this camp were the guests of honor. The room was filled with guests who were given an enjoyable time and were served with delightful refreshments.

Mrs. W. S. Pugh had charge of the meeting, which was opened with all singing "America." There was a vocal solo by Miss Lenna Prichard, entitled "Goodbye, Sweetheart, Goodbye." This was received with considerable applause and she was called back, singing "Whistle and I will wait for you."

Middleton Makes Speech.

Hon. J. O. Middleton, a prominent young attorney, delivered an address on the life of Admiral Semmes, which was enthusiastically received. Miss Olive Austin read a poem "The Dream of the Alabama," which was written by Mrs. Virginia Frazier Boyles. Miss Marie Benson sang a solo which was much enjoyed. The program ended with all singing the "Star Spangled Banner" and then "Dixie." The accompanist was Mrs. Geo. Moulton. After the program had been completed all were invited to remain and participate in the refreshments.—Mobile Register.

W. J. Billingsley of Thorsby was in Clanton Wednesday.

Rev. B. C. Hughes has moved his family to Mt. Creek.

Mr. Wm. M. Adams returned last week from the Ala. State University, whence he went with his daughter, Miss Sarah, who enters the University this year.

Constipation.

The beginning of almost every serious disorder is constipation. If you want to enjoy good health keep your bowels regular. This is best accomplished by proper diet and exercise, but sometimes a medicine is needed and when that is the case you will find Chamberlain's Tablets are excellent. They are mild and gentle in their action, easy and peasant to take. Give them a trial. They only cost a quarter.

SELECT SEED CORN WHILE IT IS IN THE FIELD.

A glance at a corn field at this time of the year, no matter how good the corn is, will show that some stalks are good producers, while others with the same chance are poor producers. To use a livestock term these poor producers are "scrubs." A scrub plant may produce one good ear, while another plant with the same chance produces two good ears.

Now of course we want next year's crop to resemble as nearly as possible the heavy producer. To do this we must plant the seed from the stalk that has proved its power to yield corn. We want seed from the good stalks. To be sure that our seed comes from heavy yielding plants we must select seed in the field. If we mix all the ears together and go to the crib to select seed we can never know on what kind of a stalk our good seed grew.

Every corn grower should go into his corn field this fall before the crop is harvested and select his seed for next year's crop. It will pay handsomely. The Alabama Experiment Station, by proper selection, increased the yield of one variety 19.6 per cent in three years. Of course, a variety which has already been bred up to high production cannot be improved at that rate, but it requires careful selection to keep a good producing variety from becoming poorer.

The following points should be remembered when corn is selected in the field:

1. Large yield is the most important characteristic to look for. But do not select a high yield stalk if it has more space or grows on richer soil than other stalks. Such a stalk has a location advantage which cannot be transmitted, and it may be unable to yield well under ordinary conditions. What you want is a plant that is able to produce well under average conditions.

2. Very tall stalks are objectionable. A rather short, thick stalk with the ears about one-third as high as the plant is best.

3. Select ears with short shanks, just long enough to allow the ears to hang down so as to shed water.

4. Good shuck coverings should be sought in order that the grain may be protected from weevils.

5. Ears growing near barren stalks should be rejected, since the pollen from the tassel of the barren stalk may have fertilized the nearby ears, thus transmitting the quality of barrenness.

6. Select at least twice as much corn as you think you will need, so that inferior ears may be rejected.

GOT THE HABIT

With 47,000 surplus motor vehicles in stock, 12,000 of them going to ruin at Camp Halabird, the administration has accepted since the armistice was signed $175,000,000 worth of motor vehicles from manufacturers, according to Representative Reavis of Nebraska, who appears to have the figures to back up his statement. The public may as well become reconciled to adding this sum to the $3,500,000,000 deficit which the Democratic administration can point to with pride in 1920 as the fattest deficit is has ever rolled up.

Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation

LOBBYING FOR MARCH

Washington, Sept. 30 --Secretary Baker is taking a very keen personal interest in the elevation of his friend Chief of Stall March, to the grade of permanent general. He is at the present engaged in lobbying with members of the House in an effort to persuade them to put through the necessary legislation. Remembering the demonstration of a few weeks ago when an attempt was made by the administration to honor both Pershing and March in the same bill, leaders of the House see little chance of the Chief of Staff attaining his ambition. At that time the motion of Pershing's name was greeted with great applause, but when the attempt was made to include Gen. March in the bill cries of "No, No," came from many members. The result was that the measure went through providing only one permanent generalship, to which Pershing has been appointed.

An Agreeable Surprise.

"About three years ago when I was suffering from a severe cold on my lungs and coughed most of the time night and day, I tried a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and was surprised at the promptness with which it gave me relief," writes Mrs. James Brown, Clark Mills, N. Y. Many another has been surprised and pleased with the prompt relief affirded by this remedy.

Camel Cigarettes

18 cents a package

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages of 20 cigarettes; or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-paper-covered carton. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

They Win You On Quality!

Your enjoyment of Camels will be very great because their refreshing flavor and fragrance and mellowness is so enticingly different. You never tasted such a cigarette! Bite is eliminated and there is a cheerful absence of any unpleasant cigaretty after-taste or any unpleasant cigaretty odor!

Camels are made of an expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos and are smooth and mild, but have that desirable full-body and certainly hand out satisfaction in generous measure. You will prefer this Camel blend to either kind of tobacco smoked straight!

Give Camels the stiffest tryout, then compare them with any cigarette in the world at any price for quality, flavor, satisfaction. No matter how liberally you smoke Camels they will not tire your taste!

WANTS U. S. POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT OVERHAULED

An investigation of the administration of the Post Office Department under Mr. Burleson is proposed in a resolution introduced by Senator Geo. W. Norris of Nebraska. Special reference is made to the charges that the Postmaster General has debauched the civil service in the appointment of postmasters. The resignation not long ago of the civil service commissioners, and the rumors that were prevalent at that time that Mr. Burleson was behind the matter, have led to the belief among Republicans that he has had little regard for the law in making his appointments. Senator Norris's resolution seeks to get at the facts in the case.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO CATTLE OWNERS IN REGARD TO DIPPING

Owing to the considerable amount of infestation in the several portions of Chilton County, of the Texas Fever Tick, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has allowed the Inspector in charge of Tick Eradication Work in Chilton County the privilege of continuing the routine dipping up till November 1, 1919, with the view of eradicating the last fever tick in Chilton County, and enabling the Inspector in charge to make recommendation for the release of the county from the Federal Quarantine, which is now on the county, by about December 1, 1919, providing 100 per cent of all cattle are dipped in the standard strength solution.

By dipping the extra amount of times this year it will prevent having to dip several times next year.

Your attention is called to Section 5, of the State-wide Tick Eradication Law enacted by the Legislature last Febryary, as follows:

Sect. 5. That every person, firm, company or incorporation, having in possession or in charge as owner, agent or otherwise, one or more cattle in tick-infested or a quarantined county, or on a tick-infested or quarantined premises, range, farm or pasture, that has not been released from State and Federal quarantine, shall dip the cattle regularly once every two weeks, on the day and at the vat specified by the Inspector in charge of the vat most convenient or nearest to the cattle. One either printed or written dipping notice, given by the inspector to the person or persons in charge of or in possession of the cattle, shall be legally sufficient to require the owner, agent, firm or person in charge, to dip the cattle regularly every two weeks until released from quarantine.

Very Respectfully,
B. A. TAYLOR,
U. S. Inspector in charge.

TREATY DELAY NO HINDRANCE

The officials of the Kerr Steamship Company, owners of the ship Jason, which recently docked in New York with the most considerable cargo that has come from Germany since the war, say that "such business as we have done has been done without a hitch despite the fact that the peace treaty has not been ratified." A sober statement from practical men. Compare it with the howling of the internationalists who want the peace treaty ratified before some more jokes are found in it. Why, the necessity for a protective tariff law is more pressing than the treaty ratification.

RELIEF FOR OLD SOLDIERS

The House has before it a favorable report on a bill materially increasing the pensions of Civil War veterans and widows. As recommended by the Pension Committee the bill provides a minimum rate of fifty dollars for the old soldiers and thirty dollars for widows. As the law now reads the minimum is thirty dollars and twenty dollars, respectively.

SAYS SHE WOULD HA BEEN DEAD

If Sulfero-Sol, the Wonder Medicine, Hadn't Relieved Her of the Horrors of Pellagra as Well as Other Diseases.

Hers was a pitiable case. And she made a remarkable recovery. Mrs. Mattie Boren, of Sallisaw, Okla., suffered with the horrors of pellagra more than two years. The children had it, too. She was also afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble and diseases peculiar to her sex. Now she is well. She attributes her recovery alone to Sulferro-Sol, "The Wonder Medicine," because while she was taking it she took no other. "I would have been in my grave today," she says. "Me and my three children had the pellagra. Doctors said we would never get well. But Sulferro-Sol cured us."

Sulferro-Sol is a medicine of marvelous power, which is even recognized by physicians. It is a natural nerve tonic and blood purifier, relieving not only Pellagra, but also Rheumatism, Eczema, Indigestion and Diarrhoea.

Try a bottle and be convinced of its wonderful power. After a few doses you will praise it. Get it at your druggists.

WHILE PRESIDENT MAKES HIS DENIALS, FRIENDS WOULD SEND TROOPS ABROAD

REPUBLICANS IN OPPOSITION

Washington, Sept. 29.—Democratic members of the Senate Committee on Foreign relations have insisted upon an early hearing upon a resolution which is backed by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraskak, the administration's spokesman in the treaty controversy, giving the president the power to send troops and a protion of the navy to Armenia to restore order. Although President Wilson and other members of the administration have given almost daily assurances that no more American soldiers will be sent overseas for police duty there can be no doubt that the present resolution is being urged upon the Senate at the direction of the President, and that it foreshadows an assumption of responsibility upon the part of the United States to maintain order in Armenia, following the withdrawal of British troops.

Republican leaders bitterly opposed to the further employment of American troops for police duty in foreign lands. The resolution leaves to the President's discretion the number of troops to be sent to Armenia, but it is estimated that 150,000 would be necessary to protect the Armenians against the Kurds and Turks.

The Armenian resolution is looked upon by the Republican leaders as eloquent evidence of their contention that America's troubles abroad would be just beginning, if the League of Nations were to be adopted as demanded by President Wilson, and that this country would shortly have our troops scattered to the remotest corners of the world.

GAVE WRONG IMPRESSION

In Speech at Sioux Falls Words of President Misleading.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Why did President Wilson in his Sious Falls speech try to convey the impression to his hearers and to the American people that if the Senate put reservations on the covenant for the league of nations they would have to be sanctioned by Germany before they would be effective?

Without going into the matter as to what they have been the motive for the President's Sionx Falls utterance it is sufficient to recall that the President himself on August 20 admitted that modifications of the league covenant would not have to be submitted to Germony.

GARRICK-WILSON WEDDING ANNOUNCED THRU PAPER

The Birmingham Ledger of last Saturday carried the following interesting announcement:

"Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Garrett of Senoia, Ga., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Inez, to Dr. O. E. Wilson, the wedding to take place in the near future."

The many friends of Dr. Wilson will read this announcement with much interest. He is a Clanton young man, the son of Mr. G. W. Wilson, and has just returned from several months service with the army in France in which he held a commission as First Lieutenant in the Medical Corps.

THOMPSON - GORE

On last Monday afternoon at 6 o'clock, a few intimate friends and relatives assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gore, to witness the marriage of their daughter, Rubie, to Mr. T. L. Thompson, of Wilton, Ala.

The parlor had been tastefully decorated for this occasion with smilax, cut flowers and ribbons in tones of pink and green. The wedding ring encased in the petals of pink lily was gracefully borne by little Miss Jewel Gore, sister of the bride. Miss Inez Parrish rendered an appropriate musical program.

The impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. J. F. Gable.

Light radiated through a pink wedding bell and shed a roseate glow over the marriage scene.

Immediately following the ceremony and the bestowal of the good wishes, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left for a tour that will include Washington and New York City. They will upon their return reside in Wilton, where for a number of years the groom has been in the employ of the Southern Ry.

The bride was reared in Clanton. She received literary and musical training at the A. G. T. I., Montevallo. Both are well and favorably known by a large arch of friends who wish them much happines.

Fiume Situation Points To Grave Peril for U.S.

Is none of Our Affair Yet, Under Wilson's Plan, We May be Forced into It.

DANGER LIES IN ARTICLE X

Washington October 3.—The situation which is developing at Fiume has served to emphasize, in the opinion of many public men here, some of them men who were at first willing to accept the league covenant without any protection of American rights, the dangers and difficulties into which the United States will be tions. Following that he would take the position that the Senate in effort had rejected the treaty, he would demand another nomination at the hands of his party and would carry the issue into the 1920 campaign, hoping to insure himself a re-election.

This information has not caused any particular surprise in Washington. Nor will it in any way alter the position which is being taken by Senators who are insistent that the rights of America be preserved. In one sense the statements, which it is not doubted are inspired either by the President himself or by his secretary are looked upon as a threat to induce Senators to abandon the idea of reservations. In other words the assertion that the President will carry the league issue into the campaign if reservations are attached are susceptible of the construction that they are meant to reach to Senators who are particularly desirous of having nothing interfere with getting the treaty and covenant out of the way.

However, the third term talk is given a different construction by many public men. It has long been believed in many quarters that the president has been manouvering about to find what he regarded as an excuse for making the campaign for a third term on the league issue. Those who have believed that this was his purpose from the outset see in the present stories clear evidence that what they expected to occur is actually occurring. They point out that the president has mysteriously refrained from saying anything that could be regarded as implying he did not want a third term.

The president professes to believe that 80 per cent of the people are back of him in his insistence that the league be adopted without the crossing of a "t" or the dotting of an "i". If the President actually believes that this is true, then it follows that he believes if he runs in 1920 on the issue of forcing the league covenant through unchanged, he is certain to be overwhelmingly re-elected. Bearing these things in mind, and knowing how completely the President is wanting to turn the United States away from the paths mapped out by George Washington, who was not only against entangling alliances with the foreign nations, but also against third terms, it can readily be understood that there is a substantial basis of fact for the predictions of correspondents concerning the President's purposes and plans for 1920.

LETTER FROM MR. J. G. WOOD

Editor Union-Banner:

Permit me to give a short sketch of my trip to Albany, Ala., where I have been for a few days visiting my daughter, Mrs. T. E. Williams and looking over the country.

That Tennessee Valley that we have been hearing so much about is all that we have heard, and then some. Most of the soil is red, and produces good crops with very little fertilizer. The farmers there think they are "pouring down" the fertilizer, if they use as much as 300 pounds per acre. I saw one 20 acre field in cotton from which had already been gathered 10 bales, and it looks as if he would get 10 more. He used 300 pounds of fertilizer per acre.

The town is not far north, but there are farmers there who have never seen sugar cane growing. What we call Sorghum, they call cane.

Albany has 14 churches, a good system of public schools, a creamery, two cotton oil companies, one silk mill, the L. & N. Shops, which is working about 2,000 men, and the second largest tannery in the country. All of this makes Albany one of the best markets in the State.

Butter is now selling for 60c and butter milk 30c per gallon. Sweet potatoes, peas, beans and turnips, in fact anything that a farmer can raise can be sold there.

Best of all is the good roads leading to town, and in the place of the streets being worse than the roads, like they are here in Clanton, they are paved.

These and many other good things go to make up the town of Albany, Alabama.

THE NEW SCHOOL LAW EXPLAINED BY CO. SUPT.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 6, 1919.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to more fully explain some of the new features of our school law. The entire school law has been changed and it will be some time before the new code will be published, but some of the more important features are as follows:

Provisional Licenses.

A provisional license may now be issued by the State Department of Education upon the request of the County Superintendent, that the applicant is needed to fill a specific vacancy. They will not issue to an applicant who has been rejected during the past twelve months, except that a lower license than the one stood for may be given. They may be given to high school gradates, normal or college graduates or to the holder of an Alabama certificate who has allowed it to expire. I will gladly furnish any additional information to anyone interested.

School Age.

The new law provides that six years instead of seven will begin the school age. In order to be eligible to enter this term the child must be six years of age on or before October 1. His legal age, in other words, for any fiscal year is his age on the first day of October of that year.

Compulsory Attendance.

The compulsory attendance period is for the entire term but may be reduced to 100 days by the County Board, and must begin with the beginning of the school term. In cases where the length of the term is less than 100 days the compulsory attendance term is limited to the number of days the school is in session. The law requires that all pupils who are eight and not more than fifteen yeare of age, shall attend during the compulsory period, the child's age on the first day of October being his legal age for that fiscal year. G. C. Walker of Clanton is Attendance Officer and any matters concerning delinquent pupils should be referred to him.

Incidental Fees.

The Board of School Trustees for any school, with the approval of the County Board, have the right to fix a reasonable incidental fee, but this fee must not operate to exclude pupils from school during the compulsory attendance period.

Town Schools.

All funds apportioned to cities and towns of less than 2,000 inhabitants that have not qualified by electing a board of education under the new lew, shall be paid out on regular pay rolls to the individual teachers just as the funds are paid to the rural teachers. This means that the town pay rolls heretofore used are discontinued.

School Registers.

School registers will be furnished all teachers by the County Board, but are the property of the county board and must be kept neatly and accurately during the term and filed with the County Superintendent with the last monthly report.

Teachers' Contracts.

Each teacher must properly fill out his contract and get same to me before the close of this month.

Thanking you for this space, Mr. Editor, I am, yours truly,

HOWARD L. FOSHEE,
County Supt. Education.

RESOLUTIONS FROM COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION

Whereas, the term of W. T. Bean as County Superintendent of Education has expired, and,

Whereas, he has retired from the teaching profession, therefore,

Be it resolved, by the County Board of Education that we express our sincere thanks for the courteous manner and consideration shown to this Board during the six years he has been County Superintendent, and,

Be it further resolved, that we express our hearty appreciation of the most earnest efforts that he has put forth in laboring for the betterment of the schools, and we feel that he has done a great and lasting good in raising our standards of education in the county, and that he has created a more wholesome interest in educational matters in general. We regret though, to lose him from the profession, in which we think he has attained a high degree of success, but we hope for him the same success in future business that he has merited in his educational work, and,

Be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this Board, a copy given Mr. Bean, and a copy furnished the local papers for publication.

THREAT OF WILSON'S 3RD TERM CAUSES NO WORRY

SENATORS WHO ARE UPHOLDING AMERICAN IDEAL WILL NOT BOW TO BUGABOO.

HAS BEEN HUNTING AN EXCUSE

Inordinate Ambition to Overthrow the Precedent Established by George Washington.

Washington, Oct. 5, 1919—Reports are now being put out from newspaper correspondents on President Wilson's special train that the President will seek a third term in case the Senate adopts reservations to the league covenant. It is being freely asserted by gentlemen in a position to know, what the President has in mind, that if serious reservations are attached to the covenant the President will pigeonhole the treaty and refuse to resubmit it to the other nathrust in Europe if its interests are not safeguarded in the most careful and vigilant fashion.

Signs are not lacking that the administration is lending a willing ear to the talk that the United States is obligated—morally or legally it is not clear which—to send an American force to interfere in the trouble at Fiume, provided it is not composed. Indeed, it is reported that American marines are already in that region.

The controversy over Fiume is not one which involves the enemies of the United States, that is, Germany or Austria. It concerns Italy and the Jugaslavs. Both the Italians and the Jugoslavs are the allies and friends of this country.

The question which is being freely asked here and will be asked still more freely if American forces are permitted to become involved in the Fiume controversy is what is the authority for such a thing and what posible sense there can be in allowing American troops to be used or causing them to be used in such a quarrel.

If cables speak correctly, the Fiume controvery, though it may be settled may also develop into a war between Italy and the Jugoslavs.

It is certain that if American forces are thrust into any such entanglement there will be an outburst of indignation in Congress even more bitter than the one over the relation of American emergency men in Siberia and the sending of American troops into Serbia.

If the administration saw fit to do so, it could, of course, put American forces into the Fiume region and congress would have nothing to say about it until after it had happened—after it was too late. The examples of such action are numerous enough so that it is not necessary to cite them.

What is going on at Fiume and the dangerous possibilities of the situation illustrate why it is senators are insisting that Article X of the covenant for the league be so safeguarded by reservations that it will not be possible for any authority but Congress to say that American forces shall be used in such a controversy. If American forces can be thrown into a quarrel of this nature, then the power of declaring war, obviously, has passed from Congress, and the American people could be pitched into a war overnight without having a word to say about it and without Congress having a word to say.

Whose sons then would have to do the fighting? Would the gentlemen who are taking the lead in trying to prevent reservations on the covenant to protect American sovereignty be at the front where the bullets fly? Or would they be safe at home, looking out for soft spots for their sons and relatives?

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By Luby Mahan.

Clara Millsap has been elected secretary of the Tutwiler Literary Society, since Lucile Attoway has "retired."

Perhaps some of you would like to know that Marbury did not beat us on last Thursday. We were glad that our boys "tied" with them but we do wish that they had made one other point if no more. The game ended 7 and 7.

We are sorry indeed to lose one of our students, who sailed away on the sea of Matrimony: Miss Lucile Attoway, who departed October 5, on the fast liner, "Raymond Hubbard," for lands unknown.

Jokes.

One of my reporters says that Mr. Holmes is passing around and collecting gum that he has given to certain girls. For further information see Miss Anice Kemp and Miss Birdie Teel.

Mr. Thompson says that he has been a husband once and doesn't mind telling that he expects to be one again. Say, it is strictly forbidden that you tell anyone that he has been conversing with Mrs. L. J. Duncan.

Perhaps the school, especially the girls, "weep" over the departure of "Sampo" Mims.

LITTLE R. J. BATES DEAD

R. J., the little five-year old son of Mr. John Bates of Beat 16, died at the family home near Providence, on last Wednesday evening. His death was the result of an attack of a severe throat trouble.

He was buried Thursday in Providence Cemetery, Rev. W. W. Robinson officiating.

LIBERTY HILL

The Liberty Hill Singing Society met in regular session Sunday afternoon. Called to order by president with song. Directors were: J. W. Lowery and Glover Smith. Organists were Misses Zelma Lowery, Toy Littlejohn and W. G. Culp.

We had several visiting singers with us and invite them to come again.

Several quartet books have been ordered for the society.

CONGRATULATE PRESIDENT ON COLLAPSE OF HIS TOUR

The whole country will congratulate itelf and the President upon the termination of his big speaking tour, which had taken a painful, almost an alarming, turn of late. It is a pity the unwise enterprise was not abandoned before some of its most disquieting phrases developed. Of course, its close means the abandonment of the fight against reservations in the ratification of the treaty; but, paradoxical as it may be, the President is likely to gain far more personal consideration through cessation of open war on the Senate, and his pride will probably be more tenderly dealt with than had he persisted in a perverse policy of belligerent agitation.

Mr. Wilson, as his speaking tour went on, had apparently broken away completely from his advisers. He had apparently diverted himself of much of his usual self-control; his sometime political shrewdness deserted him. He seemed to be losing his head as well as his temper. He rather a pathetic figure in his and surprised disappointment at finding that his will was not the universal law.

He was plainly in need of rest and quiet communing with himself and his real friends. We hope the cessation of the racking excitement to which he has of late subjected himself will result in a speedy moderation of his tone and position and a return to a workable and constitutional attitude toward his partners in the rulership of the country.

CIRCUIT COURT

After a delay of weeks and months on account of the court house being incomplete, the Circuit Court of Chilton County was called on Monday by Judge Leon McCord and the Grand Jury empanneled and set out on the executive of its duties. Owing to the fact that the county court was in session, the docket for Monday in the Circuit Court was set aside till Wednesday, and Judge Reynolds went on and completed the docket in county court.

The following men were selected as the Grand Jury by Judge McCord:

County Court In Session Monday

A large number of citizens of Chilton County were in the new court house on Monday morning, as Judge Reynolds opened the October term of the County Court, the first session to be held in the new court room.

Before the docket of the court was taken up Judge Reynolds called on a number of the leading citizens present to say a few words in regard to the new court house. Hon. Thomas A. Curry, one of our leading lawyers, was the first to respond. He spoke words of praise for the neatness and accommodating features of the new building, laying due emphasis on the commendable efforts that have been shown by the Commissioners in their hard struggle to build the structure. Mr. Curry said that the officers in charge of the building of the court house, have succeeded well in giving us a court house of which the county can be justly proud. He closed his remarks with an earnest and patriotic appeal to the citizens to aid in keeping the building clean and unspotted from the thing that would show disrespect of the laws of decency and refinement.

Following Mr. Curry Judge S. M. Adams made a short talk along the same lines pursued by Mr. Curry.

Judge Reynolds, before taking up the docket, reviewed shortly the hard struggle that the county has been in to get the court house finished and appealed to the people to heed what Mr. Curry and Judge Adams had said in regard to caring for the building. An open expression of thanks was made by Judge Reynolds to Mr. W. T. Callen, Dr. E. E. Upchurch, Mr. W. A. Reynolds, Mr. H. B. Oliver and Mr. C. F. Jones for the financial aid these gentlemen have extended the county in the building of the court house. After his short speech to the people, the court was called to order and the following cases disposed of:

Irby Webb, charged with assault and battery; plead guilty and was fined $10.00 and costs.

W. H. Killingsworth, charged with hitting a minor, on motion of the solicitor this case was nolle prossed.

W. H. Killingsworth, charged with assault and battery; in this case the prosecutor was taxed with the cost.

Joe Wright, charged with making liquor; bound over to Grand Jury and bond fixed at $500.

J. C. Edwards, charged with assault and battery; defendant plead guilty and was fined $5 and costs.

J. C. Edwards, charged with assault and battery; case continued.

Mrs. Ought Payton, charged with making use of obscene language; defendant plead guilty, fined $25.

Dave Bates, charged with violating prohibition laws, convicted.

Jeff Archie, charged with violating the prohibition laws; defendant plead guilty and fined $50 and costs.

J. R. Busby, Jr., charged with violating prohibition laws; forfeiture and alias warrant on failure of defendant to appear in court.

Bill Mims, charged with violating prohibition laws; plead guilty and was sentenced to six months hard labor for county.

WEST CHILTON

Mr. W. R. Redden is still sick with throat trouble, but is now improving.

Mr. Newt Atchison of Ensley visited the home folks here last week.

Your correspondent was invited Sunday to a song and anniversary service at Rehoboth, Bibb County. Arriving, among the first we met was Judge Adams of Clanton. The congregation was quite large. Prof. M. V. Lawley of Shelby called the people to order and directed a music lesson in the Christian Harmony. At eleven o'clock Judge Adams was called upon the rostrum and delivered a fine sermon, on the "Fundamental Doctrines of the Church." It was a fine effort; the peoule gave marked attention. The Judge was at his old home, among his many friends. He is one of the ablest exponents of the fundamental doctrines of the church in the county.

At noon a bountiful dinner was spread free for all.

This is the one-hundredth year of Rehoboth Church's existence. The Judge in his discourse paid a nice tribute to the Primitive Baptists.

The editorial in last week's Banner, "Ignoring the Supreme Being," was good. Just recently, a noted attorney, one of the ablest Biblical expositors of our day brought out the same thought, saying, "A League of Nations would probably do good, but would eventually be visited by the Judgments of the Supreme Being, because His name was disregarded."

Judge Adams' remarks Sunday on the Peace Treaty were along the same line.

WHY NOT GOOD ENOUGH?

The American Red Cross, the Y.M. C.A. and the Salvation Army are international institutions. If they are good enough for ordinary loyal American citizens, why are they not good enough for Catholics? Why did the Catholics have special plans for their own exclusive Catholic people in war aid through the Knights of Columbus? We found Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and men and women of various faiths working for the aid of our soldiers through the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and the Salvation army. Now, why were these agencies not good enough for the Catholics? None of the Protestant Churches were seeking any glory as a reward for its services in the war. Can we say too that the Catholics were not looking for any glory as a reward for what they did? Yes we can say it if we want to; but if we do say it we tell an emphatic lie.

The very reason that the Catholics must have had their own individual schemes for war aid was because they thought themselves better than any body else. And they were so narrow in their patriotism that rather than run the risk of somebody else getting any of the credit for what they might do, they preferred not to do it at all.

The subsidized and frightened daily press of this country prate and sport about Catholic loyalty during the war. Yes, they were loyal and fought alongside Protestants in the battle line. But what made them loyal? Here's what made it. They went up to Washington and through Pat Tumulty and Newt Baker they got Wilson told that if he didn't show the Catholics ample reward for their loyalty in the war, there might not be much stirring. Forthwith, Wilson takes Tumulty in private and assures him that the Catholics can have anything and everything they want. "Tell them," we imagine he said, "to go ahead and help us out in this war, and they can have whatever they want in the land of the U. S. A."

Straightway, came the demand of Catholics that all organizations but the Knights of Columbus be kept out of the training camps. Why this? They knew there would be vast work of keeping and aiding the soldiers in the camps and the Catholics wanted to grab all the honors for doing it.

The great loyalty of Catholics in the war was bought by this country. We don't know the exact price Wilson and Baker paid them. In fact, the debt has not been paid in full yet. There is no telling what may yet be handed over to the vultures in fulfilment of all of the promises of the contract. Instead of feeding the rascals out of a silver spoon and buying their loyalty to our government we ought to put them in shackles and show them that American liberty is in itself enough reward for a decent white man in supporting and fighting and even dying for the flag of Old Glory.

CHANGES IN SCHOOL LAWS

We call the attention of our readers to the letter of County Superintendent of Education Howard L. Foshee, in this week's paper, regarding the changes that have been made in the laws of Alabama relating to the government operation and maintenance of the public schools. The laws have been more than changed. The old laws were put in the waste basket and a new set made from the ground up. Mr. Foshee gives a good summary of the most important features of the laws and we hope our people will read his timely article. He is in Montgomery this week attending a conference of all the County Superintendents of the State. The purpose of this conference is to make a study of the new laws, and by so doing the Superintendents can get a good working idea of the laws that will suffice them for the few months they must wait yet till the laws are printed in book form.

HAND IN HAND

One of the main reasons why there has been such a marked improvement in the wholesomeness and healthfulness in food products the last ten years has been on account of the co-operation between pure food officials, domestic science teachers, and the medical profession. These three elements have been working toward a common end—our protection against unscrupulous manufacturers who have not based their claims to business on the quality, but rather on cheapness and who, in their endeavor to market their products on price or quantity, have often resorted to substitution and to the use of unwholesome material. Though progress has been made, yet much remains to be done.

Mr. Harry L. Eskew, food commissioner of Tennessee, has been very active in his efforts to safeguard the health of the people of his State. In the New York Journal of Commerce he has the following to say about so-called Self-Rising Flour, which is used in certain sections:

"I would not tolerate flour products like some of the 'self-rising' flour sold in a large part of the South the concomitants of which are alike unknown and not to be ascertained by the consumer and whose purity in the matter of phosphate is open to serious questions as a deceptive agency."

When in need of improvement of certain food products is pointed out so definitely and at the same time is backed up by thousands of domestic science teachers throughout the country, it is quite natural that American housewives will gradually become schooled in the proper selection of food products, and at the same time demand proper labeling of all food products, and to gain this end, the medical profession will continue to play an important role.

A subject of the Pope of Rome never was, is not now, and never can or will be a loyal American citizen. One cannot be an American citizen and a subject of the Pope of Rome at one and the same time. It is a moral impossibility. All subjects of such alien potentates as the Roman Pope, should be chased out of the United States with appropriate ceremony. This is putting it a bit strong for our Catholic "friends," but we believe it is the truth and therefore we say it from the housetop.

Judge Adams says he never had a more purely delightful time in his life than he did last Sunday over at Rehoboth in Bibb. Elsewhere our correspondent, Mr. Z. J. Jones gives a good account of the occasion.

If anybody chooses to spit tobacco juice or any other kind of juice on the floors and walls of Chilton County's new court house, they are apt to have to pay the fine for it. Timely warning has been given by Judge McCord, Judge Reynolods and Sheriff Gore.

GRAND JURY REPORT

The Grand Jury completed its labors on Wednesday afternoon and prepared its report to Judge McCord on Wednesday night, to be presented to the court on Thursday morning. We would have liked very much to publish the report this week, but we could not arrange to do so without coming out late with the paper. So, therefore, we concluded it best to wait till next week to publish the report.

FACTS OF INTEREST TO CHILTON COUNTY FORMERS

In discussing this subject, briefly various details will be taken up in the same order in which, according to the consensus of opinion of practical breeders, a beginner in the beef cattle business should consider them.

The first consideration would be that of good and sufficient permanent pasture for the number of animals to be maintained. The improvement of the natural pasture should be looked after at the very beginning, so that the pasture may be made to furnish sufficient grazing for the pasture season. Find out the kind of grasses especially suited to the locality, and the most practical way to get the pasture covered with them. Do not overstock the pasture, and keep weeds down by mowing or cutting with the hoe.

The next consideration should be the winter feed supply. Plan the cropping system that a minimum production of crops will always be ample to maintain the cattle through the winter. Plant the varieties of feeds that will be the most economical when fed to beef cattle. Investigate the silo as a means for furnishing roughage for cattle; use all the unsalable products, such as corn stover, the aftermath of the hay field and unsalable hay.

Following this, a man should look to his equipment. He should have enough pasture well fenced to keep different grades of cattle separated; keeping young heifers in one, young steers in another, and the breeding herd in the third. Also have sufficient pens and shelter for these different classes of cattle in the winter. An open shed with a windbreak is sufficient for the protection of cattle in this climate.

As to the herd itself, if forced to buy cattle, buy as high grade individuals as possible, provided the price is not exorbitant. Usually for a small premium above market price, a grade of cattle can be bought which would take several generations to reach in grading up. If you already have native or scrub cattle, weed out and sell your poorer individuals. But in either case, always use pedigreed or registered bulls to sire your calf crop.

Other details that are worth mentioning are as follows:

1. Do not breed heifers before they are two years old.
2. Confine your bull so that calves will come in the Spring, preferably March or April.
3. Dehorn and castrate calves when they are young.
4. Disturb cattle as little as possible by handling, but see them every few days.
5. Consult your Agricultural College for help when confronted with problems you cannot solve.

LOST POCKET BOOK—Left in the rear part of J. C. Jones' store on Monday. Contained about $39.10 in money, cotton receipt for one bale of cotton weighing 498 pounds from Thorsby Warehouse, also some other papers. Also my name and address printed in fold of the pocket book. Anyone who will return me $25 and papers it contains may have the remainder, and no questions asked. S. M. Edwards, Thorsby, Route 1.

A splendid way of growing this crop for Winter use, is to mix with Crimson Clover, using about six to eight pounds of clover and two pounds of turnip seed per acre. The clover does not interfere with the growth of the turnips as it grows so very much slower, but it protects the turnip to a large degree from injury by freezing.

The varieties used should be to the grower's liking, if grown for home use. If for market, one should grow what the market demands. The market prefers the Globe type, such as the White Globe, Red Top Globe or Purple Top Globe. But for home use, the White Flat Dutch, the Purple Top Globe. The Cow Horn and Swede rutabaga are the most popular. The Cow Horn is especially fine as it grows so deep in the ground that it is protected from freezing and, therefore, often goes through the Winter and is in good shape for use as late as March.

The soil selected should be a rich, garden loam, full of organic material, not wet, but retentive of moisture. It should be thoroughly prepared by first plowing, then harrowing and finally pulverizing the particles of soil. If you do not have a soil of the above type, select as good a piece of land as possible, preferably second bottom soil, a nd if manure is available, apply a liberal quantity.

The seed is best sown by mixing with some material such as cotton seed meal or other fertilizer. It requires about two pounds of seed to the acre. The seed being so small when sown by itself one is liable to get it entirely too thick. For early plantings I would recommend sowing in drills, making the drills about eighteen inches apart so that cultivation may be used if the crop becomes grassy, but when sown as late as the latter part of August broadcast sowing is the best. After the seed is sown, brush in with a very light harrow or by dragging a brush over the ground.

Do not neglect your turnip patch. It will furnish food for you and your live stock. Much attention should be given this crop, especially to the time of planting, selection of soil and varieties. Turnips may be sown from July to September for a Fall crop. Those sown in July usually get too strong before the cold weather, but make a splendid stock feed. A succession of this crop should be sown until the second week in September. In The South end of the State it may be sown a little later. The main crop, however, should be sown from the 15th of August until the 1st of September.

There are a few pests that effect the turnips, such as Aphis and the Army or Grass Worm. The Aphis may be controlled by spraying with a tobacco decoction known as "Black Leaf 40," as per directions on the package. The Army or Grass Worm can be controlled by spraying with arsenate of lead, one and one half pounds powdered, to fifty gallons of water

HARRIS CASE TODAY

The case of Sheriff H. A. Harris against the Birmingham and Montgomery daily papers comes up today in the Circuit Court. Sheriff Harris is sueing those papers for alleged damages done him while he was the executive of the Chilton County War Draft Board, by the publication of some erroneous reports about his work. Quite a great deal of interest hinges on the case in this county.

Take a simple thing like a dozen eggs.

You pick up your telephone and tell us you want a dozen eggs.

That's all we ask you to do.

Then, think what we do.

We buy the eggs—which takes considerable knowledge of eggs—and we hold them for you.

We deliver them to you. We guarantee every egg to be perfect when it arrives at your door. We don't ask you to pay for them until you receive your bill at the end of the month.

It's the same with every purchase you make.

And we are mighty glad to perform these services for you because we know you appreciate them and in return for them you make a regular practice of buying eggs and other things at our store.

You like to deal with us because you feel that we are doing everything we can to make your buying pleasant and profitable. You feel that we are honestly trying to serve you and you have faith in us. So that when we tell you about new things from time to time you take our word as a matter of course.

Because of this faith you have in us you can readily see how careful we must be that the things we recommend are good. We have no fear, however, in recommending RYZON Baking Powder.

It's a pure baking powder—efficient, economical, and always uniform. And it's fairly priced, 40 cents per pound. Ask us about other new and good things.

Constipation.

The beginning of almost every serious disorder is constipation. If you want to enjoy good health keep your bowels regular. This is best accomplished by proper diet and exercise, but sometimes a medicine is needed and when that is the case you will find Chamberlain's Tablets are excellent. They are mild and gentle in their action, easy and peasant to take. Give them a trial. They only cost a quarter.

I WISH EVERYBODY COULD KNOW

Suffered From Acute Indigestion, Gastritis, Constipation, Headaches and Other Troubles, Which Dreco, the Herbal Remedy, Overcame.

"This is the first remedy I have ever found that did me any good," states Mr. O. R. Booker of Route 2, Gadsden, Ala.

"I admit that when I began taking Dreco I had no confidence in it, for I had already tried so many of them, but the improvement is so marked that I am convinced of its merits. I used to suffer from gas on my stomach and bowels after eating: I would be all bloated up and very uncomfortable. My bowels were habitually constipated. I was bilious and had to be taking medicine constantly. My appetite was poor, and I became extremely nervous, so that I could not sleep much.

"I have taken a treatment of Dreco, and now my stomach digests the food without those distressing after-effects I used to have, such as pains, uneasy feeling, belching and gastritis. My appetite has increased: I sleep sound; my bowels act regularly every day, and I have no more backache nor dizzy spells. You have my permission to publish this letter."

It has become a custom with many persons to take a good system tonic each year, something that cleans out the system, purifies the blood, gets the liver and kidneys in good shape, and tones up the stomach. Such a tonic is Dreco. Being made of roots, herbs, barks, berries and leaves from medicinal herbal plants, it is truly Nature's own remedy, and that it really accomplishes these results is proven by the many endorsements given it by well-known and reliable people.

ANOTHER AFTERMATH OF WAR

There is one class of rgarters who should be dealt with by law of possible and by public opinion in any event—those who seek to make financial gain by lobbying or pretending to lobby in behalf of the veterans of the European war. Neither the returned soldiers nor the relatives and friends of the soldiers should permit themselves to be victimized by men who seek to profiteer by becoming active in the interest of the men who served in the A.E.F. Congress and the committees of Congress, will give abundant opportunity for submission and consideration of every fact and argument in support of any plan or claim in behalf of the soldiers, and this can be done through truly representative soldier organizations. The man who would profiteer upon public appreciation of the service rendered by the soldiers is a form of parasite with which the cootie makes favorable comparison.

Mr. G. W. Frith of Route 3 was a visitor to The Union-Banner Monday. He requested the Editor to publish the federal law on cattle dipping, which we shall do as soon as we can obtain a cony of the same.

Watch the Little Pimples; They are Nature's Warning

Unsightly and Disfiguring Signals of Bad Blood.

Pimples on the face and other parts of the body are warnings from Nature that your blood is sluggish and impoverished. Sometimes they foretell eczema, boils, blisters, and other skin disorders that burn like flames of fire.

They mean that your blood needs S. S. S. to purify it and cleanse it of these impure accumulations that can cause unlimited trouble. This remedy is the greatest vegetable blood purifier known, and contains no minerals or chemicals to injure the most delicate skin.

Go to your drug store, and get a bottle of S. S. S. today, get rid of those unsightly, disfiguring pimples, and other skin irritations. It will cleanse your blood thoroughly. For special medical advice free, address Medical Director, 41 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

THORSBY ITEMS

The Helen Keller Literary Society held the first meeting of the year on Saturday night, October 4th. The officers for the first semester are: President, Odie Lee Arthur; Vice-President, Lake Erie Cochran; Secretary, Waldemar Lefstead; Treasurer, Zell Pope; Custodian, Irene Boggan.

The following program was rendered:

Business; roll-call; Devotions, Miss Jenkins; piano solo, Lura Woods; talks on the following subjects; navy experiences, Zell Pope; Andrew Carnegie, Waldemar Lefstead; Mosquitoes, James Lane; Vocal Duet, Mrs. Nottage, Miss Craig; Parlimentary Drill, Miss Stoddard; Song, Society.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Saturday, October 18.

Mr. J. A. Soberg is in Birmingham for a few days.

John Bruner, of Greenville, Ala., a former student of Thorsby Institute, who has been employed for several months by the Goodyear Rubber Co., of Akron, Ohio, returned to Alabama recently and enrolled last Monday as a student at Thorsby Institute.

The quarterly meeting of the Board of Trustees of Thorsby Institute will be held at Bates Hall on Thursday of this week. Revs. Eaves and Graham of Birmingham will come down Thursday for the meeting, and it is expected they will also speak at the chapel exercises at the Institute on Thursday morning.

Edward Howard was in Thorsby last week on a three-day's furlough. Edward is in the navy now, stationed at Hampton Roads, Va., and is expecting to enter a naval electrical school on his return to camp.

Miss Olga Soberg is rapidly recovering after an operation for appendicitis. She was taken from the hospital to her boarding place on Monday, and will come hame soon for a few weeks visit with hime folks.

Will Scott, who has been in the navy for about two years, has received his discharge and is home now.

The athletic association of Thorsby Institute organized last week, the following officers being elected for the year: President, Waldemar Lefstead; vice-president, George Tuck; secretary-treasurer, William Beasley. A good strong football and basketball team is being organized and it is hoped soon to have some match games.

Friends of Seagle Ekblad are glad to welcome him home, after a year's absence in overseas service.

Uncle Dock Wells has just returned from a two-week's visit to his son in law at Shannon. He says he enjoyed his visit by attending a protracted meeting while there.

E. L. Jones and E. A. Norris of Corinth were in Clanton Tuesday.

Lewis T. Dennis of Mt. Creek was among the visitors to Circuit Court here this week.

J. M. Gearing of Marbury was a visitory to Clanton Monday. He is going to pull off a big auction sale soon. Read his advertisement elsewhere in this issue of The Union-Banner.

An Agreeable Surprise.

"About three years ago when I was suffering from a severe cold on my lungs and coughed most of the time night and day, I tried a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and was surprised at the promptness with which it gave me relief," writes Mrs. James Brown, Clark Mills, N. Y. Many another has been surprised and pleased with the prompt relief affirded by this remedy.

BRAZIL AND TARIFF

"It will never be possible," says Trade Commissioner H. G. Brock, in his report on the Brazillian market for shoes, "to sell cheap foreign shoes in Brazil again, because of the high tariff and the excellence of the footwear produced in domestic factories." The commissioner discovers that Brazil has become practically independent of imported footwear because of a protective tariff which has developed her shoe industry to a point which capacitates her to provide enough footwear for her own people. Brazil has no illusions respecting the tariff. She is for protection, as we were before Mr. Wilson came in.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

This remedy is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup, and whooping cough. From a small beginning its sale and use have extended to all parts of the United States and to many foreign countries. This alone ise enough to convince one that it is a medicine of more than ordinary merit. Give it a trial and you will find this to be the case.

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady. Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Prine, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child...I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time...

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. ——about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble', so he got me 5 bottles...After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved...before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it. E 74

REV. HONEYCUTT PREACHED AT CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Last Sunday morning and Sunday night the pulpit at the Clanton Baptist Church was ably filled by Rev. H. H. Honeycutt, of Maxton, N. C., who came here by invitation from the church.

By his sermons and general demeanor regarding church affairs he impressed all who heard him very favorably. It is expected that the church will extend him a call to serve as the pastor.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH THE AMERICAN RED CROSS.

Early in the participation of the United States in the world war, the American Red Cross perceived the value of mobilizing the school children of the country and the Junior Red Cross was organized. Before the war ended nine million children were enrolled and helped in the war fund and membership campaigns, in chapter production of relief supplies and manufacturing furniture for the refugees whose homes and household goods were destroyed.

Children everywhere in the United States responded to the call to service sounded by President Wilson as head of the American Red Cross. This photograph is that of an enthusiatic young Japanese member of the Junior Red Cross of Spokane, Wash., starting out on the ambitious undertaking of collecting "a mile of pennies" for war relief. A comprehensive peace program is now being worked out for the Junior Red Cross, which is being held intact.

UNCLE SAM CALLING FOR CENSUS TAKERS

The Director of the Census, Hon. Sam L. Rogers, anonunces that 80,000 enumerators will be needed to take the next census. The work begins on January 2 and will last about two weeks in cities, and a month or more in rural districts. Rates of pay will vary, depending upon the locality and character of the district to be canvassed. The average pay per enumerator at the census of 1910 was about $70. At this coming census it will probably be not less than $100.

"Active, intelligent, and reliable men and women, not less than 18 years of age, are needed for this task," said Director Rogers, "and, in a sense, this is a call for volunteers. The importance of a complete and reliable census, especially in these critical times when more than ever before perhaps we need complete data regarding population, conditions tendencies and resources, can hardly be over-emphasized. The reorganization of the social and economic structure and the readjustment of international relations necessitated by the war, must be based on accurate knowledge if we are to act wisely and deal justly with all classes and interests. It is hoped therefore, that public-spirited energetic people throughout the country will volunteer to act as census enumerators even though they may not care for the positions so far as the pay is concerned. I should be sorry to think and I do not believe, that all our patriotism was used up by the war and none left over for public service in times of peace."

Mr. William J. McLeod, Supervisor of the Census for the Fourth Alabama District, which includes the counties of Cleburne, Calhoun, Talladega, Shelby, Chilton and Dallas, states that he will need about 250 enumerators for this district. Applications or requests for application forms should be sent to him on or before October 22nd. His address is Sylacauga, Ala.

As a test for their fitness for the work applicants will be required to fill out a sample schedule and will be duly notified of the time and the place for this test. So far is practicable, the place selected will be one which is easily accessible.

The progressive farmers of Alabama will soon have an opportunity to organize themselves into a seed breeders' and growers' association. The Alabama Extension Service offered them this opportunity late last winter, but on account of the pressure of farming business at that time many farmers could not attend the meeting, therefore it was deemed more suitable to call a meeting for this purpose in mid-summer.

Farmers of Alabama are suffering immense loss of crops from the use of seeds of bad quality. The poor stand of peanuts and velvet beans now existing in south Alabama, is due to the use of seeds of bad quality. There may be seen at this time many cotton and cowpea plants dead or dying in different parts of the fields from the attack of wilt diseases and nematode worms. These facts and experiences show very impressively the importance of controlling in some manner the supply of planting seeds.

A Seed Breeders' and Growers' Assocition will make it convenient for every farmer of Alabama to obtain all kinds of planting seeds of the highest grade and at the most reasonable price. On the other hand, the seed breeders and growers will increase their income, and interest in the farming business by making seed improvement a part of their farming operations.

The Extension Service at Auburn, with other interested parties, has been working for some time toward the organization of a State Seed Breeders' and Growers' Association. It is planned to call a meeting at Auburn the latter part of July for the purpose of organizing and starting operation of such an association. Why not plan at once to get into this movement with full force and make it a success?

COMMISSIONERS CHANGE COUNTY SUPT.'S ROOM

At a meeting of the Commissioners Court last Saturday, it was agreed to change the office of the County Superintendent of Education. Instead of being down stairs the office of the school executive will be up stairs in the grand jury room till the first of January next. After that time he will occupy the present room of the County treasurer, also up stairs. It may be that after the term of the present county treasurer, expires the office will be taken over by a bank as provided by the law in cases where a bank will agree to handle the county funds.

This arrangement will give the county superintendent of education the advantage of more convenient and commodious quarters than is available in the room down stairs that was originally designated for him in the plans of the new court house.

Our friend, Mr. John W. Hays of Thorsby was in Clanton a while on Saturday morning. He said he was going to try to get permission to bring down his splendid class of old time singers, including the Sanders girls, down to Clanton before long and sing in the new court house. We are sure it would be an enjoyable occasion, and one which many people would like to have the pleasure of attending.

STATEMENT

Of the Ownership, Management, Circulation, Etc., Required by the Act of Congress, of August 24th, 1912,

Of "The Union-Banner," published weekly at Clanton, Alabama, for October 1, 1919.

State of Alabama, Chilton County

Before me, Clerk of the Circuit Court in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared W. M. Wyatt, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says thae he is the Editor of The Union-Banner, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the o wnership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24th, 1912, embodied in Section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to-wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:—Publishers, W. M. Wyatt and T. E. Wyatt, Clanton, Ala.; Editor, W. M. Wyatt, Clanton, Ala.; Business Manager, T. E. Wyatt, Clanton, Ala.

2. That the owners are: W. M. Wyatt, Clanton, Ala., and T. E. Wyatt, Clanton, Ala.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are:

Merganthaler Linotype Co., New York, N. Y.; Peoples Savings Bank, Clanton, Ala.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the bookks of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

Sworn to and ubscribed before me, this 29th day of September, 1919.

THE UNION-BANNER

VOLUME VIII. CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., OCTOBER 16, 1919 NUMBER 29.

LAW CONDEMNS ALL DOGS TO BE KILLED

They Should Have Been Registered With Circuit Clerk Before October 15th.

On account of negligence or misunderstanding somewhere up the line Chilton County's dog business stands in a delinquent state, and if the letter of the law should be demanded today, it would take the head of every canine in the county. Somebody is responsible for the fact that the demands of the law have not been made known to the officials whose duty it is to execute the laws, and also to the people who are to abide by them.

The first that was known here of the law was found in an article in the Montgomery Advertiser of last Saturday. It had the following to say in regard to the new dog tax law of the state:

"Under the new statute all dogs must be registered with the clerk of the circuit court between October 1 and October 15th. The registration fee for a male is $1.25, for a female $2.25 annually, and in return for the money the owner gets a tag and a receipt.

The dog taxes will become delinquent after October 15th, and the fee will be doubled. The sheriff and constables are required to kill on sight dogs not officially tagged, and the officers can be fined from $5 to $25 if they fail to slay an unregistered animal. However, if they can locate the owner, they may give the owner an opporaunity of paying the tax, and an extra fee of $2.50.

The law requires that all dogs must wear muzzles except when accompanied by the owner or his agent, and that dogs must be locked up or tied from sundown to sun up. The enforcement of the law is placed in the hands of the sheriff, constables and county license inspector.

The funds derived from the tax are to be used for the upkeep of the state pasteur institute, and to defray the expenses of poor persons who have been bitten by mad dogs and need treatment."

The Circuit Clerk, Mr. M. D. Foshee whose duty it is to register the dogs in Chilton County, has called on the Secretary of State for information about the operation of the law. As it now stands, the dog taxes are delinquent, and the Sheriff or constables are required to kill all dogs not officially tagged, or be fined for not doing so.

It has brought about a rather complicated situation here in the county. Those who have dogs had better keep their eyes open and be ready to comply with the law as soon as the opportunity presents itself. Otherwise the officers will be compelled to slay the dogs when they find them not officially tagged.

A meeting of the Preachers and Deacons Conference of Chilton County and Unity Baptist Associations was held at the Clanton Baptist church on Monday. A goodly number of the ministers and deacons of the county were present.

The county board of education was in session at the court house Monday. All the members of the body were present. The Board is having quite a task to get the new school laws all straightened out and in working order for the county.

DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

On November 2, 1919, we will hold our District Sunday School Convention, at Shady Grove, three miles east of Verbena. We hope to have every one of our department Superintendents and county presidents with us. And we urge every School to be represented. You will get something worth while and it is our desire to make our district a golden star district. To do this we must have the co-operation of every school. So don't forget to come November 2.
W. A. CALLOWAY, Pres.
LEE ROBINSON, Secy.

MT. PLEASANT

Our school opened Monday with an enrollment of sixty-four. There will be over a hundred when all come in. We have for our teachers Miss Lessie Reynolds and Miss Irene Jones. Miss Reynolds taught for us last year so we feel safe in saying that we are sure of a very successful term.

Emmett Blankenship and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Minnie Evans.

Arthur Neilly spent Saturday night at D. T. Melton's.

Mrs. Willie Love and Miss Irene Love of Wylam were visitors at L. M. Rowell's Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Mary Collins of Collins Chapel spent Sunday with Misses Lillian and Ruebelle Collins.

Quite a crowd attended the singing at G. W. Melton's Saturday night.

H. P. Handley and wife are visiting at L. M. Rowell's.

Will Brasher and wife of Coosa County spent part of last week at G. W. Melton's.

A. D. Duke and wife recently visited their son, C. D. Duke.

W. A. Blankenship and family were recent visitors at Jake Plyer's.

J. A. Duncan and family and Mrs. Katie Duncan spent part of last week in Birmingham.

Besides bringing us a bunch of sugar cane, Mr. E. L. Jones brought us another good subscriber Monday, in the person of Rev. J. D. Hughes. Mr. Hughes is one of our old stand bys in the preaching business, and we are mighty glad to number him among our readers.

Squire A. F. Childress of Thorsby passed the Union-Banner office Monday and hollered howdy to us.

Uncle George Mims of Collins Chapel, was a visitor to The Union-Banner office last Monday.

Our good friend, Mr. E. L. Jones, of Corinth, was a visitor to Clanton Monday. He came here to attend the Preachers and Deacons meeting at the Baptist Church. Mr. Jones is not a preacher, but he is one of the best deacons you ever saw. And he is a friend worth while, along with it all. He brought The Union-Banner force four big long stalks of sugar cane. As a consequence we quit chewing the rag for a while and chewed cane.
